Team Iran speaks up for women back home — stays silent for national anthem

SANDIPG DOHA, NOVEMBER 21

AS IRAN'S national anthem rang out inside the Khalifa Stadium before the team's opening World Cup match against England, the players stood together -- in silence. Some looked down at the turf, others gazed emptily into the skies. None of them uttered a word of "Sorude Melliye Jomhuriye Eslamiye Iran". That silence was the most powerfully eloquent statement by the entire team, as they stood in solidarity with the protests led by women back home against the ruling Many Iranian supporters, too,

CUSTOMERS AND investors of banks have only sparse access to information on non-compliance of RBI directions by banks. 2024, the drive from Mumbai to Pune will pass through this 'missing link' – an engineering marvel that's expected to decongest the six-lane Mumbai-Pune

Currently, those traveling between the two cities take either the six-lane, 94-km-long Mumbai-Pune Expressway or the old Mumbai-Pune Highway (or National Highway No-4), a four-lane, 111-km road stretching from Shil Phata to Dehu Road. But somewhere near the comprises two sets of twin tunnels, and two viaducts, one of which is a cable-stayed bridge. Sources at MSRDC said that while the tunnels are almost 90 per cent complete, the entire project is around 60 per cent ready.

Once completed, those driving from Mumbai to Pune will get on to the 'missing link' stretch at Khopoli, bypass the expressway and drive 840 metres on a viaduct, before entering Tunnel 1 (1.75 km long). Once out of this tunnel, vehicles will cover 640 metres on a cablestayed viaduct bridge, before entering Tunnel 2, which is 8.9 km long. A part of this tunnel plunges around 170 feet below the ground, under the Lonavala lake, to finally emerge on the Sinhgad Institute side. The link is expected to shave off around 6 km of the distance between the two cities and cut travel time by 20-25 minutes. CONTINUED ON PAGE 4

Govt unveils framework to curb fake reviews on e-commerce sites

HARIKISHAN SHARMA NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 21

THE UNION government Monday unveiled a framework of standards to curb fake reviews on e-commerce websites. The framework, 'Indian Standard (IS) 19000:2022', has been prepared by the Bureau of Indian Standards and will come into effect from November 25.

Consumer Affairs Secretary Rohit Kumar Singh said the standards will apply to every online platform which publishes consumer reviews.

"IS 19000:2022 is the standard that the BIS [Bureau of Indian Standards | has formulated for us, in consultation with us and the industry. Public consultations have taken place. Who did how much work? Did water and electricity reach or not? We are ready to give hisab (account), but Congress knows that if they raise this issue then the BJP will counter because it has a tremendous record of work completed. Body in suitcase

During questioning, her parents told police that she had "gone out for some days" without informing them and that this had enraged the father.

According to Delhi Police sources, the woman got married last year to a man who used to work for her relative. The two hid their marriage for months, but the family found out around 2-3 months ago, when the couple got the marriage registered, police said. The woman's family was opposed to the union since the man is from a different caste.

Police said Ayushi's husband hails from Rajasthan and lives in Deoria, Uttar Pradesh, He is looking for a job. "We recorded his statement about their relationship and the fights that took place in her family," said an officer.

"Her parents would ask her about her whereabouts all the time and scold her when she would come home late at night," said an officer.

When she returned last Thursday, she again got into an argument with her family and was shot at around 2 pm, police said. Her parents left in their vehicle at 3 am on Friday, reaching a service road near the expressway's Raya cut at around 7 am. They threw the suitcase there and returned home.

A case has been registered against the woman's parents at Raya police station in Mathura under IPC Sections 302 (murder) and 201 (disappearance of evidence).

Iran's footballers television reportedly snapped the live telecast and resumed only for England's "God Save The Queen".

In fact, even before Iran's World Cup rolled out, the predominant narrative around the team was whether the players would protest. Every time an Iranian player or the coach turned up for a media interaction, they would invariably be peppered with this question.

Coach Carlos Quieroz said he was open to players staging a protest. And defender Ehsan Hajsafi expressed sympathy for those who had died in the protests, which escalated after 22-year-old Mahsa Amini died in custody following her arrest on September 13 for "breaching the dress code" for women.

"My condolences to all the mourning families in Iran... We stand with them and share their pain... We must accept that conditions in our country are not right and our people are not happy... My people are sad and our presence here does not mean that we cannot be a voice for them or should not respect them," Hajsafi said.

Several players also changed their social media profile pictures to a black space. From an Iranian fan's perspective, meanwhile, the match was perhaps less about football. Many of the supporters had come to the stadium to show solidarity with the "struggles of the people", rather than cheer the team. Hours before the game, outside the Sports City Metro Station that leads to the stadium, a bunch of fans, with Iranian flags draped around them and national colours smeared on their faces, were passionately chanting: 'Justice for Iran, peace for Iran.' One of them, Bahman Ahmadi, said: "Our struggles, our fight, the world should listen.'

The anger was all the more because their Monday morning was ushered in with the news that the police in Iran had arrested two prominent actors who had expressed support for the protest movement and removed their headscarves in public. "With the mess in our country, we are not in a mood to enjoy a game of football. How can we when the nation is burning?" Ahmadi asked. But still, he decided to watch the match - not for the country, not for the footballers, "but for the people, to show them total support". Ahmadi had flown in from Abu Dhabi in the UAE, where he runs a restaurant, along with a friend, Ali Hosseini, who was tooting a horn painted in the colours of Iran. "I am not supporting the team. It's not a team of Iranians, it's that of the government. But if they express their solidarity with the people back home, we would support them," said Hosseini.

The supporters were upset that the country was not unified in the "national cause". Even the national team was divided at one point. Sardar Azmoun, the forward, had posted on Instagram: The ultimate [punishment] is to be kicked out of the national team, which is a small price to pay for even a single strand of Iranian women's hair. Shame on you for easily killing the people and viva women of Iran. Long live Iranian women!'

Days later, he deleted the post, apologising for the "hasty action". But Sardar's popularity only swelled, even though he did not start the game on Monday after failing to recover fully from a knee injury.

Others like teammate Mehdi Torabi had publicly supported the regime. In Doha, however, the team was one. Torabi netted two goals but did not celebrate. Nor did his teammates. Not because those goals meant little in their 6-2 thrashing, but because they did not want to.

On the other side, the England players made a statement of their own, too, Before kick-off, they took the knee. But Harry Kane did not wear the One Love armband after FIFA clarified that it would sanction captains with yellow cards if they wore unapproved armbands.

In the game that followed, England battered the already battered Iran, pummelling three goals in the first half itself. Iran seemed like they were sleeprunning through the game, reducing the match to a sideshow, given the larger context.

Evidently, there were far more pressing concerns at the football World Cup on Monday than a game of football.

Port Blair

they had lured her with the promise of a government job. It was Rinku who introduced the woman to Rishi.

On October 28, The Indian Express had reported that the SIT had found evidence and recorded key witness statements pointing to an alleged jobfor-sex racket, as part of which over 20 women are alleged to have been taken to Narain's residence in Port Blair during his year-long tenure and some of them are said to have got jobs in lieu of being sexually exploited.

The woman's complaint, accessed by The Indian Express, gives a detailed account of the violent sexual attack on her on two occasions in April and May at Narain's official residence in Port Blair.

In her complaint, the woman alleged that in search of a job, she was introduced to the Labour Commissioner through a hotel owner and the Commissioner took her to the residence of the Chief Secretary. There, she said, she was offered liquor which she refused and was assured government employment. Subsequently, she alleged, she was sexually abused by the two men. Two weeks later. she alleged in the complaint, she was again called by them to the Chief Secretary's residence and the assault was repeated.

Narain has alleged a "conspiracy" against him.

On November 14, The Indian Express reported that an audio clip purportedly features a phone call between Rinku and the woman with Rishi listening in.

On the other hand, Sebi, Air pollution caused by vehicles can be reduced by 15%-20%, if which was established much everyone takes responsibility for turning off their engines at Red Lights. So let's join the drive initiated by the Delhi Police to Mumbai-Pune

"In July, water was released as part of a test to assess the structural safety of the canal, which was delayed due to land acquisition issues. Later, the breaches were identified and repaired," says a top official of the Sardar Sarovar Narmada Nigam Ltd (SSNNL).

On August 28, the Prime Minister officially inaugurated

Narmada waters creating ripples in arid Kutch the KBC, which is a branch of the Kiritbhai Bhanushali, who places his support for Prime Minister Narendra Modi above his loyalty for the BJP since its another "breach", say villagers.

But their joy was short-lived, with a section of the canal near the village developing a breach Narmada Main Canal (NMC), which originates at Kevadia. The water supply, however, has again come to a halt in the canal due to

"There was an accident in which a few youths drowned in the canal recently, forcing us to stop the flow of water. Also, the Rabi sowing season has just started. Water will be released in phases based on assessment of aggregate demand from a number of areas at a time," says the SSNNL official.

For the ruling BJP, in the belts of Mod Kuba and the adjoining areas, which come under the Mandvi Assembly constituency that will vote on December 1, such hiccups seem to have been overshadowed by the popular appeal enjoyed by the PM.

"If Narendrabhai has delivered the (Sardar Sarovar) dam and the canal, he will ensure that we get water regularly as well. It is a matter of time," says a local electrician, Arvind Bhai Khatri, blaming the Congress for the delay in completion of the project. The narrative is taking root at last three state polls, Mandvi is among the six Assembly constituencies of Kutch district, which has a population density of only 46 per sq km. Like in other parts of the state, Mandvi is also witnessing a triangular contest this time due to the entry of the AAP.

And much like in Mandvi, the commissioning of the canal dominates poll chatter across Kutch. At the Bhachau taluka, through which the canal enters Kutch, many residents claim they are determined, "more than ever before". to vote for the BJP due to the KBC.

Nursery admission starts Dec 1

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI. NOVEMBER 21

THE APPLICATION process for admissions to entry-level classes in Delhi's private schools will begin on December 1. The admission process for these entry-level seats is starting two weeks earlier than it did last year.

According to the schedule released by the Delhi government's Directorate of Education, all private schools will have to upload their admission criteria by November 28 and the application process will begin on December 1. The last date of submitting applications will be December 23. The first list of selected candidates and the waiting list will be issued by schools on January 20. Following this, the second list, if any, will be issued on February 6, and any subsequent list on March 1. The admission process will close on March 17.

This schedule is for admissions to entry-level classes to private schools in Delhi — nursery, KG or class I as the case may be for different schools.

"We welcome the decision taken by DoE. Schools had been receiving queries for couple of weeks so this notification comes as a relief to parents looking for KEY DATES

Satyendar Jain has lost 28 kg since being imprisoned: Lawyers to court

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 21

AAP LEADER Satyendar Jain's lawyers have moved a Delhi court alleging that Tihar jail authorities have stopped providing him food items as per his religious beliefs. The application was moved on Monday before a special judge at Rouse Avenue court.

His lawyers submitted that since Jain is unable to visit a temple as per his religious beliefs, he has been on a fast and is not having cooked food, pulses, grains and milk products. "He has suffered a major fall in jail, which led to severe spine injury for which he was treated by LNJP hospital. He also has lung patches, which is a post-Covid symptom," his application read. It stated that for the last 12 days, jail administration has stopped providing him with basic food items as per his religious beliefs - fruits/vegetables, mixed seeds, dry fruits and dates — because of which he lost 2 kg last week. His lawyers stated that he has lost around 28 kg since the day of his arrest, indicating his debilitating health status. They alleged that an MRI scan that he was supposed to undergo was delayed by 30 days.

Jain's lawyers submitted that he has "the right to a dignified human life, which is a wide-ranging and highly pervasive right inclusive of the right against unjust treatment by prison authorities". "A prisoner does not cease to remain a human being even after punishment. That the applicant is currently an undertrial and as such cannot be made to starve, relinquish his religious beliefs and denied basic medical condition," the application read. It sought reliance on Delhi Prison Rules 339 and 341 to state that all prisoners are allowed to observe their religious beliefs and have to be given a diet in accordance with those. Jain has been in custody since May in connection with an alleged money laundering case being investigated by the ED.

Vijay Nair arrest: 5 TV channels told to keep broadcast 'in tune with press releases of CBI, ED'

MALAVIKA PRASAD NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 21

THE DELHI High Court Monday directed five TV news channels to ensure that all broadcasts on the excise policy case are in "tune with the official press releases" issued by central investigative agencies and "comply with the directives which govern them". A single-judge bench of Justice Yashwant Varma issued notices to the channels and directed the National Broadcasting and Digital Standards Authority (NBDSA) to "duly examine the broadcasts and tell the court whether they have complied with their guidelines" or not. The directions were passed on a plea filed by AAP communications in-charge Vijay Nair, an accused in the case, who alleged that the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) and Enforcement Directorate (ED) had leaked sensitive information to the media. Nair contended that the alleged leak had prejudiced his rights in the case. Zoheb Hossain, appearing for the ED, submitted that the agency had not issued any press release pertaining to the case, but CBI said it had issued three releases. After perusing the press releases, court observed that "there is simply no co-relation" between the news broadcasts and information provided by the agency. The court observed that, "... it is not a case where information was collectively leaked by investigative agencies".

The court expressed dismay at NBDSA's submission that it did not have power to restrain channels. "If self-regulation is mere eyewash,...why should we not disband $you? \verb|... what action do you propose to take?" the court asked$ the authority's counsel. It said whatever news channels publish has to be in tune with what has been disclosed by CBI and ED. The HC allowed Nair to implead the News Broadcasters and Digital Association, of which some respondent news channels are members.

POLLS 2 WEEKS AWAY, PARTY BRINGS 5,000 LEADERS — BIG AND SMALL — TO DELHI

For MCD firepower, BJP reaches far and wide

GAYATHRI MANI

NEW DELHI. NOVEMBER 21

WITH JUST two weeks to go for the Municipal Corporation of Delhi elections, the BJP has pulled in about 5,000 leaders from across the country to woo voters in the national capital, keeping in mind the linguistic diversity in different wards. The influx, though, has led to some heartburn among local leaders, it is learnt.

While BJP's Chief Ministers and MPs being roped in has made headlines, the party reached out to unit presidents, zila adhyakshs (district presidents) and paarshads (councillors) from other states to lend heft to its campaign in Delhi.

'Senior leaders going to other states for campaigning during elections is usual, but this is perhaps the first time leaders lower in the hierarchy are also being involved at such a scale. This also indicates the party is cognizant of the challenge AAP poses," said a BJP leader, adding that the party has assigned wards and assemblies to these leaders keeping in mind the demography in each.

One leader explained: "For 50,000 voters from Assam and we have especially inducted 20 leaders from the state to campaign on the ground level and interact with people in their language." On Sunday, Assam CM Himanta Biswa Sarma campaigned in Delhi's Ghonda area.

Sources said leaders from BJP-ruled states have been instructed to tell voters here how the party has rolled out development works and implemented schemes for welfare of people back home. "This way, even if we get 30,000-35,000 voters from a section of people, it will add to our tally," said a source.

Besides BJP-ruled states such as Assam, Himachal Pradesh, Haryana, Uttarakhand and Uttar Pradesh, the party has also involved senior leaders from Tamil Nadu, Kerala and West Bengal.

Some in the party's local unit, though, aren't enthusiastic about the campaign style, with one leader explaining: 'Although the party aims to win 100-plus seats with its detailed plan, some Delhi workers and former councillors are feeling ignored. The party will need to find a way to appease them so they don't work against its in-

Delhi BJP suspends 11 for contesting against party's poll candidates

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 21

DELHI BJP president Adesh Gupta Monday suspended about 11 party members for six years for "indiscipline", after they decided to independently contest against official candidates fielded by the party for the MCD polls

These suspended members, one of whom is a former councillor, filed their nominations independently after the BIP denied them tickets for the polls.

In an official notification, the Delhi BJP said, "The following workers are contesting the elections as rebel candidates against the official candidates of the party. This is indiscipline towards the party. According to the instructions of state president Adesh Gupta ji, the... 11 workers have been suspended with immediate effect for six years from the initial days of the party.'

The Delhi BJP, which has ruled the MCD for the last 15 years, gave 50% tickets to new faces this time.

