Amid Covid, security concerns, Amarnath Yatra stands cancelled

BASHAARAT MASOOD & NAVEED IQBAL SRINAGAR, JULY 21

ON THE day the Amarnath Yatra was scheduled to begin, the J&K administration announced that the annual pilgrimage will not be held this year. Given the coronavirus pandemic, the Yatra had already been shortened and was to start on July 21 and end August 3, instead of the usual 45day duration.

The decision follows questions being raised over the administration planning for the Yatra even as other religious gatherings in Jammu and Kashmir have been barred till July 31 because of Covid-19. The Shri Amarnath Shrine Board (SASB) said it would organise "live telecast/virtual darshan" of the morning and evening prayers.

SHUBHAJIT ROY NEW DELHI, JULY 21

INDIA AND the US have intensified intelligence and military collaboration and cooperation at an unprecedented level, more so in the last month.

The two countries have been working quietly to step up information sharing amid the tense military standoff between Indian and Chinese troops - it has been on for 11 weeks now along the Line of Actual Control in Ladakh.

After US Secretary of State Michael R Pompeo spoke to External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar in the third week of June, at least two high-level phone conversations, key to this cooperation, have taken place.

INDIA AND the US are close to inking a "quick" trade deal, Commerce Minister Piyush Goyal said Tuesday, adding that the pact aims to get issues that have been pending over the past couple of years "out of the wav". Following this, Goyal said, India wants to negotiate with its top trading partner for a preferential trade agreement for 50-100 goods and services.

Indications are that the negotiations involve discussions to improve access for India's generic drugs to the American market. The US, on its part, has been seeking more access for its farm goods, like almonds and apples, on which India had

Last week, automobile engineer Krishnakumar K P started work under the National Rural Employment Guarantee Scheme at Thottapuzhassery village in Pathanamthitta. "This is the only work available. I have been planting saplings," says the 23year-old who lost his job with a local dealer.

Five graduates have enrolled for work under the scheme at Azhiyur village in Kozhikode – the first time that men have signed up here. "This panchayat had 1,537 workers earlier, all women," says an official

C Ramachandran, the president of Bedadka panchayat in Kasaragod, says they have started a campaign for youths, who have lost their jobs, to enrol. "Four of them joined last week," he says.

IN THE villages of Kerala, NREGS was widely seen as the "last resort for elderly women" with no other source of income. But four months into the Covid crisis, with no money in households and no jobs in cities, the rural job scheme has become a lifeline for educated youngsters, cutting across age and gender lines.

"A new trend has emerged Usually, about 91 per cent of the workforce are women, most of them aged above 40. Now, many voung men and women have started working under the scheme. Many of them have enrolled for work using job cards issued to their mothers or other family members," says a senior official at the MGNREGS State Mission

"Over 30,000 households in the state have been newly added to the scheme in the last two months. There is still demand for job cards from all districts," says the official

Officials point to several numbers that signal this trend:

Many villages are in containment zones but the daily NREGS turnout in the state was 6 lakh last week, and 6.40 lakh a few weeks ago. Last monsoon, the average turnout was 5-5.50 lakh. The average days of employment provided per household across last fiscal was 55.73. This time, even though the scheme is yet to be fully operational due to Covid curbs, that figure is already 18.26

Just three months into this fiscal, 82 households have completed the 100 days of work marked for the entire financial vear. "Several families have completed 60-90 days. Normally, the CONTINUED ON PAGE 2

India, US close to quick trade deal: Goval derived from blood.

"I think the US and India are natural allies...In the long term, I believe we have a quick trade deal, which has some of the pending matters built up over the last couple of years, which we need to get out of the way quickly." Goval said at the virtual US-India Business Council's India Ideas Summit.

"We are almost there. I think another couple of calls and we should be able to sort that out," he said.

Sources told The Indian Express that the issues under discussion are "largely" the same as before, as negotiations had initially hit a speed bump because of the Covid pandemic.

India's pharmaceuticals industry has been seeking increased access for its generic drugs, said sources. Indian drugs currently account for nearly 40 per cent of supply in the US market Goyal, meanwhile, reiterated his views that the two countries should also look at a preferential trade agreement consisting 50-100 goods and services in order to "kickstart" a trade partnership.

"We believe we should also look at an early harvest in the form of a preferential trade agreement rather than waiting for the gains of a free trade agreement, which can take several years to conclude," he said. The US is India's largest trading partner, with bilateral trade touching $88.75 billion in the 2019-2020 financial year. Talks for a trade deal started in 2018. but there have been disagreements over various issues like

On July 4, Chief Secretary BV R Subrahmanyam had directed testing of all pilgrims. It was also decided that to meet social distancing norms and the quarantine requirement for people coming from outside, the pilgrimage would be for 15 days, allowed only on one route and largely by air. Four new helipads had been constructed for this purpose by the Pahalgam Development Authority, close to the shrine. On July 5, Lt Governor Murmu performed this year's first puja at the cave. Last week, Defence Minister Rainath Singh visited the shrine following his trip to Ladakh. However, arrangements for testing and quarantine were still not finalised. In 2018, when the last full Yatra was held, nearly three lakh pilgrims had visited the shrine. Sources said the administration was also worried regarding 'the increased threat perception this year". A senior police officer said, "With tensions far from abating on the LAC (Line of Actual Control) in Ladakh, the Army is completely focused on that front... It was one of the major factors that compelled the government to decide against the Yatra this year." Every year, over 40,000 personnel of the I&K Police. Army and paramilitary forces are deployed to secure the route to the cave shrine, located 3,888 metres above the sea level, in the Himalayas in South Kashmir.

The Delhi sero-survey showed a Covid-19 prevalence of more than 20 per cent in eight districts. The Central. Northeast. and Shahdara districts showed the highest prevalence of over 27 per cent, indicating that the population in these districts have been exposed to the virus to the largest extent.

"Containment measures need to continue with the same rigour. Non-pharmacological interventions such as physical distancing, use of face mask/cover, hand hygiene, cough etiquette and avoidance of crowded places etc must be followed strictly," Dr Paul said.

limit is reached towards the second half of a fiscal," says an official.

"Those aged above 65 are kept out due to Covid norms. Yet, the daily turnout has gone up, which shows that more youngsters, or those in the working age group, have stepped in," says the official.

Most queries for work are from those who were employed in the service and construction sectors, according to feedback from NREGS field staff. "Many establishments are deploying only a section of workers. The lack of public transport in rural areas, even after the lockdown restrictions were eased, has led to loss of jobs among many who used to commute to urban areas for work in shops or other small ventures," says another official. Apart from availability of work in their own village, what makes the scheme attractive now is that wages are credited within two weeks with the Centre releasing funds much faster, say sources. In the past, they say, the payment of wages used to be delayed for months. In Pathanamthitta, K Bibin (23), who lost his job with a financial firm in Kochi, says, "I already have 12 days of work to my credit, and have received money for four days at Rs 291 per day. Now, my friends are een to join. Krishnakumar, who completed his engineering course in a local college, says, "Many voungsters in my village were reluctant to join because the scheme had the tag of being the last resort for elderly women. But now, I have decided that until another job comes my way, I will stay with NREGS."

Following this incident, a case was lodged against Man Singh at the Deeg police station. Next day, when Man Singh, along with his associates, was en route to his constituency Deeg for an election rally, he was shot dead by police personnel who had blocked the road following a curfew order.

Two other men – Sumer Singh and Hari Singh - had also lost their lives in the alleged encounter

Vijay Singh, son-in-law of Man Singh, who had accompanied him, was not hurt in the firing. The policemen hit him and later took him to the police station. Due to public pressure, he was released.

Following Vijay Singh's complaint to the Superintendent of Police, an FIR was lodged by the police. After the state government recommended a CBI investigation into Man Singh's death, the agency took charge of the case on February 28, 1985, and filed a chargesheet in July 1985. Man Singh's death had created a political storm in Rajasthan with large protests against the then Congress Chief Minister Shiv Charan Mathur. It had repercussions even in the national capital Delhi, and led to the resignation of Mathur as the state Chief Minister. Traditionally, royal families in Raiasthan were at loggerheads with the Congress party. In the past, many members of erstwhile royal families contested elections either as independents or under the banner of outfits such as the Jan Sangh and Ram Rajya Parishad. Last year, trade tensions culminated in the US revoking India's status as a beneficiary of its Generalised System of Preferences (GSP) programme that allowed duty free benefits to export a variety of products. India responded by implementing retaliatory tariffs on 28 items imported from the US, including apples and almonds.

The government too had suggested that it was not advisable to hold the Yatra, it said. "This would enable the administration to focus on the immedisaw its highest single-day spike of 751 cases. Earlier, on July 13, hearing a

"Such scientific studies are extremely important and should be performed from time to time to understand the lessons from the past. The numbers collated are from the third week of June when the cases in Delhi were rising exponentially. It is important to note that when the survey was done the city was reporting over 3,000 cases a day. The robust data will be used well in the disease control programme," Dr Paul told a news conference on Tuesday.

Teams of surveyors collected blood samples from randomly selected individuals after taking their written, informed consent. Their sera were tested for IgG antibodies and infection using Covid Kavach ELISA kits approved by the Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR).

strategies adopted by the Ministry in coordination with NCDC and the Delhi government have helped us to prevent the further spread of the virus. This shows that if scientific principles are followed well then a pandemic can be controlled well. When you work in a systematic way by contact tracing, testing, containment, isolating, quarantine, then we will definitely get the results. This is a collective approach and builds confidence among us about the strategy that we have followed," Dr Paul said

ICMR had conducted a pilot serosurvey in April across 83 districts in 21 states. The initial results, which are being peer-reviewed, suggested that the percentage of the general population that could have been infected was 0.73, with urban areas showing a higher prevalence of about 1.09%. ICMR has said it would soon launch a follow-up sero survey across the country.

The NIA said the bail application had to be decided on the facts and circumstances of each case and perusal of the incriminating material against Rao. The affidavit by the NIA, filed through

Superintendent of Police, NIA head office branch, Mumbai, op-Telugu posing Rao's interim bail plea was filed in the High Court on July 16. poet Varavara Rao had undergone a swab test Rao on July 14 and was confirmed positive on July 16 evening.

It stated, "The appellant accused Varavara Rao under the garb of the current situation on the account of global pandemic COVID-19 and his old age, is trying to take undue benefit of the Vikram Khalate, aforesaid situation in seeking bail on the grounds mentioned in his application." It also stated, "The prison authorities have responded timely and provided necessary medical aid to the appellant accused Rao. The applicant accused was admitted to [] Hospital for the complaint of giddiness on May 28 and after medical treatment, he was discharged on June 1 as he was found asymptomatic and > haemodynamically stable." Furthermore, the affidavit stated that Rao's medical record or the report submitted by superintendent of I I Hospital did not suggest that he is suffering from any such ailment which necessitates that he immediately obtain treatment in a multi-speciality hospital.

NIA said, "Thus, it is clear that the pleading with regard to medical conditions of petitioner is merely a ruse to obtain an order of interim relief which is not available to petitioner otherwise on the merits of the case."

The High Court had Monday sought responses from the NIA and the Maharashtra government on whether family members of Rao can see or visit him from a reasonable distance in view of the 80year-old's critical condition.

The court had said it would not pass orders on the merit of the bail plea at this stage and sought responses from authorities. Rao's plea will be heard on Thursday.

Dairies, Maharashtra govt ask NDDB to revive buffer scheme

Pune: Caught between a slump in price of skimmed milk powder (SMP) and reduction in demand for milk and milk products, dairies and the state government are pushing for revival of the decentralised scheme by National Dairy Development Board (NDDB) for creation of a buffer stock of SMP. The state government as well as dairies feel this scheme will help get over the present crisis, which has seen a sharp drop in procurement price for farmers. As SMP stock remains unsold and demand for milk and its products remain low, dairies have started slashing prices paid to farmers. Thus, in Maharashtra alone, farmers, paid Rs 30 per litre for milk with 3.5 per cent fat and 8.5 per cent SNF, are being paid between Rs 17 and Rs 22.50 per litre. Before 2000, NDDB maintained a decentralised stock of SMP with cooperative dairies. ENS

CABINET CLEARS PROPOSAL Keeping pre-poll promise, Kejriwal announces ration at the doorstep

Scheme to be implemented within six-seven months, alongside one nation-one ration card policy

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, JULY 21

THE DELHI government Tuesday cleared a proposal to allow home delivery of ration to PDS (public distribution system) beneficiaries in the national capital, implementing one of the major promises made by AAP in the run-up to the assembly polls held earlier this year.

Making the announcement over a webcast, Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal said the scheme will be implemented within six to seven months. Beneficiaries will have the option to choose between home delivery and the traditional way of collection from fair price shops.

There are around 2,030 fair price shops in Delhi, catering to around 17.54 lakh families, having 71 lakh beneficiaries under the National Food Security Act, 2013. Kejriwal also announced that the Centre's 'one nation, one ration card' policy will also be implemented in Delhi from the day the doorstep delivery policy kicks in. The policy is aimed at making ration cards, issued by any particular state, valid across the country

The preliminary plan suggests that delivery agents will be given e-POS devices. Beneficiaries will be expected to share their ration card number with the agents, which will be entered into the device, along with fingerprint scanning or entering Aadhaar card number.

The Delhi Food Department has already directed fair price shop owners to update the con-

EXPLAINED

In 2018, it was L-G vs AAP, and then a nine-day dharna

THE AAP government's decision to roll out home delivery of ration in 2018 had met with resistance from L-G Anil Baijal. Refusing to clear the policy, Baijal had advised the elected government to refer the matter to the Union government with full details before taking a final decision, saying due diligence was needed before rolling out a scheme that directly impacts the weakest sections of society.

