Naidu cites ban on fireworks, executive being kept out of judge appointments

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE AHMEDABAD, NOVEMBER 25

CURBING DIWALI fireworks, denying the executive a role in the appointment of judges and monitoring investigations are judicial pronouncements giving a "distinct impression of overreach," Vice President Venkaiah Naidu said Wednesday underlining that the legislature, executive and the judiciary should respect "jurisdictional sanctity enshrined in the Constitution instead of arrogating (to) themselves a sense of supremacy" Addressing the two-day 80th

All India Presiding Officers' Conference held at Kevadia in Gujarat, where President Ram Nath Kovind was in attendance, Naidu said, "Our Constitution has demarcated very clear domains of each of these three organs in the lines of separation of powers, though not in a very formalistic manner... SONIA GANDHI described Ahmed Patel as an "irreplaceable companion" but, surprisingly, Rahul, who was often not on the same page as him, summed up the loss of Ahmed bhai - as he was widely known - more pithily. Rahul acknowledged him as "one of the pillars of the Congress" - not exactly an understatement from a dynast first family the party is a hollow

Indeed, Patel, 71, who passed away early Wednesday fighting multiple organ failure post-Covid, was the go-to man whenver the Congress faced trouble.

In a letter Wednesday to Lok Sabha Secretary General Snehlata Shrivastava, Union Home Secretary Ajay Bhalla said, "considering the security scenario in UT of Jammu & Kashmir, disclosure of information relating to suspension of telecom services would be prejudicial to State/UT Governments shall not impose any local lockdown (state/district/sub-division/city level)outside the containment zones without prior consultation with the Central Government," guidelines issued by the MHA said.

With the fresh set of guidelines, the Centre has now given states the freedom to put any kind of restriction that they deem fit as long as they do not hinder inter-state movement of goods and public. It has, however, reiterated that states cannot seal borders. "No separate permission/approval/e-permit will be required for such movements.' the guidelines have said.

The guidelines have reiterated the restrictions imposed and relaxations given in the last lockdown guidelines but given the freedom to states to restrict public gatherings.

Several states have already proposed to put such restrictions, with Delhi government even issuing orders to restrict gatherings at weddings to less than 100. States such as Maharashtra have also started putting restrictions on those coming from outside the state, seeking negative RT-PCR test re-

The Centre has also flagged offices as spaces for spread of the coronavirus and asked states to stagger office timings.

For containment zones, the guidelines have issued detailed instructions. Along with strict perimeter control and allowing essential activities within them, the Centre has asked states to focus on contact tracing and trace all contacts of a Covid positive person within 72 hours. "In some states this is not being done with rigour. That is why this matter had to be emphasised," a home ministry official said. "There shall be intensive house-to-house surveillance... Testing shall be carried out as per prescribed protocol. Listing of contacts shall be carried out in respect of all persons found positive, along with their tracking, identification, quarantine and follow up of contacts for 14 days (80 per cent of contacts to be traced in 72 hours). Ouick isolation of COVID-19 patients shall be ensured in treatment facilities/ home (subject to fulfilling home guidelines).Clinical interventions, as prescribed, shall be administered. Surveillance for ILI SARI cases shall be carried out in health facilities or outreach mobile units or through fever clinics in buffer zones," the guidelines have said.

"PDP's @parawahid applauded by then HM @rajnathsingh for strengthening democracy in J&K has been arrested on baseless charges by NIA today. No coincidence that he filed his nomination for DDC on 20th Nov & received NIA summons next day itself," former chief minister and PDP president Mehbooba Mufti tweeted. "BJP milks illegal scrapping of Article 370 in every nook & corner of the country. But when it comes to Kashmiris questioning its abrogation they are locked up & punished. Everyone knows at whose behest Devinder Singh worked for. Ironic that they have the gall to blame others. Waheed has no connection whatsoever with this man & is being falsely charged. All just to blackmail & intimidate PDP & other mainstream political parties in J&K."

The 32-year-old is among Mufti's closest advisors and was considered the PDP's manager on the ground. The Parras and the Muftis go back a long way, with Parra's grandfather Abdul Rehman Parra a close aide of Mufti Mohammad Sayeed.

Party insiders often credit the PDP's success in south Kashmir, especially Pulwama district, to Parra's efforts.

In 2016, during Parra's stint as Secretary of the Jammu and Kashmir Special Council, then Union home minister Rajnath Singh had praised him for "uplifting sports" in Kashmir.

Although Additional Secretary Govind Mohan appeared before the panel, sources said he declined to provide details on the Internet shutdown. When he was asked about the communication blockade in other states, the official, it is learned, said law and order is a state subject.

In his letter, Bhalla pointed out that the Union Home Secretary or the Secretary in charge of the Home Department can issue direction for suspension of telecom services. "It has been verified from the Lok Sabha Secretariat that the Committee proposes to discuss mainly the suspension of telecom services in I&K... The MHA has already stated its position on the issue and issues related to the subject before the Committee in its last meeting dated 16th October, 2020 and has nothing further to state or add in this regard," he

In October, the Ministry had told the parliamentary panel that the Union Home Secretary had issued such directions twice in December 2019 in specific areas of Delhi for limited periods only. It also said the Ministry "does not maintain data of such suspension orders issued by various state governments including Jammu and Kashmir.'

Former Lok Sabha Secretary General PDT Achary said rules allow the government to reject a parliamentary panel's demand for documents if the matter is linked to national security. "The government can take the plea that since the matter involves the country's security, the government is not obliged to supply the documents or papers or send officials before the committee to depose. But the government has to satisfy the Speaker that the matter involves security of the country," Achary said, adding that ministries denying documents to parliament standing committees, where discussions are confidential, is rare.

Over-reach seen in some court verdicts, organs of State must respect limits: Naidu

"Since Independence, the Supreme Court and the High Courts have delivered several far reaching verdicts in furtherance of socio-economic objectives, besides making correctional interventions," said Naidu, who is also Rajya Sabha chairperson.

"But occasionally, concerns have been raised to whether they are entering the domains of the legislative and executive wings. There have been debates whether some issues should have been more legitimately left to the other organs of the government. For example, Diwali fireworks, steps on registration and movement of vehicles from the National Capital Region through Delhi, banning the use of vehicles of certain make after 10 or 15 years, monitoring police investigations, denying the executive any role in appointment of judges by instituting the collegium, which is said to be an extra constitutional body," Naidu said.

Saying such actions by the judiciary "have resulted in avoidable blurring of the contours demarcated by the Constitution," Naidu said, "They have led to the question as how these three organs of the state should respect the jurisdictional sanctity enshrined in the supremacy," he said.

Reiterating that the Constitution of India was "supreme", he later said, "Judicial review, declared as one of the basic features of our Constitution, imposes certain restrictions on the legislature. Lawmakers have the liberty of defending their territory even by nullifying judicial decisions, if so warranted."

Naidu also touched upon the excesses of the executive and legislature. "We are familiar with the excesses of the executive in disregard of their accountability to the legislature on certain occasions... Violation of rights and liberties of citizens by has crossed the line. The 39th constitutional amendment placing the election of President and Vice President and Prime Minister beyond the scope of judicial scrutiny in 1975 is one such instance," he said.

Earlier, inaugurating the conference, President Kovind touched upon the need for "harmony" -- the theme of the conference -- saying that in a parliamentary democracy, the Opposition also has an important role along with the ruling party, and therefore, harmony, cooperation and meaningful deliberation between the two is necessary. It is responsibility of the presiding officers to provide congenial atmosphere for a healthy debate in the House, he said.

One of his regrets is that the sixth-floor ICU, with its picturesque view of Bandra Worli Sea Link, bears the gloom cast by Covid-19, with familiar faces now covered by masks. Parkar estimates he has treated 1,000 hospitalised Covid-19 patients and another 500 in OPD by now. And, it's still not easier. "I have seen critical patients and I feel helpless. There is still not solid treatment for Covid-19 and sometimes there is nothing we can do to save them,'

Hearing a writ petition by the state's former Advocate General Dammalapati Srinivas and others, the High Court, in an interim order on September 15, had also staved the investigation of the FIR. This stay continues to remain in operation.

The Supreme Court bench so asked the High Court not to decide the writ petition pending before it while the top court is hearing the matter.

Appearing for the Andhra Pradesh government, Senior Advocate Rajeev Dhavan said the writ petition was filed before the High Court as soon as the enquiry was ordered, and was decided the same day.

The interim relief, he contended, was granted after the petitioner claimed that the government was running the state in utter disregard of the Constitution. Dhavan wondered whether relief could be granted in a criminal case on such grounds.

"This (petition before the High Court) is an entirely political writ petition against the Chief Minister. It is not based on facts but cites reliable sources which too are not revealed." he Explaining the reason for the High Court taking up the matter urgently, Senior Advocate Mukul Rohatgi, appearing for Srinivas, referred to the state writing to the CBI against the former Advocate General and said this was done because the former law officer had appeared in 25 corruption cases against the present Chief Minister.

"I had urged the HC to hear it immediately as it tarnished the reputation of a lawyer with a standing of 30 years," he said. "My client is targeted... This case reeks of malafide. This is worse than Emergency... My reputation is being damaged."

Senior Advocate Harish Salve urged the bench to allow the High Court to decide the matter and said the plea by the state government in the top court is a "vote of no-confidence against the HC and its Chief

Rajasthan govt gets HC notice after cops take away woman

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 25

THE DELHI High Court Wednesday issued a notice to the Rajasthan government Resident through Commissioner here, as it noted with concern its state police action of taking away a 26-year-old woman from the national capital on Tuesday in a criminal case despite she being stated to be a victim of offences mentioned in the FIR registered there.

"We are perplexed to note that even though she was not the named accused, she has been taken into custody by the Rajasthan police statedly against her will. Her statement could have been recorded before the competent court in Delhi itself, instead of removing her from Delhi," the division bench of Justice Vipin Sanghi and Justice Rajnish Bhatnagar said in an order.

Directing the Rajasthan government to produce her through a video link before the court on Thursday, the bench also asked it to ensure no harm is caused to her while she is detained in custody. It also said the custody "prima facie, appears to us, to be illegal" and asked the state to ensure her mobile is returned to her and that no harm comes to her from her parents or other relatives.

According to the petition, filed by a lawyer on behalf of the woman, Sheena Choudhary, before the High Court, she was taken away by Rajasthan Police on Tuesday from Delhi while she was having lunch in Jamia Nagar with her friends.

The court was told her father had earlier made a complaint in Rajasthan, where she works, alleging her kidnapping and illegal confinement. She was picked up in connection with that case, the court was told. She is being moved from one place to another in Rajasthan and her mobile phone has been taken away to disable her from contacting any person or seeking any assistance, the petition said.

November Choudhary, an IIM-Bangalore fellow, working in Dholpur, Rajasthan, left for Delhi, alleging her family was planning to forcibly take her away and get her married without her consent. On November 21, she met DCP(New Delhi) Dr Eish Singhal, and submitted a letter saying, "My family is forcing me to get married. When I refused, they threatened that they would take me away forcefully and stop my job and further studies. Due to the perceived threat, I left Dholpur of my own free will."

A FIRE broke out at the Ghazipur landfill site Tuesday night, burning for almost 24 hours before firefighters could bring in under control. This comes even as the capital's air quality worsened to severe on Wednesday.

A call was received around 10 pm Tuesday about the fire. Delhi Fire Service Chief Atul Garg said, "Firemen have been at the landfill for more than 18 hours. To control air pollution, eight tenders are still at the spot dousing the blaze and conducting a cool-

According a senior fire official, a part of the landfill was gutted at night and the fire soon spread to other parts but there was no damage to life or property. "Since the fire and smoke caused damage to the environment and health, a case has been registered against unknown persons to investigate the cause behind it," said a senior police officer.

Since Tuesday night, air quality monitoring stations of the Pollution Control Committee close to landfill at Patpargani and Anand Vihar have recorded high concentrations of pollutants. At Patparganj, concentration of PM2.5 and PM 10 – fine particles suspended in the air — peaked at $420 \,\mu g/m3$ and 600 µg/m3 at midnight before reducing, but still remained above the acceptable limits.

The 24-hour exposure limit of PM2.5 is $60 \,\mu\text{g/m}^3$ and PM10 is 100 µg/m3. The air quality index (AQI) at the two stations has been very poor to severe since Tuesday. As of 7 pm on Wednesday, both stations were in the severe range. Though both stations have recorded high pollution levels earlier this month. the fire would have increased concentration of pollutants in the area, said a senior official.

Commissioned in 1984, the landfill site reached its capacity in 2002. However, in the absence of any alternate option, garbage continues to be dumped here. Presently, an exercise to reduce the height of landfill with the help of tromell machines is being carried out at the site.

combustible, and presence of methane in small quantities can't be ruled out as well. So any igniting material that comes into contact with these can lead to a fire. However, methane self ignites at a very high temperature of 60-70 degree Celsius. Fires due to this occur when the temperature inside the heap is very high, which is less likely in leaders of setting the landfill on fire to defame the Arvind Kejriwal government – a charge denied by the BJP.

The incident also saw AAP and BJP engaging in a political blame game, with AAP leader Durgesh Pathak accusing BJP

Delhi BJP spokesperson Praveen Shankar Kapoor said Pathak's statement "speaks volumes of his political conduct".

"EDMC's political leadership has been working hard to decrease the height of the garbage dump and the same has been showing results during the last one year," said Kapoor.

Ahead of farmers' march, police step up patrol at borders

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI. NOVEMBER 25

AS THOUSANDS of farmers from Harvana and Punjab gear up for the 'Delhi Chalo' march on November 26-27 to protest against the Centre's three farm laws, Delhi Police said they have denied all requests from farmers' organisations for the same and stepped up deployment at borders. The Delhi Metro also said no train will cross borders to enter Noida, Gurgaon or other NCR towns till 2 pm on Thursday. Trains from NCR towns will also not enter Delhi during that time and run along stretches within borders of those towns.

"Due to kisan rally call for Delhi, on the request of Delhi Police and to avoid overcrowding in view of ongoing Covid pandemic, services will be regulated tomorrow from resumption early in the morning till 2 pm through loops. After 2 pm, services will run on all lines from end to end," said exit gates of 12 stations around New Delhi district may be shut at short notice on communucation from police.

Delhi Police PRO Dr Eish Singhal said police have appealed to the organisations on social media to postpone the protest as it isn't allowed under the DDMA's guidelines restricting public gatherings in the city due to the pandemic. He said, "We can't allow this march due to Covid-19. Protesters and policemen deployed on the road are both at risk. However, we are anticipating protesters at the borders and will conduct intensive checking."

their march Wednesday morning. Police said they have deployed personnel at main entry points at the borders and pickets, and will conduct strict checking for the next two days before allowing other people to enter.

A senior officer said, "We have also called paramilitary forces and outside companies to help prevent entry of farmers."

In East Delhi, local police and paramilitary forces will guard major roads and other small borders. DCP (East) Jasmeet Singh said. "There's heavy deployment at Ghazipur border, DND and Chilla. We haven't sealed the borders and are allowing other people to go. Depending on the situation, we will create traffic diversions for the public."