The elections for the reunified MCD and its 250 wards will be held on December 4. Counting of votes and declaration of results will take place on December 7.

Among the top leaders who have campaigned is Assam CM Himanta Biswa Sarma who is increasingly becoming one of the BIP's most sought-after campaigners in state elections. Amit Mehra

BJP's strategy: Use top guns to keep Chief Minister Kejriwal tied to Delhi

LIZ MATHEW

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 21

THE BJP on Sunday rallied four chief ministers, its national president IP Nadda, and Defence Minister Rajnath Singh for a massive show of strength in the run-up to the Municipal Corporation of Delhi (MCD) election on December 4.

The roadshows, party leaders said, were a "huge success". In the coming days, the national capital will see more of the party's top leaders, including Uttar Pradesh CM Yogi Adityanath, deployed for campaigning for the elections to 250 wards in the national capital, said a source.

This is in line with the party's stand that "no election is less important". But party leaders admitted it was the first time the BJP was rolling out its heaviest artillery ahead of a civic election. BJP national president Baijayant Panda told The Indian Express, "As the largest political party, the BJP has the luxury of several popular faces. It will be a shame to not have them speak to the public in Delhi.

Because Delhi shapes the national and international narrative for India, Also, we do not want to hold an election in which only the state government of Delhi plays a role.'

The MCD polls are expected to be a three-way fight between the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP), the BJP, and the Congress. The BJP, which has been ruling the MCD for 15 years, is facing a tough fight from the AAP to retain control of the civic body for the fourth straight term. With the top leadership of the party, including Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Union Home Minister Amit Shah, busy with Gujarat elections, the party has had a discussion about its MCD poll campaign. "In the meeting attended by Nadda ji and (general secretary for organisation) BL Santhosh, the view was that we should not just leave our galaxy of leaders - who in their individual capacity have different constituencies — unutilised. The question was why should we leave this election as a one-man show by Arvind Kejriwal for the AAP and that the BJP should not follow the strategies of the AAP," a party leader familiar with the developments said, adding, "We decided to reset the terms of engagement.'

Among the top leaders who have campaigned is Assam CM Himanta Biswa Sarma who is increasingly becoming one of the BJP's most sought-after campaigners in state elections. Sarma made a clear attempt to consolidate Hindu majority votes by raking up Kejriwal's alleged anti-Hindu position on matters, seeking a law against "love jihad", and Uniform Civil Code, among other issues.

In the run-up to the Uttarakhand Assembly elections earlier this year, the BJP, in Sarma's presence, had assured it would set up a panel to draft UCC if voted back to power. "Our country doesn't need Aaftab (the accused in the Shraddha Walkar murder case) but a person like Lord Ram, a leader like Prime Minister Modi. We need a Uniform Civil Code and law against 'love jihad'. We need such laws where Aaftabs can be hanged to death," Sarma was heard saying in a video of a roadshow in the national capital on Sunday.

With initiatives such as the now become one of the aggressive faces of the BJP.

The other CMs who attended Sunday's roadshows in Delhi were Himachal Pradesh CM Jai Ram Thakur, his Uttarakhand counterpart Pushkar Dhami, and Haryana CM Manohar Lal Khattar.

Rallying its big guns against Kejriwal and the AAP is also a strategy to keep the Delhi CM tied to the national capital since his stakes in the local elections are high. Kejriwal has often blamed the BIP's dominance in local bodies as a hurdle for the developmental initiatives his government demolition of madrasas and statements painting Opposition leaders as anti-Hindu, Sarma has plans to take in Delhi.

The BIP is nervous about the 'optics and the space" occupied by the AAP and Kejriwal in the campaign ahead of the Gujarat Assembly elections. "The party's strategists do not like the idea of projecting the Gujarat elections as Modi versus Keiriwal or BIP versus AAP. A hectic campaign in Delhi is something the AAP cannot stay away from," said a

Shraddha murder: To trace evidence, cops seek polygraph test on Poonawala

JIGNASA SINHA

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 21

THE DELHI Police have approached a court to conduct a polygraph test on Aaftab Poonawala — apart from the narco analysis test that the court has already agreed to - to help investigators find the missing weapon and other evidence in the Shraddha Walkar murder case.

Poonawala is accused of allegedly chopping Walkar's body, who was his live-in partner, into multiple pieces and discarding them over the next few months.

The Forensic Science Laboratory in Delhi said they will conduct a polygraph test if and when the consent form comes. FSL officials said they have received consent for the narco test, which will be conducted within the next few days. "We will also need to conduct medical tests on him before the narco test. These will be done to check his physical and mental health to see if he's fit to take the test," said an officer.

Meanwhile, police found that nearly a month after Poonawala allegedly killed Walkar, he contacted a packers and movers company to shift 37 boxes from their shared flat in Maharashtra's Vasai to Chhattarpur Pahadi, paying Rs 20,000 for the process. Police sources said he allegedly took Rs 54,000 from Walkar's account and used this money to pay bills and also for moving the household items. Govind Yadav, owner of Goodluck Packers and Movers. told The Indian Express that he was questioned by Mumbai Police and Delhi Police in Mumbai. Poonawala approached the company on June 5. "He found our number online and booked the boxes to be shifted from Vasai to Delhi. I asked my executives. They were all small boxes containing clothes, utensils and small furniture pieces. He paid Rs 20,000 online. I didn't speak to him over the phone," said Yadav.

As reported earlier, the couple allegedly had an argument before the murder on who would spend on getting their belongings to the national capital, since both were out of jobs and facing financial strain. Police are continuing their searches in the Mehrauli forest. Chhattarpur Pahadi and Maidan Garhi lake to find Walkar's remains. Teams have also been sent to Gurgaon, Mumbai, Uttarakhand and Himachal Pradesh. Poonawala's custody ends on Tuesday and police are yet to recover the mini-saw and blood-stained clothes. Police sources claim they have found a shop from where Aaftab allegedly purchased the mini-saw and other tools to chop the body.

While suspected body parts have been found, forensics is yet to confirm if they are indeed Walkar's. Sources said they have found 16-17 suspected body parts in the form of bones from forest areas, some of which appear to be part of a skull and jaw. "We are approaching doctors and other specialists who can ascertain if the suspected skull and jaw belong to Walkar. The Maidan Garhi lake was drained so we could look there too," said an officer.

Police said the bones have been handed over to the Central FSL for examination. Police have also contacted a dentist to examine the part of the jaw that was recovered.

NEWS OF 21-year-old Ayushi Yadav being murdered, allegedly by her parents, rocked the Southeast Delhi neighbourhood of Molar Band, Badarpur, on

The neighbourhood where they stayed is home to hundreds of lower middle-class families. EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 21

WITH TWO weeks to go for the municipal corporation polls, the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) launched a new campaign called 'Kejriwal ki Sarkar, Kejriwal ka parshad' on Monday. While launching the campaign, senior AAP leader and Deputy Chief Minister Manish Sisodia also attacked the BJP and called it a party with no "vision". "People chose the Arvind

Kejriwal government for the second time because of the work it has done in Delhi in the sectors of education, health, electricity, water etc... BJP has ruled the MCD for the last 15 years, but it has not done a single work, it does not have an agenda to count on to show the people the work it has done in the civic sector," said Sisodia.

Saying the BJP only knows to abuse CM Kejriwal and ask for votes, he said "we will not indulge in their 'tu tu, main main'." Even as the AAP pushes for uniformity in the party ruling the state and the MCD, it has been critical of BJP's 'double engine' narrative — of the same party in the state and Centre elsewhere. In Gujarat, Kejriwal had said the state needs a "nave engine ki sarkar" and not a "dou-

AAP MLA from Matiala, Gulab Singh, was beaten up, allegedly by party workers, in his office Monday. A video purportedly shows a heated discussion in a room, with several people surrounding Singh, who is seated. A man can be heard asking others to catch hold of him. The video then shows a man trying to grab the MLA's collar and a woman hitting him. Several people throw things, including papers, at him. Singh then runs from the room and is punched and slapped sev-video on Twitter and claimed the MLA was beaten up by party workers over allegations that he sold tickets. AAP had not responded to the violence or the allegations so far.

(Dwarka) Harsha Vardhan said: "... There was an altercation over... ticket distribution which resulted in alleged manhandling of MLA Gulab Singh by some party workers. He was medically examined and no external injury was found. Legal action is eing taken as per the statement."

Last week, the Anti-Corruption Branch had arrested Model Town AAP MLA Akhilesh Pati Tripathi's brother-in-law, personal assistant and their associate for allegedly collecting money in return for MCD tickets.

On Monday, BJP released a "sting video" that allegedly showed AAP leaders demanding Rs 80 lakh from an aspirant. AAP, however, said the video proved AAP tickets for polls are not on sale. "Since demand for tickets is high, a few people have started to act like brokers and are trying to take advantage of the situation," said senior leader Dilip Pandey.

Up for re-election, Cong's Lalit Vasoya makes MLA work hard sell in Dhoraji

GOPAL KATESHIYA VADLA (RAJKOT), NOV 21

LALIT VASOYA is the sitting Congress MLA from Gujarat's Dhoraji Assembly constituency in Rajkot district, where PM Narendra Modi addressed a public meeting on Sunday.

He tells villagers in Vadla village of Upleta taluka how he "toiled for their village for five years" and had come to seek compensation in the form of votes for the work he had done.

Vasoya, a prominent Patidar leader, then reels off details of some of his works – building the village roads for Rs 10.8 lakh and constructing a burial ground's compound wall at a cost of Rs 80,000 from his MLA local area development (LAD) fund. The MLA, 60, tells farmers that Vadla was among the 18 villages of Upleta which received excessive rainfall this monsoon but were not included by the BIP-ruled state

Vasova, who was the Saurashtra zone convener of the Patidar Anamat Andolan Samiti (PAAS) which was leading the Patidar quota agitation, was given ticket by the Congress to fight his maiden election from Dhoraji in the 2017 polls.

While campaigning for his 2017 bid, Vasoya announced that he would use his MLA salary for welfare of people and not for personal use. While campaigning for his re-election as a Congress candidate in 2022, he gives an ac-

Beneath the lustre of Statue of Unity, some dark spots for BJP

In first Assembly polls since statue inauguration, party faces rancour over land acquisition, unmet job promises

ADITI RAJA

NANDOD (NARMADA), NOVEMBER 21

IT IS a usual Saturday at the Statue of Unity, with no particular excitement about this being the first Assembly elections since the 182-metre structure was inaugurated by Prime Minister Narendra Modi in Kevadia of Narmada district. The inauguration in 2018 was followed by the renaming of the village where the statue is located as Ektanagar, and the start of a 'Tourism Circuit' with over 35 attractions in 2020.

In 2017, the Nandod (ST reserved) Assembly seat under which Kevadia falls was wrested from the BJP by the Congress. So a lot is at stake for the BJP this time in the seat, which covers both the Statue of Unity and the Sardar Sarovar Dam, two of the Modi government's projects which are also at the heart of its campaign.

However, what is for the Modi government a record-setting feat, raising the world's tallest statue, does not hold as much appeal for tribals in the area. They have struggled to reorganise their lives around the project, particularly those who lost their land to the Sardar Sarovar Narmada Nigam Limited (SSNNL).

Ganpat Tadvi, 40, had to give up his shop and now runs a tea stall near the statue's parking area, making half what he earned earlier, he says. "Outsiders benefited from the statue... what did tribal families get? Our properties were acquired while our children are still waiting for the promised jobs," he says, adding that his two sons had submitted their resumes for a job a year ago.

In September, two hotel projects by the Tata Group were inaugurated at Ektanagar.

A resident of Nana Pipadiya village, Ganpat says: "My older son has completed a computer course from Rajpipla and my younger son is studying at an ITI... A few thousand tribal youths have been employed in the statue but 70% are outsiders."

Natwar Tadvi of Kevadia had attempted self-immolation in June 2020 to prevent SSNNL from fencing his fields. Now a parking lot with an Amul outlet stands where his farmland was. "We cannot trust the BJP ... We are a family of 40 and have no land now, nor did we receive commensurate compensation as a family," Natwar says.

He also accuses the BJP of coopting "one of our biggest voices in the local body elections". Natwar's reference is to his neighbour Dinesh Tadvi, who had fought against the land acquisition before winning from Kevadia on a BIP ticket in the February 2021 district panchayat polls.

Also angry about "outsiders" Sharda Tadvi of Navagam says all parties are the same. "Our MP is from Rathwa community (the BJP's Geeta Rathwa) while our MLA is a Vasava (PD Vasava of the Congress). This time, every party has fielded Vasavas though Tadvis outnumber them ...

Many nearby villages, however, have tapped into the tourism boom and converted their homes into home stays, some on their own, without government help

Also on the side of the project is a villager whose music group performs the Narmada Aarti near the statue.

While projecting themselves as the real supporters of tribals, all parties, from BJP to Congress, lay claim to the Sardar Sarovar Dam

While close to 4,000 locals, mostly tribals, are hired with various tasks related to the statue, including as security guards and tourist guides, the number of aspirants remains long.

Addressing a rally in Jambughoda on November 1, much before the polls were announced, PM Modi had mentioned the Statue of Unity as one of the initiatives by his government to get the region jobs.

The BJP is also hoping to win back Dediapada, the other Assembly constituency in Narmada district, on the strength of the statue and its other efforts. In 2017, the Congress's ally Bharatiya Tribal Party won from Dediapada.

But there is another factor in the fray, in the form of AAP, which has fielded influential former BTP leaders from both seats. While its Nandod candidate Prafula Vasava had led the protests against the land acquisition but has lost steam since due to the Modi government's project push, AAP's Dediapada candidate, Chaitar Vasava, is on strong ground.

Apart from AAP, the BJP also faces a rebel in Nandod. It has fielded Darshana Deshmukh, a gynaecologist and the daughter of former BIP MP from Bharuch Chandu Deshmukh as its candi date. Harshad Vasava, its Tribal Morcha president and two-term MLA from Raipipla, which after the delimitation in 2012 led to the creation of Nandod, is contesting as an Independent. On Sunday, the party suspended Harshad.

A BJP leader said that while Harshad will cause a dent, as an Independent he was not a big risk. "Times are gone when tribals could not envision what development looked like and fell for the emotional manipulation of parties. Now, they side with the BJP's policies.'

The Congress, which won Nandod last time, has dropped veteran sitting MLA P D Vasava for Haresh Vasava

Ironically, while projecting themselves as the real supporters of tribals, all parties also lay claim to the Sardar Sarovar Dam. The Congress talks about PM Iawarharlal Nehru having laid the foundation stone for the dam in 1961. The BIP stresses it was Modi's dedication that saw the dam and "Sardar Vallabbhai Patel's vision" through.

A trip in time saves 93? AAP's dash to Somnath before withdrawal deadline

RASHI MISHRA

AHMEDABAD, NOVEMBER 21

SEQUESTERING MLAs after elections is passe. The Aam Aadmi Party has made a head start on others in Gujarat. On Sunday, a day before the last day of withdrawal of nominations for the second and final day of polling in the state, the party is believed to have whisked away all its 93 candidates for that phase to a huddle in Somnath.

Officially, the party's stand was that the candidates had gone to the Somnath temple for 'darshan".

Sources said the party was spooked after its Surat (East) candidate Kanchan Jariwala disappeared one evening, to emerge the next day and withdraw his nomination. AAP claims that he was "kidnapped" and forced to withdraw his nomination by the BIP, but has little substantial to back that up.

By Monday, some of the AAP candidates were "back on the field", as per what they told The Indian Express. Others admitted going to Somnath, but said it was for "prayers".

Om Prakash Tiwari, the AAP candidate from Naroda Assembly constituency in Ahmedabad, said they went for a party meeting to Veraval, Somnath. "We were there, so we did darshan at the nearby Somnath temple. I came back Sunday, some might be coming back today (Monday).'