The Finance department had also raised red flags, saying home delivery of ration will replace one set of human intervention with another in the form of service providers and their agents. In an unprecedented move, Kejriwal along with his Cabinet colleagues, had then led a nine-day sit-in inside Baijal's office, over a host of issues, including the L-G's position on the ration issue.

Ahead of the 2020 assembly elections, the CM had told The Indian Express that a fresh roadmap had been drawn. which was "at a very advanced stage", relating to the home delivery proposal. "It should be implemented within six months of forming government," he had said.

tact details and Aadhaar numbers of beneficiaries. The e-POS system, which was suspended in Delhi in April 2018 following complaints that eligible beneficiaries were being deprived of food grains due to technical glitches, is also likely to be reinstated at the shops as well.

"The decision that was taken today in the cabinet meeting is a revolutionary step. The scheme will be called 'Mukhyamantri Ghar Ghar Ration Yojana'. Under this scheme, people will not have to go to ration shops to collect ration, but the ration will be delivered to the homes of lakhs of people in Delhi. Wheat grains will be lifted from the FCI godowns and will be taken to the wheat grinding shops to be made into flour. Flour, sugar, rice and other items will be packed properly and will be delivered," Kejriwal said.

In April this year, the Delhi government had launched doorstep delivery of ration across the city's containment zones.

"We are expecting this scheme to be implemented within six to seven months because there will be tendering and hiring of consultants before it is rolled out. The central government's 'one nation, one ration card' scheme will be implemented on the same day as when the doorstep delivery scheme will be implemented.

"This scheme of the central government says that there should be one ration card for all. For instance, if somebody lives in West Bengal or Bihar, and he comes to Delhi in search of a job and work, his ration card for that state must be valid in Delhi as well. Personally, I am glad that this scheme has been approved and will be launched in Delhi, because before entering politics Manish Sisodia and I used to run an NGO called Parivartan. We used to work for the welfare of people living in slums and fight for the rights of the poor people in Delhi. We used to struggle and fight for people to get ration. We fought for the RTI, and the RTI Act was implemented, and we used the RTI Act to enable people to obtain ration," he added.

When Kejriwal and Sisodia, were running the NGO, ration distribution in Sundar Nagri was among the biggest campaigns they led. Using RTI applications, they accessed records from ration shops and found up to 90% pilferage in many cases. On Twitter, the CM paid tribute to Santosh Koli, an AAP member who was associated with Parivartan since 2002, and died after being hit by a car.

"It is the sacrifice of brave activists like her that led to today's revolutionary reform in ration," he tweeted

Govt versus DU crisis deepens: Sisodia asks for legal proceedings, teachers push back over pay

ARANYA SHANKAR NEW DELHI, JULY 21

THE TUSSLE between the Delhi government and Delhi University has further intensified with Deputy Chief Minister Manish Sisodia asking the Directorate of Higher Education (DHE) Tuesday to initiate legal proceedings against the varsity for not following procedures for constitution of Governing Bodies in colleges funded by the AAP government. On the other hand, anger against the Delhi government is growing among teachers over the delay in releasing grants for 12 colleges fully funded by the Delhi government, as a result of which many have not received salaries since May. The DU Teachers' Association (DUTA) has written BIP leaders Meenakshi Lekhi. Adesh Gupta and Ramvir Bidhuri also hit out at the Delhi government Tuesday over the delay.

In his letter dispatched Tuesday, Sisodia wrote, "The regularly constituted governing bodies of many of the colleges that are partially and fully funded by the Government of NCT of Delhi have not been reconstituted, and the colleges are functioning with truncated governing bodies since March, 2019.'

"I have been informed that despite repeated reminders directing the University of Delhi to send six names of nominees of Delhi government to the colleges concerned – Lakshmibai College, College, Kalindi Keshav panel. This seems to indicate a conspiracy to cover up corruption in these colleges." he added. Dean of Colleges Balaram Pani, however, said 134 out 140 names sent by the government as their nominees had been approved: "With regard to six names, the Executive Council (EC) had some reservation, so they sent it back to the Delhi government for reconsideration. Now we have received the same six names again, with the demand that they be approved. But only the EC can do this, and for that an EC meeting needs to take place which is difficult due to Covid."

The government's decision not to release funds – barring Rs 18.75 crore released as first installment on June 4 – has invited ire. The DUTA, in its letter to the CM Tuesday, wrote, "It is becom-

Celebrating 26 Years of Liberation

Greetings to all friends and readers of the Indian Express.

I am glad to be enjoying my fifth month of my stay in New Delhi. Since my arrival in this incredible country, I have enjoyed full support from everyone despite the COVID-19 pandemic that messed up everything. Nevertheless, the Government of India has been very supportive and even gave me the opportunity to present my Letters of Credence to His Excellency the President of India through video conferencing. The Diplomatic Corps has been supportive and still continues to be. I look forward to also present my Credentials to the Heads of State of Bangladesh, Sri Lanka, Nepal and Maldives.

Dear Friends,

On 4th July 2020, Rwanda celebrated 26 years' end of the 1994 Genocide in which more than one million of Tutsi were killed, the defeat of the genocidal regime and the Liberation of the country. Rwandans are celebrating the rebirth of their Nation.

At the High Commission, we celebrated Rwanda's Liberation on 14th July 2020 in a virtual celebration that was graced by the Minister of State for External Affairs Government of India whose presence was a big testimony to the existing bilateral relations between Rwanda and India.

Since its liberation in 1994, Rwanda has enjoyed a politically, stable and peaceful environment characn sustained economic growth over the past 15 years and has proven to be a role model for the African continent. The Visionary leadership of HE President Paul KAGAME has inspired the country and the people of Rwanda to be united, accountable and to think big. Today, Rwanda is a fast developing, transformed and stronger nation, with zero tolerance to corruption. Throughout this journey, some important partners have supported us, advised us and continue to stay by our side and the people of Rwanda are forever grateful! The country has seen its GDP growing at an average rate of between 6 and 8% annually and Rwanda was in the middle of an economic boom prior to the COVID-19 pandemic and the economic growth rate exceeded 10% in 2019. In order to attain this commendable achievement and sustain the social economic transformation of the country, the Government of Rwanda is always prioritising investment in Manufacturing, education, health and agriculture with a special focus on science and Information technology as the driving force of progress in all the sectors of the economy. The bilateral cooperation between Rwanda and India has been growing exponentially in the last 5 years, touching all sectors of socio-economic development, both at Government to Government level as well as at the private sector level. I am therefore privileged to start my mission as High Commissioner of Rwanda in this great country of India. Relations between Rwanda and India are bound to grow manifold in the coming years as we tackle global challenges, in particular the current crisis and the post COVID-19 pandemic. I am glad to inform that, Rwanda has been at forefront in fighting the COVID-19 and today, all business and tourism are open for local business and will soon open for foreign companies bringing in business, once international flights resume. Currently, tourism is open for foreigners with chartered planes and domestic tourists but will be fully open to all from 1st August 2020. Rwanda Development Board (RDB), a state agency for promoting business, investment and tourism in Rwanda remains reachable and offers online facilitation to all companies and individuals wishing to explore business opportunities in Rwanda. I would like to assure you that the entire team at the High Commission in Delhi and myself will not spare any effort to facilitate anyone interested in exploring any opportunity for business or tourism. Thank you all and please visit soon RWANDA, country of a thousand hills and home of Mountain Gorillas!

Rwanda: Your Investment destination

Rwanda has ACCESS TO AFRICAN AND GLOBAL MARKETS through strong free trade agreements...

ILATERAL relations between Rwanda and India have been on a growth trajectory for the past few years and there has been growing confidence on the side of Indian companies as testified by over 40 Indian companies operating in Rwanda. Nevertheless, the opportunities in Rwanda remain enormous for any Indian companies seeking opportunities for business and investment on the African continent. Rwanda remains your sure launchpad if you are looking to set the base and have firm business foundation on the African continent. During PM Modi's visit to Rwanda in 2018 and meeting with HE President Paul Kagame, both leaders committed to fortifying the relations even further. Trade and investment were strongly highlighted as a focus area that needs a big push and both leaders expressed to do whatever is needed to promote trade and investment between the countries.

The country's economic growth averaged 7-8 % in the last 15 years, but with COVID-19 pandemic, a lot of economic activity slumped. The Government of Rwanda has put in place an economic recovery protection to respond to the sectors that were hit most by the pandemic. The Central Bank of Rwanda has provided a liquidity facility worth Rwf 50 billion to commercial banks, which would then provide lending support to actors to weather the Covid-19 storm.

An economic recovery fund was also put in place to cushion business, 50% of which will go to the tourism actors.

Rwanda remains one of the easiest places in Africa to do business and government policy on incentives and benefits to investors is upheld in key sectors such as agro-processing, Manufacturing, IT, Mining, Health, Education and Tourism. With the operationalisation of the African Continental Free Trade Area (AfCFTA), Rwanda will attract more foreign investments in the country.

Rwanda aims at becoming a continental service hub as well as best investment destination and remains ready for supporting infrastructure that will enable the 'Start in Rwanda' concept to take off. Rwanda continues to perform better in different areas and is ranked highly by international ranking bodies.

Rwanda has reopened its tourism activities for domestic and international tourists and international commercial flights reopen their operations from 1st August 2020.

The country has a stable and resilient economy with a 10-year average growth rate of 8.6%. It has also been rated the number one country in Africa for government transparency according to the 2019 Transparency International Report. Rwanda is ranked second for the rule of law in Africa according to the WJP Rule of Law Index 2020.

Rwanda's market stretches far beyond its borders and its geographical position connecting East Africa to Central Africa makes it most suitable for business across the Region. As a member of the East African Community, a six-country regional body with a population of over 180 million people, Rwanda has set all the basics right to attract investors.

The investment climate in Rwanda is one of the best on the continent and the government through Rwanda Development Board (RDB), a government agency responsible for investment and tourism promotion, provides a single clearing house for any investor coming to Rwanda.

Rwanda has created an enabling investment environment with business friendly regulations, multiples incentives for exporters and priority sectors, efficient processes and commitment to foreign ownership. Indeed, Business registration can be done online. The entire process to incorporate a company takes only six hours and within two weeks, you can also transfer a property. Rwanda has also made trading across borders easier by removing the mandatory preshipment inspection for imported products. Furthermore, Rwanda has made enforcing contracts easier by introducing an electronic case management system for judges and lawyers.

A legacy of more than 100 years

43 YEAR old Deepak Kapoor, didn't think twice before entering the world of photography. Reason is simple yet special. His great grandfather, Gokul Chand Kapoor ventured into the photography business in 1909-10 in Peshawar city (undivided India). Following Partition, the Kapoor family migrated to India and set up a photography shop in Khan Market.

And the third generation, Bharat Bhushan Kapoor continued and carried on the legacy of photography. It was sometime in 1962-64 that Deepak's father Bharat Bhushan Kapoor ventured into taking photos of diplomats. Those were the days of black & white photography. The famous Khan Market outlet was named G.C. Kapoor & Sons.

And when Deepak became an adult of 18 years and completed his schooling from Air Force Bal Bharti, Lodi Road, New Delhi, he started spending time at the Khan Market outlet. The outlet was also a retail platform for photography goods. The year was 1994. Though young, Deepak got admission in graduation in Dayal Singh College. He spent the next nine years learning the tricks of photography from his father who is popularly known as Kapoors.

"While working as a trainee and junior with my father, I learnt not only the art of photography, but how to interact with diplomats from more than 100 diplomatic missions in Delhi," says Deepak. It was sometime in 2004 that Kapoor Sahab, took Deepak into confidence and implored him to take over the photography business, which was growing with the opening of more and more diplomatic missions.

We have great respect for African Diplomatic Community. "Africans Diplomats extend warmth, are friendly, easily accessible and very close by way of cultural affinity," he says.

"Though in this line of work, we don't have a personal life, because after 6 pm, we are clicking photographs and covering diplomatic events, almost every single day, I have no regrets. Happy to carry on the 100 year plus legacy of my ancestors. The work has given me opportunity to interact with diplomats representing more than 160 countries," Deepak adds with a smile.

S AFTER FILING COMPLAINT ALLEGING MOLESTATION OF RELATIVE; CURRENTLY IN ICU

Heading home with 2 daughters, Ghaziabad journalist shot in head

AMIL BHATNAGAR NOIDA, JULY 21

FOUR DAYS after he filed a complaint against some men for allegedly molesting his relative, Ghaziabad-based journalist Vikram Joshi was shot in the head in front of his two daughters on Monday night.

Police have arrested nine people so far -- Vijay, Mohit, Dalveer, Aakash, Yogendra, Abhishek Mota, Abhishek, Shakir and the main accused, Ravi

Police said Joshi, who works with Jan Sagar Today, was on a scooter with his two daughters in Pratap Vihar when he was cornered by a group of men who assaulted and later shot at him. He was rushed to Yashoda Hospital, where he is in a critical condition in the ICU.

His family members alleged police did not investigate the initial complaint. They claimed a police team only enquired about the location of the accused but they were not found. The family further alleged that on July 17, a letter had been sent via post to the SSP office demanding action but nothing was done.