DCP (Southeast) R P Meena said they have been provided with eight companies of paramilitary forces to assist local police at the borders. DCP (Outer North) Gaurav Sharma said, "Local police have been instructed to guard the Singhu border. Tomorrow, six companies of paramilitary forces will join them."

Gurgaon Police has also identified seven points at the district's borders, where supervisory officers and duty in charges have been posted.

Surya said the accused have been identified Mohammed Khalid (31) and Tarik Ali (30), residents of Sunder Nagri, and that efforts are on to nab their brother Naasir and his accomplice.

Police said Zulfikar Qureshi was shot in the head and his son Jabaaz was attacked with a sharp-edged weapon. The incident took place when Qureshi was on his way to a mosque in his locality. He had gone just a few metres from his house when the four men allegedly intercepted him following which a scuffle broke out.

DCP Surya said during the course of investigation, it emerged that Qureshi had an old business dispute with Naasir and his family as both parties ran a scrap shop: "When Jaabaz was undergoing treatment, he disclosed names of the attackers.

Their call detail records were analysed and locations traced. Raids were conducted at their prominent hideouts and both Tarik and Khalid were arrested from Nand Nagri by a team led by inspector Vinay Yadav.' During questioning, the accused told police they allegedly killed Qureshi over personal enmity. "Tarik told police his family was into scrap dealing and had shops adjacent to Qureshi's house, which led to a business rivalry between them. The accused alleged that Qureshi used to make false complaints against their scrap shop due to which they often had to close for a long period of time. They tried to resolve their issues with Qureshi a few times but he used to always abuse his family. Fed up, they decided to kill Qureshi," said Surya.

Qureshi's brother-in-law Mohd Kamruddin said he was an RTI activist, who was earlier secretary of the BIP minority cell of Northeast Delhi.

"Before his death, he was president of the eastern unit of the Himalaya Pariwar, founded by RSS leader Indresh Kumar. He was constantly threatened by all scrap dealers but he was doing his work with honesty,' Kamruddin had said.

6.42% POSITIVITY RATE

5-day survey: Of 57 lakh Delhiites covered, 13,516 show symptoms

SOURAV ROY BARMAN & MALLICA JOSHI

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 25

THE FIVE-DAY survey across Delhi's 4,456 coronavirus containment zones and hotspots, which covered a population of 57.3 lakh from November 20 to 24, has found 13,516 persons showing symptoms, 8,413 contacts of identified cases, and a positivity rate of 6.42 per cent, according to official records.

The survey was prompted by the Union Ministry of Home Affairs, which turned its focus on the national capital after case and death count rose alarmingly. It was carried out by over 8,000 three-member teams comprising ASHA workers, school teachers and civil defence volunteers, among others,

While the significance of the numbers was still being assessed, the survey, said officials, served the dual purpose of generating awareness about the pandemic and isolating suspects and contacts.

'We cannot immediately comment on what the numbers actually mean. Our serosurveys have also thrown up different numbers, which did not entirely conform to what many were expecting. But it has surely served the purpose of information, education and communication. Plus, symptomatics who may not have undergone testing immediWhat survey shows ately have been isolated as well as contacts," a senior Delhi government official told The Indian

According to records, a population of 57.3 lakh — which is a quarter of Delhi's population in containment zones and hotspots were covered by the survey till November 24. The objective was to identify and suspects and contacts.

While 13,516 suspects were identified, 11,790 of them were tested. Moreover, 8,413 contacts of coronavirus patients were also identified, out of which 6,546 were tested. The cumulative number of persons who tested positive are 1,178, which translates to a positivity rate of 6.42 per cent.

Ahead of the survey, district officials had told The Indian Express that its success depended mostly on the willingness of people to come forward and get screened. The teams were given thermal scanners and oximeters to identify symptomatic people.

The areas chosen for the survey are home to around 62 per cent of the 38,287 active cases. Delhi's positivity rate number of people found positive for every 100 tests — had risen to 15.33 per cent on November 15 and it saw a record 131 deaths on November 18 – deeply worrying numbers amid a crunch in availability of critical healthcare infrastructure in hospitals and nursing homes.

On Wednesday, the positivity rate stood at 8.49 per cent with 99 deaths. The four rounds of sero surveys in July, August, September and October found sero-prevalence of 22.86 per cent, 29.36 per cent, 24.79 per cent and 25.93

Riots chargesheet: 'Conspiracy not aborted, continues despite arrests'

ANAND MOHAN J

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 25

THE CONSPIRACY behind the February Northeast Delhi riots is "neither aborted nor abandoned" and is continuing despite arrest of accused persons, said Delhi Police in their supplementary chargesheet filed in a riots case.

Police filed the chargesheet before Additional Sessions Judge Amitabh Rawat against former JNU student Umar Khalid, JNU student Sharjeel Imam and one Faizan Khan under relevant sections of Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act (UAPA) on Sunday. The court took cognizance of the chargesheet on Tuesday. Imam and Khalid's lawyers refused to comment on the allegations.

Police have accused Khalid of planning to "break up India in

"It is worthwhile to mention here that the aforesaid criminal conspiracy is continuing. It has suffered setbacks with the exposure and arrest of accused persons but it is neither aborted nor abandoned and shall be accounted for and further unearthed in the continuing investigation," the chargesheet stated.

Police said the brunt of the conspiracy was "suffered by those who reside in densely populated district of India where day-to-day survival requires blood and sweat of the tiller and the bread winner", while the leaders chose to "either remain safely glued to their television sets in the comfort of their homes in upscale locations of Delhi-NCR using their communication devices as the weapon of the enlightened".

The chargesheet stated that the accused had entered into a 'deep-rooted and sinister conspiracy to do an illegal act with the express object to disturb societal harmony by their terror-

Strict monitoring of home isolation cases needed: L-G

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 25

DELHI LT-Governor Anil Baijal Wednesday directed officials to tighten monitoring of home isolation cases to avoid delay in hospitalisation when a patient's symptoms aggravate, which is among the factors behind the spike in Covid-19 deaths.

Chairing a meeting of the Delhi Disaster Management Authority (DDMA), Baijal laid emphasis on the need to take "exemplary action" against people violating Covid-19 precautions, especially in the city's markets which are registering heavy footfall over the last one month. The meeting was attended by Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal, Deputy Chief Minister Manish Sisodia, Chief Secretary Vijay Dev, AIIMS Director Dr Randeep Guleria, ICMR DG Dr Balram Bhargava, NCDC Director Dr SK Singh, NITI Aayog member Dr VK Paul, among others.

The city recorded 5,246 fresh Covid cases on Wednesday as the day's positivity rate declined to 8.49 per cent. The death toll increased to 8,720, with 99 more

The city reported 109 deaths on Tuesday. 121 on Monday and Sunday, 111 on Saturday, 118 on Friday, 131 on November 18 the highest till date - and 104 fatalities on November 12.

Meanwhile, 20 beds at the Delhi government's Burari hospital were equipped with ventilators Wednesday, facilitating full-fledged ICU treatment. Thirty more ventilators will be added to the beds in the hospital by Saturday, said a Delhi government statement.

During the event, Health Minister Satyendar Jain, wearing a PPE kit, visited patients in the Covid-19 ward of the hospital and took their feedback and directed hospital staff to act based on it.

"Burari hospital is now fully equipped to treat patients. There will not be a need to shift patients, and neither will patients have to look for other options for treatment," he said.

The tally of active cases in Delhi is 38,287, down from 38,501 Tuesday. Out of these, 23,102 are under home isolation.

"Directed strict monitoring of Covid-19 patients of home isolation and ensure their timely hospitalisation in case of emergency. Authorities must take exemplary and deterrent action for violation of Covid-19 guidelines, especially in crowded markets," Baijal said in

The L-G also directed officials to enhance surveillance. strictly enforce containment measures, increase testing and scale up medical infrastructure

Patients ignoring symptoms, being rushed to hospitals later

ASTHA SAXENA NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 25

DOCTORS ACROSS the city have raised concerns over the rise in the number of patients ignoring mild Covid symptoms, which is now leading to fatal complications. Many hospitals have been seeing patients who didn't pay attention to mild symptoms and get themselves tested but were later found to have antibodies against the virus. These patients were rushed to the hospital when they started having moderate to major complications of Covid including high grade fever, severe body and muscle aches, stroke, leg thrombosis, lung fibrosis and cardiac involvement, experts said.

Dr Atul Kakar, vice-chairperson, Department of Internal Medicine at Sir Ganga Ram Hospital, said: "In the last month alone, we treated close to 30 patients with Covid-induced moderate to major complications with no Covid test being done. Covid antibody test in all these patients returned positive. These patients came with involvement of lungs, nervous system, heart and blood vessels. Many patients who had lung involvement required oxygen term supplementation and few special medications,"

As per experts, severity of these diseases could have been limited by early testing and treatment. "People with mild Covid symptoms should not take it lightly. They should get tested immediately and be under medical supervision. Any persistence or deterioration should be reported on an urgent basis," said Dr Kakar.

While most infected people will develop mild to moderate illness and recover with home isolation, doctors say it is important to monitor patients, especially the elderly with pre-existing illness diseases like diabetes, cancer, and lung or kidney diseases.

Dr Vikas Maurya, director, head of pulmonology at Fortis hospital, Shalimar Bagh, said: "These are the patients who have already crossed the stage in which the virus cannot be detected in the RT-PCR and rapid antigen tests. But when you conduct an antibody test, they turn out to be positive. Many of them have severe respiratory infection with high levels of lung involvement. The virus may not get detected but these patients may be suffering from Covid pneumonia, a result of the virus in the lungs. It also shows that even if the test is negative, the effect of Covid-19 doesn't fade away. This is not like other viruses and the physiology is quite different. The lungs are affected, we have seen intestinal pneumonia, heart attack. stroke.'

Dr Raiesh Chawla, senior consultant, Respiratory and Critical Care Medicine, Apollo Hospitals, also echoed the same: "As per protocol, we test each patient for Covid, but there are certain patients coming with pulmonary embolism, stroke, respiratory failure who tested negative but continue to show some symptoms. This is when we decide to conduct antibody tests and they are found to have antibodies against the virus."

A DELHI court Wednesday allowed student activist Safoora Zargar, who is booked under the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act in a Northeast Delhi riots case, to visit her maternal home for two months for proper nursing of her child, postpartum care and other customs.

"Earlier, we had hoped to con-

Most board papers are 80-mark exams, and we want to give students the practice of writing the whole paper. But we also want to make the experience simpler for them. So, we have decided to divide each paper into two parts, so students can write and submit both parts in one day with an interval in between, or on two separate days. BJP MP Nishikant Dubey appears to be unfazed by the Lok Sabha Speaker not paying heed to his demand for the removal of Congress leader Shashi Tharoor from the post of chairman of the IT standing committee. On Wednesday, he wrote to Speaker Om Birla again. "With folded hands I wish to recall my earlier communications," Dubey began. In his latest letter, Dubey accused Tharoor of "shamelessly using the platform of parliamentary committee for parochial political purpose" and that his "image of hair twitching arrogant Tsar continue to embarrass the democratic institutions". This time also, Dubey criticised Tharoor for taking up the matter of suspension of telecom services and internet, and its impact in the panel's meeting. With the Home Ministry refusing to divulge details of the internet blockade, Dubey has now reiterated his demand for Tharoor's removal. But Opposition members in the panel say Dubey has made it a "personal agenda to unleash his diatribe against Tharoor", despite the rules permitting the chairman to seek details from ministries for the agenda fixed by the commit-

Farmers brave water cannons, barricades on march to Delhi

SUKHBIRSIWACH CHANDIGARH, NOVEMBER 25

PUSHING PAST water cannons and barricades, Haryana farmers protesting the new farm laws marched on Wednesday towards the National Capital from Ambala as part of their 'Delhi Chalo' call scheduled for Thursday and Friday.

The police believe that the farmers, who are travelling in tractors and other vehicles, will opt for a night haul somewhere on the national highway before proceeding towards Delhi on Thursday morning again.

Unfazed by the heavy security and arrests of several leaders, the farmers gathered at Mohda Mandi of Ambala district on Wednesday morning. The local authorities tried to convince them not to march to Delhi but the farmers insisted on moving towards the National Capital as part of their stir against the farm laws.

The farmers broke through police barricades at three places on the Ambala-Delhi National Highway-one at Ambala district, one near Shahbad town in Kurukshetra district, and the last Haryana Bhartiya Kisan Union president Gurnam Singh Chaduni said thousands of farmers were part of the agitation. "Neither the farmers have indulged in any scuffle today nor they will do so in future. Our agitation will be peaceful but we will keep moving towards Delhi," he said.

Haryana DGP Manoj Yadava

said: "Till now the agitation is peaceful. Whatever force has been used that's by the farmers against the policemen. We had tried them to stop at two places on the highway. At both places they removed our concrete barricades with the help of their tractors and other means. We have not used force against the agitating farmers. They have reached Pipli and are probably making a night haul there." A senior police officer said, "We have sealed the borders with Punjab and Delhi but that sealing will be tested on Thursday morning.'

Haryana authorities have also imposed prohibitory orders in several parts of the state.

Haryana stops bus services to Punjab

Keeping in view the farmers' agitation, the Haryana government has decided to stop the bus services to Punjab from the state for the time-being.

The government has issued directions to all the general managers of the Haryana Roadways depots in this regard. The government has also issued directions to not allow travel of more than 52 passengers per bus.

ENCROACHMENT OF STATE LAND: J&K

Fresh list names PDP office, party leader

DEEPTIMANTIWARY & ARUN SHARMA

NEW DELHI, JAMMU, NOVEMBER 25

A DAY after the J&K administration alleged that Farooq and Omar Abdullah had encroached upon public land in Jammu, and listed offices of the NC as Roshni Act beneficiaries, two new lists released on Wednesday mention the office of PDP in Jammu and its leader Talib Chaudhary among alleged encroachers.

The new lists also mention some police officers, former bureaucrats and journalists.

According to a probe by the UT administration, former J&K CM Mehbooba Mufti's party office allegedly sits on encroached land, measuring 3 kanal, in Sunjwan, Jammu. "The land is suspected to have been encroached when Mufti Mohammad Sayeed was CM," an official said.

PDP spokesperson Firdous Tak called the allegation a ₹blatant lie", and said the party has only one office in Jammu – a rented accommodation in Gandhi Nagar.

The administration had earlier mentioned former PDP leader Haseeb Drabu and three of his relatives as alleged beneficiaries of Roshni Act, besides Congress treasurer K K Amla and four NC leaders. On Tuesday, it had alleged that the residence of Omar and Farooq Abdullah was built on encroached forest land nied by the party. Some of the prominent names mentioned in the list of Jammu include retired SSP Mirza Rasheed, retired IGP Nisar Ali. Zehan Din, a relative of former Congress minister Aijaz Khan; in Sunjwan, Jammu, a charge deand businessman Haji Sultan Ali. Bansi lal, who runs the 'Early Times' newspaper and Mahant Manjeet Singh, trustee of Digiana Ashram in Jammu, have also been mentioned as alleged beneficiaries.