Sources said the party had information about some of the candidates coming under BJP pressure to withdraw. "Once the date to withdraw nominations passed, the candidates

RALLYING BIG GUNS

LIKE IN the past, when top BJP leaders had gone for campaigning in the municipal elections in Hyderabad, the party has rallied a battery of senior leaders in the national capital ahead of the MCD polls. Although the leadership had decided to utilise its full force to see that the party retains power in the municipal corporations, BJP national vice-president Baijayant Panda's warm ties with many BJP chief ministers seemed to have helped the party put up an impressive show of strength on Sunday. Panda, BJP's Delhi in-charge, personally contacted the CMs to make it to Delhi the same day. CM Himanta Biswa Sarma of Assam (Panda was in charge of Assam BJP); Manohar Lal Khattar (Haryana); Jai Ram Thakur (Himachal Pradesh); and Pushkar Singh Dhami (Uttarakhand) participated in Sunday's roadshow.

MP: Cong MLA booked for rape, complainant claims to be his wife

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE BHOPAL, NOVEMBER 21

SITTING CONGRESS MLA and former Madhya Pradesh minister Umang Singhar (48) was booked by Naugaon police for rape and domestic violence, among other charges, based on a complaint from a woman who claimed to be his wife.

Police said a team was sent to arrest Singhar but he was not found at his house in Dhar.

In the complaint to the police, the woman alleged that Singhar had sexually exploited her on the pretext of marriage. "It was only after I threatened to lodge a complaint that he married me on April 16 at his Bhopal house. Two months after the marriage, his behaviour changed and he would beat me up... abused me often and even threatened to kill me," the woman alleged in her complaint.

"It was at the police station that I learnt that a complaint had been filed against me by the wife of a former employee of Singhar," she said.

India democratic since Vedic times: ICHR note

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 21

INDIA HAS been practising democratic traditions since the "Vedic times" when villages developed a hierarchy of self-governing institutions such as "panchayats and khaps", according to an Indian Council of Historical Research (ICHR) concept note on Constitution Day that has been been criticised as an attempt to negate the country's challenge of "caste-based social hierarchy".

The note, circulated among Union ministries, underlines that the ancient democratic traditions explain the "survival of the Hindu culture and the civilisation in the face of the 2,000 years of invasions by alien ethnicities and cultures". The note, also circulated by the UGC among higher education institutions requesting them to organise lectures on themes exploring India's democratic traditions, went on to add that was no aristocracy in India like in Greece. The "Hindu state rarely presented that high degree of centralisation associated with the Roman empire", it said. "...there was no concentration of the prestige of birth, influence of wealth and political office...," the note added. Criticising the UGC circular, CPI(M) leader Sitaram Yechury demanded it be withdrawn. In a statement issued last Friday, the CPI(M) said the ICHR note was a 'negation of the reality of Varnashram and caste-based social hierarchy that is a major challenge in evolution of our modern democracy".

Says inspired by PM Modi, CM Yogi; SP plays down impact of his leaving

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE LUCKNOW, NOVEMBER 21

IN A setback for the Samajwadi Party and its senior leader Azam Khan ahead of the by-election for Rampur Assembly constituency, Khan's close aide and the party's media in-charge, Fasahat Ali Khan, alias Shanu, ioined BIP on Monday with many supporters.

Fasahat joined the ruling party during a booth conference at the election office of BJP candidate for Rampur by-election, Akash Saxena. BJP state president Bhupendra Chaudhary was present on the occasion. While Chaudhary welcomed him into BIP, the SP tried to play down any possible impact of his leaving the party.

Fasahat, who was associated with Azam Khan from over two decades, refused to comment on the former Rampur legislator.

Rampur, seen as the Azam Khan family's pocket borough, is scheduled to go to bypolls on December 5 — it was necessitated after Khan's disqualification from the Assembly over his conviction in a 2019 hate speech case last month

Asked about the reason for joining BJP, Fasahat said he was inspired by the leadership of Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath, as well as the policies of BJP governments. He claimed that the "lotus" — BJP's election symbol – will bloom in Rampur in the upcoming elections get over, Fasahat said, "During elections, these parties treat Muslims the same way as a bay leaf is used in cooking biryani. After the birvani is cooked, the bay leaf is thrown away.

In April, weeks after SP's defeat in UP Assembly polls, Fasahat had accused party's national president Akhilesh Yadav of ignoring Azam Khan and the Muslim community, leading to speculation over a rift in the party in Rampur. Fasahat had also claimed to be the district general secretary of SP in Rampur.

Fasahat had accused Akhilesh of maintaining silence on the issues of Muslims and making no efforts to get Azam Khan out of the jail. He had also alleged that Yadav met Khan only once in prison and the party made no attempt to secure his release in two-and-a-half years — Khan was released from jail in May.

SP's Rampur district working president Virendra Goel said Fasahat did not hold any position in the party at present, as the district unit was dissolved a few months ago. The SP has fielded

Mohammed Asim Raja, an Azam Khan loyalist, against BJP's Akash Saxena in the by-election.

Have you cut quota for Muslims: Cong to govt

SREENIVAS JANYALA HYDERARAD NOVEMBER 21

A CONTROVERSY is brewing in Telangana regarding quotas in jobs and education for Muslims, after the Telangana Pradesh Congress Committee (TPCC) sought clarification on whether the Bharat Rashtra Samithi (formerly the TRS) government has reduced the quota of Muslims from 4 per cent to 3 per cent.

Former minister and ex-Leader of the Opposition in the Assembly, Mohammed Ali Shabbir, on Monday, said while the government has increased the quota for STs from 6 per cent to 10 per cent, its new directions don't include the fourth roster point that confirms the 4 per cent quota for the state's Muslims in the layman's eyes.

"The roster points clearly show that Roster No. 19, 44 and 94 have been earmarked for BC-E (Muslim) category. As per law, Roster No. 69 should also be reserved for BC-E to ensure a 4 per cent quota for Muslims. When we pointed out the 'mistake' on

He said the state government 'rejoinder' claimed that Roster Nos 19, 44, 69 and 94 were reserved for BC-E but that it did not look official as it was not issued on any official letterhead, nor was it signed.

Hacksaw used to chop ex-Navy man's body recovered: cops

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE KOLKATA, NOVEMBER 21

POLICE ON Monday recovered a hacksaw that they claimed was used to chop the body of a former Navy official, Ujjawal Chakraborty, by his son and wife at Hariharpur village in South 24 Parganas district's Baruipur area, officials said.

The woman, Shyamoli Chakraborty, and her son Raju, alias Joy, have been arrested. The weapon was recovered from the same pond where Chakrabortv's head and torso were found, officials said. "Based on the information extracted from the accused, the weapon has been recovered. The investigation is on." a senior police official said.

Ujjwal Chakraborty was murdered allegedly by his son Raju who with the help of his mother chopped the body into six pieces and dumped it in the pond and the bush near their house, officials said.

house where Sharik is alleged to have constructed the IED between September 20 and November 19 - when he traveled to Mangaluru unearthed a cache of explosives, including over 150 match-boxes. The phosphorus on the tips of match-sticks was stripped to increase the potency of primary explosive material (gunpowder or potassium nitrate) in the IED. Among other materials directly linking Shariq to fabrication of the IED that was found at the Mysuru rented house were 9 volt batteries, sizable quantities of phosphorus and sulphur, police said.

Karnataka: FIR over 'purification' of tank touched by Dalit woman

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

AN FIR was registered under the SC/ST (Prevention of Atrocities) Amendment Act, two days after some villagers 'purified' a water storage tank since a Dalit woman had drank water from it. A Lingayat leader has been named in the FIR.

The incident had taken place in Heggatora village of Chamarajanagar district on Friday and it drew widespread criticism after the video of the 'purification' ceremony went viral on the social media on Saturday. The case was registered under Section 3(1)(za) (a) of the SC/ST Act.

According to the FIR, one Shivamma had come to attend a wedding in the village and she drank water from the tank located near Krishnadevaraya temple. A Lingayat leader of the village, Mahadevappa, whose name figure in the FIR, allegedly abused her for her act, citing her 'low' caste.

Rlys to fence tracks to avoid cattle hits

AVISHEK G DASTIDAR NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 21

THE RAILWAYS has decided to construct fencing on the lines of tional highways, at key points on the route of Ahmedabad-Mumbai Vande Bharat Express which courted controversies after hitting cattle multiple times and running

Similarly, oil-coated bamboos will be used to make cattle barriers along the tracks in the Ghaziabad-Kanpur section in UP, which sees the largest number of cattle run over by trains.

The Railways has written to the Western Railway to construct the fencing at encroachmentprone areas along the 400-km Vande Bharat route.

The crash barrier desi rently used by National Highways Authority of India (NHAI) will be suitably modified for this purpose. Additionally it has been instructed to build limited high subways "liberally" for cattle, humans and two-wheelers to cross.

Work is underway on Delhi-Mumbai corridor for raising speed up to 160 kmph. For raising the speed, building fencing is a requirement. However, a Railway Board order has said those walls tend to be too far from the track and may not be effective in preventing cattle. "In order to make such fencing effective, it needs to be completely sealed against any trespassing at level crossings, ROB/RUB, bridges etc with access control feature." the order said. The Railway Board order said the fencing should be around 4-7 metres away from the track and that people and cattle should not get any access to the fenced track from common points such as level crossings. Along with Western Railway, an identical order has been sent to North Central Railway asking it to construct bamboo fencing along 20 km of Ghaziabad-Kanpur section of the Delhi-Howrah corridor which,

too, is undergoing speed upgrade.

His family members comprising two daughters (18 and 20 years old), a son, 26, and his mother are unable to visit him frequently from Kashmir and being close to his family would help him recover better. He further said Rules 664 and 672 of the Delhi Prison Rules, 2018, provide for transfer of prisoners on humanitarian as well as medical grounds; and therefore, he deserves to be transferred to Srinagar Central Jail. He, however, said his application for transfer to Srinagar jail was rejected by the Lieutenant Governor, Delhi,

Suspected terrorist held Air Suvidha form, RT-PCR tests from Delhi airport: NIA scrapped for international arrivals

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 21

THE NATIONAL Investigation Agency (NIA) has arrested an alleged Khalistani terrorist at IGI Airport in New Delhi after he was deported from Thailand.

Alleged to be associated with Babbar Khalsa International (BKI) and Khalistan Liberation Force (KLF), Kulwinderjit Singh alias Khanpuria was allegedly involved in attacks on Dera Sacha Sauda and police. NIA said Khanpuria had been absconding since 2019.

NIA produced Khanpuria in a special court in Mohali on November 18 and he was remanded to police custody till November 25. "He was involved and wanted in many terrorist cases, including the conspiracy to carry out targeted killings in Punjab. He was also involved in a bomb blast case in Connaught Place, and grenade attacks in other states in the nineties," NIA said.

PROPOSED TRANSFER OF JUSTICE NIKHIL KARIEL

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 21

THE GOVERNMENT Monday scrapped the requirement to fill out Air Suvidha form for people flying into India from foreign countries amid a declining number of coronavirus cases.

The requirement to submit a negative RT-PCR report or details of the primary vaccination schedule has also been done away with for international arrivals.

The revised guidelines for international arrivals will be effective from November 22, according to the Union Ministry of Health and Family Welfare (MoHFW). Earlier, the guidelines had required that passengers arriving in scheduled for Tuesday.

India from overseas should fill up the Air Suvidha form. The form

As per the MoHFW's latest guidelines, air travellers should preferably be fully vaccinated as per the approved primary schedule of vaccination against COVID-19 in their country. The latest guidelines supersede the guidelines issued in September, wherein those arriving from foreign countries were required to submit the Air Suvidha form.

They also had to provide "details of negative Covid-19 RT-PCR report(the test should have been conducted within 72 hrs prior to undertaking the journey) or submit details of full primary vaccination scheduled of COVID-19 vaccination", as per the earlier guidelines. Only children under the age of 5 years were exempted from testing, it had said.

On Monday, the MOHFW said that on arrival, passengers should ensure physical distancing and thermal screening of all the arriving international passengers will be done by the health officials present at the point of entry. "Passengers found to be symptomatic during screening shall be immediately isolated, taken to a designated medical facility as per health protocol," it said.

Further, the ministry said that all travellers should self-monitor

They should report to their "nearest health facility or call National helpline number (1075)/ state helpline number in case they have any symptoms," it added.

According to the ministry, the present guidelines are being revised in light of the sustained declining Covid-19 trajectory and significant advances being made in Covid-19 vaccination coverage both globally as well as in India.

During air travel, ministry said in-flight announcements about the pandemic, including precautionary measures such as preferable use of masks and physical distancing, should be made in flights at all points of entry. Any passenger having symptoms of coronavirus during travel should be isolated as per standard protocol, it added.

India on Monday logged 406 Covid-19 cases taking tally of cases to 4,46,69,421 while active cases dipped to 6,402, as per official data.

CARBON-DATING PLEA

Gyanvapi: ASI seeks time, HC to hear Nov 30

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE LUCKNOW, NOVEMBER 21

WITH THE Archaeological Survey of India (ASI) seeking more time to file its response, the Allahabad High Court on Monday fixed November 30 for hearing the revision petition against a Varanasi district court order rejecting a plea for carbondating the "Shivling" said to have been found in the Gyanvapi mosque complex.

Last month, the Varanasi court had rejected the plea for carbon-dating the structure following a survey of the complex earlier this year. Monday's High Court order came on a revision petition filed by Laxmi Devi and three others.

In its last hearing on November 4, the High Court had asked the ASI Director-General to submit his opinion on the possibility of the structure being damaged if it is examined through methods such as carbon dating, ground-penetrating radar and excavation to determine its age, nature and other information.

On Monday, ASI counsel Manoj Kumar Singh said he filed an application and affidavit seeking more time to file a reply. "In the application, we stated that the subject involves consultation with specialised bodies to submit a comprehensive reply and sought three months time for filing the report. The court is likely to take up our application at the next hearing," he said.

Earlier, five Hindu women had filed petitions seeking the right to worship Maa Shringar Gauri on the outer wall of the mosque complex located next to the Kashi Vishwanath temple.

While the Hindu side said the mosque was built on the site of a temple, the Muslim side argued that the mosque was built on Wakf premises, and the Places of Worship Act barred changing the character of the mosque.

In April, the Civil Judge (Senior Division) allowed a video survey of the mosque complex. Subsequently, a "Shivling" was said to have been found in the wazu khana. But the mosque management said it was part of the fountain system.

On May 20, the Supreme Court, underlining the "complexity of the issues involved in the civil suit", transferred the Gyanvapi dispute to the district

Revised Personal Data Protection Bill is a step forward, but vesting more powers with government is not a good idea

FTER MONTHS OF uncertainty, last week, the Union government released the revised version of the Personal Data Protection Bill for public comments. The Bill, now called the Digital Personal Data Protection Bill, 2022, comes three months after an earlier draft version of the Bill was withdrawn following considerable backlash over its onerous provisions. Some of the changes made in the latest version of the bill indicate a rethink on these provisions within the government. For instance, the revised Bill has dropped some of the more contentious rules that govern cross-border data flows after facing considerable opposition from Big Tech. There remain, however, some areas of worry. One concern centres over the independence and the extent of authority vested in the proposed Data Protection Board that will be tasked with overseeing compliance with the Bill. The other relates to the exemptions extended to government agencies from adhering to some of the provisions of the Bill.

The earlier version of the Bill had imposed stringent conditions on cross-border data flows. Companies were mandated to store a copy of "sensitive" personal data within India, while taking out "critical" personal data from the country was barred. The new draft makes a significant departure on this issue by not imposing any such requirements on firms. Companies do not have to store data exclusively in India. They can now transfer the data to countries which are listed by the government. However, on what basis the government chooses a particular country is not yet clear. Will it be determined by considerations other than privacy, such as trade and geopolitics? Notwithstanding that, easing the rules on data storage will be welcomed not only by Big Tech but also by the burgeoning start-up ecosystem in the country.

Some of the other aspects of the Bill, however, warrant greater introspection. Take for instance the proposal to set up a Data Protection Board. The board's members and its chairperson will be appointed at the government's discretion. This along with indications that the latest version ends up curtailing the board's powers raise concerns over its independence. Equally contentious are the expansive exemptions that have been afforded to the government and its agencies with limited safeguards. The joint parliamentary committee, which had dwelt on the earlier version of the bill, had suggested that the exemption be provided under a "just, fair, reasonable and proportionate procedure". However, as reported in this newspaper, this finds no mention in the revised draft. By simple notifications, government agencies can be exempted from the Bill's provisions on grounds of national security. At a time of government overreach, these arguably contentious provisions, which will vest greater power with government as opposed to an independent statutory authority, need to be reexamined.