Police said the molestation complaint was filed on June 16, and they registered an FIR the same day. Ghaziabad SSP Kalanidhi Naithani has suspended booth incharge of Vijay Nagar police station SI Raghvendra for alleged dereliction of duty, and an enquiry has been set up under a DSP-rank officer to ascertain the delay in action

CO 1st, Ghaziabad. In CCTV footage of the shooting, Joshi can be seen riding a two-wheeler with his daughters when he is waylaid by the accused and loses balance. A group of people are then seen assaulting and beating him up. In the middle of the assault, one of the accused shoots at him as he falls to the ground. As the accused leave, one of his daughters rushes back to Vikram, asking passersby for help. The Ghaziabad SSP said: "We received information around 10.45 pm that a Pratap Viharbased journalist, Vikram, has been shot at. Senior officers rushed to the spot and the victim was admitted to hospital. Within a few hours, five persons were noon, four more were arrested. The main accused, Ravi, also a resident of Pratap Vihar, confessed to us that he orchestrated the attack and carried it out with his accomplices.'

Vikram's brother Aniket Joshi said: "We were told by locals that Vikram was cornered by a group of people. These are the same men who had been passing lewd comments at one of our relatives and harassing her. We had given a complaint but no arrests were made. My brother is now fighting for his life." Police and doctors said the bullet was not buried deep inside the skull. While his heart vitals are stable, Vikram is yet to regain consciousness, said an official

Congress leader Priyanka Gandhi, meanwhile, hit out at the UP government: "Ghaziabad is in NCR. If the law and order here is such, one can guess how it must be in the entire state. One journalist was shot because he complained against the eve teasing of his niece. How can a common man be safe in this 'jungle raj'."

Minutes earlier, 200 metres away, a group of people had cornered her father Vikram Joshi (34) as he was riding home on a scooty with his daughters.

Angered over a police complaint filed against them by Vikram for alleged molestation of his relative, Ravi, the main accused, and his associates allegedly assaulted and shot him in the head. He is currently in the ICU.

According to police, Ravi and a few of his associates had first been arrested under preventive detention in connection with a complaint filed by the family in March last year. They were later granted bail.

Vikram's sister claimed that the following year, the accused did not approach the family but were looking to retaliate.

"On the night of July 15, Ravi, Abhishek and a few others were outside our house. They hurled abuses... In 2019, during Holi, they had come to the house to create problems...," alleged his sister.

She said Vikram was peace loving and never got into a fight, but felt he had to step in after the alleged molestation and filed an

The accused are unemployed and stay within a 5-10 km radius of Vikram's house. On Monday night, police said the accused had gathered close to Vikram's sister house as they anticipated he would step out later in the night. "Since we live in the same neighborhood, Vikram often visited us. He came to see us with his daughters on Monday night and left around 10 pm... Barely a few minutes later, his younger daughter came running with a shocked look saying Vikram had been killed. We rushed there and found

BJP is power hungry, out to topple elected govts: Mamata

At virtual rally, CM says will be back next year: Bengal will be run by Bengalis

ATRIMITRA KOLKATA, JULY 21

TEARING INTO the BJP amid the political crisis in Rajasthan, West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee Tuesday accused it of "destabilising governments" in Opposition-ruled states and misusing central agencies to attain its objective. She said people are unable to speak due to the "reign of fear across the country".

Addressing a virtual rally on Shahid Dibas -- the Martyr's Day marks the death of 13 people in police firing in 1993 – Banerjee said the BJP toppled the elected government in Madhya Pradesh and was now trying to do it in West Bengal and Rajasthan.

Setting the tone for the Assembly elections in the state next year, she said the BJP was "power hungry" but she and her party would not allow it to have its way. "Trinamool Congress will form the government again. The next elections will show a new direction to the state as well as the country," she said

"If they are indulging in such cheap politics to take control of all states, then I would like to ask them, why hold elections? Let them bring a 'kala kanoon' (black law). Let there be President's rule all over. Let them implement the formula of 'One Nation, One Political Party'.'

"The BJP's intention is dangerous as it is power hungry. They are not for the people, but for themselves. They don't believe in freedom of each and every person, be it police, teachers, professors, farmers, migrant workers, students, journalists, etc... Don't play with fire and if you think that you will scare me with agencies, then you are mistaken. I have fought my entire life and I would like to tell you that an injured tiger is more dangerous than a dead one. Let's call for democratic 'badla' (revenge) to free Bengal from these conspirators," she said.

She said the BJP has been humiliating her every day. "We will take revenge for this humiliation by winning the Assembly elections next year. Outsiders will not be allowed to run Bengal, we know how to rise to the cause. Do not think TMC is weak. Bengal will run by Bengalis," she

"The Centre is conspiring against Bengal, saying there is violence every day. There are some people who don't have any political experience. They speak of killing people and setting things ablaze," she said.

"They are talking about law and order in Bengal. What happened in Uttar Pradesh? The police were killed in an encounter.

"They are attacking artists, educationists. We have not forgotten the NRC or NPR fight. Because Covid is here, it does not mean we have forgotten CAA or NRC," she said. "How you killed people in Delhi and threw bodies in the drain. We will never forget," she

"I would like to tell all my leaders and workers to pull up their socks to fight against the BJP's conspiracy to divide people in the name of religion, caste and creed," she said.

Banerjee also urged the youth to step forward and work to take over the reins of the party in the future. "I will not be there forever. Therefore, I would like to prepare a team of young people who will run my party in the future," she said.

Next year, Mamata won't be able to take oath as CM: BJP

Kolkata: West Bengal BJP president Dilip Ghosh on Tuesday said Mamata Baneriee won't be able to take oath as CM next year.

"This time, 95 per cent of her speech was directed towards targeting the BJP. This shows she is afraid of the party... Banerjee is saying all this out of depression. Next year, she won't be able to take the oath as CM," Ghosh said. CPM's Sujan Chakraborty accused Banerjee of "lies and deceit". Congress Lok Sabha leader Adhir Ranjan Chowdhury said Baneriee was responsible for the rise of the BJP in West Bengal. "The BJP in West Bengal is nothing but a party full of rejected TMC leaders," he said.

House panel chief to BJP's OBC MPs: Send tweets to PM, Shah on creamy layer income

SHYAMLAL YADAV NEW DELHI, JULY 21

CHAIRMAN of the Parliamentary panel on OBC welfare, BJP MP Ganesh Singh, has written to other OBC MPs in the party asking them to request Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Home Minister Amit Shah through "messages, tweets" to not include salary and agriculture income while calculating annual family income to decide the creamy layer.

Singh's letter comes at a time when the National Commission on Other Backward Classes (NCBC) is vet to finalise its views on the Centre's proposal to raise the income limit of the creamy layer and include salary as a criteria.

In a letter dated July 5 to 112 OBC MPs of both Houses, excluding Modi, Singh wrote that his Parliamentary Committee had recommended that the creamy layer limit be increased to Rs 15 lakh. He wrote that the government is "considering" a "consensus on Rs 12 lakh but salary and agriculture income is also being added in the gross annual income, which is wrong". Presently, the income limit for the OBC creamy layer is Rs 8 lakh per annum, and decided on rank for government employees and not on salary.

Investigation (CBI) on Tuesday questioned Devaram Saini, Officer on Special Duty to Rajasthan Chief Minister Ashok Gehlot, in connection with the alleged suicide by state police officer Vishnu Dutt Bishnoi in Churu on May 23. A team of the CBI's special crime unit from Delhi is in Jaipur to record statements in connection with the death of Bishnoi, who was SHO of Rajgarh police station in Churu. His body was found hanging from the ceiling of his official residence. The Raiasthan government subsequently handed over the probe in the case to the CBI.

AMID THE ongoing political crisis in Rajasthan, the state government, in a meeting of the council of ministers held on Tuesday, took several decisions including the announcement of a fresh relief amount of Rs 1,000 to 35 lakh needy families affected by the Covid-19 lockdown in the state.

It was also decided to provide relief under the Rajasthan Investment Promotion Scheme 2019 for one extra year to establishments in the tourism, multiplex and hotel sector. Other decisions include a relief package for industries worth Rs 220 crore and the decision to start city bus and autorickshaw services after taking due measures to ensure social distancing, a release said.

'Life of Lucknow', Lalji Tandon passes away at 85 Finance and Tourism.

MAULSHREESETH LUCKNOW, JULY 21

POPULARLY KNOWN as "Babuji", Lalji Tandon travelled a long way from municipal corporation politics in the early 1970s to serving as minister in Uttar Pradesh during different regimes in the 1990s and then as governor of Bihar and Madhya Pradesh.

Tandon died at a hospital in Lucknow early Tuesday. He was 85

Hailing from a business family in the old city of Lucknow, Tandon was an active RSS functionary in his youth, and later came to be known as a "key associate" of former Prime Minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee.

Vajpayee became MP from Lucknow for the first time in 1991 and retained the seat for five consecutive terms, after which Tandon won from the seat in 2009. BJP leaders say that much of the credit for the party retaining the Lok Sabha seat and majority of Lucknow's Assembly seats for decades goes to Tandon, who had the support of different sections of society and the full trust of Vajpayee.

His popularity in the UP capital and closeness to Vajpayee were significant factors for which he was the BJP's first choice as its candidate after Lucknow seat was vacated by Vajpayee in 2009 following his ill health. Tandon won the seat by defeating then state Congress president Rita Bahuguna Joshi by more than 40,000 votes. In 2014, the seat was given to Rajnath Singh, and in August 2018 Tandon was made Governor of Bihar, a post he retained until July 2019, when he was made Governor of Madhva Pradesh.

Tandon served as minister during various regimes. An MLC in the late 1970s and MLA for three terms since 1996, representing Lucknow East Assembly constituency, Tandon was Minister for Urban Development

Those close to him say that he never forgot his 'Lucknavi tehzeeb' and was considered a true son of the soil, with a penchant for not just 'Lucknavi culture' but also traditional 'Lucknavi food'. Tandon never missed a chance to throw his famous Lucknavi chaat parties at his residence, especially after Holi. He also wrote a book on the city --- "Ankaha Lucknow" (Unspoken Lucknow.)

He was popular among his political opponents, too. BSP chief Mayawati would tie him rakhi every year on Rakshabandhan. He was also popular among Shia clerics of the old city.

Tandon's Lucknow East Assembly constituency was later represented by his son, now UP minister Ashutosh Tandon. It was Ashutosh who first tweeted in the morning "Babuji nahi rahe". Prime Minister Narendra tion government with Mayawati Modi offered his condolences, as CM. Along with Urban saying "he played a significant role in strengthening of BJP in Uttar Pradesh". President Ram Nath Kovind wrote, "We have lost a legendary leader, who combined cultural sophistication of Lucknow and acumen of a national stalwart.

Madhya Pradesh CM Shivraj Singh Chouhan described Tandon as a "skilled organizer, nationalist and successful administrator" and credited him with the BSP-BJP alliance in UP.

All government offices in Madhya Pradesh were closed on Tuesday. A scheduled Cabinet meeting paid tribute to Tandon, after which Chouhan flew to Lucknow. The state government declared a five-day mourning until July 25.

UP CM Yogi Adityanath reached Tandon's residence in Lucknow to offer his condolences, and the state announced a three-day mourning. He referred to Tandon as "Lucknow ke pran" (life of Lucknow) and said the country had lost a popular leader, capable administrator and active social worker. Expressing her condolences, Mavawati described him as "a social and cultured person". -- WITH ENS, BHOPAL

Two private labs in Mumbai find antibody positivity rate at 24.3 pc

TABASSUM BARNAGARWALA MUMBAI, JULY 21

DATA OF 9,590 samples tested for antibodies in Mumbai's two private laboratories showed that 24.3 per cent had antibodies against Covid-19. These samples, collected from the general population comprising office-goers, businessmen, salon staff and health workers, indicates that nearly one-fourth of the city's population has already been exposed to coronavirus and generated antibodies against the infection.

Latest data also suggests Delhi is more exposed to coronavirus than Mumbai. Combined data of sero surveillance conducted by the National Centre for Disease Control (NCDC) and samples tested by Thyrocare show a 25.10 per cent positivity rate. The NCDC did an IgG antibody test on 21,387 people in 11 districts of Delhi and found around 5,022 positive (23.48 per cent). Private laboratory Thyrocare tested 3,956 people and found antibodies in 1,340 . (33.8 per cent).

In Mumbai, Thyrocare tested 5,485 people, and found antibodies in 1,501 (27.3 per cent). Suburban Diagnostics lab tested 4,105 people and found 830(20.2 per cent) had antibodies against coronavirus

"This is good news. This shows a large number of people who were exposed to coronavirus had no symptoms and got immunity,' said Dr Sujata Baveja, head of microbiology in Sion hospital.

They said antibodies must come from recovered people who were symptomatic, which can take as long as a month after their diagnosis to appear. Patients must receive the plasma within five to 10 days of their diagnosis, the trial's principal investigators recommended.

If implemented at the right time, the investigators most often cited a decrease in hospital stay time, viral load, oxygen requirements, and time till a negative test result. After discharge, many of the workers had travelled to their homes at different places in the Jammu region. They are now back at the Employees' State Insurance Corporation (ESIC) Hospital.

National Health Mission director in the Union Territory, Bhupinder Kumar, who is nodal officer for Covid-19 control efforts in Jammu and Kashmir, denied knowledge of the incident. He said he will look into it and take necessary action.

Faced with a rapidly escalating caseload, the state is staring at June 17, when the reports came, an acute shortage of high-end ventilators needed to assist patients with severe lung damage. As of Monday evening, there were only six ICU ventilators available, out of a total of 22 in 15 government hospitals, and only they had discharged the patients two of 77 in government medical college hospitals across the state capital. As of the same time, there were 332 patients in ICUs in who don't show any Covid-19 Bengaluru hospitals.