The list from Srinagar mentions 11 NRI businessmen and the family of former IAS officer Farooq Ahmed Shah among alleged beneficiaries. Handloom and clothing businessmen

Imtiyaz Ahmed Shah and Vishal Khanna are also part of the list, as are politically connected families of Rahim and Zahida

Naqshbandi. 'This is fraud; there is no PDP office," Tak said. "This speaks volumes about the intentions of people framing the list to defame particular regional organizations." Aijaz Khan refused to comment; Nasir Ali and Talib Choudhary could not be contacted.

Sources close to Mahant Manjit Singh said the land in question fell within the premises of Mahant Bachiter Singh College of Engineering and Technology, spread over 100 kanals. The college is run by a philanthropic Trust - Mahant Manjit Singh Trust – and since the legally legislated government scheme of that time was available, the Trust got this piece of land transferred in its name.

Gupta said when he took the land in 1990 he was not aware that it was state land. He said he paid the "entire amount of Rs 91.81 lakh in 2008, and did not avail any rebate".

AHMED PATEL (1949-2020)

PATEL'S RISE

■ Elected to the Lok Sabha from Bharuch in 1977 for the first time at the age of 28. Won the seat again in 1980 and 1984. Lost to the BJP in 1989. Was the last Muslim to be elected to Lok Sabha from Gujarat

■ Elected to the Rajya Sabha in 1993 – first of his five terms in the Upper House. Also served as AICC general secretary from September 1985 to January 1986 and May 1992 to October 1996

■ Was member of the CWC from April 1992 and party treasurer from October 1996 to July 2000. Became Sonia Gandhi's political secretary 2001 - a post he held until his death. Was among the three parliamentary secretaries appointed by Rajiv Gandhi when he became PM

Link between Congress's past and present, party's troubleshooter-in-chief

NEW DELHI. NOVEMBER 25

AHMED PATEL, the Congress stalwart who died on Wednesday, had one "expressed but unfulfilled wish" — to bring about a genuine dialogue and reconciliation within a party caught in an internecine war. With the leadership issue far from settled – and the constantly shrinking electoral base remaining a worry — the 71-year-old backroom operator, who in many wavs was the link between the Congress's past and its present, was the one leader the embattled party needed the most.

Bracing for elections to appoint a new party president, Patel's towering and influential presence would likely have ensured a largely trouble-free transition even if the baton is to be passed from Sonia Gandhi to Rahul Gandhi once again, For, Patel shared a rapport with the party's veterans and commanded the respect of its young leadership, the latter despite the perception of a trust deficit between Rahul and him.

Ahmed Patel with Congress colleagues Ghulam Nabi Azad and Meira Kumar. He was an eight-time MP. Express archive

His loyalty to the Gandhi family was never questioned, warts and all.

"He was sincerely trying to arrange a dialogue between the Congress president, Rahul Gandhi, and us to resolve party issues... He was clear that the party must stay strong and remain united," one of the 23 writers of the letter critical of the party's leadership told The Indian Express on Wednesday.

Many in the party believe Patel was perhaps the only person who could have brought about a truce between the Gandhis and the unhappy leaders.

The Congress leadership will also miss his coalition-building efforts. Rahul's first reaction to a senior leader on Wednesday was that Patel's demise is a loss to the one of the few Congress leaders who had precious cross-party links — he could reach out with egual ease to the mercurial Mamata Banerjee, the ideologically driven Sitaram Yechury, or Mayawati's chief lieutenant Satish Chandra Mishra with a message from Sonia. For the self-effacing, media-shy Congress stalwart, all these leaders were just a phone

Patel was a fighter, and his ideological clarity was never in doubt. And the respect he commanded in the party came to light when he faced the most difficult election of his life: his 2017 Rajya Sabha reelection bid from Gujarat. The high-voltage election not just brought out the tenacity in him but also unified the Congress, with the entire leadership throwing its weight behind him.

After the letter to Sonia from the 23 senior Congress leaders, there were insinuations that Patel was the brain behind the move. The letter-writers deny this, but they confirm Patel had got wind of their plan and had spoken to a few of them and asked them to shelve the idea. The leaders stopped collecting signatures after Patel's intervention, but sent the letter anyway

Given Patel's equation with Sonia, he was often seen as voicing her opinion. "He was always the first to know the Congress president's mind. That was the source of his authority. And he instinctively knew what she would want," former Union minister Ashwani Kumar said.

A party leader recalled, "He would call leaders who were sulking, and that call from Ahmedbhai made the difference, as everyone knew his authority in the party... For instance, many people give the credit for our (2017) Punjab Assembly election victory to Amarinder Singh. But not many know that we managed to pacify 27 of the 34 rebels because of Patel - a list was sent to him, and he called almost every one of them...and 27 withdrew."

Will fight from jail, ensure TMC wins: Mamata

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE KOLKATA. NOVEMBER 25

IN A sign of how bitter the 2021 Assembly elections in West Bengal promise to be, Mamata Banerjee kicked off the Trinamool Congress's campaign, tearing into the BJP and calling the party a "dustbin of lies" and the "biggest curse to the nation".

Addressing a rally at Bankura from where BJP leader Amit Shah launched his party's campaign earlier this month -Banerjee said, "The BJP is not a political party but a mithyer puro dustbin (a whole dustbin of lies). Whenever elections arrive, they bring up the issue of Narada (sting operation) and Saradha (scam) to intimidate Trinamool leaders. But let me tell them very clearly, I am not afraid of the BJP or its agencies. If they have the guts, they can arrest me and put me behind bars. I will fight elections from jail and ensure the Trinamool's victory.'

To make her point, she referred to the RJD's good showing in the recent Bihar Assembly elections despite Lalu Prasad being in jail. "Even Lalu Prasad Yaday has been put behind bars but he ensured his party's good performance. The BJP's win (in . Bihar) was through manipulation and not through popular mandate," she said.

She also accused the BJP of offering money to Trinamool Congress MLAs to switch sides.

"They are calling Trinamool workers and offering money. They are saying, we will give you 2 crore, cross over. They are telling an MLA, I will give you 15 lakh now, 15 lakh later. Is this a political party? They are a disgrace," she said.

Banerjee also accused the Communists of joining hands with the BJP to avoid arrests in the Sharada scam. "The Left of the past has become the new BJP," she said.

Dismissing talk of the BJP coming to power in the state, the CM said, "A few people are under the illusion that they (BJP) will come to power, so some people are trying to take a chance. But I want to say this clearly, there is neither any chance nor 'by-chance' for the BIP to come to power. We will again return to power with a big-

Of this, 4,500 are pensioners who depend on revenue generated by Mormugao Port Trust." Sawant said. "Coal transport will reduce eventually. The port is looking for an alternate cargo and making efforts to ensure it reduces its dependence on coal handling. All these issues Lassure you will be discussed with the Centre."

The BJP has earlier announced that the party will be taking the agitation issue to Union Minister of State for Ports Mansukh Mandviya, who is expected to visit Goa soon. In the past few months, the agitation against coal transport has gained momentum with villagers protesting against double tracking and road expansion, which they fear is towards expansion of coal transport.

Earlier this week, the Goa government also sent notices to companies importing coal after they failed to pay the transport cess, which runs into crores.

While till date the agitation has been on the streets and at the railway tracks, the anti-coal protesters on Wednesday reached the seat of executive at the

Goa CM Pramod Sawant

Early morning, ahead of a Cabinet meeting chaired by Sawant, villagers under the Goyant Kolso Naka banner handed a letter to the Chief Minister's Office. "We have time and again placed before you and the government authorities numerous evidences proving without an iota of doubt that coal transportation through Goa must be stopped along with related infrastructure projects; that Goa's rivers and coasts must be maintained under the control and autonomy of the local communities; and that solar power, and not fossil fuels, is the way forward. However, none of these arguments or facts have been refuted or challenged by you, or any of the officials, though the subject has been a raging controversy over the past 8 months," the letter said.

The activists and villagers who had gathered also gave a memorandum of appeals, asking for scrapping of projects.

Addressing a press meet later, Sawant said, "The Goa Tamnar power project is a project we need as we need power. On the other two projects, double tracking of South Western Railway line and widening of NH-4A, talks are on and the Goa Cabinet has empowered me to discuss the issues with Central ministers." he said.

Amid China standoff, Navy inducts two surveillance drones

KRISHN KAUSHIK

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 25

THE NAVY has for the first time inducted two surveillance drones through a lease agreement with an American firm, using the emergency powers granted by the Centre to the Armed Forces amid the China standoff, sources said.

The Unmanned Aerial Vehicles (UAV), unarmed versions of the SeaGuardian Predator drone, have been leased for a year from US-based General Atomics Aeronautical.

Sources in the Navy said the drones had arrived in the first half of the month, and have done a sortie each already. They are "meant for carrying out surveillance in the Indian Ocean Region and can be deployed on the China border if asked for and if needed," a senior Naval officer said, comparing them to the use of the Navy's P8I Poseidon aircraft in Ladakh.

The drones have been deployed at INS Rajali, or the Arakkonam Naval Air Base in Tamil Nadu, from where it will carry out surveillance operations in the Indian Ocean Region. The move comes at a time India is involved in a tense standoff with China in eastern Ladakh, and all three forces, including the Navy, are on an alert.

The officer said that for the year-long lease, "the complete operations and operational control will remain with the Navy' and asserted that all the data and other information belonged to the force. The officer said the manufacturer "is there as a supporting role, to make sure it functions as it is meant to".

Sources said this is the first time the Navy has taken drones on lease. The process to buy ten such drones has been under process for several years now. but is still stuck in the initial stages. These sources said that apart from Navy, both the Army and the Air Force also want ten of these drones each. The Navy officer quoted above said: "It's been pending for quite some time. There is no consensus between Navy and Air Force, and the cost factor was being de-

A source said Joint Services Qualitative Requirements were being formulated for the drones' acquisition, but "it is not at any stage where we can say it will happen anytime soon".

Till the time the government approves buying the drones, which has to get the Defence Acquisition Committee's nod, "leasing is more economic and viable option", the officer said. The contract for the lease has been signed with the maker directly, sources said.

Transgender persons get portal for gender certificate

DIVYAA

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 25

GOVERNMENT on Wednesday launched a portal through which transgender persons can apply for gender identity certificates online. Launched by Union Minister for Social Justice and Empowerment, Thawar Chand Gehlot, the portal will allow transgender persons to upload an affidavit declaring their gender, which then becomes the basis for their identity certificates to be issued by the respective district magistrates. The portal will also enable them to register their grievances and help build a database of the community, said Gehlot, during its e-launch.

The minister added that the National Portal for Transgender Persons has been developed within two months of the notification of Transgender Persons to apply for a certificate and identity card from anywhere in the country, without having to visit any office," he said.

hopes the portal helps people from the community to come forward and get Transgender Certificate and Identity Cards as per their "self-perceived identity" which is an important provision of The Transgender Persons

(Protection of Rights) Act, 2019. The ministry will also open shelter homes for transgender people in each state, Gehlot said. The first such home was e-inaugurated in Gujarat's Vadodara on Wednesday in the presence of Ministers of State for Social Justice and Empowerment Krishan Pal Gurjar, Ramdas Athawale and Rattan Lal Kataria, besides Laxmi Narayan Tripathi, Member, National Council for Transgenders.

TN evacuates over 1 lakh as 'very severe' Nivar approaches

ARUN JANARDHANAN

CYCLONE NIVAR, expected to make landfall before dawn on Thursday, intensified to the "very severe" category as it barreled towards the Tamil Nadu-Puducherry coast Wednesday, leaving the state bracing for its fifth major cyclonic storm in the last eight years.

As the cyclone approached, the Tamil Nadu government evacuated about 1.25 lakh people to 1,486 relief camps in Chennai and southern districts by Wednesday evening. A total of 4,200 camps have been made operational since Tuesday and the evacuation will continue till Thursday noon, state revenue minister R B Udhaya Kumar told The Indian Express.

According to the Regional Meteorological Department in Chennai, gale winds at speeds of 115-125 kmph and gusting to 140 kmph were swirling over the Southwest Bay of Bengal, but intensified to 120-130 kmph gusting to 145 kmph (or the "very severe" category) by Wednesday evening. The cyclonic storm is likely to take about six hours to weaken after making landfall.

Tamil Nadu's northeastern coastal stretches and districts have been receiving heavy rainfall since Tuesday morning. Heavy rain is expected in Chengalpattu, Villupuram, Nagapattinam, Tiruvarur, Thanjavur and Pudukkottai districts on Thursday as well, said a weather bulletin.

IMD warned of gale winds along with "extremely heavy" rainfall Thursday and Friday over Tamil Nadu's Ranipet, Tiruvannamalai. Tirupattur and Vellore districts and Andhra Pradesh's Rayalaseema, Chittor, Kurnool, Prakasam and Kadapa districts.

Besides, heavy rain has also been forecast over south-interior

KEY RESERVOIR OPENED IN CHENNAL

IN CHENNAI, the relentless rain led to waterlogging in several parts and forced the authorities to release large quantities of water from the Chembarambakkam lake, a key drinking water source for the city. For the first time after the massive floods of 2015, about 1,000-1,500 cusecs of water were released from the reservoir on Wednesday afternoon. The volume of release was increased to 5,000 cusecs by the evening, with more water expected to be released by night.

Karnataka and Telangana on Thursday and Friday as the cyclone enters the mainland.

The state government, meanwhile, declared a holiday for 16 districts on Thursday. Wednesday, too, was a holiday. -- WITH ENS, PUNE

IIPH-G survey: More secondary infections in houses with Covid deaths

SOHINI GHOSH AHMEDABAD, NOVEMBER 25

EXPANDING ON a prior study conducted in rural Gandhinagar that looked at secondary attack rates (SAR) in households with Covid infections, researchers at the Indian Institute of Public Health (IIPH) in Gandhinagar have now suggested that the SAR is much higher in households with Covid deaths -- indicating

The researchers found 25 per cent of such houses surveyed to have secondary infections and concluded that such homes needed to be extra vigilant as death indicated a higher viral load in the patient.

The study has included 28 of the 49 Covid deaths in Gandhinagar in August, and found 27 secondary infections in the 28 households -- indicating a 25 per cent SAR. Of these 27 sec-

Chhattisgarh junior engineer's death: Family alleges custodial torture

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE RAIPUR, NOVEMBER 25

FAMILY MEMBERS of a junior engineer in the power department — a suspect in a murder case — have accused police of custodial torture a day after he died in Chhattisgarh's Surajpur district. The police have denied the

According to Surajpur district police, Punam Singh Katlam, 44, died of cardiac arrest on Tuesday morning. He was admitted at the Latori primary healthcare centre after being interrogated at his work place on Monday, a police official said.

"He was one of the suspects in the murder of a 24-year-old man. We had arrested two people and he was being interrogated when he complained of breathlessness and anxiety," said a senior police official.