WALK THE TALK

The CJI's observations on bail are important. The onus is on judiciary to provide redress

CHIEF JUSTICE OF India D Y Chandrachud's observations on trial courts being reluctant to grant bail to accused are significant. Speaking at an event organised by the Bar Council of India, the CJI said the reason the higher judiciary is flooded with bail cases is because of a certain reluctance from trial courts to grant bail. The CJI spoke about a "sense of fear" in judges in district courts in granting bail, especially in cases involving heinous crime. "This sense of fear nobody talks about but, which we must confront because unless we do that, we are going to render our district courts toothless and our higher courts dysfunctional," he said. When there are over four crore cases currently pending in district courts and 76 per cent of the prisoners in jails are undertrials, the CJI's assessment of the issue has great significance to safeguarding personal liberty of individuals.

In an interview to this newspaper, Chandrachud's predecessor, U U Lalit, acknowledged that trial courts have very little discretion because laws are increasingly stacked against granting bail. Special laws such as Prevention of Children from Sexual Offences Act, Scheduled Caste/Scheduled Tribe Atrocities Act or NDPS law are designed to ensure that bail can be granted only when strict statutory conditions are satisfied. The language of these laws leaves trial judges with very little room to grant bail. To add to the issue, the higher courts too on occasion interpret bail provisions strictly, virtually tying the hands of trial courts. For instance, when it comes to UAPA, a 2019 ruling of the Supreme Court states that trial courts must accept the state's case without examining its merits while considering grant of bail. The pressure faced by courts of first instance, when it comes to sensational heinous crimes is not new. Judicial reasoning has long included the dubious "collective conscience of the society" in place of evidence-backed rational decision making. The problem lies also in the same structural inequities in accessing justice: Even when bail has been granted, ability to afford bail bonds becomes an issue. Studies show that two in three undertrial inmates belong to either Scheduled Caste, Scheduled Tribe or Other Backward Classes.

The CJI spoke of instilling a sense of confidence in the district courts, starting from doing away with the nomenclature of subordinate or lower judiciary. While the acknowledgement of the judicial culture driven by fear by the CJI himself is an encouraging first step, the challenge is to find solutions. It is not as if all district court judges are afraid of being targeted. Backing the radical orders of trial courts will inspire confidence in standing up to pressures of the day. The onus is on the judiciary.

THE GENTLE VOICE

A pioneering celebrity chat show host, Tabassum knew how to probe without prying

N A RECENT interview with Twinkle Khanna, filmmaker Karan Johar revealed that he wanted to "become Tabassum" when he grew up. His revelation that the late chat show host, who died this week at 78, was the inspiration for his show Koffee with Karan, is not surprising. To Indians of a certain vintage, the line of descent from Tabassum's popular Doordarshan chat show, Phool Khile Hain Gulshan Gulshan, to Johar's show couldn't be clearer. At a time when mystique was an essential part of the celebrity toolkit, Tabassum nudged her famous guests to let their guard down. Others, like Johar or Simi Garewal, have only followed the path she laid down.

It helped that Tabassum — born Kiranbala — was a Bollywood insider almost from the start. She began acting before she turned three, debuting in the 1947 film Nargis as Baby Tabassum. She took on more mature roles as she grew up, but her biggest success came as an interviewer, where she used her considerable charm to coax revelations out of her celebrity interviewees. With a flower tucked in her hair and her said drawn over both shoulders, she soon came to be as recognisable a figure as some of the stars on her show. Celebrity chat shows have been a mainstay of television since the 1990s. One might argue that Tabassum's gentle interviewing style won't work today. But as much as Tabassum relied on her native charm, she also deployed craft in her interviews. To watch her, for example, draw out a young, painfully shy Nazia Hassan, then still in school, to talk about her aspirations and even sing "Aap jaisa koi", is to get a masterclass in the art of the interview. Tabassum knew how to probe without prying, with conversations that remain, to this day, a pleasure to watch.

Too little, too late

At COP27, the continuing saga of those responsible for the climate emergency refusing to pay to mitigate it

THE 27TH CONFERENCE of Parties (COP-27) to the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change concluded on Sunday, November 20, after the inevitable extension beyond the scheduled closure on Friday. The outcome was underwhelming. The UN Secretary-General had declared at the start of the conference, "We are on a highway to climate hell with our foot still on the accelerator." Post the climate summit, we are still hurtling towards the abyss even if the foot is marginally off the accelerator.

There has been celebration over the agreement, in principle, to set up a fund for compensating vulnerable countries, which have suffered irreversible damage from climate change. This has been a longstanding demand, particularly of vulnerable African and small island developing states. But the funding source and scale of this financial facility and its operating procedures have been left to a transitional committee which will present its report at COP28 next year. Having been through such tortuous negotiations in the past, I see the focus on the loss and damage issue as a clever ploy by developed countries to use up all the oxygen at the summit and deflect attention from the really critical issues, including the repeated failure of the developed countries to own up to their historical responsibility for climate change, their refusal to make deep cuts in their own emissions and deliver on commitments for providing adequate finance and technology to enable developing countries to undertake climate action. On this score, the can has been rolled further down the road.

The Sharm El-Sheikh Implementation Plan is an advance over Glasgow in its more categoric commitment to pursue "efforts to limit the temperature increase to 1.5 degrees centigrade." It acknowledges that such a goal will require "rapid, deep and sustained reductions in global greenhouse gas emissions". Drawing from the latest 6th Assessment Report of the Inter-governmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC), it even quantifies the scale of reduction required by 2030 over the 2019 level – 43 per cent. It fails to mention another finding from the IPCC Report, that global emissions must peak by 2025, barely three years from now. However, the Implementation Plan does not spell out how this ambitious outcome is to be

India depends on imports for 90 per cent of its oil needs and 60 per cent of its natural gas requirements. Even 30 per cent of its coal requirements have to be imported. The sources of supply are in politicallysensitive regions and disruptions can be costly. India has abundant solar energy and recent advances have made green hydrogen a promising source of clean energy. It makes sense for India to engage wholeheartedly in carrying out this energy transition, which will also be a significant contribution to dealing with global climate

achieved. In an astute move, India urged that the COP27 acknowledge the need for a phasing out of all fossil fuels but that was not accepted. Instead, we have a commitment to "low emission pathways", a "phase down of unabated coal" and to the promotion of renewable energy. There is no advance on the Glasgow commitment.

The Implementation Plan closely follows the formulation on the subject included in the G-20 Declaration at Bali, which preceded the climate summit.

The document relating to finance adopted at Sharm El-Sheikh acknowledges that the commitment on the part of developed countries to provide $100 billion annually to support climate action by developing countries from 2015 onwards through 2025 has not been delivered on. There is no quantification yet of the additional financial commitment which must be made in the post-2025 period. While there is a rhetorical acknowledgement of the need for "climate justice", this is not matched by practical action. The energy transition away from fossil fuels requires the investment of massive resources. The question has remained the same over the years — who pays?

The Implementation Plan in its section on finance highlights that "about US$ 4 trillion per year needs to be invested in renewable energy up until 2030 to be able to reach net zero emissions by 2050. And that, furthermore, a global transformation to a low carbon economy is expected to require an investment of at least US$ 4-6 trillion per year". These are figures for both developed and developing countries and are of an unprecedented scale. For developing countries, to enable them to deliver on their nationally determined contributions, the Implementation Plan estimates a figure of $5.8-5.9 trillion in the pre-2030 period. When even a modest figure of $100 billion has not been delivered on since 2015 what hope is there that in an international environment beset by multiple crises, these financial flows will actually materialise?

The Ukraine war and the serious disruptions in energy supply chains have led to a surge in the prices of oil, gas and even coal. There has been backsliding on commitments to shift away from fossil fuels, in particular coal, even among champions of climate change action such as the European Union. Coal-based thermal power is being revived in several countries to deal with acute shortages of oil and gas, though this may be temporary. This points to the complexity of managing the energy transition towards renewables and clean energy. There will be a considerable period when the two energy systems will co-exist and will interact with each other. The transition enhances vulnerabilities and requires efficient and well-run fossil fuel as well as renewable and clean energy systems. The premature retirement of fossil-based energy systems should be avoided even as one accelerates the use of renewable and clean energy. The process must be measured and carefully synchronised. This means that even if resources are available, an accelerated energy transition may not be feasible. The world may have engaged in this transition too little, too late. This demands much greater attention to adaptation than has been the case so far.

Where does that leave India? The imperative of energy security behoves India to undertake a strategic shift from its reliance on fossil fuels to an energy system based on renewable sources of energy and cleaner sources of energy with the most promising being green hydrogen. India depends on imports for 90 per cent of its oil needs and 60 per cent of its natural gas requirements. Even 30 per cent of its coal requirements have to be imported. The sources of supply are in politically-sensitive regions and disruptions can be costly. India has abundant solar energy and recent advances have made green hydrogen a promising source of clean energy. It makes sense for India to engage wholeheartedly in carrying out this energy transition, which will also be a significant contribution to dealing with global climate change.

There are also major opportunities for increasing energy security through enhancing energy efficiency. This too will contribute to addressing global climate change. India did well to preserve its equities at COP27 and in supporting the constituency of developing countries. It is well placed to use its forthcoming chairmanship of the G20 and the Shanghai Cooperation Organisation to take the lead in tackling climate change through its own example.

PEOPLE VERSUS THE STATE

Protests by women are part of broader movement Iran has witnessed over a decade

Deepika Saraswat

THE NATIONWIDE protests in Iran triggered by the death of 22-year-old Mahsa Amini in the custody of Tehran's Morality Police have sustained for over two months. Following the terrorist shooting in Shah-e-Cheragh shrine in Shiraz in October — for which ISIS claimed responsibility - the commander-in-chief of the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps, Major General Hossein Salami, blamed the US, the UK, Israel and Saudi Arabia. He then advised the protesting youth: "Return to the nation, don't play into the hands of enemies." Bot farms and Persian-language media have amplified the regime-change narrative. But by externalising the driving force of protests, Iran's ruling elites cannot wish away the entrenched political, sociocultural conditions that have regularly forced the country's youth to take to the streets.

The Islamic Republic is essentially a hybrid political system, with the "velayate-faqih" (guardianship of jurist(s)) embodying divine sovereignty, while the institutions of the president and parliament represent popular sovereignty. Since the early 1990s, Iranian political culture has been defined by contestation between the conservatives, whose ideological totalitarianism limits political participation for the people to mass mobilisation, and the reformists, who have argued for a freer public sphere and popularised the concepts of civil society and rule of law. However, unelected clerical-dominated institutions asserted control by creating a narrative about a cultural invasion by a hostile West. In 1999, when conservative-controlled courts forced the shutdown of an influential reformist daily Salam, student protests broke out across the country. They lasted six days until the IRGC-affiliated Basij militia and police raided Tehran University dormitories in a violent crackdown. Ten years later, tens of thousands of young Iranians thronged the streets against what they saw as the rigging of elections in favour of hardline president Mahmoud Ahmadinejad. Called the "Green Movement", the slogans of the protest — "Down with the dictator", "Neither Gaza, nor Lebanon", "my life is sacrificed for Iran" — underscored the rise of an avowedly nationalist, post-ideological, and liberal political consciousness among the country's youth. Supreme Leader Avatollah Khamenei had denounced the movement as "fitna", an internal strife orchestrated by external enemies.

While the Islamic Republic has successfully weathered spontaneous popular protests, it has found it harder to deal with what sociologist Asef Bayat has described as "social nonmovements". These embody the shared practices of large numbers of ordinary people, whose fragmented — but similar — actions trigger social change. These practices are rarely guided by ideology or recognisable leadership and organisations.

While the Islamic Republic has successfully weathered spontaneous popular protests, it has found it harder to deal with what sociologist Asef Bayat has described as "social non-movements". These embody the shared practices of a large number of ordinary people, whose fragmented — but similar — actions trigger social change. These practices are rarely guided by ideology or recognisable leadership and organisations. This "non-movement" has thrived in Iran in the last decade. A proliferation of cafes as alternative cultural spaces across major Iranian cities, millions of young women testing the boundaries of state-enforced "Islamic" dress code and the estimated 45 million Instagram users, blurring the line between virtual and reality, attest to the phenomenon. During a trip to Iran in January 2020, I visited a café in Tehran which displayed a portrait of the iconoclast Iranian feminist Forough Farrokhzad next to one of Marilyn Monroe. At another cafe in Shiraz, a mural of Iranian maestro Mohammad-Reza Shajarian shared space with a poster of filmmaker Alfred Hitchcock.

In 2019, the Tehran police shut down over 500 hundred cafes and restaurants for failing to observe "Islamic principles". Last year's presidential election, in which President Ebrahim Raisi faced no serious moderate or reformist rival thanks to the Guardian Council's heavy vetting of candidates, was met with apathy from the majority of youth. The lack of economic prospects and an unresponsive political system may have contributed to militant tendencies among the youth. By pushing the narrative about protests benefiting external enemies, the regime is hoping to appeal to nationalist sentiments, while also justifying its violent crackdown. The protests may eventually die down, but without genuine reforms, Iran's leaders might well be engaging in a temporary firefighting exercise.

THE AKALI DAL is understood to have decided to step up the momentum of both morchas at New Delhi and Amritsar, amidst reports of settlement between the party and the Centre being round the corner. With the Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee president, G S Tohra, a member of the five-man Akali negotiating team, having courted arrest in Delhi, there is no likelihood yet of any settlement with the Akalis.

New frontiers in space

Launch of India's first private rocket signals foray into a field dominated by government. Expansion of private sector's footprint has been complemented by changing contours of international cooperation

THE LAUNCH OF the Vikram S rocket last week has been rightly hailed as an important milestone in India's outer space journey. It is the first privately built Indian rocket to make it to space, and is a result of a major push by Prime Minister Narendra Modi to open up the Indian space programme for greater participation by Indian start-ups.

While the "Prarambh" mission of Vikram is a good beginning, India has much distance to travel before it catches up with the rest of the world in private sector participation in space programmes. The country's private sector has the talent and experience to shorten that distance if Delhi creates the enabling policy environment

When space emerged as an important endeavour in the second half of the 20th century, governments were in the lead. The cost, complexity and research-intensity of the space effort meant the space programmes everywhere became a government monopoly.

But in the 21st century, the role of the private sector has dramatically expanded. Satellites were once owned only by governments but today private companies lead the satellite business. Elon Musk's Starlink satellite system is now a major player with more than 2,300 satellites in low earth orbit — they deliver a variety of space services including useful military information to the armed forces of Ukraine in their fight against Russian

Amazon's Project Kuiper plans to launch more than 3,000 satellites in the coming years to offer a range of services, including broadband internet. This will involve making at least three satellites a day. Airtel in India is a partner in the OneWeb corporation that offers connectivity through its system of nearly 500

 $The \,business\,of \,launch\,vehicles\,-\,the\,most$ demanding of space activities - remained a state monopoly until recently. Elon Musk's SpaceX has broken through that launch monopoly and Amazon's Blue Origin rocket will soon be in the market too.

The private sector's rise has been complemented by growing international cooperation to realise the new commercial possibilities in space. The idea of international cooperation in outer space was indeed codified in the early multilateral treaties. But it was the intense geopolitical competition that shaped the space programmes of the major powers during the Cold War. As the military uses of space expanded, the role of the state in the space programmes became even more significant in the second half of the 20th century.

The US and Soviet space programmes became very important elements of the all-encompassing competition between Washington and Moscow – ideological, political, economic, and military. Both sides engaged in space cooperation with other countries as part of the Cold War strategy of winning friends and influencing nations.