The healthcare infrastructure in Karnataka, and Bengaluru in particular, is under severe pressure in the middle of a massive increase in Covid cases – from 4,555 on June 30 to 34,943 cases reported in the city as on July 21. "Around 600 ventilators supplied under PM Cares fund are waiting to be deployed in hospitals run by the Health Department," a senior Karnataka medical official said recently. "In March, there was only one local supplier when we were looking to procure ventilators. We took an approval from the (Covid) task force and ordered 130 from Skanrav Technologies. ## LAC: No more thinning of troops, Army prepares for the long haul

KRISHN KAUSHIK NEW DELHI, JULY 21

WITH NO fresh disengagement or thinning of troops at the friction points with China along the Line of Actual Control in Ladakh, there is a stalemate and India has started to prepare for the long-haul.

It is learnt that the Army is preparing to retain some of the additional troops of three extra divisions moved to the region to mirror the Chinese build-up in the depth areas.

With no further movement since the fourth round of talks between the Corps Commanders on July 14, and complete disengagement only at two of the four friction points, sources said there is uncertainty about the next round of discussions.

Troops from both sides had stepped back at Patrolling Point 14 (PP14) in Galwan Valley and at PP15, with Chinese troops moving back to their side of the LAC But there are still about 50 troops on each side, less than 1 km from each other, at PP17A.

At Pangong Tso, which has become a major point of contention, the Chinese troops have stepped back to Finger 5, but they continue to occupy the Finger 4 ridgeline. Chinese troops had built substantial structures in the 8-km

Asked about China's claim over the sanctuary in Bhutan, Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman Wang Wenbin told a media briefing that the boundarv between the two countries is yet to be demarcated.

"China's position remains consistent and clear. The boundary between China and Bhutan has not been delimited and there are disputes in the middle, eastern and western sections," he said. "So, China advocates a package solution to resolve the dispute.'

Wang said, "China is opposed to making an issue of these disputes at multilateral forums and China remains in communication with the relevant parties on this issue.

Asked about reports that China is making fresh territorial claims in its boundary dispute with Bhutan, Wang said, "I (have) already made China's position clear... The boundary between China and Bhutan has not been demarcated. There are disputes in the central, eastern and western sections of the boundary."

According to reports, Bhutan's embassy in New Delhi issued a demarche to the Chinese embassy over Beijing's claim over the sanctuary.

China and Bhutan do not have diplomatic relations but maintain contacts through periodic visits by officials. The two countries have held 24 rounds of boundary talks in a bid to resolve the boundary dispute.

China's claim over Bhutanese territory came in the midst of Beijing's aggressive moves in eastern Ladakh along the Line of Actual Control.

China is also engaged in hotly contested territorial disputes in both the South China Sea and the East China Sea. China claims almost all of the South China Sea. Vietnam, the Philippines, Malaysia, Brunei and Taiwan have counter claims over the PTI area.

Delhi has registered significant decline in COVID cases, but the city cannot afford to let down its guard

BOUT AMONTH ago, Delhi surpassed Mumbai as the Indian city with the highest number of COVID-19 cases. The capital recorded in excess of 2,000 cases daily for more than five weeks in June and July. The Delhi government apprehended that the city's caseload would cross 5 lakh by the end of July and there were fears of the healthcare system being overwhelmed by the surging virus. Since then, the Delhi government has ramped up testing and bolstered the city's medical infrastructure. The measures have led to an appreciable fall in the city's daily caseload in the past 10 days. On Monday, the capital recorded less than 1,000 cases in 24 hours for the first time since June 1. This is a heartening development. However, given the unpredictable ways of the coronavirus, the Delhi government and the city's residents cannot afford to let down their guard.

There is much that Delhi has done right over the last month. It has dedicated more than 15,000 beds in the city's hospitals to COVID patients and increased critical care facilities. The Delhi government also put in place a home quarantine system for patients with mild symptoms and asymptomatic carriers of the virus. People recovering at home are given oximeters to help them monitor any dip in oxygen levels and their condition is monitored. These are significant interventions. It is well-known that more than 80 per cent of COVID patients do not require hospitalisation. But the fear of being moved to a quarantine centre had reportedly deterred many with COVID symptoms from getting themselves tested till the infection became severe. The assurance of recuperation at home led more people to get themselves tested – the number of tests has gone up nearly four times since the first week of June. There, however, remains more scope to increase testing facilities. Last week, for instance, the Delhi High Court pulled up the Indian Council of Medical Research for giving 26 private labs one month, a period it felt was "too long", to upgrade their facilities for COVID testing.

The increase in testing in Delhi is driven largely by Rapid Antigen Tests, which deliver results in less than 30 minutes. But the possibility of false negatives is significantly higher in such tests compared to the swab test. According to figures presented by the Delhi government in the High Court, only one in 200 of those who tested negative in antigen tests was asked to undergo a swab test. The government maintains that it is going by the ICMR's protocols which prescribe re-tests only for patients with symptoms. Given the constraint on resources, it would, of course, be impossible to follow up every negative antigen test with a swab test. Yet the results of these quick tests should not lull the Delhi government into complacency – especially because of the virus's propensity to spread through asymptomatic carriers. A serological survey by the Union Health Ministry, released on Tuesday – which showed that about 24 per cent of the participants had developed antibodies – has also indicated that a large number of infected people in Delhi are asymptomatic. The reasons for Delhi's healthcare system to be on high alert remain compelling.

POWER UNDER STRESS

Fall in demand, insufficient tariff hikes, high AT&C losses adversely impact discom finances. The sector needs reform

HE FINANCIAL POSITION of power distribution companies has been deteriorating, well before the COVID shock. But the pandemic, and the ensuing lockdown, have aggravated their already precarious position by adversely affecting demand. At the aggregate level, electricity demand fell by 16 per cent in the first quarter of the current financial year. In large part, this decline is due to a fall in demand from industrial and commercial users. And as these consumers account for a sizeable portion of discom earnings — they also help subsidise tariffs for other segments — this fall disproportionately affects discoms' financial position. According to some estimates, discoms may be staring at a revenue gap of around Rs 42,000 to Rs 45,000 crore this year. This deterioration in finances does not bode well for the entire power sector chain. While the government had earlier announced liquidity support to the tune of Rs 90,000 crore to help discoms clear their obligations towards power generating companies, the off-take on these loans has been slow so far. The stress on discom finances is evident from recent reports which reveal that the audited book losses of discoms have been revised upwards to Rs 49,600 crore in FY2019, from the provisional estimate of Rs 28,000 crore, inching closer to pre-UDAY levels. The mounting losses indicate that the UDAY scheme, which was expected to engineer an operational and financial turnaround in the fortunes of the beleaguered discoms, has failed to affect the change that was hoped for, with the gap between average cost and realisation per unit of power yet to be closed. In large part, this continuing deterioration in their position stems from inadeguate and irregular tariff hikes, AT&C(aggregate technical and commercial) losses not declining to the levels envisaged, and delays in disbursal of subsidy by state governments. The central government has proposed several amendments to the Electricity Act 2003 aimed at addressing some of these issues - the suggestions range from privatisation of discoms to moving towards direct benefit transfers for subsidies. While these and other reforms need to be pushed through urgently to ensure an improvement in the financial position of the discoms, they need to be supplemented with the imposition of stiff penalties on states for failing to usher in the changes needed, or meeting the targets laid out, to effect a turnaround in the sector.

Common cause at sea Time for ambivalence is over. India must formally revive Quad, seek its expansion

ARUN PRAKASH

THE RECENT RE-EMERGENCE of terms like "Malabar" and "Quad" in the media, as well as in the national security discourse should be music to the ears of India's small but diehard band of "navalists" (advocates of maritime power), who had not long ago heard disheartening public pronouncements that since the Indian armed forces were not "expeditionary forces" — for global deployment — they must confine themselves to "guard and fight" only along national borders.

It is essential for India's strategic-planners and policy-makers to retain clarity about the reason India has become a partner that is sought after by the US and others. While India's status as a nuclear-weapon state and major land/air power, as well as a growing economy and attractive market, has been known for some time, New Delhi's newfound allure for the US, the Quad and ASEAN is rooted only in its ability to project power and influence in distant ocean reaches.

In the current scenario, given Chinese intransigence and our misreading of their imperialist-expansionist intent, Sino-Indian tensions are likely to persist. If India is not to cede ground physically or diplomatically, it must muster all elements of its "comprehensive national power", including the maritime, and create a strong negotiating position. Apart from the balance of forces on land favouring China, there is also the Beijing-Islamabad Axis that awaits activation. Keeping tensions confined to the Himalayan arena is, therefore, not only militarily advantageous to China but a continental focus also helps to keep India contained in a "South-Asia box".

To the navalists, this seems all the more reason for India to try shifting the confrontation to "sea-level", where the asymmetry is in its favour. In this context, if Exercise Malabar and the Quadrilateral concept are at long last going to be leveraged to make common cause in the maritime domain, the provenance of both needs to be seen in perspective.

When America first reached out to India in the early 1990s to offer military-to-military cooperation, the Indian Navy (IN), keen to shed its Cold War insularity, responded eagerly. It initiated the first-ever naval-drills enlargement of this grouping into a partnership of the likeminded. Other nations feeling the brunt of Chinese brawn may be willing to join an 'Indo-Pacific concord' to maintain peace and tranquillity and to ensure observance of the UN Law of the Seas. News of Australia being re-invited to participate in the Quad deserves a conditional welcome, given Canberra's past inconsistency and political flip-flops.

It is also time to seek an with the US Navy (USN) in May 1992. Codenamed Malabar, the annual exercise got off to a good start and with a brief interruption during the post-Shakti sanctions saw its 24th edition in 2019.

China has remained bitterly opposed to Malabar because it saw the growing relationship as India's first step on the American bandwagon. Consequently, when Malabar-2007 was enlarged to accommodate Australia, Singapore and Japan, China sent a diplomatic protest conveying its fear and displeasure. It took another eight years before Japan was formally admitted to make Malabar a tri-lateral event in 2015.

The Quadrilateral traces its origins to the great Asian tsunami of December 26, 2004. IN ships, aircraft and helicopters were despatched within hours to render assistance to our Sri Lankan, Maldivian and Indonesian neighbours in distress. This swift response established our navy's credentials as a credible regional force and the following day the Commander US Pacific Fleet sought our concurrence, telephonically, for his units to join the rescue effort. Within a week, the navies of the US, Australia Japan and India had come together to form "Joint Task Force-536" headquartered in Utapao (Thailand). This established the framework for "quadrilateral coordination".

It is noteworthy that not a single PLA Navy (PLAN) ship was seen throughout the 2004 tsunami relief operations. But, as mentioned earlier, when navies of five nations assembled for a joint exercise off Okinawa, China issued a demarche to India, US, Japan and Australia seeking details about their meeting — terming it a "Quadrilateral initiative". China's extreme concern about the concepts of Malabar as well as the Indo-Pacific and Quad arises from the suspicion that they are precursors to "containment" — the Cold War geopolitical strategy used by the US to isolate and engineer the collapse of the USSR.

China's hostility arouses trepidation amongst Quad members and a degree of equivocation is evident in their actions and articulations. As early as 2008, Australian Prime Minister Kevin Rudd decided to dump the Quad to pander to China's wishes. PM Narendra Modi, in his speech at the Shangri La Dialogue 2018, sought to reassure Beijing by stating: "India does not see the Indo-Pacific as a strategy... and by no means do we consider it as directed against any country..."

try..." The time for ambivalence is over and while India will have to fight its own territorial battles with determination, this is the moment to seek external balancing. A formal revival and re-invigoration of the Quad is called for. It is also time to seek an enlargement of this grouping into a partnership of the like-minded. Other nations feeling the brunt of Chinese brawn may be willing to join an "Indo-Pacific concord" to maintain peace and tranquillity and to ensure observance of the UN Law of the Seas. News of Australia being re-invited to participate in the Quad deserves a conditional welcome, given Canberra's past inconsistency and political flip-flops.

While Malabar remains a visible and reassuring symbol of Indo-US-Japanese solidarity, there is a need for the US to recast, along with partners, its Indo-Pacific strategy, which has had no impact on China's unfolding hegemonic master-plan. In this context, Secretary of State Mike Pompeo's bombastic statement earlier this month regarding China's maritime claims - far from conveying reassurance – served only to highlight America's helplessness in the South China Sea. Having failed to deter China from creating and fortifying artificial islands in open defiance of the UN Tribunal's verdict, all that the US has been able to demonstrate is the hollow symbolism of US warships conducting "freedom of navigation" sailings through Chinese-claimed waters.

The US must also note that as the Chinese juggernaut continues to roll westwards, should Iran abandon India for China as a partner in the Chabahar port deal, it would represent yet another huge gain for China. The PLAN may now have not just Djibouti but also Gwadar and Chabahar as maritime footholds in India's Arabian Sea neighbourhood.

AFTER TRUMP

Is Kanye West's presidential bid serious, or a publicity stunt? It's not an either-or question

HE FIRST QUESTION on the minds of many in America, and beyond, regarding musician-entertainer Kanye West's presidential bid is: Is he serious? At his first rally, West appeared in a protective security vest and "2020" shaved onto the back of his head. He asserted that Harriet Tubman (a freed slave who smuggled other Black men and women to the US states where slavery was illegal) "never actually freed the slaves, she just had the slaves go work for other White people." He weighed in on abortion, claiming his mother wanted to abort him and he, his daughter. The spectacle in South Carolina may well be a publicity stunt. Unfortunately, that doesn't mean it's not a presidential bid. West's hyper-confessional, ahistorical and over-simplified political platform is a consequence of the 2016 campaign and what has become of public conversation in its aftermath.

In the US, for long, the archetype of the politician was of the clean-cut family man. Yet, for at least a decade, popular culture has been creating a very different aspirational figure. The reality TV star — anything but real, but that's marketing — would confess, abuse, be outrageous and provocative. Any publicity was good publicity. With the candidature and election of Donald Trump, reality TV became reality, with serious consequences. West's platform, like Trump's before him, is also a result of underestimating the power of popular culture in public life, of ignoring the effects of how people spend their time on how they think.