Katlam's brother Deepak, however, has demanded a high-level probe, claiming that he was beaten up in custody. "The injury marks on my brother's body suggest that he was brutally assaulted by the police. I got to know from locals that he was taken into police custody," he said.

Surajpur Superintendent of Police Rajesh Kukreja denied the allegations, saving the police have requested for a judicial inquiry into the matter. Ten policemen posted at Latori outpost, under whose jurisdiction the incident happened, have been shifted to Surajpur Police Lines, he said.

MONEY LAUNDERING CASE HC on summons to Anand Grover: ED shall not insist on appearance till Dec 14

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE MUMBAI, NOVEMBER 25

IN AN interim relief to NGO Lawyers Collective and its founder, senior advocate Anand Grover, the Bombay High Court on Wednesday told the Enforcement Directorate (ED) not to insist on his appearance before the ED $\,$ till December 14.

On Tuesday, maintaining that it has to respect humanity and the old age of the accused keeping in mind the Covid-19 pandemic, the court had asked the ED lawyer, Additional Solicitor General (ASG) Anil Singh, to take instructions on whether summons issued to Grover to appear before the agency on November 26, in connection with a money laundering case, can be deferred.

A division bench of Justice S S Shinde and Justice M S Karnik had said, "The virus is spreading rapidly. The petitioner is around 80 years old and had tested Covid-19 positive. We have to respect humanity, his age and your (ED) proceedings too. Keep in mind whatever news is coming (related to the pandemic). We need to mind the present case, but in this situation in our state and rising cases in Delhi, the authority (ED) can defer summons and can postpone it."

The bench was hearing pleas by Grover and the NGO seeking to quash and set aside the Enforcement Case Information Report (ECIR) registered by the ED and subsequent summons and probe arising out of it. The petitioners had also challenged summons issued by ED under the Prevention of Money Laundering Act (PMLA).

The film beat out 26 other films, including The Disciple, Shakuntala Devi, Chhapaak, Eeb Allay Ooo!, Serious Men, Bulbbul and Gunian Saxena. It was chosen for its depiction of the "raw side of human beings, that we are worse than animals," said Rahul Rawail, chairman of Film Federation of India jury which selected the film.

The film is about the violence and depravity that lurks just beneath the surface of everyday life. In Jallikattu, this side of human nature is revealed when a buffaloescapes just as it's about to be slaughtered. Chaos ensues as the animal runs amok and with everyone in the village chasing after it, social order is upended, old feuds come bubbling to the surface and all pretence of civilisation is swept aside.

Malayalam film Jallikattu

is India's entry to Oscars

Set in Kerala's hilly Idukki district, the 2019 film is based on the 2015 short story Maoist by S Hareesh, who won the prestigious JCB Prize for Literature this year for his novel Moustache (original Malavalam title Meesha). Jallikattu has been widely praised for its direction by Lijo Jose Pellissery and the lead performances by Antony Varghese and Chemban Vinod Jose. While making the announcement, Rawail also praised the film's technical aspects and production values. Pellissery told The Indian Express, "I'm very happy for every single person who worked on the film. We all ran together for this." The film premiered at the Toronto

International Film Festival in September last year. Pellissery, whose previous films include the critically-acclaimed Angamaly Diaries (2017) and Ee. Ma. Yau (2018), won the Kerala State Film Award for his direction of Jallikattu in October Hareesh, who also wrote the screenplay of the film, along with R Jayakumar, said, "I'm doubly happy, as I won the JCB Prize only two weeks ago. Of course, this is a director's film and there are differences, as there will be between literature and cinema." Jallikattu is Hareesh's first collaboration with Pellissery. "He told me that as soon as he read the story, he knew he wanted to adapt it as a film," said the writer. The duo's second film together is the upcoming Malayalam science fiction film Churuli.

The 93rd Academy Awards is scheduled for April 25, 2021.

Additional Superintendent of Police Ashutosh Mishra, the investigating officer in the case, confirmed Devendra Shukla's arrest.

Police await DNA test report to settle dog ownership dispute

IRAM SIDDIQUE

BHOPAL, NOVEMBER 25

THE DISPUTE over who owns a three-year-old Labrador in Madhya Pradesh's Hoshangabad district has taken a new turn, with one of the claimants alleging that police are favouring the other owing to his political connections.

Police are waiting for the report of a DNA test of the dog to settle the dispute.

On November 18, Shadab Khan, a journalist, reached Dehat police station in Hoshangabad and told police that his pet 'coco', which was missing since August, had been wrongfully detained by one Krutik Shivhare.

Thereafter, a constable was sent to Shivhare's house to fetch the dog and it was handed over to Khan after verification of the dog's purchase certificate and vaccination slips.

The next day, Shivhare reached the police station and claimed police had wrongfully taken away his dog 'tiger' which he bought five months ago from Itarsi.

said, "While Shivhare did not have any document to establish his

Khan said 'Coco' has been a part of his family since he was a 22day old puppy and had been given to him by his father-in-law who bought it from Panchmarhi. He claimed to know about the dog's lineage and also agreed to pay Rs 30.000 for the DNA test for which samples have been sent to Hyderabad. He told The Indian Express, "No one is a fool to spend so much on a dog that does not belong to them. Coco is a part of my family. Once the DNA report comes, I wil drag everyone to court." He alleged that police is under pressure as Shivĥare is an ABVP leader.

purchased the dog from one Anoop Sharma for Rs 5.000 in August. "Khan's dog may have been lost

Meanwhile, People for Animals (PFA), an organisation working for welfare of animals, alleged that both claimants used the dog for breeding purposes and none of them should be given its custody. PFA's Swati Bhadoria said. "We have warned them to get the dog registered for ownership and get it sterilised within three months, failing which action will be taken."

Responding to the allegation, Shivhare said that while he had knowledge of dog breeding and carried it out for friends and family, he did not indulge in it professionally. Khan said he didn't know anything about breeding and that the dog was brought into his family for his

The chargesheet detailed how Republic had allegedly used dual Logical Channel Number (LCN), whereby its two news channels would show up in the genre of 'kids channels', apart from the 'news channels' category, thus showing up at

Apart from Singh, the chargesheet names 11 other persons as accused, including ive former employees of Hansa Research Group that measures TRPs on behalf of the Broadcast Audience Research Council (BARC)

Apart from the 12 persons who were charged, the chargesheet mentions "owners/directors and/ or people related to them linked to Republic TV channels, News Nation" as wanted accused in the case, but have not named anyone.

Owners of Maha Movies and Wow music channel have been summoned for questioning. Owners of Fakt Marathi and Box Cinemas had been arrested earlier.

Police have accused six channels, including two news channels, of rigging TRPs.

Republic TV to challenge chargesheet

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE MUMBAI, NOVEMBER 25

THE BOMBAY High Court Wednesday allowed ARG Outlier Media Pvt Ltd, which runs Republic TV, to amend its petition to challenge the chargesheet filed by Mumbai Police in the TRP case. The company had filed a plea for quashing the FIR in the case and summons issued to its senior officials.

The court also continued an interim relief through which it directed Mumbai Police to summon employees of Hansa Research Group, complainant in the case, only two days a week for a "reasonable time" until the next hearing. The company had asked for the probe to be transferred to the CBI.

On November 5, the court directed Mumbai Police to submit a progress report in case in a sealed cover, which it took on record Wednesday. The court also allowed petitioners to make the CBI a party and issued notices to the agency.

On Wednesday, senior counsel Aabad Ponda, representing Republic TV, sought leave to amend the plea with challenges to the chargesheet. The court allowed time to the petitioners to amend the plea till Friday and serve a copy to the state government so that it can respond to it. The court will hear the pleas on December 2.

NEW OLD AMERICA

Biden has a team that harks back to Obama administration. But he may not find it easy to step over all of Trump's legacy

N ANNOUNCING HIS national security team late Tuesday, US president-elect Joe Biden declared that "America is back". That ringing affirmation is repudiation of the defeated incumbent Donald Trump's "America First" framework. Throughout his campaign, Biden attacked Trump for abandoning America's global leadership, retreating from foreign military commitments, trashing US security alliances, wrecking global institutions like the WHO and WTO, closing America's borders, walking out of agreements on mitigating climate change and containing Iran's nuclear weapons programme. Biden's criticism has huge resonance in the US establishment that reacted with shock and anger to Trump's challenge to all the major premises of American internationalism after the Second World War. Now the appointment of many familiar figures from the Obama Administration suggests a return to the old order in Washington. Biden's team comes as a big relief to America's friends and partners who have struggled to cope with the administrative disorder and policy disruptions unleashed by Trump. China, too, will hope that an internationalist Biden might be more open for a reset in bilateral relations and eschew the all-out confrontation initiated by Trump.

So is Trump's "America First" an aberration that is about to be turned into an amusing anecdote in US political evolution? Not so fast. Trump was merely channeling the deepening popular discontent against the ravages of endless wars, and a globalism that was seen to decimate American jobs and open American society to a massive influx of immigrants. That the contest for the presidency was a close one in the American heartland suggests that the resistance to the restoration of globalism will not simply disappear with Trump's defeat. Equally important is the palpable disappointment of the progressives who backed Biden with great gusto. They disapprove of his turn to the old ruling caste.

While India must wait to see how Biden governs in these hard times, Delhi has reasons to be pleased with the appointment of Antony Blinken as the new Secretary of State and Jake Sullivan as the national security adviser. Blinken and Sullivan held senior positions in the Obama Administration and South Block has dealt with them on many issues. The new chief of national intelligence, Avril Haines, served in the State Department and the White House before she was appointed as the Deputy Director of the Central Intelligence Agency by Obama. John Kerry, who will translate Biden's intense commitment to addressing climate change is no stranger for India. He served as Obama's Secretary of State after a long stint as US Senator from Massachusetts. South Block would also hope that the new defence secretary would build on the rapid expansion of bilateral security cooperation that has strong bipartisan support in the US and a new enthusiasm in New Delhi. Biden is likely to be as tough on trade as Trump and Delhi needs to find creative ways to resolve sharpening trade tensions with the US.

UP government's ordinance on inter-faith marriage is a trespass on fundamental freedoms

Y CLEARING AN ordinance that enables the state to police and punish inter-faith marriages with "the sole intention of changing a girl's religion", the Uttar Pradesh government has trespassed on an inalienable right guaranteed by the Constitution of India — the freedom of an adult citizen to choose who she lives and partners with, and to follow any faith of her choice. In doing so, it becomes the first BJP-ruled state to frame a law against what the party describes as "love jihad". It sets a dangerous precedent that other BJP-ruled states like Madhya Pradesh, Haryana and Karnataka look eager to follow.

Under the provisions of the proposed law, the state can choose to investigate the motives behind a woman's change of religion and has the power to annul an inter-faith marriage if it finds that its sole "purpose" is her religious conversion. This flies in the face of a constitutional fact: Neither clan council nor khap panchayat, and certainly not a democratic government, has the licence to vet personal choices as right or wrong. Allowing the police to examine subjective "intentions" of men and women entering a marriage veers into thought control — and sets the law up for rampant abuse. It also legitimises a rank communal fantasy — the alleged conspiracy by virile Muslim men to lure and convert gullible Hindu women. It continues the cynical politics that seeks to marshal Hindu unity by stoking the anxieties about the Muslim Other — and enshrines it in law. Under fire for the Hathras gang-rape, the Yogi Adityanath government has sought to deflect criticism by emphasising measures taken for the security and "respect" of women - the "love jihad" ordinance is being peddled as another such move. But that the law's scrutiny is specially focussed on a woman's change of faith reveals the patriarchal paranoia behind it. The rhetoric of protection, indeed, disguises a manic fear of female sexuality that will not be contained by caste and clan barriers, which is used to police women's lives and choices, often by violence, as is evident in the history of "honour killings".

The Allahabad High Court recently overturned the HC judgment that questioned a "conversion just for marriage", which was cited by the UP CM to bring this ordinance, as "bad in law". It pointed out that in the eyes of law a man and a woman are not only members of religions, but individuals with "free will and choice". By seeking to cramp and constrict the freedom of the individual, the Yogi Adityanath government imperils the larger freedoms of a constitutional democracy. It must withdraw the proposed law.

A WORD IS NOT ENOUGH

In times of Covid-19, it seems language is as flummoxed as those who use it

N 2018, THE Oxford dictionary chose "toxic" — as in "toxic masculinity", particularly relevant in the light of #MeToo — as its new "word of the year". Last year, "climate emergency" made the cut. Since then, in the seemingly interminable time the earth is taking to traverse an elliptical path around the sun, a pandemic has struck and work, love, friendship, societies and economies have been fundamentally altered. So much so that even for a dictionary, a word is not enough.

Earlier this week, the Oxford English Dictionary declared that it has not chosen a word for 2020 because this is "a year which cannot neatly be accommodated in one single word". Instead, a number of new additions to the global English lexicon have found mention, including "coronavirus", "mail in", "unmute" and, of course, "lockdown". With the flurry of words, though, what the good people at the Oxford dictionary's office are really saying is this: 2020 has left them speechless. Every year, the word they choose indicates a trend, a new usage that distills a debate. In COVID-19 times, it would appear that language, the root of all identity, is as flummoxed as those who use it. Are we digital creatures now, who "unmute" ourselves while working from home for a brief spell of social contact? Is democracy and politics going to be an armchair affair, and voting challenged for the new forms it has taken? And what of old words which have acquired new, devastating overtones — the "migrant" has become infused with new meaning in India, as millions journeyed on foot.

There is, however, a silver lining in this speaking silence. Scientific terms have entered everyday language like never before, and across the board, new words are emerging at an unprecedented pace. Perhaps in a year that the world stood still, people managed to collectively expand their minds.

Law of unfreedom

On 'love jihad', BJP picks up baton from vigilante groups . Police, judicial apparatus have aided this move

CHRISTOPHE JAFFRELOT

"LOVE JIHAD" IS hitting the headlines again, but this old wine appears today in a different bottle, as the BJP is taking over from vigilante groups.

The notion of "love jihad" first appeared in Gujarat in 2007, prior to resurfacing in 2009 in Kerala and in Karnataka under the auspices of Pramod Muthalik, a former RSS member who founded his own vigilante group, Sri Ram Sene, and who defined it as follows: "In love jihad, fanatic boys are encouraged to attract young Hindu girls outside ice cream parlours, schools, colleges and theatres ... This is an organised effort to demoralise the Hindu community".

This rhetoric came out in public in 2014. In September of that year, a few months after Narendra Modi was voted into office, two weekly magazines by the RSS, Organiser and Panchjanya, devoted their cover stories to "love jihad," the latter showing the photo of an Arab wearing a keffiyeh and dark glasses beneath which read the title, "Pyar andha ya dhanda?" (Is love blind or is it a business?).