The Cold War rivals – US and the Soviet Union - had also developed bilateral cooperation in space as a demonstration of their desire for peace. Some of that endured until recently, despite the persistent friction between Washington and Moscow

As the Europeans brought their continent together, they joined hands to develop the European Space Agency that now is a major force in outer space. Many other countries, including India, embarked on national space programmes. Delhi's main objective was to leverage outer space to accelerate national development, Eventually, military and commercial dimensions began to envelop the Indian space programme. India's space programme began with intensive cooperation with the Western countries and later with the Soviet Union. Delhi also offered space cooperation to other developing countries within the rubric of engagement with friendly governments.

The non-proliferation sanctions on India after its first nuclear test in 1974 severely constricted the space for the country in international space cooperation. It was only after the historic civil nuclear initiative that the sanctions regime began to ease. India is now part of the Missile Technology Control Regime that regulates commerce in space related commodities and technologies. India is also part of the Wassenaar Arrangement that controls trade in dual use technologies that can be used for both civilian and military purposes.

As India emerged out of its past technological isolation, four new imperatives have presented themselves. One is the growing range of new space possibilities – from using satellites for delivering broadband internet to the mining of the Moon and from space manufacturing to deep space exploration. Put simply, the scale of the global economy is rapidly growing – its value is expected to more than double from about $450 billion in 2022 to nearly one trillion dollars within a decade.

For India, outer space can no longer be about narrowly framed ideas of "development" and "national prestige". It must be about business and economy. The current Indian share of the global space economy is barely 2 per cent. PM Modi has been demanding that India rapidly increase its share to 8 per cent in the coming years.

Second, raising the Indian share of the global space economy can only be done by drawing in the private sector companies to play a larger role. Consider, for example, the large number of private companies involved in the US Artemis project of returning to the Moon. The Artemis 1 rocket was launched last week and the programme involves a number of leading aerospace companies like Boeing, Lockheed, Northrop Grumman, Airbus and

It is not that the Indian private sector had no role in the evolution of India's space programme. Godrej & Boyce, Larsen & Toubro, and Walchandnagar Industries are among the many private sector companies that have contributed to the Indian space programme. The trick for the government is to activate their full mobilisation into the Indian space effort. While startups like Skyroot can bring much needed innovation into space activity, it is only the large corporations that can bring much needed scale to make India an economic powerhouse in space.

Third is the growing weight of international cooperation in national space programmes. If Apollo was a purely national project of the United States, the Artemis programme is a multinational endeavour between the US and its partners, including France, Canada, and Japan.

Meanwhile Russia and China are coming together to collaborate not only on their space programmes, but also on building a joint base on the Moon that will establish long term human presence there.

The US Artemis programme — being developed in partnership with allies and friends – is complemented by an American effort to put together a coalition that will develop principles for peaceful exploration of the Moon and other celestial objects. Cooperation in space has already emerged as an important theme in the discussions among the Quad partners - Australia, India, Japan, and the Jnited States.

India has just about embarked on a programme to enhance the contribution of its private sector in outer space. India is also drawing on foreign capital to support its startups. Singapore's sovereign wealth fund GIC, for example, is a major investor in Skyroot Aerospace that launched the Vikram Srocket.

Many Western aerospace companies will be eager to invest in India's space programme as it begins to open up. Delhi is also coming to terms with the fact that international cooperation is not just an "add-on" to the national space programme, but must be an integral part of India's space strategy.

The Bar and the Bench

Protests over shifting of HC judges suggest need to streamline the process of appointments and transfers

DUSHYANT DAVE

THE CONTROVERSY SURROUNDING the transfers of high court judges, especially from Gujarat and Andhra Pradesh High Courts, once again necessitates a larger debate. Have the learned judges been transferred on an objective basis or on account of subjective material made available to the Supreme Court collegium headed by Chief Justice DY Chandrachud?

I began practising at the Gujarat High Court in 1978 and shifted to New Delhi in 1986. It is obvious, therefore, that I have a strong affinity with that court. The consensus among the members of the High Court of Gujarat Bar appears to be that Justice Nikhil Kariel is a fine, able, independent and honest judge. The Bar feels strongly about his transfer and hence, their efforts to stop it. Their open support to the judge is heartening. In the 1980s, the same Bar strongly protested against the transfer of the late Justice P D Desai of the Gujarat HC to the Himachal Pradesh HC. I, a young lawyer then, supported that protest.

Later, Justice Desai went on to head the high courts of Calcutta and Bombay. In my 44 years as a lawyer, I have not seen a judge comparable to Justice Desai who was extraordinarily competent, hardworking, judicious, fearless, independent, honest and just. So were other outstanding judges of the Gujarat HC — the late Chief Justice B J Divan and Justice SHSheth, who were transferred during the Emergency to the Andhra Pradesh HC and won the hearts of all in that court. But then, these transfers were done by the executive before the celebrated judgment in Supreme Court Advocates-On-Record Associations & Anr. Vs Union of India delivered on October 6, 1993.

So, how is this power of transfer to be exercised, especially when its exercise is not justiciable either to the judge concerned or to a public interest litigant? In his leading judgment, speaking for the ninejudge bench referred to above, Justice J S Verma gave a fundamental justification as follows: "These questions have to be considered in the context of independence of the judiciary as the part of the basic structure of the Constitution, to secure the rule of law, essential for the preservation of democratic system". He called upon all the constitutional functionaries, who are involved in the process of appointing superior judges, to "be fully alive to the serious implications of their constitutional obligations and be zealous in its discharge in order to ensure that no doubtful appointment can be made".

Justice Verma emphasised that the primacy of the CJI and of the HCs was to ensure the best suitability and "to eliminate political influence". He held that "the constitutional purpose to be served by these provisions is to select the best from amongst those available for the appointment as judges of the superior judiciary" and that only such persons should be considered, who "combine the attributes essential for making an able, independent and fearless judge" and having proper personal conduct, ethical behaviour, firmness.

On transfers of HC judges, Justice Verma said "every power vested in a public au $thority\, is\, to\, subserve\, a\, public\, purpose\, and$ must invariably be exercised to promote public interest"... and "this guideline is inherent in Article 222 of Constitution". Article 222 deals with the transfer of a judge from one high court to another by the President after consultation with the CJI. Again, he holds, in the effecting transfers, "the personal factors relating to the judge concerned, and his response to the proposal, including his preference of places of transfer, should be taken into account by the Chief Justice of India before forming his final opinion." But then he emphasised, "that such final opinion must be formed objectively, on the available material, in the public interest for better administration of justice". The CJI, in forming his opinion, is expected to take into account the views of the chief justice of the high court from which the judge is to be transferred, any judge of the Supreme Court whose opinion may be of significance in that case, as well as the views of one other senior judge of the high court or any other person who views are considered relevant by the CJI. In my view, the CJI must always take the views of those senior members of the Bar who in his opinion can express views which may be considered relevant.

The above being declared as law by the Supreme Court, binds the Court itself and particularly the collegium, which exercises power under the Constitution. Clearly, the collegium is bound by the above law and I am sure it has taken the necessary care to follow it. If not done so, the collegium must show courage and reconsider its decision, particularly considering the sentiments of the entire Bar of the high courts of Telangana and Gujarat.

If indeed the judges transferred are fiercely independent as the Bar feels, their transfers will send a chilling message to all those young and competent members of the Bar who may wish to become judges. The desire to protect the independence of the judiciary was the bedrock of the Supreme Court's subsequent decision in 2016 declaring the Constitution (99th Amendment) Act, including Article 124 A of the Constitution — National Judicial Appointments Commission — to be unconstitutional. Yet, time and again, decisions of the collegium have raised serious doubt about their intentions to protect the independence of the judiciary and to select the best from amongst those available, much less to act only to "subserve public purpose and to promote public interest".

Let us hope CJI DY Chandrachud and the learned judges in the collegium, who are much respected, will turn the tide and put the process of appointments and transfer on a just, fair and independent course.

Nepal polls may force India to review policies, cultivate emerging power centres

Yubaraj Ghimire

THE WORLD AT large may not take notice of the one-day general election in Nepal that took place on November 20. The voter turnout was estimated at 61 per cent, which was lower than expected and the results are likely to take days, if not weeks. But a country that is located strategically and is vulnerable to outside pressures and manipulation never truly loses its importance. Nepal's two powerful and competing neighbours have undiminished interests in the country and enjoy fluctuating levels of trust. The United States, now often referred to as a "distant neighbour", will also be interested in the election as it will spell out how stable Nepal's politics will be in the time to come. Depending on which party leads the new government - and may well be a mixedideology coalition - the larger political stakeholders will perhaps need to review their policies and cultivate emerging power centres. India, which has traditionally been a dominant factor in Nepal's politics, will have much to be concerned about.

The monarchy ruled as more or less an absolutist power from 1951-1990, with the brief 18-month exception in starting mid-1960 when the country had its first elected government. This was followed by the 1991-2005 phase of multi-party democracy, when the monarchy had a constitutional role. After that, came the Republic and the left-dominated phases. The latter may have a sort of consistency abroad, including in Indian foreign policy circles, but the different and contradictory orientation of three dominant forces in Nepal the Maoists, other communist parties and Nepali Congress - also make the external world suspicious.

India has indicated that it will be cautiously watching the electoral outcome. It has said so earlier as well, but this time the words seem more sincere as they are matched by a lack of visibility on the ground. The decline of Madhes-centric forces and parties that India credited as the force for the five-month-long border blockade after the last elections (2017), which brought Nepal-India relations to a low ebb, may not make New Delhi happy. Worse, some of them have joined the alliance led by K P Oli, the man India is likely uncomfortable dealing with for reasons that are now wellknown. Oli, chief of the Communist Party of Nepal-United Marxist Leninist, is a potential prime minister in case his alliance - pitted against the one comprising the Nepali Congress and Maoists – wins, Oli, who started his election campaign from Darchula, has stated that he will bring Kalapani, Limpiadhura and Lipulek under Nepal's control.

India lost its traditional allies in Nepal first the monarchy and then Nepali Congress after New Delhi backed the Maoists (calling them true representatives of the future of Nepal) and recently, Madhes forces. The Indian backers of the radical changes in Nepal and their supporters in academia from both countries succeeded in bringing the Maoists — then with an official "terrorist" tag — to the centre of power and politics in Nepal in 2006. Side by side, a narrative was created that the Tarai region – with around 51 per cent population and 17 per cent of the area – was a sort of "colony" of the hill-origin rulers and needed to be "liberated".

The Indian narrative was incorrect as it was based on a belief that the entire Tarai was a homogenous "Indian-origin" entity. This ignored its diversity in terms of ethnicity and caste, including affinities with Bihar and Uttar Pradesh. It also ignored the internal competition and rivalry in the region. The fact that the ancient Janakpur - a Ramayan-era city - and a huge stretch of Mithila was partly in the Tarai is evidence of a common heritage, culture and ancestry. But this does not mean that these regions are the political responsibility of either nation, crossing borders.

India's unprecedented level of involvement in the Tarai, along with the rest of Nepal, and the presence of the western countries in identity and ethnicity-based politics in the post-monarchy phase made Beijing more suspicious than ever. As a result, China enlarged its presence, investment and counter-diplomacy vis a vis India and the West in Nepal. The years that followed saw radical and violent movements in the Tarai region, with some demanding the right to secede. The perceived Indian blockade and visible social and political divide between the hills and plains, often exacerbated by European donors, pitted castes and ethnic groups against each other. This created an environment for proselytization.

In fact, the over-stated "civilisational and cultural" ties between Nepal and India also suffered hugely as the radical change of 2006 undermined the "common culture factor".

Maoist chief Pushpa Kamal Dahal 'Prachanda" shifted his constituency from Chitwan to Gorkha where Guru Gorakhanath, legend has it, blessed King Prithvi Narayan Shah, the architect of the modern and unified Nepal. Gorakhnath was the presiding deity till the monarchy held power. Prachanda has apologised for his cadres vandalising the statue of the great king and insulting the chief priest of the peeth during the insurgency. This has emboldened both pro-monarchy and pro-Hindu politics, which seem to be resurgent.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi recently called for joint action to address radicalisation and extremism. Ironically, India and other external players may well have to work with the beneficiaries of the radicalisation of politics in Nepal. The global community may also need to deal with unstable politics and actors who stand discredited for promising the sky and delivering far less in terms of stability, consolidation of democracy and prosperity.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

WHO WILL PAY?

THIS REFERS TO the editorial, 'Lost opportunity' (IE, November 21). The two week long COP27 summit at Sharm El-Sheikh in Egypt, after a great deal of deliberation, concluded on a happy note. Member countries agreed to set up a global fund to compensate smaller, developing countries that suffer the consequences of climate change through no fault of their own. While this makes for a good first step, unless the modalities are carved out to evaluate and quantify the actual loss or damage incurred to a nation as a result of climate change, and how the payment would be made and by whom, it is too early to celebrate.

Unfair critique

THIS REFERS TO the editorial, 'Cup of joy' (IE, November 21). There is no country today that does not violate human rights or exercise discrimination of one kind or another. The oldest democracy in the world, the US, is probably the worst offender. It is hypocritical to use these parameters to choose the venue for global sporting events. The test for Qatar in hosting the World Cup is how competently it conducts the matches. Moreover, football is played in all the five major continents. Football is a unique leveller, too. Access to the World Cup is no longer limited to large or rich nations. It is time to savour the World Cup and bury the controversies.

WRONG APPROACH

THIS REFERS TO the article, 'The BJP's Muslim outreach' (IE, November 21). It is true that Pasmanda Muslims are amongst the most socially and educationally backward groups in India. However, the divide-and-rule strategy in the BJP's approach towards Muslims would only help it create another votebank. The development of the Muslim community will not be the party's focus. For the community's growth, the Sachar Committee recommendations should serve as guidelines.

CHOOSE WELL

THIS REFERS TO the article, 'Moving ahead in J&K' (IE, November 21). For any political process in J&K to succeed, the people of the state must learn to correctly appreciate the difference between the Indian and Pakistani experiment with political liberty during the last 75 years. The Indian experiment, however faulty, is based on secular notions of identity, while Pakistan still harks back to religion to define its politics. Political maturity is the need of the hour

TELLING NUMBERS

The world's costliest climate change disasters

COP27, THE United Nations Climate Change Conference, closed on Sunday in Sharm El-Sheikh with an agreement to create a landmark "loss and damage fund", in which countries decided to create a fund to help vulnerable nations hit by climate-induced extreme weather events.

Climate change has raised the cost of natural disasters as floods, droughts, and wildfires have become more frequent and more severe. Reuters published a list of the 10 most expensive events of the last decade, based on estimates by risk modelling firm RMS. While the biggest losses are usually in richer countries with more expensive assets, developing countries such as Pakistan, which suffered catastrophic flooding this year, often bear the brunt of extreme weather. Here's a list of the top five disasters, ranked by economic losses — insured and uninsured.

The Thomas Fire in Ventura, California, in Dec 2017. The NYT

CALIFORNIA WILDFIRES 2017-18

After a multi-year drought, numerous fires destroyed more than 100 million trees. The worst fires were the Tubbs Fire of October 2017, and Camp Fire of November 2018

2 ATLANTIC HURRICANES, 2017

Three hurricanes, Harvey, Irma, and Maria devastated parts of Florida, Texas, Puerto Rico, and the Caribbean in August-September

TOTAL LOSSES: $297 BILLION ($125 billion from Harvey)
TOTAL DEATHS: 4,822

3 AUSTRALIAN BUSHFIRES 2019-20

Nearly 11 months of fires affected 80% of Australians and killed or displaced at least 3 billion animals.

TOTAL LOSS: $110 BILLION DEATHS: 34

HURRICANE IAN, SEPT 2022

The hurricane hit southwestern Florida and South Carolina, with a 4-metre high storm surge on the west coast of Florida.

TOTAL LOSS: MORE THAN $100 BILLION DEATHS: 101

5 HURRICANE IDA, AUG 2021

The hurricane hit Louisiana and also brought heavy rain and flooding to New Jersey and New York

TOTAL LOSS: $75 BILLION DEATHS: 107

7. PAKISTAN FLOODS, JUNE-AUG 2022

Intense monsoon rain and unusual heat in the Karakoram Mountains led to unprecedented glacial melt, starting floods on June 14, which displaced 8 million people.