Kanye West, though, is a far more tragic figure than Trump. In a series of tweets on Monday night (later deleted), he claimed that his wife (reality star Kim Kardashian) was trying to have him institutionalised after his rally. West has also spoken publicly in the past about his struggle with bipolar disorder. He is an excellent musician, designer and performer. Now, he could also be aspiring to be Trump.

THE CORONAVIRUS IS an infectious agent with a difference. The culture and structure of its formation seem to invite the life sciences to revisit the very idea of life and living organism. Issues such as the mutation of the virus, the way it intrudes into the human body and its afterlife, the immune system, and other biological crises might compel disciplines like microbiology and biochemistry to reorganise their disciplinary configuration.

An equally urgent intellectual task ahead is to reassemble the humanities and social sciences since the pandemic has made a devastating impact on humanity at large. What calls for the attention of these disciplines is the power of the non-human over the human. Scientists in France conducted inquiries into the role of non-human and non-living actors in human affairs during the 1980s and '90s. In their study of the life of science and scientists, Bruno Latour, Michel Callon, John Law, Peter Lodge and others stumbled upon a new insight, which has come to be known as the Actor Network Theory (ANT), that nothing is outside the network, and everything is connected in the social.

According to ANT, the social world is not merely a conglomeration of people as loosely understood by classical social scientists, but an assemblage of human, non-human and non-living entities, caught in the network of associations. It is these associations of things that social scientists have to pay attention to, marginalising anthropocentric assumptions. However, in the context of COVID-19, I would like to focus here on the interface between What explains the intrusion of the virus into every nook and corner of the globe is the way the present world is made up of complex associations and assemblies. The greatest challenge before us is to reconfigure the network of things without holding it back. the human and the non-human among several aspects of the ANT.

As practitioners of ANT observe, human society has changed over a period of time, and innumerable objects like pen, camera, telescope, airplane, cellphone, and non-human entities like microbes constitute the social. Our life is woven into the network of these things, and in this network, non-human entities, which have no will, intention and mind like humans, make a difference to our life. Therefore, in the framework of ANT, humans are not the only agents to make a difference to this network, but viruses like corona and objects like airplanes become active agents of change.

Non-human and non-living entities are called actors because they bring about change in the network of the social. Therefore, Latour elsewhere observes that the virus is the real globaliser, not just the MNCs. However, the capacity of non-human actors to make a difference is not intrinsic to them. They are powerful because they are participants in the network. They become influential in their association with the larger network of things including humans. The lesser the power of the network, the minimal will be their impact. The virus has, thus, appeared on scene when the entire network of the world, due to globalisation, has been thick and closely knit. Had COVID-19 appeared during the pre-modern world, when mobility and human connections were limited, the world would have been much better than what it is now.

What explains the intrusion of the virus into every nook and corner of the globe is the way the present world is made up of complex associations and assemblies. The greatest challenge before us is to reconfigure the network of things without holding it back. Therefore, it is quite useful to understand the thick world we inhabit today in order to solve the problem of the epidemic. The ANT's sociology of associations helps us understand it and grasp the problem of the pandemic better.

Thus, ANT compels us to reassemble not only our social world but also the social sciences and humanities. Since, as ANT shows, the natural, social and technological are not separate domains, and they create the reality around us through networking, we need to reorganise our knowledge systems based on a new interdisciplinary thinking, breaking the borders of narrow knowledge compartments. Such a project calls for integrating the sciences with arts and humanities, and social sciences. For example, assimilating the history of sciences in the study of pure sciences, scientific narratives in the discipline of historical studies, film and literary texts on ecological crises in environmental sciences, social history of epidemics in life sciences, among others, would help us look at the network of actors clearly, and empower us to deal with problems arising out of this network.

THE TWO-WEEK SUSPENSION of the agitation against foreign nationals in Assam was generally welcomed in both official and political circles in New Delhi. Home ministry sources were reluctant to comment on the statement by the AASU and AAGP suspending the 10-month agitation to create an atmosphere conducive for the resumption of talks. The sources wanted to wait a few days before responding to the gesture for fear that it may turn out to be one of the quiet spells between different phases of the movement. The home minister may himself spell out the government's response in his reply to the debate on his ministry's demands in the Lok Sabha.

KARNATAKA VIOLENCE

FOUR PERSONS DIED, two of them in police firing and a number of others were injured in large-scale violence as an agitation of farmers rocked Nargund, Navalgund and Gadag towns of Dharwad district of Karnataka. Night curfew has been clamped in all these places and prohibitory orders clamped in the entire district for a week following sporadic cases of arson and looting, according to information reaching the police headquarters. An assistant sub-inspector of the reserve police was among those killed in mob violence. A number of policemen including an inspector were injured in stone-throwing. Two persons were injured in police firing at Navalgund, 35 km from Bangalore.

THE GOMTI HAS crossed the danger level in Lucknow, flooding low-lying areas and causing panic in the trans-river localities of the city. Rising steadily after heavy rains, the river was 17 cm above the red mark. Scrapping of ECA quota for Delhi University points to larger problem – curtailment of diversity, shrinking canvas of learning

MEENAKSHI GOPINATH

AS THOUSANDS OF school-leavers seeking admission to colleges and universities navigate their aspirations through the labyrinth of skyrocketing "cut-offs", the uncertainties imposed by COVID-19 have exacerbated anxiety levels. Almost 80 per cent of the 37.4 million students who inhabit the higher education space are undergraduates. The nearly 40,000 colleges added approximately eight lakh students in 2019 and 10,59,080 students passed the CBSE Board exams alone this year. About 1,50,000 scored more than 90 per cent and 38 per cent of them more than 95 per cent in this one Board alone. A number of these "high-achievers" are unlikely to gain admission into the top 50 institutions for courses of their choice this year.

The recent petition in the Delhi High Court by two young artists — challenging the deci-sion of the University of Delhi (DU) to scrap the extracurricular activities (ECA) quota for art and culture from the academic year 2020-21 - brings home "serious shortcomings" in the very basis of "selection". The incomprehensible retention of the more muscular "sports quota" appears to indicate that the clout of the powerful sports federations seems to have protected them from the axe.

DU had, for several decades, provided for a reservation of up to 5 per cent of seats for students who demonstrated exceptional talent in sports and cultural activities allowing for up to a 15 per cent compensation in marks. This was intended to draw in students who, though less dexterous in "cracking" the Board examination, could potentially add value to the mosaic of events and activities that enhance the undergraduate experience.

Colleges of the university that built and sustained reputations on the quality and range of their academic and cultural canvases used this enabling, not compulsory, provision to judicious advantage to nurture the diverse potential of their students. Most of them devised transparent criteria and methodologies for evaluating performance standards to legitimately provide for what Howard Gardner calls "multiple intelligences" to play out and find articulation. A space opened for those not batting purely on an academic wicket to attempt a bricolage around the barriers of evaluations based on formulaic standardisation. It also provided an opportunity for the inventiveness of "non-conformers" to strike an unusual trail and, as Thoreau said, march to the beat of a different drum. Higher Education Institutes (HEIs) in India today take pride in that their admission processes are based purely on "merit" and consequently are "impartial" and "objective". Herein lies a contradiction. "Merit" in everyday parlance has become conflated with marks obtained in Board examinations. The unrealistically high cut-offs, where a shortfall of a mere 0.25 per cent can be a make-or-break situation for the student and an arbiter of her future, have paradoxically turned into algorithms for weeding out, not selection.

boards have earned notoriety for routinely inflating scores to provide their students easier access to the best HEIs. Others have been overly parsimonious and non-facilitative. Do we need to wait till the average marks awarded by school boards catapult to 99 or even 100 per cent to unscramble what we describe as the "merit" criteria?

The examination-rank method and the "merit-only position" as sociologist Satish Deshpande reminds us, also obscures the causal contribution of pervasive socio-economic inequalities towards the unequal distribution of merit that blocks access to higher educational opportunities.

With an exponential increase in the numbers of students seeking admission and the growing demand for one-window procedures to reduce inconvenience to admission seekers, large affiliating public universities, like DU (with over 77 colleges) and Mumbai University (with more than 700) adopted centralised registration procedures. They came under persistent pressure to curtail pluralism and diversity and standardise admission-criteria in the interest of "transparency". In the process, several colleges, (other than minority institutes), including the so-called autonomous colleges in the country, either lost or abdicated to their parent universities their crucial role in shaping the selection processes best suited to their mission, ethos and vision for the future. The centralised admission for sports and ECA at DU was the culmination of these broader processes underway for several years.

The assumption that centralised processes are more fair and objective remains unsubstantiated. The tendency towards centralisation in the higher education space in India has earned it the sobriquets of "over-regulated" and "under-governed". The penchant for micromanagement and control afflicting all tiers of the higher education hierarchy, right up to C R Sasikumar best positioned to assess them. The portals of higher education must be rendered hospitable to a diversity of talent, open to what Amartya Sen calls "capacious heterodoxy" - transcending the silos and hierarchies of departments and disciplines.

This involves meticulous hard work and cannot be compressed into two frenetic months. The best universities in the world take a year on an average to select and admit students. The UK-based Times Higher Education lists some of the criteria that the top 50 universities adopt when selecting students. In addition to good grades, they include a positive attitude towards study, a passion for the chosen subject, the capacity to work and think independently, to complete tasks, an inquiring mind, good writing skills, ability to work well with groups and, interestingly, "common sense". Applications are carefully assessed and balanced with "needs blind" and "leg-up" affirmative action processes. The applicant is more than a number. She represents both potential and aspiration. It is sobering that, of the 7,50,000 Indian students who have moved on to study in some of the best universities abroad, several may well have been pipped at the "cut-off' post in their own country.

A liberal education of quality, whether in the arts or sciences, is also experiential learning that attempts to harmonise the physical, intellectual, social and aesthetic dimensions, infusing the voyage of discovery, the spirit of adventure and liberty that Bertrand Russell advocated as integral to "the creation of an educated democracy".

It seems ironical that today, in the land of Aurobindo, Tagore, J Krishnamurthy and S Radhakrishnan, their protean vision of holistic learning, though extensively taught and invoked, finds little application in higher education practice. The synthesis that nurtures the "Whole Mind" to make connections across disciplines must be restored to the canvas of learning especially if, as its proponents remind us, the future belongs "to creators, empathisers, pattern recognisers and meaning makers". Knowledge, experience and wisdom from diverse fields must permeate the everyday discourse, practice and rhythm of colleges and universities for the tokenism of quotas to be rendered redundant. What we need today is an iconoclastic reclaiming of our own Shantiniketan moment.

A reset for agriculture

Stop talking only of 'food security'. Time to plan for 'nutritional self-reliance'

Ajay Vir Jakhar

IMAGINE, WHILE CONSTRUCTING a multistorey building the contractors discover the building foundation has begun to sink. It is scary, but wait. Now, imagine that even though the contractors know this, they simply decide to continue work rather than alter the plans. That is precisely the state of Indian agriculture today.

Overflowing granaries give us the smug satisfaction of having solved the food security problem - it is actually a momentary cereal surplus phase. It appears so only because India's per capita consumption of protein, meat, poultry, fruit and vegetables is amongst the lowest in the world, limited by the still appallingly low purchasing capacity of the majority. When the Indian economy eventually reverses the deceleration in growth, as it will someday, our demand for such will double in less than a decade. Climate change will further complicate efforts to salvage the future as inconsistent production gives recurring shocks. Today over 50 per cent of the Indian population is being given free monthly rations. If this was extended by a year, even the illusion of a cereal surplus state would shatter like a sheet of glass.

Farmers will need to be supported in perpetuity; they can never become atmanirbhar. The question is how best to support farmers such that India may become nutrition self-reliant. Policymakers still talk of "food security" which was achieved decades ago, it's time to plan for "nutritional self-reliance". These objectives require diametrically different strategies. To that end, it's time to initiate an eight-step approach to pre-empt the floor from slipping underneath our feet.

First, forecast nutrition requirement for the year 2050, for by then, the population and the economy would have stabilised. Second, draw area production plans for animal husbandry and to grow crops to try and meet India's nutritional requirement considering agroecological zones and the changing climate. The aim should be to figure out a suitable basket of crops for each area.

Third, based on these area production plans, only incentivise the identified crops and practices in each region by designing a risk and price support strategy for such crops, while allowing farmers the freedom to grow what they want. Fourth, the present farm input (fertiliser, power etc) subsidy regime that incentivises production will need to shift to one of payment for farm ecosystem services (for environmentally sustainable agriculture practices like improving soil health, rainwater harvesting, intercropping, planting trees).

Fifth, rather than constantly bickering with farmer unions about costs of crop cultivation, government must reorient to calculating the real cost of growing food, moving away from the strategy of sacrificing farmers' interests for the sake of cheap food for consumers. Sixth, investment in a robust market intelligence system can help government manage production and price spikes. It has to be independent of the ministry of agriculture, which must, more importantly, issue regular crop advisories to farmers.

Seventh, it is time to prioritise human capital over infrastructure by doubling existing agriculture R&D expenditure and filling all vacancies. In addition to revamping of research and extension systems, and more so, to meet the expectations of traceability and quality produce, it requires stringent enforcement of regulations, collaboration with the private sector and extensive use of digital technologies.

Eighth, begin a twenty-year awareness campaign across India to instil healthier eating habits. As for unhealthy food; tax it and disallow advertisements. Emulating western processed food habits will translate into higher healthcare costs. It is said that the cost of diabetes medication in the USA outstrips its expenditure on oil.