In reaction to "love jihad", the Sangh Parivar launched a counter-offensive to prevent young Hindu women from being wooed by Muslim men. They formed special groups, such as the Hindu Behen Beti Bachao Sangharsh Samiti. Activists offered to help parents who lamented their daughter's marriage to a Muslim and developed a network of informers in police stations and courts where parents might go to report a missing daughter, file a complaint for abduction, or to keep abreast of a case. This network of informers indicates the degree of osmosis that exists between the state apparatus and the Sangh Parivar.

Once on a case, warriors against "love jihad" resort to tactics ranging from disinformation to intimidation to coercion. Parents of girls who choose to enter into a love marriage with a Muslim do not hesitate, sometimes, to turn to Hindu vigilante groups to bring their child back into the fold. But organisations in the Sangh Parivar orbit have also sought to prevent interfaith marriages even when parents were not opposed. Not only have the police sometimes annulled marriages (in total disregard for the law when the bride and groom are both of age), but it has also let Sangh

The judicial apparatus has also contributed to this vigilante agenda, as is evident from the case concerning Hadiya, a young Hindu woman of Kerala who had converted to Islam in 2015 and married a Muslim man in 2016. Her parents petitioned the court, claiming she had been forcibly married and converted, despite her insistence that she had acted of her own free will. The state's high court sided with the parents, invalidated the marriage in May 2017 and placed Hadiya under their guardianship, arguing that this "vulnerable girl" had probably been the victim of Islamist groups. Her husband appealed the decision in the Supreme Court which ordered the National Investigation Agency to investigate a possible Islamist conspiracy. The NIA said that such a ploy could not be ruled out, and that Hadiya's case was not an isolated one. Without waiting for the probe's findings, the judges released her into parental custody. But when they saw the investigation results, they ruled in March 2018 that her marriage was valid.

If vigilante groups, including the Bajrang Dal, have been the main instruments of the anti-"love jihad" campaign, the BJP has gradually used it too. The party considered overtly exploiting it ahead of by-elections in UP 2014. The BJP's state unit included it in its programme before deciding against it. But the party made it a campaign issue during the 2017 elections. And shortly after forming his cabinet, Yogi Adityanath established "anti-Romeo squads" to "protect" women — in particular from Muslims.

Today, the BJP is going one step further in the states it rules by announcing new laws. On November 18, Narottam Mishra, BJP Madhya Pradesh Home Minister said: "We are going to table the Madhya Pradesh Dharm Swatantrey Bill, 2020, in this winter session in December against love jihad, which means a woman is forced or lured by a person of other religion for marriage and later she is tortured for conversion." Now the UP cabinet has cleared a draft ordinance to check "unlawful religious conversions" linked to "interfaith marriages".

Such a law would illustrate the transition from a de facto to a de jure Hindu Rashtra, something already evident from the Citizenship Amendment Act (2019). This process is bound to transform India officially into an ethnic democracy, like Israel — where mixed marriages are practically impossible. But this new, law-based version of the Hindu nationalist fight against inter-religious marriages reflects another major change. The first ideologues of Hindutva were not against these marriages. On the contrary, VD Savarkar, in Hindutva: Who is a Hindu? considers that a non-Hindu would become part of the nation if he or she "adopts our land as his or her country and marries a Hindu". Such marriages were good things for Savarkar and his followers, because they insisted that the same blood was running in the veins of the Hindus and those who had converted to another religion: Race, a key word in Savarkar's lexicon, was potentially a cementing force. Today, by contrast, Muslims are seen by Hindu nationalists as impossible to assimilate, as if they belonged to a different species.

This logic harks back to the notion of caste endogamy that BJP leaders support publicly—as evident from Om Birla's recent speech on the occasion of a Brahmin "Parichay Sammelan". As Satish Poonia, the Rajasthan BJP chief, said even more recently, "In our culture, marriage isn't just an individual choice, it also encompasses approval of religion and society". Indeed, the fight against "love jihad" bears testimony of a devalorisation of individual freedom, in particular of women, who are seen as incapable of deciding whom to marry and as vulnerable to being seduced.

Another old syndrome, the idea of the Hindus' demographic decline, also needs to be factored in: Inter-religious marriages appear as partly responsible for this decline in the Hindu nationalist worldview, in spite of the fact that the majority community still represents 80 per cent of society. But the "fear of small numbers" (to use Arjun Appadurai's phrase) is all pervasive when cultivated for polarising societies. The Ahmadis of Pakistan can testify to this (ir) rationality.

A STRIKE FOR THE CONSTITUTION

It is under threat from the very institutions that are expected to safeguard it

D RAJA

ON NOVEMBER 26, 1949, the Constituent Assembly submitted the draft Constitution. A day before the submission, B R Ambedkar, head of the Drafting Committee, expressed concern about "what would happen to her [India's] democratic Constitution?" Decades later, Ambedkar's fears seem to be coming true. The Constitution is under threat from the very same institutions — the legislature, executive and judiciary — that are expected to safeguard it. The Narendra Modi government started the practice of celebrating November 26 as Constitution Day. But the Sangh Parivar has emerged as the biggest threat to constitutional values.

The way legislation that negate the essence of the Constitution is introduced and passed, while ignoring deliberation, proves the mala fide intent of the government. Parliament is blatantly undermined and bypassed. If Parliament becomes redundant, democracy will be in peril. The passage of the anti-farmer farm bills and anti-worker labour codes is an example of how undemocratically legislation is pushed through.

It is tragic that the institutions of governance are flattening the Constitution in a calculated manner and in flagrant violation of equity and justice, which are central to the majesty of the rule of law. It was demonstrated in the most unfortunate way, when none other than the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court (SC) observed on two occasions that the It is tragic that the institutions of governance are flattening the Constitution in a calculated manner and in flagrant violation of equity and justice, which are central to the majesty of the rule of law. It was demonstrated in the most unfortunate way, when none other than the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court (SC) observed on two occasions that the apex court was discouraging petitions under Article 32 of the Constitution.

Article 32 of the Constitution. That article described by Ambedkar as the heart and soul of the Constitution empowers a person to directly approach the SC to seek remedy for the violation of fundamental rights. During the debate on Article 32, Ambedkar had said: "If I was asked to name any particular Article in this Constitution as the most important — an Article without which this Constitution would be nullity — I could not refer to any other Article except this one. It is the very soul of the Constitution and the very heart of it". If the Supreme Court discourages people taking recourse to the "the heart and soul" of the Constitution, then which institution would ensure and empower people to adhere to the Constitution and encourage them to imbibe constitutional values?

apex court was discouraging petitions under

In the case of relief for migrant workers, the SC had initially observed that issues concerning migrant labourers fell within the domain of public policy and hence there was hardly any scope for judicial intervention. By the time the SC took up the matter, millions had suffered unimaginable hardships.

In Hathras, a young Dalit woman was raped and brutally assaulted by people belonging to high castes. Later, her dead body was cremated despite the plea of her family not to do so. The state machinery allegedly threatened the family of the victim, telling them not to speak to the media. A journalist who went to report the incident was arrested and charged with serious offences. He continues to languish in jail.

The outrageous manner in which the Constitution and constitutional morality are discarded by the powers that be is creating fertile conditions for a fascist dictatorship. If the executive, legislature and judiciary violate the spirit of the Constitution, then there would be utter lawlessness. It is, therefore, pertinent that these three organs of the government set worthy examples by upholding the Constitution and adhering to the principles of constitutional morality. Time has come to bring in the Directive Principles of the Constitution to empower the people and ensure justice — social, political and economic.

Against this backdrop of events, the workers and peasants — the urban and rural working people, in formal and informal sectors — are staging a nation-wide strike. Trade unions and organisations of peasants and rural poor are raising not only economic demands and rights, but they are on the streets also to save the Constitution and democracy itself. While the country observes the Constitution Day, the general strike is demonstrating the way forward. The working people who fought for the freedom of the country, are standing up today to save the Constitution and the Republic of India.

PRICE RISE STABILISES

THE OUTLOOK FOR the country's economy is good, according to Union Finance Minister R Venkataraman. He based this optimistic assessment on projections of 10 per cent increase in food and power production next year, coal production of 110 -112 million tonnes and the fact that rising prices have played themselves out. The monthly rate of increase in prices have stabilised to around one per cent and this is no small achievement in an international inflationary situation, he added. The finance minister was replying to a six-hour discussion on rising prices in the Lok Sabha. He used the occasion to offer a mid-term appraisal of the state of the country's economy.

Police Atrocities

THE LOK SABHA Speaker has called for a report from the government on the alleged blinding of criminals in Bihar by the state's police. Police atrocities were the topic of adjournment and call-in-attention motion by Opposition members, especially those from the Communist Party of India (Marxist) and Janata Party. Several members also referred to the attacks on journalists in Rajasthan and Orissa.

A long winter for economy

Public sector investments are likely to remain depressed as states cut back on spending, making recovery difficult

Dharmakirti Ioshi and Adhish Verma

THE PANDEMIC HAS delivered a "scissor cut" to the government's finances. On the one hand, economic output, and therefore government revenues, are shrinking, while on the other, the government has to spend more to safeguard lives and livelihoods.

The effect of this goes far beyond a widening of the deficit. It has far-reaching consequences for both the Centre's and states' ability to invest and lift the economy out of the current phase. It also means more borrowings. And as states have a good part of their revenue stream coming from the Centre, it changes their debt servicing ability for the worse.

First, consider the revenue side. Not surprisingly, in the first half of the fiscal — April-September — the Centre's net revenue (tax and non-tax) collection stood at Rs 5.5 lakh crore or merely 27.3 per cent of the budget for the full fiscal year (compared to 41.6 per cent of budgeted target collected in the first half of the previous fiscal year). Seen another way, revenue collections in the first half of the year were down 32.5 per cent year-on-year, as compared to an average 15 per cent growth over the same period in the previous five fiscals.

Presently, fiscal data for the first half of the year (April-September) is available only for 11 large or so called non-special category states. As per our analysis, these states' own revenue is down 21.5 per cent year-on-year as compared to the previous five years' average growth of 10.4 per cent. If we add the Centre's transfer to these states, then the decline in revenue for the latter reduces to 16.5 per cent. Ergo, the shortfall in states' revenue seems less steep than that in the Centre's. But it is important to note that the states' revenue shortfall is partly mitigated by central transfers.

What has been the impact of such a large fall in revenue collections? Most directly, the Centre's total expenditure has declined 0.6 per cent year-on-year during the first half of the current financial year. This is led by an 11.6 per cent decline in capital expenditure, with revenue expenditure mildly up 1 per cent.

For the 11 states, total expenditure and capital spending have contracted by 1.5 per cent and 23.4 per cent respectively, while revenue expenditures have grown by 1.5 per cent. Since the bulk of the revenue expenditure is committed in nature, it is difficult to prune this expenditure. Even within that, allocations for pension and subsidies are down 10 per cent and 20 per cent, respectively. Growth in overall revenue expenditure is still higher for states, arguably, as they are at the forefront of the fight against the pandemic. More importantly, health being a state subject (states spend a little over two and a half times that by the Centre on medical and public health), states will have to shoulder a major part of the health expenditure burden on account of the pandemic.

An important aside: While both the Centre and states have cut capital expenditure, the latter have cut it by more as they face a harder budget constraint. This is worrying as states undertake more than 60 per cent of the overall general government capital expenditure. In fact, over the past few years, to adhere to their fiscal consolidation roadmaps, states have curtailed capital spending. For instance, in 2019-20, capital expenditure by states stood at Rs 4.97 lakh crore, down 20 per cent from the budgeted target of Rs 6.22 lakh crore, while revenue expenditure was down just 9 per cent. On the other hand, the Centre's actual capital expenditure was along budgeted lines.

To be able to maintain their spending in the face of such a sharp decline in revenue, governments have been forced to increase borrowings. So far this year, both the Centre's as well as the states' market borrowing have increased by 50 per cent year-on-year (both undertake borrowings in addition to those from the market). This means that debt levels are set to rise sharply. At the end of 2019-20, overall general government debt stood at a nineyear high of 76.7 per cent of GDP (50.4 per cent for the Centre and 26.3 per cent for the states).

If we take a step back to take a closer look at how the debt and its servicing indicators have moved in recent years we find that while the Centre's debt/GDP has trended downward, the states' debt to GDP ratio has trended up since 2015-16. But surprisingly, the ratio of interest payments to revenue receipts for states — one of the indicators of debt sustainability which generally moves in sync with the debt ratio — has continued to trend down. That is, the two paths have diverged.

This is because of continuously improving revenue streams for the states, while the interest outgo remained on a fixed path, States' revenue/GDP ratio rose from 13.3 per cent in 2015-16 to 14.5 per cent in 2019-20. Remember that states' revenue comprises their own revenue as well as transfers from the Centre (which includes both tax devolution and grants). If not for the higher growth in transfers from the Centre, this indicator of debt sustainability would have stagnated.

The share of central transfers in states' revenue increased from around 42 per cent in 2014-2015 to around 47 per cent in 2019-20 (largely due to a rise in share of the divisible adequate and timely funds from the Centre. The bottom line is that with the slowdown in growth, and as a consequence in government's revenues (for both, the Centre and states), debt servicing for states, which looked comfortable, is set to become burdensome. Combined with rising debt levels, this means that states are unlikely to push up their capital expenditure. The Reserve Bank of

India's recent publication "State Finances: A Study of Budgets of 2020-21" also found that capital spending by states turns out to be procyclical, that is, it tends to be lower during a low growth phase, and vice versa. Besides, the spending sensitivity to debt is higher at a debt ratio of greater than 25 per cent.

tax pool from 32 per cent to 42 per cent beginning in 2015-16, courtesy of the 14th

Finance Commission). This explains states' financial vulnerability when they do not receive

Currently, 12 large states have a debt to GSDP (gross state domestic product) ratio of over 25 per cent, seven of which have a ratio greater than 30 per cent (Punjab has the highest ratio at 40 per cent). The situation is set to worsen and more states are expected to end up having debt to GSDP ratio of 25 per cent.

Consequently, overall investments could take a substantial hit this fiscal year with the government's and the private sector's ability and willingness to invest impaired, despite the fall in interest rates (adjusting for inflation, real rates are even lower). The private sector will remain wary of investing as demand uncertainty continues, and capacity utilisation remains low, at an average 58.6 per cent so far this year, way below the 71.9 per cent seen last year. Hence, it might a while before the cylinder of public investment starts firing.

Not by majority alone

In a democracy, public morality and unelected institutions are necessary checks, not inimical to elected government

Ram Madhav

THE POPULAR understanding about democracies is that they are elected governments. But democracies do not run merely on the basis of elected governments. In 2,500 years, democracies have developed systems of efficient checks and balances — elected and unelected institutions. Such a balance is critical to their success.

In recorded history, the Greeks were the first to experiment with models of government. There were monarchies, oligarchies and democracies among the Greek citystates of the 5th Century BCE. Aristotle, the ancient Greek philosopher, wrote that while monarchies were for the benefit of the monarchs and oligarchies for the benefit of men with means, democracies were for the benefit of men without means. Plato, Aristotle's guru, was not fully in agreement. The citystate of Sparta was an oligarchy while that of Athens was a raw democracy. Spartans ruled over Athens for a few decades. When they left, the Athenians held a court to punish the supporters of the Spartans. Twenty-one thousand Athenians, all men from privileged backgrounds, assembled in a stadium and voted to declare the philosopher Socrates a collaborator with the Spartans. He was sentenced to death, prompting Plato to dismiss Athenian democracy as a "kleptocracy" — a state of unrestrained political corruption.