TOTAL LOSS: $40 BILLION | DEATHS: 1,717

ALSO IN TOP 10 LIST: Floods in Germany and Belgium, July 2021 (total losses $40.93 billion, deaths 230); Typhoons Faxai and Hagibis in Japan, Aug-Oct 2019 (total losses $26.1 billion, deaths 85); the European heatwave in summer of 2022 (total losses more than €10 billion, deaths 1,500); Northwestern US and British Columbia, Canada heatwave, June-July 2021 (total losses $8.9 billion, deaths 1,400)

China is set to register an absolute population decline. Its crisis from a dwindling and ageing workforce can be an opportunity for India. But rapid job creation will be key

Rural Urban

TOTAL FERTILITY RATE

HARISH DAMODARAN

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 21

THIS YEAR and the next will see two landmark demographic events. In 2022, China will for the first time register an absolute decline in its population. And in 2023, India's population, projected by the United Nations to reach 1,428.63 million, will surpass China's 1,425.67 million.

The potential economic implications are huge. But the first question to ask is: What has been behind these shifts? There are two primary drivers of population change.

Mortality and fertility

Mortality falls with increased education levels, public health and vaccination programmes, access to food and medical care, and provision of safe drinking water and sanitation facilities. The crude death rate (CDR) — the number of persons dying per year per 1,000 population — was 23.2 for China and 22.2 for India in 1950. It fell to single digits for China first in 1974 (to 9.5) and for India in 1994 (9.8), and further to 7.3-7.4 for both in 2020.

Another mortality indicator is life expectancy at birth. Between 1950 and 2020, it went up from 43.7 to 78.1 years for China and from 41.7 to 70.1 years for India.

Reduction in mortality normally leads to a rising population. A drop in fertility, on the other hand, slows down population growth, ultimately resulting in absolute declines. The total fertility rate (TFR) — the number of babies an average woman bears over her lifetime — was as high as 5.8 for China and 5.7 for India in 1950.

Chart 1 shows how sharply the TFR has fallen for India in the last three decades. Between 1992-93 and 2019-21, it came down from 3.4 to 2; the fall was especially significant in the rural areas. In 1992-93, the average rural Indian woman produced one extra child compared to her urban counterpart (3.7 versus 2.7). By 2019-21, that gap had halved (2.1 versus 1.6).

A TFR of 2.1 is considered as "replacement-level fertility". Simply understood, a woman having two children basically replaces herself and her partner with two new lives. Since all infants may not survive to realise their reproductive potential, the replacement TFR is taken at slightly above two. It ensures that each generation replaces itself.

The next question then is: If India's TFR is already below-replacement, why is its population still increasing?

Sustained lows necessary

The TFR is the average number of births by women aged 15-49 based on surveys for a particular period/year. Populations can keep growing even with TFRs falling. Degrowth requires TFRs to remain below replacement levels for extended periods. The effects of that — fewer children today becoming parents tomorrow and procreating just as much or less — may reflect only after a couple of generations.

1994

China's TFR dipped below replacement first in 1991, which was almost 30 years before India's. Recall that the CDR decline below 10, too, happened two decades earlier for China. Not surprising, China's population more than doubled from 544 million in 1950 to 1.1 billion in 1987 — underpinned by falling CDRs — and continued to grow, peaking at 1,426 million in 2021. It took over 30 years for below-replacement fertility rates to translate into negative population growth.

China faces a crisis...

China's TFR, according to its 2020 Census, up from the 1.2 in the 2010 and 2000 censuses, but way below the replacement rate of 2.1. China officially ended its one-child policy, introduced in 1980, from 2016. The UN, nevertheless, projects its total population at 1.31 billion in 2050, a 113 million-plus drop from the 2021 peak.

The real crisis for China, however, is the

was 1.3 births per woman - marginally

2019-

The real crisis for China, however, is the decline in its population that is of prime working age. The proportion of the population aged between 20 and 59 years crossed 50% in 1987 and peaked at 61.5% in 2011. This period also coincided with high economic growth, with China successfully harnessing the "demographic dividend" that comes from a young labour force. If there is a large population that's able to work and earn, not only will there be relatively fewer people to support — those too old or too young — but also greater tax revenues and savings potential from the generation of incomes. As these are directed to finance investments, a virtuous cycle of growth is unleashed — as indeed it happened in China.

But that cycle has started to reverse, and the share of China's working-age population is projected to fall below 50% by 2045. In absolute terms, the decline would be from a high of 839 million in 2014 to hardly 604 million in 2050. Moreover, the average (median) age of the population, which was 28.9 years in 2000 and 37.4 years in 2020, is expected to soar to 50.7 years by 2050. In short, China faces the prospect of a dwindling labour force having to support a rapidly aging population.

...India has an opportunity

India has just begun seeing fertility rates fall to replacement levels, including in rural areas. The latter has to do with the spread of education — and, perhaps, also farm mechanisation and fragmentation of landholdings. Reduced labour requirement in agricultural operations and smaller holdings make it that much less necessary to have large families working the land.

But even with fertility rate declines, India's population is projected to expand and de-grow only after touching 1.7 billion about 40 years from now. More important is the working-age population: its share in the overall population crossed 50% only in 2007, and will peak at 57% towards the mid-2030s (Chart 2).

In absolute terms, the population aged 20-59 years will increase from 760 million in 2020 to nearly 920 million in 2045. The median age of India's population also will not go up much — from 27.3 years in 2020 to 38.1 in 2050 — adding up to a less depressing prospect than China's.

Overall then, India has a window of opportunity well into the 2040s for reaping its "demographic dividend", like China did from the late 1980s until up to 2015. That is, of course, contingent upon the creation of meaningful employment opportunities for a young population.

Chart 3 shows that agriculture accounted for around 65% of the country's employed labour force in 1993-94. That share fell significantly to 49% by 2011-12. But the trend has slowed, if not reversed, thereafter.

Going forward, the challenge before India's policymakers is to promote growth that generates jobs outside of agriculture. These mustn't merely be in construction and low-paid informal services. The surplus labour from farms should find employment in sectors — manufacturing and modern services — where productivity, value-addition and average incomes are higher. In the absence of such structural transformation, the "demographic dividend" could well turn into a "demographic nightmare".

Jewel theft that derailed Saudi-Thai ties 30 years ago

SHEJI EDATHARA

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 21

SAUDI ARABIA'S Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman met Thailand's prime minister last week and signed agreements to expand diplomatic relations. The relations were restored earlier this year, three decades after a jewellery theft, known as the Blue Diamond Affair, derailed ties between the two nations.

What is the Blue Diamond Affair? In 1989, jewellery and gems were stolen from the palace of Prince Faisal bin Fahd, son of King Fahd of Saudi Arabia, by Kriangkrai Techamong, a Thai worker employed as a servant at the palace. The valuables were worth $20 million and included a rare 50-carat blue diamond, which is still missing, and which has lent its name to the whole affair.

According to media reports from the time, Kriangkrai hid his loot in a large cargo delivery he was sending home to Thailand. Kriangkrai was arrested in January 1990 and sentenced to seven years in prison, but was released after three years as he cooperated with the police and had confessed.

Soon after, much of the loot was retrieved. However, Saudi officials have claimed that many of the recovered jewels were fake. Amidst all this, the investigations took a bloody turn with a series of murders in Thailand. Three Saudi diplomats were shot Thailand. Three Saudi diplomats were shot in Bangkok in February 1990. Weeks later, a businessman close to the Saudi royal family, who had travelled to Bangkok, went missing, and was presumed killed.

In retaliation, Saudi Arabia downgraded its relations with Thailand, resulting in loss of jobs for thousands of Thai migrant workers. The gulf country stopped issuing work visas for Thais and discouraged its citizens from visiting the nation. Diplomatic missions were downgraded to the chargé d'affaires level.

Present Saudi-Thailand relations

The ice was broken in January this year, when Thai Prime Minister Prayut Chan-ocha visited Saudi and held talks with Salman. The two leaders agreed to appoint ambassadors "in the near future".

Saudi Arabia restarted direct flights to Thailand in February. Since January, friendly exchanges have taken place between the two countries, including an agreement between state-owned energy firms Saudi Aramco and Thailand's PTT for cooperation in carbon capture and crude oil sourcing.

Developing Great Nicobar: strategic imperative, ecological concerns

INDIA'S SOUTHERNMOST POINT

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 21

LAST MONTH, the Ministry of Environment, Forest and Climate Change gave environmental clearance for the ambitious Rs 72,000 crore development project on the strategically important Great Nicobar Island. The project is to be implemented in three phases over the next 30 years.

$ 8010440440

The proposal

A "greenfield city" has been proposed, including an International Container Transhipment Terminal (ICTT), a greenfield international airport, a power plant, and a township for the personnel who will implement the project. "The proposed port will allow Great Nicobar to participate in the regional and global maritime economy by becoming a major player in cargo transshipment," the Niti Aayog has said in a report.

The port will be controlled by the Indian Navy, while the airport will have dual military-civilian functions. Roads, public transport, water supply and waste management facilities, and several hotels have been planned to cater to tourists.

Some 130 sq km of forests have been sanctioned for diversion, and 9.64 lakh trees are likely to be felled. Development activities are proposed to commence in the current financial year, and the port is expected to be commissioned by 2027–28. More than 1 lakh new direct jobs and 1.5 lakh indirect jobs are likely to be created on the island over the period of development.

The island

Great Nicobar, the southernmost of the Andaman and Nicobar Islands, has an area of 910 sq km. The Andaman and Nicobar Islands are a cluster of about 836 islands in the eastern Bay of Bengal, the two groups of which are separated by the 150-km wide Ten Degree Channel. The Andaman Islands lie to the north of the channel, and the Nicobar Islands to the south.

most island of the Indonesian archipelago. Great Nicobar is home to two national parks, a biosphere reserve, and the Shompen and Nicobarese tribal peoples, along with ex-servicemen from Punjab, Maharashtra, and Andhra Pradesh who were settled on the island in the 1970s.

The Shompen are hunter-gatherers who depend on forest and marine resources for sustenance. The Nicobarese, who lived along the west coast of the island, were mostly relocated after the 2004 tsunami. An estimated 237 Shompen and 1,094 Nicobarese individuals now live in a 751 sq km tribal reserve, some 84 sq km of which is proposed to be denotified. The approximately 8,000 settlers who live on the island are engaged in agriculture, horticulture, and fishing.

The Great Nicobar Island has tropical wet evergreen forests, mountain ranges reaching almost 650 m above sea level, and coastal plains. Fourteen species of mammals, 71 species of birds, 26 species of reptiles, 10 species of amphibians, and 113 species of fish are found on the island, some of which are endangered. The leatherback sea turtle is the island's flagship species.

The purpose

The island has a lot of tourism potential, but the government's greater goal is to leverage the locational advantage of the island for economic and strategic reasons.

Great Nicobar is equidistant from Colombo to the southwest and Port Klang and Singapore to the southeast, and positioned close to the East-West international shipping corridor, through which a very large part of the world's trade passes. The proposed ICTT can potentially become a hub for cargo ships travelling on this route.

The proposal to develop Great Nicobar was first floated in the 1970s, and its importance for national security and consolidation of the Indian Ocean Region has been repeatedly underlined. Increasing Chinese assertion in the Bay of Bengal and the Indo-Pacific has added great urgency to this imperative in recent years.

The concerns

The proposed massive infrastructure development in an ecologically important and fragile region, including the felling of almost a million trees, has alarmed environmentalists. The loss of tree cover will not only affect the island, it will also lead to increased runoff and sediment deposits in the ocean, impacting the coral reefs in the area, they have cautioned. Environmentalists have also flagged the loss of mangroves. India has translocated a coral reef from the Gulf of Mannar to the Gulf of Kutch earlier. The Zoological Survey of India is currently in the process of assessing how much of the reef will have to be relocated for the project. The government has said a conservation plan for the leatherback turtle is also being put in place.

According to the government, expediting the project is of paramount security and strategic importance. Officials said after the grant of stage I clearance on October 27, all aspects will be weighed before final approval.

The project site is outside the eco-sensitive zones of Campbell Bay and Galathea National Park. The Centre has said that the development area is only a small percentage of the area of the island and its forest cover. At least 162 dead as earthquake topples houses in West Java

ASSOCIATED PRESS CIANJUR, NOVEMBER 21

A POWERFUL earthquake killed at least 162 people and injured hundreds on Indonesia's main island on Monday. Terrified residents fled into the street, some covered in blood and debris.

Many of the dead were public-school students who had finished their classes for the day and were taking extra lessons at several Islamic schools when they collapsed, West Java Governor Ridwan Kamil said as he announced the new toll in the remote, rural area

The toll is expected to rise further, but no estimates were immediately available because of the area's far-flung, rural population. Roughly 175,000 people live in the town of Cianjur, part of a mountainous district of the same name with over 2.5 million people. Known for their piety, the people of Cianjur live mostly in towns of one- and two-story buildings and in smaller homes in the surrounding countryside.

Kamil said over 13,000 people whose homes were heavily damaged were taken to evacuation centres. Emergency workers treated the injured on stretchers and blankets outside hospitals, on terraces and in parking lots in the Cianjur region, about three hours drive from the capital, Java. The injured, including children, were given oxygen masks and IV lines. Some were resuscitated.

"I fainted. It was very strong," said Hasan, a construction worker who, like many Indonesians, uses one name. "I saw my friends running to escape from the building. But it was too late to get out and I was hit by the wall.'

Residents, some crying and holding their children, fled damaged homes after the magnitude 5.6 quake shook the region in West Iava province in the late afternoon, at a depth of 10 km. It also caused panic in the greater Jakarta area, where high-rises swayed and some people evacuated.

Twenty-five people were still stuck buried in the debris in Cijedil village, National Disaster Mitigation Agency spokesman Abdul Muhari said earlier in the day. Several landslides closed roads around the Cianjur district. Among the dozens of buildings that were damaged was a hospital, the agency said. Power outages were reported. Five or six top Generals in race to succeed General Bajwa

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ISLAMABAD, NOVEMBER 21

PAKISTAN DEFENCE Minister Khawaja Asif said on Monday that the process of appointment of the next Army chief has started and would be completed by November 25, with five or six top generals in the race to succeed incumbent General Qamar Javed Bajwa. "The process for appointment of the highest posts of Army has started from Monday. By the grace of God, it will be completed soon, by fulfilling all Constitutional requirements," Asif tweeted.

Under the Pakistan Army Act (PAA) 1952, the Ministry of Defence (MoD) should issue the 'discharge summary' of the incumbent Chief of Army Staff (COAS) to pave the way for the appointment of his successor.

Gen. Bajwa, 61, is scheduled to retire on November 29 after a three-year extension. He has ruled out seeking another extension.

Separately, the defence minister said a formal recommendation having the names of five or six top three-star generals would be sent by the defence ministry to the Prime Minister's Office.

The minister also said that there was no deadlock over the appointment of the Army chief. There is no deadlock. Once the summary is received, then a discussion will be held," he said.

Senior Russian official warns of possible nuclear accident at Ukraine plant

AGENCIES

LONDON, NOVEMBER 21

THE HEAD of Russia's state-run atomic energy agency, Rosatom, warned on Monday there was a risk of a nuclear accident at the Zaporizhzhia nuclear power plant, Europe's largest, following renewed shelling over the weekend. Renewed shelling on Sunday triggered fresh fears of a possible disaster at the site. "The plant is at risk of a nuclear accident. We were in negotiations with the IAEA all night," Interfax quoted Rosatom CEO Alexei Likhachev as saying. The IAEA has called for the creation of a security zone around the plant, something Likhachev said would only be possible if it was approved by the US. "I think the large distance between Washington and Zaporizhzhia should not be an argument for the US to delay the decision on a security zone,' Interfax quoted him as saying.

The Rosatom head also said it appeared Kyiv was willing to "accept" a "small nuclear accident" at the nuclear power station ities are evacuating civilians from recently liberated sections of the Kherson and Mykolaiv regions, fearing that a lack of heat, power and water due to Russian shelling will make conditions too unlivable this winter. The move came as rolling blackouts on Monday plagued most of the country.