All policies create winners and losers, it's the government's responsibility to ensure the losers are adequately compensated to their satisfaction. The establishment believes solutions are known and in private tosses the blame to politicians not having the will to take politically contentious decisions. This is only partly true; let aside the solutions, even the problems are not clearly recognised because the interplay of climate change, environment, biodiversity, livestock, health and big agriculture businesses is too convoluted to grasp.

Lastly, if failure is not independently documented and we continue to frame policies as before, in all probability, we will be providing subsidised food to the masses and continuing with a MGNREGA job work programme to mitigate rural poverty into the distant future.

Notes from the field, after Covid

A journey to three states shows that the pandemic's challenge is being met

PARAMESWARAN IYER

AS THE BATTLE with the coronavirus pandemic continues, a few weeks ago, I decided to get away from all the virtual meetings and video-conferences in Delhi. I wanted to go to the field to witness the implementation of development programmes - in this case, the construction of community sanitary complexes under the new phase of the Swachh Bharat Mission (SBM) and water supply systems under the Jal Jeevan Mission (JJM). Having travelled over 250 times during the past four years to states, districts and villages and being engaged with chief ministers, district collectors, sarpanches and village sanitation workers to monitor the progress of the SBM, it was important to visit the field again in the post-lockdown world. As the travel restrictions started getting lifted in June, I felt that it was time to tour again.

My first trip was to Bihar. The travel advice I got from "experts" in Delhi was, if I had to go at all, to drive to Patna and not go by air, as flying was "unsafe". While I usually like road trips, the idea of spending a couple of days to drive to Patna, as opposed to taking a 90minute flight, was not very appealing. So, I decided to fly, and a little reluctantly, agreed to wear an N-95 face mask at the airport and during the flight, in contrast to the soft and comfortable khadi cloth mask I wore to work. At both Delhi and Patna airports, I was impressed by the rigorous safety standards being enforced. It seemed a little surreal, though, to observe the cabin crew kitted out in what seemed to be full-blown PPE outfits. The face shield which each passenger had to put on, also made us look pretty weird but, oddly enough, it was all quite reassuring, and the fact that the plane was only a third full, ensured reasonable social distancing

On the ground at Patna, I noticed that the coronavirus had miraculously engendered good hygienic behaviour, with everybody l met trying to maintain "do gaz ki doori" and frequently scrubbing their hands with liquid sanitiser. I also did not see anyone spitting. Halting overnight at the state guest house in Patna, I hit the road early next morning with Bala, the SBM Mission Director, to drive to Muzaffarpur and Vaishali districts. Stuck in bad traffic on the Ganga bridge, I realised that it was almost back to business as usual in rural Bihar. We finally made it to Muzaffarpur and went directly to the site where a community sanitary complex was under construction. It took a little bit of "organising", but we soon settled into a safe, social distancing pattern. Like us, the workers were also masked.

We then drove to the Vaishali district on the way back to Patna. At Vaishali, we were taken by Udita, the young collector, to a nicelyconstructed community sanitary complex near a school, which had running water and handwashing basins with soap also available. Later, as we had a cup of tea at the circuit house with Udita and team, I was energised, as always by the conversation with these young, dedicated and fearless IAS officers. Udita told me that, in addition to managing the coronavirus situation in her district, she had to deal with an influx of about 30,000 returning migrant workers. Interestingly, about 8,000 to 10,000 of them had come back from Tirupur the hosiery manufacturing centre of Tamil Nadu. They were now looking for local work and Udita and her team had done a rapid skillmatching exercise to see if any local industry in Vaishali could hire their services. The problem was that some of the returning skilled migrant workers, such as tailors, were used to earning Rs 900 per day in Tirupur while the local rate was, at best, only Rs 500. Udita felt that most of them, after staying at home for a few months, would return to Tirupur.

My second trip was to Uttar Pradesh, where, accompanied by Kinjal, the young SBM Director, we travelled to Hardoi, Gonda, Bahraich, Lakhimpur Kheri and Sitapur. The roads were good, a huge improvement since my days in Gorakhpur in 1982, although, driving from Lucknow to Gonda, it was a little worrying to note that the Ghagra river was rapidly rising. In Gonda, the collector Nitin Bansal took us to a worksite where we chatted with a skilled construction worker who had returned from Mumbai. He was now thankful to be gainfully employed under the Garib Kalyan Rozgar Abhiyan and was building a community sanitary complex.

My third trip was to Karnataka, where I travelled to Ramnagar district, south of Bangalore, with LK Atheeq, the principal secretary in charge of rural development, sanitation and drinking water. We were met by Ikram, the young chief executive officer of the Zila Panchayat, Ramanagar district, who took us to the construction site of a large water treatment plant (WTP), part of the large multi-village Kodihalli water supply scheme. It was fascinating to note that in Karnataka, most of the WTPs are built by skilled Bengali migrant workers. This batch of workers had just recently returned to Karnataka from Bengal after the lockdown was lifted.

I returned to Delhi, energised by my field visits and the interaction with the young "generalist" IAS officers, who are really specialists in development work. Activities are now in full swing under their leadership. They have faced truly challenging times during COVID-19 and have come up trumps, as usual.

ACTIVIST SHARJEEL Imam, who was arrested and lodged in Guwahati Central Jail after being booked in several cases for his alleged inflammatory speech at a protest against the Citizenship (Amendment) Act, tested positive for Covid on Tuesday.

Dasarath Das, Assam's Inspector General (IG) of Prisons, confirmed the development to The Indian Express. He said that at least 435 inmates of the Guwahati Central Jail, which houses a little over 1,000 prisoners, have tested positive so far. It is learnt that Imam's health condition is fine.

Activist Akhil Gogoi and his associates Bittu Sonowal and Dhairjya Konwar, also lodged in the Guwahati jail, had also tested positive for Covid. Gogoi, Sonowal and Konwar were booked by the NIA on charges of sedition and under provisions of Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act for allegedly being overground workers of the banned CPI (Maoist) soon after the anti-CAA protests broke out in Assam in December last year. Gogoi's health is better now, according to his advocate.

VADODARA CUSTODIAL DEATH Accused cops booked for murder following Gujarat HC's direction

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE AHMEDABAD, VADODARA, JULY 21

SIX POLICEMEN who are accused in the alleged custodial death of a 65-year-old migrant worker were booked for murder on Tuesday following directions of the Gujarat High Court.

The six Vadodara policemen were booked for the murder of Babu Sheikh Nisar, a migrant worker from Telengana, who went missing in December last year after being picked up on an alleged theft charge by the Vadodara city police.

The move came a day after the high court, while hearing a habeas corpus petition filed by Nisar's son Salim, asked why the accused - all six of whom are absconding – were charged with IPC Section 304 (culpable homicide not amounting to murder) instead of Section 302 (culpable homicide amounting to murder). The bench of Justices Sonia Gokani and NV Anjaria had granted a week's time to the Vadodara police after Tuesday's direction to make the changes. Assistant Commissioner of

Nisar from Kamareddy district in Telangana, was picked up by Fatehgunj police on December 10, 2019, as a suspect in a theft case

Police (ACP), E Division, Vadodara Police, SG Patil, who is the complainant in the FIR and also heading the investigation, told The Indian Express, "They (the high court) questioned the reason behind booking the accused under IPC Section 304 and said that they feel we (Vadodara police) are trying to shield the accused. We placed before the court our argument that the case would eventually fall under Section 304 as the intent of the accused is significant. They must not have intended to kill the victim while in custody but the victim died because they tortured him. It is a differentiating factor between the two sections. But since the honourable court suggested that we should book the accused under Section 302, we have submitted a report to the local court and made the change.'

Advocate KI Kazi, representing the petitioner, said, "There were extended arguments on Monday and Tuesday on the application of IPC Section 304 and ACP Patil as well as the additional public prosecutor made their oral submissions pertaining to the same. The court was of the opinion that first, Section 302 needs to be applied and over the course of trial can the court, based on the surrounding circumstances of the offence, decide if section 304 may also apply. There was also a discussion on providing the family with compensation." Nisar from Kamareddy district in Telangana, who was selling clothes on a bicycle in Vadodara, was picked up by Fatehgunj police on December 10, 2019, as a suspect in a theft case. He was allegedly tortured in the police station subsequently and went missing after that. The family had filed a missing complaint on January 25 and an FIR was lodged on July 6 owing to a habeas corpus petition moved by Nisar's son and subsequent court intervention.

A complaint was filed by ACP S G Patil against police inspector DB Gohil, police sub-inspector DM Rabari and Lok Rakshak Dal jawans Pankaj Mavjibhai, Yogendra Jilansinh, Rajiv Savjibhai and Hitesh Shambubhai. They were originally booked under IPC sections 304,201 (causing disappearance of evidence of offence), 203 (giving false information respecting an offence committed), 204(destruction of 1[document or electronic record] to prevent its production as evidence) and 34(acts done by several persons in furtherance of common intention).

Following the court's direction, Vadodara police on Tuesday moved an application before the Judicial Magistrate seeking a change in the IPC sections in the FIR against the six accused to include Section 302.

Patil said that the Vadodara police has formed several teams to track down the accused.

Kazi added that with an HC order, the change must apply. "Otherwise in cases where an addition or modification in charge mentioned in an FIR is required the investigation body has to submit a report to this effect to the magistrate, who then examines it." added Kazi.

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE KOLKATA, JULY 21

POLICE ON Tuesday arrested the father and two brothers of a teenage girl whose death had sparked violence in a part of Uttar Dinajpur district, West engal, on Sunday.

The arrests came a day after a boy, accused by the girl's family of raping and mudering her, was found dead in a pond in the same area where the girl's body was discovered earlier.

Police arrested three members of the girl's family on Tuesday on the basis of a complaint filed by the boy's family. In the complaint, they have been accused of murder.

The boy and the girl were from different religious communities, and lived in the same village. Police are investigating if the two were having an affair, and if their parents were op-

Uttarakhand HC junks Swamy PIL challenging Char Dham Act

LALMANI VERMA LUCKNOW, JULY 21

THE UTTARAKHAND High Court on Tuesday dismissed the PIL filed by BJP leader and Rajya Sabha member Subramanian Swamy, challenging the constitutional validity of the Uttarakhand Char Dham Devasthanam Management Act. 2019. The petition had sought a direction to strike down the Act. A division bench of Chief Justice Ramesh Ranganathan and Justice RC Khulbe, while dismissing the PIL, said, "Except to the limited extent that the words 'shall devolve' in Section 22 must be read as 'devolve on the Char Dham and shall be maintained by the Board', and the words 'may further acquire land'. in the proviso thereto, shall be read as 'may further acquire land on behalf of the Char Dham', the challenge to the validity of the 2019 Act, on the ground that it violates Articles 14, 25. 26 and 31-A of the Constitution of India, must fail." The Act, which brings the Char Dham of Badrinath, Kedarnath, Gangotri and Yamunotri and many other temples under the purview of the Uttarakhand Char Dham Devasthanam Board, has faced protest from the Congress as well as from priests and pandas of the Badrinath shrine, who had earlier staged demonstrations in Dehradun and other districts.

Swamy, in February, filed a PIL challenging the Act, and the High Court on July 6 had reserved judgment in the matter.

In the judgment, the court stated that the contention that the Act discloses the avaricious intent of the state to interfere with religious matters, and its intent to take over the properties of the temple given for worship, under the garb of secular activities, is devoid of merit.

"We are satisfied, therefore, that all the Char Dham and associated temples are public temples whose secular functions can be regulated by a law made by the competent legislature," the court said in the order.

Chief Minister Trivendra Singh Rawat welcomed the judgment and said the constitution of the board was not a political matter. However, Swamy indicated he will appeal the matter in the Supreme Court.

The state government on Tuesday informed the Madurai bench of the Madras High Court that the alleged custodial death of Mahendran, 28, has been handed over to CB-CID. "Policing is not an ordinary job, but a service towards society and the country. It cannot be compared with any other government iob. If someone works in the department without the feeling of service, they cannot serve the society with the best police model... It will be looked as an attack on the uniform and strict action will be taken against them. Any attempt to break the unity of khakhi will not be tolerated and such police personnel who are part of the campaign will face legal and departmental action... In the times of Covid-19, police are working with full determination and few anti-social elements with maligned intentions are trying to provoke the police force for a violent agitation. They will face legal action under the Disaster Management Act and the Epidemic Diseases Act, with respect to the pandemic," Jha said.

MP Lokayukta probes video of 'senior cop taking envelopes'

MILIND GHATWAI BHOPAL, JULY 21

TAKING SUO motu cognisance of a viral video purportedly showing a top police officer accepting envelopes from other officers in a closed room, the Lokayukta in Madhya Pradesh has initiated an inquiry into the matter.

Within hours of the 5.35minute video going viral on social media on July 18, the state government had transferred IPS officer V Madhu Kumar, the transport commissioner, to the police headquarters late that night.

The 1991-batch officer was Inspector General (Ujjain Range) in 2016 when the video was shot, purportedly in the circuit house in Agar Malwa. The video shows the officer collecting envelopes from junior officials and keeping them in a briefcase.

Responding to calls and text messages, the officer told The Indian Express that he would not comment on the matter because the Lokayukta has already initiated a probe. He said he was yet to receive any notice and that he came to know about the inquiry through media reports.

The state government has already appointed Mukesh Jain as the transport commissioner.