Democracy has travelled a long way from those times. It has witnessed the rise of dictators like Hitler and Mussolini, but also many great democrats. Even today, Vladimir Putin in Russia and Joe Biden in America get elected through democratic elections very different from one another. The difference is that in the world's successful democracies like the US, UK and India, there is a fine balance between the elected and non-elected institutions with enough safeguards.

There was much scepticism about the idea of universal adult franchise during the making of the Indian Constitution. But Rajendra Prasad, the chairman of the Constituent Assembly, who became the first President of India, assured the Assembly's members about the raw political wisdom of the average Indian as also the strength of the other institutions to safeguard the democratic process. Seven decades of India's democratic experience bear testimony to the political maturity of the Indian people.

However, India has had its own bruises during this period. The infamous Emergency of Indira Gandhi taught an important lesson that Parliament, the elected branch of democracy often described as the "temple of democracy", can become a circus and democracies can be imperilled if the rulers succeed in jeopardising the other pillars like the judiciary and free press.

Mahatma Gandhi was not a big admirer of the parliamentary system. He never ut $tered\,a\,harsh\,word\,against\,anybody\,but\,used$ words such as "sterile woman" and "prostitute" for the British parliamentary system. Gandhi's view was that in the British system, the parliament works only for partisan interest — and not for the national interest. "By political independence I do not mean an imitation to the British House of Commons, or $the \, Soviet \, rule \, of \, Russia \, or \, the \, Fascist \, rule \, of \,$ Italy or the Nazi rule of Germany. They have systems suited to their genius. We must have ours suited to ours... I have described it as Ram Rajya – sovereignty of the people based on pure moral authority," he wrote in Harijan in January 1937.

BR Ambedkar too described democracy in India as "only a top-dressing" on an Indian soil "which is essentially undemocratic". In his famous "Three Warnings" speech, Ambedkar warned that only constitutional means and institutions should be used hereafter instead of the means used during the freedom movement. He also underscored the importance of social democracy for the success of political democracy. Both were re $sponding \, to \, the \, experiences \, of \, their \, times \, -$ Gandhi was referring to the tyranny of the British rule and Ambedkar was responding to the oppressive caste system. Neither was against democracy, but both were against the idea of "majoritarian rule". For Gandhi, democracy meant the weak getting the same chance as the strong. For Ambedkar, it was about giving voice to the voiceless.

For democracies to succeed, both Gandhi and Ambedkar believed that the parliamentary majorities need to be restrained through constitutional ethics and public morality. Constitutional ethics is about leaders respecting constitutional order, conventions and institutions. The Americans have a written constitution, the British don't. Yet, both developed healthy conventions that safeguard their democracies. There is a beautiful convention in America of the outgoing President leaving a hand-written letter for the incoming one, which the new incumbent of the White House would get to see on the first day in office. "We are just temporary occupants of this office. That makes us guardians of those democratic institutions and traditions - like rule of law, separation of powers, equal protection and civil liberties... Regardless of the push and pull of daily politics, it's up to us to leave those instruments of our democracy at least as strong as we found them", Barack Obama wrote in his letter to Donald Trump in January 2017. The elected must protect all the unelected instruments of democracy - judiciary, media and civic organisations.

Gandhi's greater emphasis was on public morality. He insisted that for India's democracy to succeed, the Congress should convert itself into a lok sevak sangh and work at the grassroots for social, economic and moral independence of the people. True Gandhians chose syndication at the grassroots rather than election to Parliament or legislative assemblies.

India's democracy, as envisaged by the makers of its Constitution, thrived essentially because of the respect of the leaders for ethical constitutionalism and moral activism of the grassroots activists. Neither should see the other as an enemy and try to bring them

On the night of May 13, he gave me a rare interview, and spoke extensively on Sonia Gandhi, Ahmed bhai was a difficult politician to interview, he would not open up easily. We knew each other since 1980 but I could get him to speak on Sonia Gandhi, on the record, only in 2004.

Listening to him hold forth on Sonia Gandhi in the interview I could gather that Ahmed bhai would, in the coming weekend, muster all the support within the party and from leaders of the non-BJP parties, to ease the passage for her to succeed Vajpayee.

At that point, he seemed to me to be driven by his strong feelings for the late Rajiv Gandhi, more than anything else. He was keen to ensure that "Rajiv's widow and the inheritor of the Gandhi family's legacy" would become prime minister. Of course, he was acutely aware of the fierce and focused opposition of the BJP-RSS on the issue of Sonia's "foreign origins". However, he thought that once she occupied the seat of power the opposition against her would, to a great extent, wane. After all, he and a few senior Congress leaders had helped make possible the striking metamorphosis of Sonia Gandhi from 1998 onwards, when she became the Congress pres-

In view of the street protests organised by the BJP, it had become clear that the then Congress president's possible elevation to the highest political office would divide the country. But Ahmed bhai was quintessentially a Gujarati who would find a jugaad for every critical problem.

On the morning of May 18, the Gandhi family met to discuss the pros and cons of the most difficult political decision of their lives. After the family's private meeting, Ahmed bhai and one more senior Congress leader drove down to 10, Janpath and joined

That fateful meeting changed many things and its reverberations eventually became a contributing factor in the rise of Narendra Modi. That's what Ahmed bhai believed — and shared with me when I met him just 72 hours before Modi won power in New Delhi on May 16, 2014. Then, my question to him was: Why did Congress become so weak after being in power for 10 long years? Amongst many things, he said it was hit by a generation gap and the trust deficit within.

In that historic meeting at 10, Janpath, in May 2004, Patel was told that Sonia Gandhi wouldn't want the new government to get weakened at the outset by the fierce opposition to her "foreign origins".

Sonia was graceful and reticent in refusing her party's offer, but Rahul was agitated in his concern for his mother's security. He and Patel had a bitter exchange, which may have sowed the seeds of distrust between them, and cost the Congress heavily. It destabilised the decision-making process within the party established under Sonia Gandhi. The lengthening distance between Ahmed bhai, the Congress's institutional memory-keeper, and Rahul Gandhi, heir to its First Family, only grew

Despite being in power at the Centre for a decade, the Congress could not consolidate or expand its presence in the states. There were no significant grassroots activities to ensure a strengthening of the different wings of the party. For a party in power, keeping the organisational activities going is also important, and the absence of it will take a toll — that's a vital lesson the BJP under Modi's leadership has learnt from the Congress rule of 2004-2014.

Patel knew the Modi phenomenon better than any Congressman, but he could not get the senior leaders of the party to unite in their fight against the rising wave of Hindutva by understanding and decoding Modi's strengths and the BJP's strategies. The Modi-led BJP had been lucky to confront a Congress which has been steadily weakening within since 2004. Modi's rise was made easier because of fissures within the Congress party. The narrow and spurious debate of "communal versus secular" wasn't what Patel recommended to his party. "Eman shun vale (it won't lead to any outcome)", he would say when I asked for his views on some sensitive communal matter. The new members of Rahul's team saw Ahmed bhai as a member of an opposing camp. He faced the allegation of "keeping the party weak in Gujarat to help the rise of Modi".

Till 2014, Ahmed bhai would get hundreds of calls and several VIP visitors daily. After Rahul became president, he was hardly engaged in party activity. It was only when he played a swift and decisive role to help stitch the unlikely coalition that formed the government in Maharashtra to keep the BJP out of power that party newcomers saw the old Ahmed bhai in action again.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dangerous move

THIS REFERS TO the editorial, 'Open cautiously' (IE, November 25). The dangers posed to overall financial stability by letting industrial houses have access to relatively inexpensive capital in the form of household savings through banks, however legally regulated, are far too great to risk at the altar of liberalisation of ownership norms. The IWG's suggestion that contradicts the expert advice needs to be rejected outright by the RBI's decision makers.

PLAN AHEAD

THIS REFERS TO the editorial, 'Before the first shot' (IE, November 25). A universal immunisation program that is expected to cover more than a billion people belonging to all age groups in a span of two to three years is too ambitious. The policymakers in India and elsewhere are aware of the practical aspect of any proposed vaccination drive that intends to give a cent percent coverage to its entire population against the deadly virus. There has to a rational prioritisation for accessibility in the short run, but in the long run, initiatives, like identifying unaffected and affected but cured individuals and placed them under some kind of watertight territorial bubbles, need to be devised to arrest the spread of the infection.

Punjab Chief Minister Amarinder Singh and Navjot Singh Sidhu seemed to be engaged in a war of attrition. But they hesitate to cross the Rubicon because of the fear that their political moves may not fructify. There are always rumours galore about Captain and Sidhu shifting their loyalties in the Congress and even jumping ship. Now with Narendra Modi taking no prisoners when it comes to dealing with his political adversaries, the opposition leaders must have realised their political fortunes will be safe only by sticking together.

Lung fibrosis, Covid-19's lasting signature

Severe scarring of the lungs may occur in perhaps 5-10 per cent of patients. But given the large numbers of the infected, doctors have warned of a 'tsunami'

ANURADHA MASCARENHAS

PUNE, NOVEMBER 25

AS THE novel coronavirus continues its march across the globe - witness the current surges in the US and many parts of Europe and India – devastating pulmonary fibrosis, the scarring or inflammation of the tissue around the air sacs of the lungs, which leads to fatigue and shortness of breath, is being reported in vast numbers of survivors.

An article published in Lung India, the peer-reviewed medical journal of the Indian Chest Society by pulmonologists Dr Zarir F Udwadia, Dr Parvaiz A Koul, and Dr Luca Richeldi, has underlined the problem of post-Covid-19 interstitial lung disease (PC-ILD) – another name for pulmonary fibrosis - as a condition that chest physicians will have address and manage increasingly more frequently. ('Post-COVID lung fibrosis: The tsunami that will follow the earthquake')

How common is lung fibrosis in Covid-19 patients?

It's quite routine. While the vast majority of the almost 60 million people who have contracted the virus around the world have had only a mild or moderate infection, about 10% will develop severe Covid-19 pneumonia, and 5% will develop Acute Respiratory $Distress\,Syndrome\,(ARDS).\,Given\,the\,overall$ numbers of those infected with SARS-CoV-2, this still works out to significant pulmonary involvement in several million individuals.

India has had more than 92 lakh cases and over 1.34 lakh deaths so far. "We are routinely seeing this dreadful fibrosis," Dr Udwadia said. Even back in July, Dr Randeep Guleria, Director, AIIMS, and the country's leading pulmonologist, had said post-Covid recovery clinics must extensively follow up on patients to see the impact of the virus on other organs as well. "We have seen a number of patients who have severe pneumonia, where lungs get totally scarred. Although they come out, some of them require oxygen at home after recovery. Three months down, CT scans have shown lungs are in bad shape," Dr Guleria had told The Indian Express in an interview.

And how serious is the threat from lung

Some three decades ago, lung fibrosis was less common. It usually occurs in elderly people, where the lungs become stiff and the ability of oxygen to enter the blood circulation diminishes. If the Covid-19 virus causes lung fibrosis as a sequelae to the coronavirus disease pneumonia, large numbers of cases may potentially result from the pandemic, Dr Sundeep Salvi, chest physician and director of the Pulmo Care Research and Education Foundation, said.

The full fallout of the Covid-19 epidemic remains to be seen, but knowledge of closely related coronavirus outbreaks like Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome (SARS) and Middle East Respiratory Syndrome (MERS) has led experts like Dr Udwadia to hypothesise that while the majority of patients will stabilise or improve over time, some will progress to advanced lung fibrosis or PC-ILD. The sheer scale of the pandemic suggests that physicians are likely to encounter potentially hundreds of thousands of individuals with PC-ILD, Dr Udwadia said.

abnormalities?

It is too soon to determine that, according to the Lung India review (Udwadia et. al). Those with moderate or severe disease, with persisting symptoms or with radiological abnormalities, would require further investigation. An accurate biomarker that would progress to fibrosis would be invaluable, the experts have said in the article.

Dr Udwadia cited the case of a 45-yearold non-smoker in intensive care with severe Covid-19 ARDS who progressed within 28 days to end stage fibrotic lung disease, despite receiving remdesivir, tocilizumab, dexamethasone, and even 500 mg pulses of methylprednisolone.

Nine months into the pandemic in India, steroids are now part of standard care in most severely ill hospitalised Covid-19 patients — however, the usual doses that most receive do not seem sufficient to prevent some of the patients from being left with residual lung shadows, Dr Udwadia said.

What role can anti-fibrotic drugs play in the prevention and treatment of post-Covid fibrosis?

That again, remains unclear at present. But there is a rationale for their potential use-

Covid and Idiopathic Pulmonary Fibrosis (IPF) have common demographic factors they affect males, the elderly and smokers predict which Covid-19 patients are likely to more. Anti-fibrotic drugs are believed to be useful in patients with acute severity of interstitial lung disease (ILD), Dr Udwadia said.

> Brig. (Dr) MS Barthwal, retired professor and Head of Department of Pulmonary Medicine at Pune's Dr D Y Patil Medical College, Hospital and Research Centre, said there are very few studies on which anti-fibrotic drugs can lessen the progression of fibrosis. Apart from the drugs, there should be focus on supportive management as well giving home oxygen therapy, chest physiotherapy (breathing exercises under supervision) and good nutrition, Dr Barthwal said.

> According to Dr Udwadia, since it is patients with the most severe ARDS that are most likely to end up with fibrosis, this might be the group to consider for use of anti-fibrotic drugs. Such patients will generally require prolonged ventilation with high oxvgen requirements, and perhaps anti-fibrotics along with steroids, he said.

To better understand the natural course of the disease, follow-up visits are recommended, either remotely or in person, up to a total duration of 36 months, based on the degree and extent of lung involvement

UP TO 5 million deaths could be avoided each year if all adults, including people living with chronic conditions or disability, devote at least 150 to 300 minutes every week to moderate to vigorous aerobic activity, new guidelines issued by the World Health Organisation

For children and adolescents (5-17 years), the WHO has recommended an average of 60 minutes of moderate to vigorous, mostly aerobic, physical activity per day all week long. Vigorous-intensity aerobic activities, as well as those that strengthen muscles and bones, should be incorporated at least 3 days a week.

Statistics from the WHO show one in four adults (27.5%) and four out of five adolescents (81%) globally do not meet the 2010 WHO recommendations on physical activity. The direct health care cost is estimated at $54 billion; the lost productivity is estimated to cost another $14 billion. Almost no improvements have been seen in physical activity levels over the past decade.

Mahatma's iconic statue, part of Parliament's identity, site of protest and veneration

LIZ MATHEW

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 25

ONCE THE construction of the new Parliament House begins, the iconic statue of Mahatma Gandhi, perhaps the most identifiable symbol of India's Parliament after the building itself, will be shifted to a temporary location — to be kept safe, and to be eventually brought back to the premises.