Authorities urged residents of the two southern regions to move to safer areas in the central and and western parts of the country, Ukrainian Deputy Minister Vereshchuk said Monday. The government will provide transportation, accommodations and medical care, she added.

INVESTIGATORS FILED murder and hate crimes charges on Monday against the suspect accused of shooting up an LGBTQ nightclub in Colorado Springs on Saturday night, killing five peo-club's owners. Police on Monday were expected to release more details about the weekend shooting in what rights advocates suspect was a hate crime.

Local authorities identified the suspect as Anderson Lee Aldrich, 22, who was arrested last year after a nearly four-hour standoff with local sheriff's deputies for allegedly making a bomb threat against his mother.

Multiple firearms were found at the scene of the brief but deadly

Two Iranian actors arrested for removing hijab, joining protests

CORA ENGELBRECHT NOVEMBER 21

THE SECURITY forces in Iran have arrested two prominent actresses, Hengameh Ghaziani and Katayoun Riahi, for removing their head scarves and participating in the anti-government protests that have swept the country for the past two months, according to state-run news media.

The government charged the actresses with "collusion with the intention of acting against the state security" and "propaganda against the state," IRNA, Iran's state-run news agency, said on Sunday. The arrests came after both women were seen in public without wearing a head scarf, or hijab — defying the stringent dress code that the Iranian government enforces for women.

Anger over those rules and their enforcement has fueled the recent protests in Iran, which were kindled by the death of Mahsa Amini, a young Iranian Kurdish woman.

Ghaziani and Riahi are among a group of high-profile Iranians, including artists, musicians, athletes and activists, who have publicly supported the movement since mid-September.

latest in a wider attempt by the government to quash the uprising, which has continued for two months in dozens of cities across Iran and has been fueled largely by the thousands of women on the streets week after week.

her personal Instagram account on Saturday, Ghaziani, 52, denounced the government for their crackdown on the young people who have joined the demonstrations. "How many children, teenagers and young people have you killed — is it not enough with the bloodshed?" she said in her post. "I hate you, and your historical reputation." "This may be my last post," she added.

Ghaziani was arrested the next day, hours after upload-

In a statement posted to ing another video, from the streets of Tehran, in which she is seen staring defiantly into the camera with no head covering before turning her back and tving a ponytail in her hair. "From this moment on, whatever happens to me, know that I will be with the people of Iran until my last breath," she wrote in the post.

Ghaziani was taken to the prosecutor's office hours later by security personnel, who said that the charges against her included "communication with opposition and counterrevolutionary media," according to IRNA.

Riahi, 60, who was also arrested on Sunday, removed her hijab publicly in mid-September for an interview with the TV channel Iran International in which she said she had always opposed the law and was ready "to show the truth." Security forces arrested her at her villa in Qazvin, northwest of Tehran, according to the semiofficial news agency Tasmin.

Some 15,000 Iranians have been arrested and several hundred have been killed, according to rights groups.

Rasna founder Areez Khambatta passes away

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA NEW DELHI, November 21

THE RASNA Group on Monday said its founder and Chairman Areez Pirojshaw Khambatta has passed away

Khambatta, 85, who was also the Chairman of Areez Khambatta Benevolent Trust and Rasna Foundation, passed away on Saturday, a statement from the group said. He was also the former Chairman of WAPIZ (World Alliance of Parsi Irani Zarthostis) and past President of Ahmedabad Parsi Panchayat, Vice President of the Federation of Parsi Zoroastrian Anjumans of India.

"Khambatta has contributed immensely to Indian industry, business, and most importantly societal development through social service." the statement said.

Khambatta is known for creating the iconic home-grown beverage brand Rasna, which is sold at 1.8 million retail outlets in

PRE-BUDGET CONSULTATIONS

India Inc suggests I-T cuts, job creation, capex boost

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 21

KICKSTARTING THE pre-Budget consultations with industry and other sectoral experts, Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Monday held meetings with industry chambers and experts on infrastructure and climate change. Focus on job creation, rationalisation of income tax slabs to boost consumption demand, privatisation of public sector units and increasing allocation for capital expenditure were some of the key suggestions made by industry chambers in the meetings, which

It also suggested focusing on job generation by proposing employment-linked incentive schemes for employment intensive sectors along with pilots in metro cities for urban employment guarantee schemes. "The external scenario is likely to stay unfavourable for some time. Hence, we must broad-base our domestic economy by creating new sectors of growth and driving employment generation to boost domestic demand, inclusion, and growth," CII president Sanjiv Bajaj said. Going forward, to provide tax certainty to businesses, the corporate tax rates should be maintained at the current levels, he said adding "further simplification, rationalisation, ease of paying taxes, and reducing tax litigation should be key priorities." Industry body PHDCCI also submitted its suggestions for the Budget virtually suggesting a fivepronged strategy to revitalise the private investments through measures to enhance consumption, increase capacity utilisation nomic growth

"The Union Budget 2023-24 is being presented at a crucial juncture of geo-political uncertainties, high inflation and slowing world economic growth. At this juncture. calibrated steps to enhance domestic sources of growth would be crucial to maintain the steady economic growth trajectory," said Saket Dalmia, president, PHD Chamber of Commerce and Industry (PHDCCI).

JATINGROVER NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 21

IN ORDER to achieve its target of monthly average revenue per user (Arpu) of Rs 200 within the current fiscal, Bharti Airtel has embarked on a market testing initiative. The country's second-largest telecom service provider has raised the entry-level tariff in two circles - Haryana and Odisha - by a massive 57 per cent. Accordingly, the starting tariff package (24 days) for 2G subscribers in these two circles is now Rs 155 from the earlier Rs 99.

During the July-September quarter, Bharti's Arpu had seen a jump of 3.8 per cent quarter-onquarter to Rs 190, which is higher than Jio's Rs177.2 and Vodafone

Bharti wants to test the market with this move and if it sees users upgrading to the Rs 155 pack instead of leaving the network, it is likely to hike the same across other circles in one go or in a staggered manner, sources aware of rose the highest in the Asia Pacific region in JulyIn terms of subscriber base, Haryana and Odisha comprise 4.8 per cent of Bharti's total user base with 2G users making 33 per cent of the total user base the developments told FE.

Bharti had done a similar market-testing exercise in November 2021 when it increased its minimum recharge offer from Rs 79 to Rs 99 in select circles.

Haryana and Odisha circles together contributed 4.4 per cent of Bharti' adjusted gross revenue during the April-June quarter. In terms of subscriber base, the two circles comprise 4.8 per cent of Bharti's total user base with 2G users making 33 per cent of the total user base. The adjusted gross revenue(AGR) figures for the July-September quarter are yet to be released by the Telecom Regulatory Authority of India.

According to analysts, the risks are minimal because the starting tariffs at Reliance Jio, which is Bharti's closest competitor, also starts at Rs 155.

Further, since Jio is a fully 4G network, a 2G subscriber moving from Bharti needs to upgrade to a new handset (JioPhone). This leaves Vodafone Idea where the entry-level tariff is at Rs 99. However, analysts said that the threat of losing users is slim because if Bharti's strategy works, there is every likelihood that Vodafone Idea may follow suit as it needs to improve its Arpu.

"Bharti has taken a calculated risk to check how customers respond, and this pack is largely being sold to 2G customers only. It does not impact the remunerative 4G customers. Besides, peers cannot take advantage of the situation to poach its 4G customers," analysts at ICICI Securities said.

Analysts are not sure at this point whether Bharti would hike tariffs on its 4G packs following

SOCIAL WATCH —

Why Elon Musk restored Trump's Twitter account

SOUMYARENDRA BARIK NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 21

TWITTER HAS reinstated Donald Trump's account on the basis of a poll run by its new owner Elon Musk, where users on the social media platform voted - by a slim majority – to lift a ban on the former US president placed more than a year ago. The account restoration took place despite Musk admitting that the user poll results were being affected by automated bots.

Trump's replatforming on Twitter by means of a user poll came despite Musk's earlier insistence that the comeration council and "no major content decisions or account reinstatements will happen before that council convenes". So far, it is unclear whether the council has been formed.

Why was Trump banned from Twitter?

Twitter banned Trump after the January 6 attack on the US Capitol last year saying his posts were "highly likely to encourage and inspire people to replicate the criminal acts that took place at the US Capitol". He was subsequently also banned from Facebook, Instagram and YouTube after the riot. It was an overnight reversal of the tech companies' policy on Trump, and other political leaders, which has largely been one of symbiotic association. Most of these companies thrive around the amplification of spectacle, as Prof Ramesh Srinivasan of the Department of Information Studies at UCLA puts it. Trump, provided the spectacle almost daily, allowing platforms such as Twitter the chance to amplify it for assured traffic. In banning him, Twitter and

Facebook clearly responded to growing calls for coercive action against them for having allowed the President to peddle lies and hate on their platforms

Why was Trump's Twitter account restored?

On Saturday (November 19), Musk started a poll on Twitter, asking if Trump's account should be reinstated. The poll received over 15 million responses, with a slim maiority of 51.8 per cent accounts saving that his account should be restored. However, it is worth noting that by Musk's own admission, over 134 million people saw the poll. meaning that only about 11 per cent of them participated in it. Full report on www.indianexpress.com

Rupee trade with Russia: Nod to HDFC Bank, Canara

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 21

IN A bid to facilitate rupee trade with Russia, the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) has approved the opening of special vostro accounts by two more lenders, HDFC Bank and Canara Bank, according to media reports. Irdai chief meets insurance CEOs to review industry performance

MUMBAI, NOVEMBER 21

IRDAI CHAIRMAN Debasish Panda met CEOs of some general insurers, including health insurers, in Mumbai to review the performance of the industry and seek ideas from the leaders to improve insurance penetration in the country.

Unlike earlier meetings, titled 'Bima Manthan' where Panda had met CEOs of the entire industry, with elaborate agenda, there was no pre-set agenda for the meeting and select CEOs of general insurance industry, mostly Mumbai based, were invited for it last week

"This meeting was for general update and to review general industry performance in terms of growth, loss ratio, claim settle- tration in the country. IRDAI in the last few months and as an industry what else can be done to improve penetration and market growth," said a CEO of a company who had attended the meeting.

The discussion had focused on penetration and what all is required from the regulator to push reforms in the industry, said another CEO, adding emphasis was on how to provide more products and expand distribution reach.

Panda, after taking over as the chairman of the IRDAI in mid-March, has been unveiling extensive plans and changes across the functioning of the industry promoting the ease of doing business, technology and insurance pene-two decades of opening up, the sector is quite low on global standards and set a high target of 2.52 per cent penetration and Rs 11.73 lakh crore of premium for the industry by FY 2027-28.

The general insurance industry ended FY 2021-22 with a total premium of Rs 2.20 lakh crore and it has to grow at 40 per cent annually to achieve targets set by the IR-DAI. Several plans like reducing minimum capital and allowing smaller insurance firms in the country need amendments in the Insurance Act.

Now, the industry is keenly waiting whether these amendments can go through in the winter session of the parliament.

Essar concludes sale of port, infra assets for ₹16,500 crore ArcelorMittal Nippon Steel India

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU MUMBAI. NOVEMBER 21

ESSAR GROUP Monday said it has concluded sale of its two port assets and a power plant to ArcelorMittal Nippon Steel India Limited (AM/NS India) for $2.05 billion, or Rs 16,500 crore.

The sale consisted of infra assets which include a 270 MW power plant and 25 MPTA port at Hazira, Gujarat and a 12 MPTA port at Paradip, Odisha. An agreement for this transaction was signed by both the companies in August this year.

"Essar Ports & Terminals Ltd (EPTL) and Essar Power Ltd (EPL) today concluded the $2.05 billion (Rs16,500 crore) sale of captive ports and power assets located in and Paradip to monetisation programme and completed the debt repayment of $25 billion (Rs 2 lakh crore) effectively making the group debt-free from Indian banks and financial institutions," said Prashant Ruia, director, Essar Capital.

Ltd (AM/NS)," Essar said in a state-"Essar has concluded its asset

"Owning these strategically located assets also supports our recently announced decision to proceed with a Rs 60,000 crore capacity expansion plan at Hazira, including the ability for AM/NS India to realise additional synergies from rising throughput at the port assets in both Gujarat and Odisha," AM/NS India chief executive officer Dilip Oommen said.

India will face some slowdown, says HDFC chairman Parekh

ENSECONOMIC BUREAU MUMBAI, NOVEMBER 21

DESPITE REMAINING among the fastest growing major economies, it is not decoupled from the world, HDFC Ltd Chairman Deepak Parekh said on Monday. He believes the country can grow from a $3.4 trillion economy to a $7.5 trillion economy within the next 5 years. "India is not decoupled from the world and India too will face some slowdown. But there is a consensus across the board that India will still remain amongst the fastest growing major economies in the world," Parekh said, while addressing the World Congress of Accountants.

Many countries are facing recession fears as central banks across the globe are tightening their monetary policies to tame high inflation.

INDIA'S GDP GROWTH

■ India can grow from a $3.4 trillion economy to a $7.5 trillion economy within the next 5 years, said Deepak Parekh

India's GDP growth for 2022 may be slightly lower than 7 per cent but that is no reason for disappointment, Parekh said, adding is the inherent resilience that is global backdrop, India currently s among the very few countries globally that has more tailwinds than headwinds.

tion against stalling global growth," he noted.

that, "What is important to note now embedded in the Indian economy.' He said amidst an uncertain

"India is a conspicuous excep-

port, by 2031, the country's per capita income is expected to rise from $2,300 currently to $5,200, share of services in GDP to grow from 55 per cent to 64 per cent

As per a recent research reand the domestic stock market could be the third largest with a market cap of $10 trillion, he said.

The number of households with $35,00 per annum would rise five-fold from 5 million currently to 25 million by 2031, he added.Speaking on the global monetary tightening, Parekh said for central banks the world over, price stability is critical, and so there is a spate of rate hikes. Monetary policy actions are likely to continue to follow the 'higher for longer' mantra,"This means prolonged high inflation along with aggressive interest rate hikes as they endeavour to tighten money supply and restore price stability," he said.

Will India give Malik and Samson a chance in final T20?

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

NAPIER, NOVEMBER 21

A DRASTIC change in approach is need of the hour for India but question remains if the likes of Umran Malik and Sanju Samson will be tested in third and final T20 against New Zealand here on Tuesday.

India were expected to try out a bunch of players after another World Cup debacle but if the team combination for the second T20 was any indication, they seemed reluctant to start with a clean slate

Take out the individual brilliance of Suryakumar Yadav, the team would have struggled to post 160 on Sunday, a grim reminder of its travails in the World Cup Down Under. India's powerplay approach has been a major concern. Rishabh Pant was tried at the top with Ishan Kishan in the second game but the move did not work. Considering Pant's class, one can expect him to fire in the Samson is another batter who can make instant impact but the team did not start with him. Going by skipper Hardik Pandya's post match comments, the management is unlikely to make too many changes for the third T20. India lead the series 1-0 with the series opener washed out.

"I don't know (about changes for the next game). I'd like to give everyone in the squad a chance but it's just one more game, so it's a bit tough," said Hardik, who is seen as the next full captain in the shortest format.

Shubman Gill was in the running for opening too in the absence of senior players but the team went ahead with two left-handers. He is likely to get his chances only in the ODI series to follow. Pandya is keen on having more batters who can bowl in the playing eleven and Deepak Hooda has given him one option. However, the biggest disappointment was the non-inclusion of Umran Malik in the first game. It has been proved that there is a pressing needed for an out and out pace bowler in T20 cricket and the New Zealand series is crucial to the development of the Jammu and Kashmir-based tearaway pacer.

In Jasprit Bumrah's absence, Malik, who played three T20s earlier this year, should be exposed to the pressure of playing a top team and given a long run. Playing his first game in a while, Yuzvendra Chahal showed why he should be a regular in the team but fellow wrist spinner Kuldeep Yadav might only get to play the ODIs. Facing a must win scenario, New Zealand will take the field without their skipper Kane Williamson who will miss the game to due to a pre-arranged medical ap-

TN batter N Jagadeesan slams five tons in five Vijay Hazare Trophy games

VENKATA KRISHNA B NOVEMBER 21

LAST TUESDAY as the news filtered in that Chennai Super Kings had decided to release N Jagadeesan was on his way to the second of his five hundreds. On Monday, he would slam 277 against Arunachal Pradesh in the 50-over Vijay Hazare Trophy in Bengaluru but he remembers that second hundred (168) against Goa just after the CSK news.