Blood test for heart patients flagged as indicator of Covid

A NEW blood test, designed for heart failure patients, could also lead to new diagnostics and treatments for Covid-19 patients, according to a study by cardiologists at the University of Alberta. The study is published in Circulation: Heart Failure. The test measures proteins called an-

who were experiencing heart failure due to a heart attack or stroke at the University of Alberta Hospital and the Mazankowski Alberta Heart Institute in Edmonton. They found that a high ratio between beneficial peptides (angiotensin 1-7) and harm-of death, shorter hospital stays). These results did not depend on how severe their symptoms were. Measuring levels of either type of peptide (beneficial or harmful) on its own, however, did not provide enough information.

The new tech cold war

US has moved to block China's access to chipmaking tools and designated Huawei, ZTE as national security threats. With the 5G rollout imminent, the tussle will not leave other countries, including India, untouched

PRANAV MUKUL & ANIL SASI NEW DELHI, JULY 21

WHAT BEGAN as a report by the US House Intelligence Committee flagging issues posed by Chinese telecom companies Huawei Technologies and ZTE nearly a decade ago, has evolved into a full-scale duel between the two global technology powerhouses, which now threatens to draw in the entire world.

While China has traditionally resisted allowing American big-data companies such as Facebook and Google to operate within its jurisdiction, there have still been significant dealings between the two countries on the technology side until now. Last year, Apple recorded $100 million of daily sales in China, while Huawei Technologies reported record revenues primarily from its exposure in western markets, including the US.

The latest US steps against Huawei mark the first real prohibitory action by a western government in the nearly two decades after the Shenzhen-based equipment major branched out to set up shop in Europe, and went on to become the mascot of Chinese technology prowess. A subsequent move by the UK to reverse an earlier decision and block Huawei from its 5G networks aligns with the US view - and marks an escalation of the Sino-American tech slugfest to beyond just these two countries.

A new set of US restrictions imposed on the use of chipmaking tools in May means Huawei could face shortages in its supply of specialist chips, an area where the Chinese are trying to build expertise through their homegrown contender SMIC (Semiconductor Manufacturing International Corporation, a publicly held semiconductor foundry company).

Globally, the concern is that the fresh wrangling could end up in cascading actions by other western countries - some of whom perceive the same threat as the US, and others who are wary of trade sanctions. This could have a bearing on the growing competition to dominate next-generation technologies such as 5G networks and artificial intelligence, and impact the plans of most countries preparing to transition to a 5G regime, including India.

How did the Chinese come to dominate the high-end hardware market?

Started in the late 1980s by a former Deputy Regimental Chief in the People's Liberation Army, Huawei has come a long way from being a reseller of PBX switches imported from Hong Kong. Living up to its name - 'Huawei' comes from 'zhonghua youwei', a slogan that its founder claims he saw on a wall, roughly translating into 'China has promise' - the company went on to sell its products and services in more than 170 countries, blitzing past Ericsson as the largest telecoms equipment manufacturer in the world in 2012. It overtook Apple as the world's second-largest manufacturer of smartphones in 2018, and had an annual revenue of $122 billion and some 194,000 employees last year.

How could action against hardware makers develop into a tech cold war?

In February 2011, Huawei published an open letter to the US government denying the security concerns raised about the company or its equipment, and requesting a full investigation into its corporate operations. In response, the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence began an investigation in November 2011 into "the counterintelligence and security threat posed by Chinese telecommunications companies do ing business in the US".

In its report submitted in 2012, the House panel noted that "Huawei and ZTE cannot be trusted to be free of foreign state influence and thus pose a security threat to the United States". Last month, the US Federal Communications Commission designated the two companies as national security threats.

Most observers see this as a 'technological cold war' that could extend beyond just the US and China, and compel other countries, including India, to effectively choose between one camp and the other. It is being described as a geopolitical struggle over technology that threatens to divide the world into two distinct technological blocs, with both countries striving to limit the other's access to its advanced know-how.

While the US has blockaded Huawei on the ground that its equipment is designed to aid snooping and would make American telecoms players dependent on subsidised Chinese technology, the question is whether other countries think the risks are high enough to dump a cheaper, viable option.

The former US Secretary of State Henry Paulson alluded to this nearly two years ago, at the end of 2018: "I now see the prospect of an economic Iron Curtain, one that throws up new walls on each side and unmakes the global economy as we know it." The Huawei action could indeed signal the rising of a formidable new wall.

For China, the action has come at a time when 5G is set to be rolled out globally, with Huawei generally ahead in the race. For a lot of countries, a viable 5G rollout will need Chinese firms. But the 5G network in China relies on key components from the US - and the new American restrictions on the use of chipmaking tools mean Huawei could face shortages in the supply of specialist chips.

Where does India stand in this battle?

Back in December 2009, the Department of Telecommunications (DoT) had asked Indian mobile companies to suspend deals with Chinese equipment makers after fears that Chinese equipment were being used for hacking and spying. But India has been a fence-sitter since then - and has never fully banned Chinese companies from its telecom equipment industry. Indeed, much of India's telecom growth story has been supported by Chinese companies in both hardware and software

After the standoff in Ladakh, however, India has asked state-owned telecom service providers to exclude Chinese companies from the scope of their network upgrade contracts; this was part of the wider decision to signal curbs on Chinese investments and tech companies in the country. In official statements, India justified the ban on 59 mobile apps with Chinese links on grounds of a threat to national security. India's hesitation in acting against Chinese equipment makers in the telecom industry has derived from the view that the Chinese have brought in a semblance of competitiveness to a market earlier dominated by pricier European firms such as Nokia and Ericsson – however, the border clashes and the US action could now force New Delhi into the anti-China camp.

What are the implications for other stakeholders in the telecom industry?

Apart from the Chinese, the leaders in the telecoms network equipment market are the European players such as Ericsson and Nokia, and South Korea's Samsung. While the computer and mobile chipmaking segment has players from across the world, including American companies like Intel, Qualcomm, and GlobalFoundries, and the British chip design company ARM, the US has tried to retain its control on this key aspect of communication technology that is otherwise dominated by just one major non-Western company - Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing Company.

In February 2018, President Donald Trump blocked a $117-billion attempt by Singapore-based Broadcom Ltd to acquire Qualcomm, citing national security concerns, leading to the company withdrawing its bid. GlobalFoundries, though based in California, is owned by the Emirate of Abu Dhabi.

With the Chinese being increasingly blocked by governments in 5G networks, other global players could be at a competitive advantage. Even in the US, small operators in rural parts of the country will no longer be able to access federal subsidies to buy or maintain Chinese equipment, and will be forced to deploy components by other manufacturers. This could have a bearing on how the global 5G rollout takes place, especially in the countries outside of North America and Europe, India included.

Key takeaways from serosurvey in Delhi

ASTHA SAXENA NEW DELHI, JULY 21

THE HEALTH MINISTRY on Tuesday declared the results of a serological survey carried out in Delhi between June 27 and July 10, which showed that 22.86% of the people surveyed had developed IgG antibodies, indicating they had been exposed to the novel coronavirus that causes Covid-19. A total 21,387 samples were collected to look for the presence of antibodies. The study has found that a large number of infected persons remain asymptomatic.

What is a serological survey?

A serological survey seeks to assess the prevalence of disease in a population by detecting the presence of antibodies against the virus. A serological test is performed to diagnose infections and autoimmune illnesses. It can also be conducted to check if a person has developed immunity to certain diseases.

The survey included the IgG ELISA test which estimates the proportion of the population exposed to SARS-CoV-2 infection. The IgG test is not useful for detecting acute infections, but indicates episodes of infections that may have occurred in the past. The test has been approved by the Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR).

What does the survey in Delhi show?

It found the presence of antibodies in 22.86 per cent of the people surveyed. This rate of seropositivity cannot, however, be extrapolated over Delhi's entire population - as of Tuesday evening, the number of confirmed cases, including active and cured/discharged/migrated cases, stood at only 1.23,747 on the Health Ministry's website. Since it is not possible to test everyone in the population, serological studies are used as a tool to make an estimate of the extent of disease spread in the community.

At a press conference on Tuesday, the Health Ministry said that the fact that only 22.86% were found infected in a survey carried out in a city with several pockets of dense population, shows that the proactive efforts by the government to prevent the spread of Covid-19, including prompt lockdown, effective containment and surveillance measures. contact tracing and tracking, as well as citizens' compliance, had yielded benefits.

Has such a survey been carried out in other states as well?

The first sero study was carried out by the ICMR in May 2020 in 83 districts covering 28,595 households and 26,400 individuals. In a joint effort with state health departments, NCDC and WHO India, the study, which is being peer-reviewed, indicated that the proportion of the general population that could have been infected in the past was 0.73%, with urban areas showing a higher prevalence.

How was the exercise in Delhi carried out? About 160 four-member teams – each comprising an Anganwadi/ASHA worker, an auxiliary nurse midwife, a pharmacist, and a phlebotomist (someone who is trained to draw blood for testing) visited homes that were randomly picked by district administrations. The blood samples were tested for IgG antibodies.

The blood samples were collected from selected individuals after taking their written, informed consent, and their sera were tested for IgG antibodies and infection using the ICMR-approved COVID KAVACH ELISA kit.

So what happens now?

The government has said the results show a significant proportion of the population is still vulnerable to contracting the infection. "Containment measures need to continue with the same rigour. Non-pharmacological interventions such as physical distancing, use of face mask/cover, hand hygiene, cough etiquette and avoidance of crowded places etc. must be followed strictly," it has said.

Cough droplets travel longer when it's cold & humid: new Covid model

KABIR FIRAQUE NEW DELHI, JULY 21

A NEW study has found that respiratory droplets from a cough or sneeze travel farther and last longer in humid, cold climates than in hot, dry ones.

Conducted by researchers from University of California San Diego (UCSD) Indian Institute of Science (Bengaluru) and University of Toronto, the study is published in the journal Physics of Fluids.

How does it arrive at these findings?

The researchers describe a new mathematical model that they say can be used to predict the early spread of respiratory viruses including Covid-19, and the role of respiratory droplets in that spread. The model combines the physics of droplets with the spread of a pandemic based on population-scale interaction. It examines how far and fast droplets spread, and how long they last.

"We have included detailed kinetics model regarding infection as the droplet travels/evaporates," Professor Saptarshi Basu of IISc, one of the study authors, told The Indian Express. "This is based on molecular collision theory adapted from combustion. Key of this work was to link the droplet physics with the kinetic theory of infection to arrive at reaction or infection rate and subsequent growth."

Collision theory predicts the rate of a chemical reaction based on the frequency of collisions between molecules. "How frequently healthy people are coming in contact with an infected droplet cloud can be a measure of how fast the disease can spread," Professor Abhishek Saha of UCSD, one of the study authors, said in a statement.

Using droplets of a salt water solution (saliva is high in sodium chloride) in a levitator, the team applied models for chemical reactions and physics principles to to determine the size, spread, and lifespan of these particles in various environmental conditions.

Flow diagram of the new model. Adapted from Saha et al/Physics of Fluids

So, how far do droplets travel?

Depending on weather conditions, it was found that some respiratory droplets travel between 8 feet and 13 feet away from their source before evaporating. At 35°C and 40% relative humidity, a droplet can travel about 8 feet. However, at 41°F and 80% humidity, a droplet can travel up to 12 feet. All this is without even accounting for wind.

This means that without masks, six feet of social distancing may not be enough to prevent infection, the researchers said.

Should we worry about the winter?

Basu said the life of a droplet depends more on humidity than on temperature. "This means in high humidity (relative humidity) it survives longer and hence travels longer distance before evaporating or settling. Cold temperature will also prolong lifetime but not as much as humidity," he said.

Are there other significant findings?

The study provides a size range for droplets that carry greater risk. It found that droplets in the range of 14-48 microns take longer to evaporate and travel greater distances. Smaller droplets evaporate within a fraction of a second, while droplets larger than 100 microns quickly settle to the ground.

Wearing masks would trap particles within this critical range.

What are the limitations of the model?

In a statement, Professor Swetaprovo Chaudhuri of University of Toronto referred to "idealized assumptions" and "variabilities in some parameters". Basu said the next step is to relax a few simplifications and to include different modes of transmission.

SUMMIT THAT EXPOSED FAULT LINES ENDS WITH SIGNAL OF SOLIDARITY EU adopts $857-billion stimulus to rescue coronavirus-hit economies

Member nations to raise big sums collectively, distribute as grants to hardest-hit European countries

MATINA STEVIS-GRIDNEFF

BRUSSELS, JULY 21 AFTER NEARLY five days of intense haggling, European Union leaders early on Tuesday stepped up to confront one of the gravest challenges in the bloc's history, agreeing to a landmark spending package to rescue their economies from the ravages of the pandemic.

The 750 billion euro ($857 billion) stimulus agreement, spearheaded by Chancellor Angela Merkel of Germany and President Emmanuel Macron of France, sent a strong signal of solidarity even as it exposed deep new fault lines in a bloc reshaped by Britain's exit.

The deal was notable for its firsts: European countries will raise large sums by selling bonds collectively, rather than individually; and much of that money will be handed out to member nations hit hardest by the pandemic as grants that do not have to be repaid, and not as loans that would swell their national debts.

Those extraordinary steps reflected a difficult consensus among members: that the scale of the crisis facing them required groundbreaking measures to ensure the bloc's legitimacy, stability and prosperity.

"Europe has shown it is able to break new ground in a special situation. Exceptional situations require exceptional measures," Merkel said in a news conference at dawn. "A very special construct of 27 countries of different backgrounds is actually able to act together, and it has proven it."

But the lengthy negotiations in Brussels were notable, too, for their exceptional rancor – and it was clear that the pooling of resources and sovereignty had come at a cost.

While there is no underestimating the importance of the agreement – the generosity of its size and the novelty of its mechanisms – the acrimony and dramatics of the four-day meeting betrayed the new divisions within the bloc. They also signaled where the fractures may lie in future crises.