Parliament House officials told The Indian Express that the statue would be placed at the main entrance of the new building, once it was complete.

A witness to history

If statues could record the goings-on before them, this 16-foot bronze statue of the Father of the Nation would be among the most valuable repositories of India's contemporary history. The Mahatma, seated in lotus position, has been a mute witness to both intense, thought-provoking debates as well as cacophonies — uproarious protests and slogan shouting — in Parliament for close to three decades. And a large number of lawmakers have at one time or the other over the years stood or squatted at the statue in symbolic protest.

It was in front of this statue that Rahul Gandhi held his first protest against the "frequent disruption" of Parliament by BJP MPs. The first pictures of Rahul as an active Lok Sabha member showed him — with Jyotiraditya Scindia, who is now with the BJP, to his right — and other young MPs like Jitin Prasada, Kuldeep Bishnoi, Sachin Pilot, and Ajay Maken, sitting in front of the Gandhi statue holding signs that said "Please Hear Us" and "We Also Want To Speak" during the 2005 Budget session.

The late TDP MP Naramalli Sivaprasad had photographers flocking to him every day during the Budget session of 2018 when he appeared before the statue in various getups - wearing a sari, dressed as Adolf Hitler, as a Christian priest, as Lord Krishna, as a maulvi, as Narada, etc.

During Parliament's Monsoon session this year, held amidst the Covid pandemic, eight Rajya Sabha MPs including Derek O'Brien of the Trinamool Congress and Rajiv Satav of the Congress, staged perhaps the first overnight sit-in protest at the statue, spreading sheets on the small lawn in front.

A reminder of values

MPs cutting across party lines say the statue holds enormous meaning for them. Senior BJP leader and Rajya Sabha MP Vinay Sahasrabuddhe said the statue represents the sense of gratitude the country has for the contribution of Mahatma Gandhi to the world, his values and simplicity.

For the CPI's D Raja, who served as MP for 12 years, the statue symbolises love and compassion for everyone, and non-violence – a message that no MP should ever forget.

Congress MP Hibi Eden, who entered Parliament for the first time in 2019, said the statue was never just a decorative piece, "It means a lot of values and principles we should look up to. Whenever there is injustice – against the people or when the Opposition is denied justice – we go in front of the statue which symbolises tolerance and non-violence. It also reminds us of the expectations that the common citizen of the country has from us," Eden said.

When Sutar was nated by the Urban Development Ministry, asked to design a statue for India Gate, he had according to the Rajya Sabha website. Some Parliament officials said the statue was not meant for the spot where it was ultimately installed, rather it was meant to be placed under the canopy at India Gate from where a statue of King George V had been removed in the mid-1960s. But it ended up at Parliament House after several leaders and Gandhians opposed the idea of placing the Mahatma on a pedestal vacated by the King

A former senior official of Parliament recalled that the late socialist leader George Fernandes raised the matter in Parliament "He accused the (Congress) government of leaving Gandhi in the middle of the road. So the government immediately made arrangements to bring the statue to Parliament, and place it in front of Gate No. 1." the official said. Another official said there was also a plan to install the statue near Nirman Bhavan

The sculptor and his creation

The statue was the creation of Ram V Sutar, now 95, who has also designed the Statue of Unity, the world's tallest statue, of made a small model of Mahatma Gandhi in meditative pose, recalled Anil Ram Sutar, Sutar's son.

"There was a competition, and participants were asked to make a statue 2.5 feet high. Prime Minister Morarji Desai came to examine the entries when they were displayed at the Central Public Works Department (CPWD). He liked what my father made the best. He was so fascinated by it that he took it home to keep looking at it for a few days, and then returned it," Anil Ram Sutar told The Indian Express. "Then Indira Gandhi became Prime Minister, and she too checked all the statues and liked my father's creation the most," he said.

Everyone was impressed by the "serenity and the peaceful expression" on the face of the Mahatma, Anil Ram Sutar said. There are two copies of the statue, he said — one is in Gujarat and the other is in Hyderabad. "There is also a similar statue, 27 feet high, for the Karnataka Vidhan Sabha," he said.

Muslim ministers: numbers lag far behind share in population

ZEESHAN SHAIKH MUMBAI, NOVEMBER 25

LAST WEEK, a 15-member NDA Cabinet took charge in Bihar, with the BJP as the largest party in the alliance — and without a single Muslim representative. This was the first time in decades that the Bihar government did not have a Muslim minister. This lack of representation of Muslims in the government isn't limited to Bihar - or to just an NDA government alone. records scrutinised by The Indian Express show.

In fact, in most states, when it comes to Muslims in Cabinets, the share of the community is way below their share in the population. And if the BJP's politics doesn't open any spaces, even states where the Congress is in power have shown little by way of representation.

Of the top 10 states where 80 per cent of India's Muslims reside, the total strength of the Council of Ministers is 281, out of which only 16 are Muslims. The representation of the community in the Council of Ministers is only 5.7 per cent — less than a third of their share in the states' population.

Four of these 10 states, Assam, Karnataka, Gujarat and Bihar — all where the BJP is in power — do not have a single Muslim representative in government.

Rejecting Trump's foreign policy approach, Biden says 'America is back'

TREVOR HUNNICUTT & HUMEYRA PAMUK WILMINGTON, NOVEMBER 25

US PRESIDENT-ELECT Joe Biden said on Tuesday the United States will be "ready to lead" again on the global stage, turning the page on Republican President Donald Trump's 'America First" policies as he pledged to work together with the nation's allies.

Introducing his foreign policy and national security team, the Democratic former vice president signalled he intended after taking office on Jan. 20 to steer the United States away from the unilateralist nationalism pursued by Trump.

Trump over four years unsettled many US allies, in Europe and elsewhere, with an antagonistic approach toward the NATO alliance and trade relations, abandonment of international agreements and warm relationships with authoritarian leaders.

Biden said his team, which includes trusted aide Antony Blinken as his nominee for US secretary of state, would shed what the president-elect described as "old thinking and unchanged habits" in its approach

BIDEN'S CABINET nominees will need to pass a confirmation vote in the Senate before they take office. With the Republicans holding a slight majority in the chamber, the confirmation process is unlikely to be smooth sailing. While some of the nominees had been confirmed for roles in previous administrations with bipartisan support, secretary of state nominee Blinken and secretary of Homeland Security nominee Mayorkas have both faced major GOP opposition in the past. This makes the runoff elections for Georgia's Senate seats even more important. A a double win for Democrats in Georgia would give them majority in the Senate.

China's Xi congratulates Biden on election victory

KJM VARMA BEIJING, NOVEMBER 25

CHINA'S PRESIDENT Xi Jinping on Wednesday congratulated US president-elect Joe Biden on winning the presidential election, expressing hope that the two countries would uphold the spirit of non-confrontation and advance healthy and stable development of bilateral ties, official media reported.

Xi sent a message to Biden to congratulate him on his election as US president, becoming one of the last major world leaders to congratulate the president-elect. Promoting healthy and stable development of China-US relations not only serves the fundamental interests of the people in both countries, but also meets the common expectation of the international community, Xi said in his message, according to state-run Xinhua news agency.

On the same day, Chinese Vice President Wang Qishan sent a message to Kamala Harris to congratulate her on her election as the next US vice president.

sage came as US President Donald Trump's government authorised President-elect Biden to begin a formal transition process. However, Trump has not yet conceded, and vowed to persist with efforts to change the vote, which have so far proved fruitless.

China initially hesitated to congratulate Biden after Republican incumbent President Trump refused to concede. However, on November 13, China's foreign ministry congratulated Biden and Harris for their victory.

While Biden is unlikely to drastically change Trump policies towards China, experts said a Biden presidency may pave the way for the resumption of highlevel communication between the countries. PTI

US sets record of 2 mn virus cases in 2 weeks

Nov could see twice as many cases as any other month in US

LAUREN LEATHERBY NOVEMBER 25

FOR THE first time since the coronavirus outbreak hit the United States, the country has added more than one million cases in each of the past two consecutive weeks. Covid deaths, which lag reported cases by weeks, are also at a level not seen since the spring.

Some epidemiologists project that the number of deaths in the coming weeks could exceed the spring peak, in spite of improved treatment.

In the past week, the United States added an average of 173,000 new daily cases. If this growth pattern holds, the total number of cases reported for the full month of November is likely to hit 4.5 million. That would be $more\,than\,double\,the\,number\,of$ any previous month.

With several days still left in the month, about 3.3 million people in the United States had already tested positive for the coronavirus as of Nov. 23.

Prime Minister Abiy Ahmed's government has set a 72-hour deadline for the Tigray People's Liberation Front (TPLF) to lay down arms or face an assault on their highland capital Mekelle, home to half a million people.

The deadline was due to run out on Wednesday evening.

Large numbers have died and there has been widespread destruction in aerial bombardments and ground fighting since the war began on Nov. 4. Some 42,000 refugees have fled over the border to Sudan and TPLF rockets have hit neighbouring Eritrea.

AMMA news agency, run by authorities in Amhara region who back Abiy, said that more than 10,000 Tigrayan "junta forces" had been "destroyed" with more than 15,000 small arms and heavy weapons seized in battles from Dansha to Adwa.

There was no immediate response from the TPLF. Tigray's dominant political party which is spearheading the fighting. It too has spoken of killing large numbers of its enemies during a stream of often contradictory claims by both sides.

NEW YORK NOW SEEMS INHOSPITABLE AND NOWHERE IN THEIR PLANS

As their days in Washington dwindle, Ivanka and Jared look for new beginning

ELIZABETH WILLIAMSON WASHINGTON, NOVEMBER 25

TOWN OFFICIALS in Bedminster, New Jersey, have the plans for a possible Trump family future, or at least the blueprints: a major addition to Ivanka Trump and lared Kushner's "cottage" on the grounds of the Trump National Golf Club, four new pickleball courts, a relocated heliport, and a spa and yoga complex. As Manhattan awaits word of the Trump family's return, the first daughter and her husband appear to be making preparations elsewhere: a Garden State refuge behind guarded gates, perhaps, or Florida, where President Donald Trump is renovating his Mar-a-Lago estate.

But New York now seems inhospitable and nowhere in their plans. "In an odd way, they will even have a harder time than Trump himself' in New York, said Donny Deutsch, a brand management mogul in Manhattan and no-holds-barred critic of Donald Trump on cable TV. "He's despicable but larger than life."

"Those two are the hapless minions who went along."

When Ivanka Trump and Kushner moved to the nation's capital, they had convinced many that they would be a moderating voice in the White House.

It has been a turbulent social ride since then, captured best by their experience with the Milton Gottesman Jewish Day School of the Nation's Capital. In 2017, the couple enrolled their elder two children in the private elementary school The small student body leans heavily toward the progeny of public servants and diplomats derided by Donald Trump as the "Deep State", and the Kushners' enrollment created the kind of heated divide that has trailed the Trumps over the past four years. their grandfather.

Once in, Ivanka Trump and Kushner tended to violate the unspoken rule of the Washington private-school world, that parents with heavy security details keep disruption to a minimum, four parents said. At schoolwide events, the family and its entourage often occupied the front two rows, standing to greet administration well-wishers, said one irritated parent.

The tension came to a head this fall, after the White House event to announce Judge Amy Coney Barrett's nomination to the Supreme Court, which featured few masks, no social distancing, a rash of coronavirus infections and the President's subsequent hospitalisation with Covid-19. With parents up in arms, school administrators approached the family about the potential exposure of students, the youngest of whom had been attending in-person classes. According to a person familiar with the discussions, talks faltered on the couple's reluctance to answer basic questions, including when their children were last exposed to Donald Trump.

The family withdrew from the school on October 19 and enrolled in another Jewish elementary school in the Washington suburb of Rockville, Maryland. By the time the 2020 campaign was in full swing, all liberal hopes that Ivanka carried with her Washington were long gone.

Businesswise, Ivanka Trump and Kushner will not lack for options, given the Kushner family money. Two people who know the couple said she might be able to resurrect her jewellery and

PRANAV MUKUL

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 25

PATNA, GUWAHATI, Varanasi, Srinagar — flights to and out of non-metro and tier-1 cities have been among the fastest growing passenger traffic routes since domestic civil aviation reopened up on May 25 after two months of lockdown-enforced closure.

There are two clear takeaways from the data. One, routes such as Delhi-Patna, Delhi-Srinagar, and Delhi-Guwahati have replaced routes such as Kolkata-Delhi, Mumbai-Hyderabad, and Bengaluru-Hyderabad in the top 10 list of domestic air routes by numbers of seats allocated by airlines this month so far. Two, in terms of actual domestic passenger numbers for October, Patna, Srinagar, and Varanasi operated at over 60 per cent that of October 2019.

The main reason for smaller cities showing faster air traffic growth is the continued curtailment of railway operations in many parts of the country, those tracking the sector said. For places like Patna and Srinagar, there are specific additional reasons such as election-related travel and the liberal arrival policy in the region.

The Delhi-Patna route has seen higher capacity allocation by airlines than some of the traditional trunk routes this month. There were 1.79 lakh seats flying between the two airports in November, making it the fourth busiest route in India currently. In comparison. there were 1.69 lakh seats between Delhi and Hyderabad, 1.61 lakh on Bengaluru-Mumbai, and 1.03 lakh on Mumbai-Hyderabad.

"While the demand in the last few months was on account of the Bihar Assembly elections, movement of labour has been high on this sector," a senior executive at a low-cost airline said, adding, "A part of this demand would have usually been absorbed by the railways but trains are not running at peak frequency across India yet." Compared with the pre-Covid situation. Patna recorded the best numbers in October, As per data from aviation analysis platform NetworkThoughts, domestic passenger traffic in October at Patna airport was almost 80 per cent of that month last year. The numbers for Srinagar and Varanasi were around 67 per cent and 65 per cent of the corresponding numbers for 2019, respectively.

"Traffic at smaller airports is mainly driven by the regional connectivity (UDAN) scheme. Also, in percentage terms, traffic was at a low base (in smaller towns) and therefore, it was easier to achieve pre-Covid levels," Ameya Joshi of NetworkThoughts said. According to data from British aviation consultancy OAG, the number of seats allocated to the two busiest routes in India - Delhi-Mumbai and Bengaluru-Delhi — this November have been almost half of that in November last year. The Bengaluru-Mumbai route, the third busiest last year, has been replaced by Bengaluru-Kolkata this year. The reason for the Mumbai routes falling out of the top 10 list is the restrictions imposed by the state government. Currently, only 100 arrivals and 100 departures a day are allowed at Mumbai, the country's second busiest airport. These numbers are double the 50 arrivals and 50 departures allowed after operations resumed post-lockdown, but still only a fifth of the airport's capacity.

Overall, the Centre has restricted the number of domestic flights to 70 per cent of the pre-Covid level. The cap on capacity was 33 per cent in May and has been gradually lifted; a relaxation from 60 per cent to 70 per cent was announced on November 12. However, the OAG data show the capacity allocated by airlines for November was 62 per cent of November 2019.

agents have pointed to tourism as the main reason for the rise in demand for travel to Srinagar. At 1.57 lakh seats in November, the Delhi-Srinagar route was the country's seventh busiest. In fact, deviating from the general trend, seat allocation for Delhi-Srinagar has actually been higher than the 1.27 lakh of November 2019. "In the last 2-3 months, Jammu & Kashmir's tourism secretary Sarmad Hafeez and director, tourism, Nisar Ahmad Wani got in touch with a lot of travel agents and made sure that the arrival policy is very liberal. Another draw for tourists has been cultural programmes — they have finished one in Gulmarg and are planning another in Pahalgam," Sanjay Narula, MD of the Delhi-based Apex Travels & Tours and former vice-president of Travel Agents Association of India, said."Along with all this, air fares to Kashmir have been very cheap. People starved of travel also perceive Kashmir as a place where spread of Covid is not extensive," he added.

As caseloads increase and several states begin to issue fresh restrictions, however, airlines are taking a relook at their strategy. "With increasing hope of vaccines being available early in the new year, there should be a recovery in demand, and there is plenty of available capacity ... Airlines and airports have taken all possible steps to ensure that travel is safe, and as confidence builds so will demand," Mayur Patel, head of Japan and Asia Pacific at OAG

SERUM INSTITUTE of India (SII) may have to conduct additional tests for approvals to market a version of 'Covishield' in India that could be more effective at preventing symptomatic Covid-19 cases than it possibly might be at present, The Indian Express has learnt.

This stems from preliminary findings this week that AstraZeneca and University of Oxford's AZD1222 — the vaccine on which Covishield is based had an efficacy of 90 per cent when participants were given half a dose first, followed by a full-dose booster shot a month later. The Pune-headquartered firm's founder, Dr Cyrus Poonawalla, told The Indian Express on Monday it would be asking the Central Drugs Standard Control Organisation(CDSCO) for "special emergency marketing authorisation" for Covishield in 45 days.

Given that SII only sought permission to test the full dose-full dose regimen in India, it can only seek permission to administer the vaccine as two full doses nearly a month apart, according to the official cited earlier. "What has been approved (for testing) is the full dose only ... they (SII) have to ask for (emergency use authorisation) for the full dose regimen only." the official told The Indian Express on condition of anonymity.

"If they will ask for (marketing) permission for half dose, they will have to conduct trials for half dose as well," the official said.

you to think about ways to raise the quality of your life. For some of you the answer lies in long-distance travel, for others the need is to stretch your imagination, perhaps to embark on a creative journey.

TAURUS (Apr 21 - May 21) Your business stars are strong, and looking increasingly constructive. Both on the financial and personal levels, it is clear that choices you make now will be of lasting value, perhaps more so than you suspect. The only snag is that it might be some time before you see this.

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21) Teamwork and partnership are still the order of the day and, even if you're thinking of breaking an arrangement, it should be with partners' agreement. Plus, at work, it will be your personal feelings which count.

average mood swings today. It's good to know this in advance, because then you'll be sustained through any low points by the knowledge that better times are on the way. If there's one thing that's constant, it's change.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 23 - Dec 22) Mars and Pluto are perfectly aligned in sensitive places in your chart. You would do well to sit back and contemplate your future, making plans for the next year at least. But, in the meantime, you need to work fast to avert an upcoming emotional collision.

CAPRICORN (Dec 23 - Jan 20) Discretion is the better part of valour. You may spare a little time for solitary pursuits, for those things which are sometimes ignored because they please you but don't interest partners. You may, if you wish, leave family spending

DIEGO MARADONA | 1960-2020

Farewell, 10 of hearts

People's champion and one of the greatest, who led Argentina to the famous World Cup win in 1986, dies following a heart attack

JERE LONGMAN

NOVEMBER 25

DIEGO MARADONA, the Argentine who became one of football's greatest players with a roguish cunning and extravagant control while pursuing a personal life rife with drug and alcohol abuse and health problems, died on Wednesday in Tigre, Argentina, in Buenos Aires Province. He was 60. His spokesman, Sebastián Sanchi, said the cause was a heart attack.

On the news of the death, Argentina's government declared three days of national mourning. In a statement, President Alberto Fernández said of Maradona: "You took us to the top of the world. You made us immensely happy. You were the greatest of all."

Maradona was admitted to a clinic in La Plata, Argentina, on Nov. 2 — three days after his 60th birthday – experiencing what his doctor, Leopoldo Luque, described as depression, anemia and dehydration. The next day Dr. Luque told reporters that Maradona had a subdural hematoma — bleeding that collects in tissues surrounding the brain and can be caused by a head injury — and would undergo surgery.

The hematoma was most likely caused by an accident that Maradona could not remember, Dr. Luque said, according to

Wearing the No. 10 jersey of a playmaker, Maradona led Argentina to soccer's world championship in 1986, scoring one of the game's most controversial goals and one of its most celebrated in the span of four minutes during the quarterfinals against England. In 2000, he and Pele of Brazil were voted by FIFA, the football's world governing body, the sport's two greatest players. Yet while Pele's legend grew into international reverence, Maradona's ability to surprise and startle developed a darker edge as he became addicted to cocaine during his playing days

His thick musculature having bloated into unhealthy corpulence, Maradona was hospitalized in Buenos Aires in April 2004 with what doctors described as a weakened heart and acute breathing problems. He then entered a psychiatric hospital there and, that September, left for further rehabilitation treatment in Havana. His numerous health issues also included gastric bypass surgery to contain his weight and treatment for alcohol abuse. As a spectator at the 2018 World Cup in Russia, Maradona appeared to collapse and was treated by paramedics as Argentina secured a dramatic late victory over Nigeria to advance to the second round of the tournament. Speaking to an Argentine television channel in 2014, Maradona said, "Do you know the player I could have been if I hadn't taken drugs?"

He continued: "I am 53 going on 78 because my life hasn't been normal. I've lived 80 with the life I've gone through."

Such was the complexity of Maradona's personal life, according to news accounts, that he was the father of eight children, including two daughters with his wife at the time, Claudia Villafañe — they later divorced - and three children fathered while he was in Cuba undergoing treatment for his cocaine addiction. (Complete information on his survivors was not immediately available.)

Diego Armando Maradona was born October 30, 1960, in Lanus, Argentina, and raised in the Buenos Aires shantytown Villa Fiorito, where he took up soccer on dusty streets with an urchin's resourcefulness. By age 15, he had turned professional. He later starred with the European club powers Napoli and Barcelona and, in 2010, coached Argentina in the 2010 World Cup, held in

In his autobiography, Maradona wrote that he had become so skilled a player as a youth that opposing coaches sometimes accused him of being an adult midget.

At his feet, the ball seemed to obey his command like a pet. He played with a kind of brilliant camouflage, seeming to be somnolent for long stretches before asserting himself at urgent moments with a mesmerizing dribble, astounding pass or stabbing shot.

Fame and infamy

The fame and infamy that attended his career and his life were on display for the world on June 22, 1986, when Argentina faced England in a World Cup quarterfinal match held at Azteca Stadium in Mexico City. Tension from the Falklands war between the two countries, four years earlier, still lingered.

He later had a peripatetic career coaching club teams in Argentina, the United Arab Emirates and Mexico. In September, he was hired to coach the Argentine club Gimnasia y Esgrima in La Plata. On his 60th birthday, Maradona attended his team's match against Patronato, but left early in what became a 3-0 victory, prompting questions about his health. When he entered a hospital on November 2, Dr. Luque said, Maradona had been feeling sad, lacked an appetite and had trouble walking. NYT

Not just the goals: The swish, dribble & the touch

MIHIR VASAVDA

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 25

IN HIS slaloming career, Diego Maradona, who passed away on Wednesday opened up brutal defences with a mere swish of his left boot. It will be a travesty to look back at the Argentine legend's career simply through the goals he scored; Maradona and his myth go much beyond that. His career, in fact, is a collection of magical little moments on big stages, sometimes with his words and reactions but oftentimes it was the 'leg of God' that did all the talking.

'Burying' the English defence

They were inside a medical room, waiting to submit their urine sample, when Maradona made the startling confession to Terry Butcher, the beefv England centre-back, "Hand or head." Butcher asked Maradona, barely half an hour after the 1986 World Cup quarterfinal. "Hand," Maradona replied. Till today, Butcher maintains he will never forgive Maradona for the most famous cheating incident in sport. But he was among the first to admit Maradona's genius in the goal that followed, which left nearly half the English side on their knees.

First, Maradona pirouetted past Peter Beardsley in the Englishman's half. He then eased past a tired Peter Reid, skipped past Butcher and then with a beautifully delayed touch, took Terry Fenwick out of the equation. He went around goalkeeper Peter Shilton and Butcher's desperate sliding challenge was in vain as Maradona scored arguably the greatest goal in football to set up Argentina's win.

The BBC radio commentator's choice of words while describing the goal as it happened summed up the humiliation of English players: "Maradona turns, like a little eel... Comes inside Butcher, leaves him for the dead. Outside Fenwick. Leaves him for dead and puts the ball away. And that is why Maradona is the greatest player in the world. He buried the English defence."

Swish & assist vs West Germany

Maradona did not necessarily have to be near a goal to make an impact. He could do it from the half-line as well, as West Germany experienced. Franz Beckenbauer had seen how Maradona had embarrassed both England and Belgium, en route to the final of the 1986 World Cup. So the West Germany captain instructed his players to go hard on the Argentine – in his mind, that was the only way for his side to win the title, given that West Germany had huffed and puffed their way into the final.

In one of the greatest World Cup finals of all-time, Argentina and West Germany were tied 2-2 with 10 minutes remaining. Beckenbauer's boys had done a fine job to keep Maradona away from the danger zones by using a mix of man-marking and manhandling skills. But it wasn't possible to keep Maradona away from making an impact - at least in that World Cup. It looked a very straightforward move when Maradona turned with a bouncing ball in the centre circle. There were two green shirts on him quickly, and it was safe to assume – going by the match's trend – that they would snatch the ball from him.

But then, showcasing his unparalleled vision, Maradona played the ball in an open space down the right with a simple swish of the left boot, to release Jorge Burruchaga, who had the time and space to score the World Cup-win-

The 'other' hand of God

In Maradona's adopted city, Naples, came the lesser-known handball.

Four years after the incident against England, Maradona used his hands to guide the ball once again. This time, against the USSR. But it was not to score a goal. Instead, it was to save his side from going down.

Both, Argentina and USSR, had lost their opening match of the 1990 World Cup. The score was 0-0 when a shot by a Soviet striker looked destined to find the back of the net. But out of nowhere, Maradona popped up and, with his hands, he hit the ball away.

Igor Shalimov, who made his World Cup debut in that match, recalled the incident in a column for The Guardian: "The ball was heading into the goal, the referee (Erik Frederiksson) was six metres from the incident, and saw everything clearly... Yes, you have different kinds of handball when there is no intention but in this instance, a man deliberately handled the ball away from his goal. It wasn't just that the ball hit his band: there was a movement of the hand. He hit the ball."

Frederiksson did not give a foul, USSR were denied a goal, and were later dumped out of the tournament while Argentina went on to win the match 2-0, before eventually reaching the final.

The dribble vs Brazil

Maradona had a knee injury going into the 1990 World Cup, and Argentina were not the same as they were four years before. Still, they reached the final, where they faced arch-rivals Brazil, who had won all their games and conceded just one goal. The final was the complete opposite of the 1986 title match. It was scruffy and disjointed, as finals of ten are. But it was Maradona's genius that opened up the game. Maradona picked up the ball in his own half and embarked on a trademark dribble. He beat three Brazilian players in his slaloming run and as the fourth one tried to close him down, it opened up space for Maradona to pass the ball to Claudio Caniggia, who beat goalkeeper Claudio Taffarel to score a goal. Even a half-fit Maradona could take players out.

The final touch: God vs Greeks

It is one of Maradona's finest goals – but also the least spoken about because of what happened next. Against Greece in the 1994 World Cup group stage match, on June 21, 1994, Maradona finished an intricate, one-touch team move by swiveling as he fired the ball into the top corner of the goal in the 4-0 win. More than the goal, it was the celebration that went down in history - Maradona ran towards the camera, his eyes bulging and screaming in anger. Nine days later, he failed a drugs test. His fabled career was over and he was sent home in disgrace.

NAPOLI BEATIFIED Diego Maradona. In the end, the 'sewer of Italy', that Naples was called in the 1980s, contaminated him to the core. Maradona's time at the club in southern Italy was full of contradictions. It was in fact, the football genius' life in microcosm.

The arrival

In 1984, Maradona made the move to Napoli from Barcelona for a then world record fee of £5 million. "I expect peace. The peace I didn't have in Barcelona," Maradona said in Asif Kapadia's 2019 documentary Diego Maradona. A turnout of 85,000 welcomed him at Stadio San Paolo on July 5, 1984. It was chaotic. A reporter was thrown out of the presser for his temerity to ask about Camorra, the feared mafia. Napoli as a club was a backbencher in Italian football, with only two Cups in their trophy cabinet until 1984 and never a Scudetto (Serie A title).

Life in Naples

"I asked for a house, I got a flat. I asked for a Ferrari, I got a Fiat," Maradona said in the documentary. On the pitch, Napoli were a relegation-threatened side in 1984. Like the city, the football club, too, was rated as second-class by the Northerners - an assortment of rich people from Milan, Turin and other well-off cities in Italy. But things started to change. Juventus, the reigning European champions, were beaten at San Paolo during Maradona's second season. Napoli were on the rise, finishing third. Maradona was at the heart of the upturn.

First-ever Scudetto

On May 10, 1987, history was made. It was Napoli's first-ever Serie A title. They got there by securing 42 points from 30 matches – two points were awarded for a win back then. Serie Awas the richest league in the world then. Most of the big stars plied their trade there. The 1986-87 season was also the great Juve master Michel Platini's swansong. It became a footnote. Maradona scored 10 goals, provided countless assists and almost singlehandedly carried his team to the title. "The social redemption of our city," Maradona's team mate Ciro Ferrara said in the documentary, Maradona became Naples' patron saint. A shrine was built.

Other honours

Napoli would win their second league title in 1989-90. In 1989, they annexed the Uefa Cup and the Italian Super Cup a year later. The Copa Italia was won in 1987. Between 1984 and 1991, Maradona made 188 appearances for Napoli and became the club's all-time leading goalscorer with 115 goals, a record that stood until 2017. In an interview with MARCA, legendary AC Milan and Italy defender Franco Baresi had this to say about Maradona: "... if I had to choose the strongest opponent, I'd say Maradona."

The big fall

Throughout the summer of 1989, rumours were rife that Maradona would leave Napoli for Marseille for another undisclosed world-record fee. In August, he failed to attend a training camp and alleged that the local mafia was threatening him. According to Maradona, he had a gentleman's agreement with the club authorities that he would leave after the 1990 World Cup.