The talks were defined by shifting roles among members now jostling to make their voices heard and for leadership in the absence of Britain, which had often played the part of the thrifty contrarian, fastidious about rules, in past summits.

This time, Merkel, unusually for a German leader, and holding the EU's rotating presidency, put her finger on the scale on behalf of hard-hit southern countries and did battle with the nations she once championed, the northern members that have been less affected by the virus and are wary of the vast sums being thrown around. FOX NEWS fired Ed Henry, one of the network's most prominent anchors, this month after the network investigated a former employee's accusation of sexual misconduct against him.

On Monday, the former employee sued Henry and Fox News, describing a history of workplace harassment and a relationship with the anchor that she said included violent sex and rape. The woman, Jennifer Eckhart, a former associate producer at Fox Business, said that Henry had coerced her into a sexual relationship by promising to advance her career.

A co-plaintiff, Cathy Areu, a frequent guest on Fox News programs, alleged in the lawsuit that Henry had harassed her, as well, by sending sexually explicit messages. Areu also described exchanges with other Fox News stars, including the anchors Tucker Carlson, Sean Hannity and Howard Kurtz, that she called inappropriate and sexually charged.

Fox News, in a statement, said that it had retained an outside law firm to investigate Areu's claims and determined them to be "false, patently frivolous and utterly devoid of any merit". NYT

BATTLING COVID-19 IMPACT ON GROWTH. SLUMP IN REVENUE COLLECTION Debt monetisation: Indonesia plans to buy $40 bn in sovereign bonds, FinMin says open to concept

Green shoots visible, interventions can happen in future: Sitharaman

SUNNY VERMA NEW DELHI, JULY 21

INDONESIAN CENTRAL bank's move to purchase $40 billion in sovereign bonds, as part of a debt monetisation programme, could set a precedent for other emerging markets, including India, to look at this option as a way to raise funds for supporting the economy hit by the COVID-19 pandemic.

While the Finance Ministry has argued that it has an open mind with regard to this proposal, the idea is gaining traction among policymakers facing challenge of contraction in growth and slump in revenue collections. "We should not close this option (monetisation), but discuss in detail what could be its impact on inflation, debt sustainability and currency market. Indonesia is already starting to do it," a senior government official said

"The government had announced a Rs 20 lakh crore of package to address various needs of the economy in the first round. Now nobody knows for how long this pandemic will last. As the information relating to various aspects of the economy comes in, we are trying to provide relief within the constraints. The government is expected to respond, by people and industry, by giving something more than you already have," another official said, indicating that next set of measures are being worked out.

"There is a view that rating agencies will react to further jump in fiscal deficit, but there is also a counter view that strategies deployed to boost growth through higher spending will be taken positively. These are constraints within which we are studying various options," the official said. Amid rising debt levels and falling revenues, monetisation could be one way of supporting government's spending plans but it could have negative implications on inflation, currency and any possible reaction by rating agencies. Finance Ministry officials did not respond to queries seeking comments for the story.

Monetisation simply means that the RBI directly funds the central government's deficit. Until 1997, the government used to sell securities – ad hoc Treasury-Bills

- directly to the RBI, and not to financial market participants. This allowed the government to technically print equivalent amount of currency to meet its Budget deficit.

Among emerging markets, Indonesia last month announced a plan of direct monetisation totalling $40 billion to its central bank. These funds are being raised to support funding for health care, food security and provide a stimulus package for small and large companies. In India, while the RBI provides support to the bond market through its open market operations in the secondary market, it does not monetise the government's deficit. A report by SBI economic research team Monday recommended direct monetisation as a plausible way of funding the Centre's deficit at lower rates without increasing inflation and affecting debt sustainability. Many economists have suggested this as a means to support the economy in these times of slump.

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU NEW DELHI, JULY 21

STATING THAT signs of economic recovery are visible, especially in rural areas, Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Tuesday said the government has kept all options open to support the economy and more interventions can happen in the future. She also said that no sector will be in exclusive control of public sector and PSUs will be present only in pre-determined strategic sectors.

"The green shoots are based on the high frequency indicators. We will go along as we watch them. It's not as if we have concluded that the economy has seen green shoots and therefore. we won't take any more steps. We have kept all the options necessary, absolutely open. The government is willing to participate, talk with everybody and see what best has to be done, interventions can happen even in the future depending on how the industry responds," she said while addressing the 2020 India Ideas Summit organized by the US-India Business Council (USIBC).

The Finance Minister said the steps taken during the lockdown have borne fruit. "...during the lockdown the several things that have been done have now borne fruits that i can confidently tell you that we are able to see green shoots...the stimulus that we gave which has touched about 10 per cent of the GDP has actually made the difference for the com-

Citi Open gets cancelled, but USTA reaffirms: 'We're all in'

CHRISTOPHERCLAREY JULY 21

THE CITI OPEN in Washington, D.C., which was scheduled to restart the men's tennis tour next month, has been canceled for 2020.

The tournament was set to begin on Aug. 14 and serve as a lead-in event for the United States Open. But Mark Ein, the Citi Open chairman, said concern about international travel restrictions and recent trends in the coronavirus had led to the cancellation. "When we committed to host the event all the trends were going in our favor, and halfway through the process they all reversed," Ein said by telephone on Tuesday. "Then we ran out of time. With a little more time we may have been able to overcome the obstacles that were in front of us, but it's better to make a decision for all the stakeholders before it gets to the last minute."

The decision, made on Monday, will increase doubts about this year's US Open, which is scheduled to be played without spectators in New York from Aug. 31 to Sept. 13. But Stacey Allaster, the US Open tournament director, reaffirmed Monday that plans remained on track for a doubleheader at the U.S.T.A. Billie Jean King National Tennis Center. The Western & Southern Open is to be played there from Aug. 22 to 28 as a prelude to the US Open, with players and officials operating inside a health and safety "bubble" similar to those being used by the NBA and other leagues.

"We're all in," Allaster said.

On Tuesday, the United States Tennis Association said in a statement that the Citi Open decision in "no way impacts the US Open or the Western & Southern Open" and that the organisation would create a "safe and controlled environment" at the US Open that has been approved by the state of New York and meets city and federal standards.

'We constantly base our decisions regarding hosting these tournaments on our three guiding principles that include safety and health of all involved, whether hosting these events are in the best interest in the sport of tennis and whether this decision is financially viable." the USTA added NYT

Washington Redskins Wolves?

An NFL fan has several potential new names for the franchise registered; wants charity donation in lieu of giving one for free

SRIRAM VEERA MUMBAI, JULY 21

HOW DOES a 61-year old American man, an actuary working from home in these pandemic times, find himself wedged in a notable moment in American sport? What does Martin McCaulay have that has had fans of the National Football League team Washington Redskins ranting, raving, and betting; the American and world media chasing him; and which has made him take a week off from work just to handle the unexpected attention?

McCaulay has a bunch of names related to the team, over 40 registered trademarks that he owns rights to, which could potentially be the new name of the Washington football team. It's been reported that the franchise has a name in their minds but they aren't going official as trademark issues are pending and speculation from media and the fans is that the team could be eving one of the names owned by McCaulay, Washington Red Wolves" in particular.

McCaulay says he isn't an ordinary name squatter looking to make some quick money but is willing to give a name free to the team. "Just ask, I will give it away free. All I want in return is a charity to the natives Americans, in particular to the American Indian Graduate Center. That's not asking much, is it?" McCaulay tells The Indian Express.

Before we hear more from him, from his home across the Potomac river in the city of Alexandria in the southeastern US state of Virginia, here is some context.

Washington Redskins, an NFL team in the US, had that controversial name for 87 years until they dropped it on July 13 this year. Since the 1970s, there have been protests, polls, and court cases to make the football team drop the word 'Redskins' as it was deemed offensive and racist to native Americans. The team owner Daniel Snyder, though, refused to budge.

But the Black Lives Matter movement, that reached a crescendo after the death of George Floyd, changed everything in a blink. Corporate sponsors such as FedEx, Nike, PepsiCo and Bank of America started to revalue their association and though he hasn't talked about the trigger, Snyder agreed to drop the name. But the dramatic change of heart from Snyder has thrown McCaulay into the thick of action.

The Washington football team could be eying 'Washington Red Wolves' - one of the names owned by Martin McCaulay. Jorge Allocco.

"I have all the good names registered. Washington Red Wolves, the hot favourite with the fans who have been betting on it a lot, Washington Redtails, Washington Generals, Washington Americans, Washington Monuments, Washington Veterans, Washington Renegades and more," McCaulay says. "My personal favourite that I registered five years ago was Washington Pandas but I guess the team is eyeing Red Wolves."

The team has two months to find a new name before the season starts in September. "Forget my names, we know that they haven't moved yet for any name as registering a new name is in the public domain. It's really strange that they haven't made any move yet,' McCaulay says. He isn't even a fanatic of the team but a fan who has watched them since the 1980s. "I have seen only one game at the ground; last year, I watched it on the telly."

McCaulay started to register names around the time the tussle over the name change reached its peak with the Supreme Court and even former US president Barack Obama getting into the act. In 2013, Snyder asserted that, "We will never change the name. It's that simple. NEVER – you can use it in caps." Not long after, Obama said, "If I were the owner of the team and I knew that there was a name of my team - even if it had a storied history-that was offending a sizable group of people, I'd think about changing it," Obama said.

"I have been following the team since the 80s but it was around that time in 2013-14 that I seriously started to follow the controversy. I noted arguments from both sides and came down in favour of native Americans. It's not just the name but the fans would go to the stadium with red paints on the faces and with feathers tucked in - that's so racist.

The first name he went for was a sort of a joke. "I chose Washington Pigskins. As a joke. The ball used to be made of pig leather, the team was called Skins by many."

It wasn't a cheap joke, though. It cost him $275 to register. "The real excitement came when the NFL replied! They said, 'We note that you have registered the name and though it's similar to our football team, we will allow it.' I was so happy. That's how the expensive hobby really started to kick in." To make sure the name stayed registered and to show that he was serious. McCaulay even started selling merchandise based on his name. T-shirts, mugs, caps with Pigskins floated on a site he started, WashingtonAmericansFootball.com. He began to collect more names, make more merchandise though the effort to sell it ("It was the packing, the couriering that got to me") tired him and he stopped after a while. All this though, cost him a lot of money, in thousands of dollars.

"One of my intentions was also to park the names in case the team decides to change and not let it fall in wrong hands. The team can always sue to get the name back but I figured it would take them a long time in the process. So, that was another motivation for me to continue doing what I did." It all came to fruition on July 3 when McCaulay saw the announcement from the team that a name change was likely.

"It, of course, wasn't motivated by the good. They saw that the corporations were questioning them. FedEx even wrote to them to drop the name. I was happy though when I saw finally better sense had prevailed."

Next day, on July 4, McCaulay emailed the NFL team that they could have any name he owned for free. "I could see the fans were all betting and discussing new names; most were mine. So I wrote to them, take it if you want."

No response, though, Instead, he copped a lot of abuse from fans on social media who thought he was hoarding names for money and trying to hold the team to ransom. "I was shocked. All the excitement I had initially went down a bit and now I had to clear my name."

That meant more money. "I hired an attornev who charges $400 an hour to send an official notification to the team re-stating my free offer. ABC news showed my mail of July 4 that showed that I had offered it for free. And the attorney sent his stuff. People then believed it and began to come to my side - and question the team's silence'

On July 13, the team dropped 'Redskins'. "It's their move now. If they desire a name that I have, just go for it. I won't stand in the way. Just contribute something to the charity. No catch, I really don't want anything."

His vacation to tackle viral attention ended on Tuesday. "I didn't want to mix work and this. For the last week, I have been tweeting furiously, been on television and newspapers which language are you going to write this? Ah! English, okay. I have seen this story now in Italian, Portuguese, German, French, and Spanish. It's nuts. I had no idea that it would blow up like this. Just take a name, and let me return to my anonymous life."

Only, if Washington chose one of his names, Martin McCaulay will never be anonymous.

BCCI plea on cooling-off period in SC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE KOLKATA, JUY 21

THE BCCI'S application to water down the cooling-off clause for office bearers, which will have an impact on the continuation of president Sourav Ganguly, secretary Jay Shah and jointsecretary Jayesh George in their posts, will be heard by the Supreme Court on Wednesday. The court will decide if they will have to serve a three-year cooling-off period after six years in office, as per the Lodha panel recommendation.

The hearing would be done through video conferencing before a bench comprising Chief Justice of India Justice S A Bobde and Justice L Nageswara Rao. A mandatory cooling-off for three years is required for office-bearers in cricket administration after six years in office -BCCI and state association combined. Going by BCCI constitution, board secretary Shah has completed his six-year term, while president Ganguly will have to step down at the end of this month. George's term ends in August.

They had served as office-bearers in their respective state associations - Gujarat Cricket Association, Cricket Association of Bengal and Kerala Cricket Association - for more than five years before coming to the BCCI in October 2019. In December last year, the BCCI, however, filed an application before the Supreme Court, with a request to amend its constitution, including the watering down the clauses about the cooling-off period, changes in disqualification criteria, curbing the chief executive's powers and conflict of interest.

The proposed amendments received verbal consent from all 38 members at BCCI's 88th annual general meeting.

Ahead of BCCI's Apex Council meeting earlier this month the CAG nominee, Alka Rehani Bharadwaj, had objected to Shah attending the meeting, citing the cooling-off clause and stating that the joint-secretary "would be presumably officiating as secretary after vacation of secretary BCCI post".

The CAG has filed an application before SC, seeking recusal of its nominee from the management position in BCCI's Apex Council and IPL's Governing Council, while arguing that a role related to finances and audit would serve the purpose of Lodha reforms better.