A special message slid down his WhatsApp. It was from the Australian and CSK veteran Mike Hussey. "He sent a lovely congratulatory message and asked me to keep going. Hopefully, there is more in store," Jagadeesan tells The Indian Express.

The CSK jolt had woken him up, he says. "You do start thinking about it. But it was good in a way to be honest as it gave me a new perception as to where I should improve my game. I was actually very happy about how I handled it," he says. Jagadeesan started with 114 against Andhra and followed it up with 107 vs Chhattisgarh, 168 vs Goa, 128 vs Haryana before making a headline-making 277 against Arunachal Pradesh on Monday to surpass Kumar Sangakkara, Alviro Petersen, Devdutt Padikkal. En route, he combined with Sai Sudarshan to stitch 416 runs for the first wicket (another world record).

To say no batter has come close to frustrating the selectors and the Tamil Nadu team management in recent times would be an understatement. From being touted as the next big thing, in Chennai's league cricket circles, Jagadeesan was now being referred to as the second innings batter." It was a dig at his habit of making runs when the outcome of the match was more or less decided.

The only other time Jagadeesan trended on social media, prior to his accomplishments on Monday, was back in June. In a TNPL fixture, after being run-out at the non-striker's end for backing-up far, he showed his middle-finger to state team-mate Baba Aparajith.

And as he endured another disappointing Syed Mushtaq Ali T20 outing where he tallied only 118 runs in six innings, Chennai Super Kings released him back into the auction pool earlier this week. One-by-one the doors were being shut on a talented player and the last one by CSK, must have been especially hurting as he represents Vijay CC, a First Division team owned by India Cements under whose umbrella CSK is part of. "Over the moon and relieved," is how AG Guruswamy, Jagadeesan's coach, feels just minutes after his ward wrote his name into history books. The 70-year-old has been coaching Jagadeesan at the SNR College

N Jagadeesan hit 277 against Arunachal Pradesh on Monday.

PREVIOUS RECORDS

2008-09: Virat Kohli (DELHI) 2020-21: Devdutt Padikkal (KAR) 2020-21: Prithvi Shaw (MUM) 2021-22: Ruturaj Gaikwad (MAHA) -All had four hundreds in a season

Grounds ever since he was an eight-year-old. "I've been waiting for this for a long time... not the five hundreds or world record, but just to see him score again. He was under pressure before he left and if he had failed in the opening game, he may have been dropped. But he has made the opportunity count," the coach told this newspaper.

Before the tournament began, Jagadeesan dashed off to Coimbatore to cut all the noise. With a strong family support - his father Rajan Narayanan has even prepared a wicket on the terrace of one of their properties -Jagadeesan would slowly regain the confidence back. And Guruswamy would suggest one most important thing. "The boy has always had a good work ethic. But it looked like too many cooks had spoiled him. So it was hard to find where he was going wrong. But when we dug deeper, we found that he was looking to improve his T20 strike-rate (118.61) to 150 and above. Now, that is not his game. So we told him to forget about that for the time being and look to get back to runs," Guruswamy added. "The T20 influence was there to see. He was taking power-hitting training and it is bound to have affected other aspects of the game. So before the tournament, all that he did was to play the defensive shots and play as close to the body. That is a non-negotiable for an opener. It was all about getting the basics right... I know it is a cliché, but it is what it is," Guruswamy says. When he boarded the flight to Bengaluru for the Vijay Hazare Trophy campaign, everyone including the opener knew that he was on borrowed time as the selectors were sharpening the axe.

And having seen the fitness parameters, during the middle of the recent IPL, Jagadeesan even converted into a non-vegetarian as he didn't want to miss out on anything extra. It is something that came totally out of the blue for his parents, and while they agreed to it, it came with a condition. "We never stopped him. If it is going to improve his fitness, then why not. The only condition from his Amma was, he shouldn't eat nonveg at home.'

It isn't an easy ask by any means to try meat, something Jagadeesan hasn't been fond of since childhood. "I just depends on how you think about it. When I started, I felt it was going to make me better and obviously when I'm in that sort of mindset, it is going to be easy to adapt. You have to keep learning new things to make you better and food, diet is just another aspect," Jagadeesan says.

Fans face problems entering the stadium

PROBLEMS with FIFA's mobile application for World Cup tickets caused hundreds of fans to miss the start of England's match against Iran on Monday. Fans said their tickets had disappeared from their phone apps and lines began to form outside the Khalifa International Stadium about an hour before the 4 p.m. kickoff in Doha. Although some fans had their ticket purchase verified with email checks, others appeared to have been sent to the stadium without further checks. The lines cleared at a ticketing help desk about 30 minutes into the game. It was unclear if each ticket holder's problem was resolved or if fans had simply been sent in to see the game.

Qatari police push back crowds at fan zone

THE fan zone set up in central Doha turned into a chaotic scene on Sunday the opening day of the World Cup as tens of thousands of fans pushed and shoved against police lines to enter the venue. Fans were trying to enter the enclosed area that contains a big-screen television for viewing matches, places to buy beer, and little else. Riot police armed with batons and shields stood guard at the entrance. Some fans pleaded with officers to let them through the line.

Ronaldo defends tell-all TV interview

CRISTIANO Ronaldo is unfazed by the drama created by his explosive pre-World Cup interview on British TV and maintained Monday the atmosphere in Portugal's squad was "excellent" heading into the tournament.

an impromptu news conference at Portugal's training base in the outskirts of Doha where he attempted to quell any concerns his tell-all interview with Piers Morgan published last week had affected squad morale.

Ronaldo said. "I don't have to worry about what others think. I am totally convinced this won't have any influence

Teams nix One Love armbands

THE captains of England, Wales, Belgium, the Netherlands, Switzerland, Germany and Denmark will not wear 'OneLove' armbands at the World Cup under pressure from FIFA, their associations said in a joint statement on Monday.

FIFA has threatened to issue yellow cards to any player wearing the multi-coloured armband which was introduced to support diversity and inclusion. England captain Harry Kane spoke on Sunday of his desire to wear the armband in Monday's Group B opener against on the national team. Every player, manager, president and kit man, they all know who I am, what I think. They know me since I was 11 years old. They won't be influenced by what people say or write." Manchester United is weighing up how to deal with Ronaldo in the wake of an interview the club didn't sanction, which contained criticism of the attitude of some of his teammates.

Valencia injury not serious, says coach

ENNER Valencia, Ecuador's all-time top scorer and hero of their opening game win over World Cup hosts Qatar, should be fit for their second Group A game against the Netherlands on Friday, according to his coach. The 33-year-old, who lived up to fans' nickname of "Superman" with both goals in the South Americans' 2-0 win on Sunday night, limped off in the second half, triggering fears his tournament might be over despite the blistering start. "I have some discomfort in my knee and ankle. The doctors will assess and see how serious it is," Valencia said. "I hope to play in the second game against Holland."

FIFA has rejected the Belgium soccer team's away strip because of the word "Love" in the collar combined with a rainbow-coloured trim on the shirt, a spokesperson for the Red Devils said on Monday. The design was inspired by the fireworks of Belgian's famous music festival Tomorrowland and stands for diversity, equality and inclusivity.

SHOWCASE GAME IN A NUTSHELL GROUP C

Argentina vs Saudi Arabia

3:30 PM IST, Lusail Stadium (LIVE ON SPORTS 18 AND JIO CINEMA)

The script

ARGENTINA'S FORM has been the stuff of dreams. They haven't lost a game since 2019. Under Lionel Scaloni, Argentina have one of their more talented squads in recent years. The trio of Angel di Maria, Lautaro Martinez and Lionel Messi will be a problem for the best teams and the Saudi Arabia game should be a breeze.

How they'll line up

Argentina: 4-3-2-1

While an attacking line-up is commonplace at this World Cup, it is the lack of key midfield options for many contending teams that could be their downfall. Not for Argentina though, as they play through Rodrigo de Paul and Leandro Parades, who play for Atletico Madrid and Juventus respectively. They are key to allowing Argentina to play through the middle and not rely on their wings – positions where they are weaker than other

Likely XI: E Martinez; Molina, Otamendi, Romero, Tagliafico; Rodriguez, Parades, De Paul; Di Maria, Messi; L Martinez

Saudi Arabia: 4-2-3-1

Low defensive blocks are going to be Saudi Arabia's best friend come Tuesday. One four-man defensive wall, behind a four-man midfield that protects the backline is the best option that Saudi Arabia have against an Argentine team that has the ability to pile on the goals. Hitting Argentina on the counter is key for Saudi success. Likely XI: Al-Owais; Al-Burayk, Al-Amri, Al-Bulahyi, Al-Shahrani; Kanno, Al-Malki: Al-Shehri, Al-Faraj, Al-Dawsari; Al-Buraikan

The schemer

If Saudi Arabia score on Tuesday against Argentina, it will likely be through Salem Al-Dawsari. Predominantly a left winger, Al-Dawsari enjoyed a resurgence when he started occupying the role of a second striker. His battle with, say, Nicolas Otamendi could be one to look forward to. Al-Dawsari has scored 15 goals and made six assists in 31 games, making him Al Hilal's top goal contributor in 2021-22.

Qatar finally witnesses a contest, Dutch two shades better than Senegal

ANIL DIAS NOVEMBER 21

Netherlands 2-0 Senegal

A CURLING cross, a superbly-timed run and a glancing header. That's all it took for The Netherlands to turn the tide in their favour and win their opening FIFA World Cup match against Senegal 2-0 on Monday.

Frenkie de Jong seemed to be struggling the entire match since missing a great opportunity in the 19th minute. He was struggling with his positioning and a style of play he is not accustomed to. But he did what he does best, though it came late, in the 84th

With Senegal pushing deeper and deeper, De Jong had the ball at the edge of the Senegal box, with plenty of space around him. Instead of going for a shot, he perfectly picked out Cody Gakpo's run, playing in a brilliantly-weighted, curling, teasing cross. Gakpo, who timed his run to perfection, connected with a glancing header past the onrushing Edouard Mendy from the edge of the six-yard box to give his team the lead.

Super substitute Davy Klaassen then put the game beyond doubt deep in injury time (90+9) by making the most of an error from Mendy. A shot from Barcelona man Memphis Depay, who also came off the bench, was parried into the path of Klaassen who made no mistake, striking it home on the follow-up. A lot was expected of 23-year-old Gakpo and he managed to live up to the expectations in some style. The 6ft 2in winger, whose father is from Togo and whose mother played rugby for the Netherlands, made a decisive run into the box to get the opener, but it was his decision to stay at PSV at the start of the season is what sees him reap rewards.

With Manchester United, Southampton and Leeds all circling, he sought the counsel of Netherlands manager Louis van Gaal. Van Gaal advised Gakpo that in a World Cup year he should prioritise minutes at PSV over the unpredictability of the Premier League.

Gakpo decided to stay and has become an indispensable member of the Netherlands squad with a remarkable return of 13 goals and 17 assists so far for PSV this season, the leading combined tally out of any player in the Premier League, Serie A, LaLiga, Bundesliga, Ligue 1 and Eredivisie.

After two one-sided games in the tournament, it finally seemed like the World Cup properly began. The Netherlands have bigger names on paper but Senegal, who were on a high after their Africa Cup of Nations triumph earlier this year, troubled the Dutch defence marshalled by the ever-imposing, no-nonsense Virgil Van Dijk.

Senegal have had a fairytale 2022 which began by them beating Mohamed Salah's Egypt on penalties to win the AFCON for the first time. They then had to do it again in their World Cup qualification match. Coached by Aliou Cisse, captain of the team which shocked world champions France at the 2002 World Cup, Senegal have great group o players. They have goalkeeper Mendy and his Chelsea teammate Kalidou Koulibaly who is a strongman in defence. Their midfielders Nampalys Mendy of Leicester City and Idrissa Gueye of Everton make Senegal a force to reckon with.

Of course, there's nobody as experienced and talismanic as Bayern Munich star Sadio Mane. A tibia injury means his World Cup was over before it started, the toughest blow that Senegal had to deal with yet, especially since he was inspirational and instrumental in them reaching the World Cup.

With Mane injured, it was Watford hero Ismaila Sarr, who was shouldering Senegal's attacking responsibilities. And he was an extremely imposing figure, troubling the might of Van Dijk and Matthijs de Ligt.

But Mane's absence was felt. Senegal made ample spaces and created a myriad of chances but lacked that final finish which Mane is known for. While Netherlands will breathe a sigh of relief, knowing that they've just about managed to escape with a win, Senegal will have to find their flourish in front of goal against Qatar and Ecuador if they are to make it out of their group.

Messi fine, world breathes easy

Argentine star allays fitness fears ahead of Saudi Arabia game, as his presence lights up media interaction

EXPRESS AT WORLD CUP

SANDIP G NOVEMBER 21

THE ROOM was dimly lit, the light-brown ceiling and plywood- panelled walls amplifying the dimness. Like before the screening of a movie, there were hushed whispers. There were worried brows and excited faces as the seconds ticked down with the length of an hour.

"It's so long, where is he?" one among the hundreds of journalists asked and then looked at his watch, "Oh! five more minutes!". The cameramen, slumped on the floor, kept readjusting for that perfect frame. Some were composing a selfie frame.

Then Lionel Messi gushed into the room, pulled a chair and flashed the equivalent of Mona Lisa's smile in the sporting world. A smile that could be interpreted as cryptic, mysterious, or even not a smile at all. The room, suddenly, seemed brighter. A feeble hola escaped his mouth.

The press officer quietly announces: "We have the Argentina captain here."

"We have Lionel Messi" would have sounded awkward. Introductions are redundant. Even before she could complete her next sentence — raise your hands — a hundred hands had been flung in the air.

A flash of surprise flickered across her face. "We can't have so many!" she says coldly. Messi comes out of his Mona Lisa smile. He pierces the earplug of the microphone into his right ear. Like standing over the ball before a free kick. He runs his left palm through the stubble and tunes in diligently into the question.

The question amuses him. He might have been anticipating it. It would inevitably centre on his fitness.

Rumours of a potentially dangerous injury were floating around after he was spotted training alone with coach Lionel Scaloni on Saturday.

Messi allayed the fears. First with a giggle, a throwback to his fresh-faced teenage avatar, and then with reassuring words: "I'm hearing what you say about me about training alone and things, but I'm very fine physically and have no issues whatsoever. I heard there were rumours about me having to miss part of the training," he ex-

He then reasserted: "No, it's just precautions. Nothing strange or out of the ordinary".

a lot more. LIONEL MESSI, ON HIS FITNESS AND FAN SUPPORT

There was not a scent of irritation in his tone. It's a routine pre-tournament hoax of sorts, says Alejandro Lopez, a freelance photographer.

"Someone would speculate that Leo is injured and it becomes a national concern, obviously. Maybe, you could sell a few more copies of the paper or get more watch-time. We have been hearing such stuff for ages, before every season, every COPA. World Cup and qualification games. Our country always needs to hear something about Leo."

Nonetheless, the Argentinian press heaved a sigh of relief. Perhaps the whole world would have too.

Hero of the world

The questions rattled in and the answers rushed out, so fast that it felt like one was in the middle of a torrential outpour. But to one specific question, his answer was slower than usual. He turned emotional, smiled a smile of gratitude. The query was: "What do you feel about the universal love you get?'

"Muchas Gracias," he begins the sentence, then pauses, perhaps searching for the perfect words, and then resumes: "It's beautiful that a lot of people who aren't Argentine want Argentina to be champion in large part because of me. I'm grateful for all the love I've received throughout my career," he says.

Then with a twinkle in his eyes, he elab-

A little regret

There is a bead of regret too: "I kind of missed a lot of important things that happened to me during my career.'

He then moves on to tactics and team spirit and such-like platitudes, before the press officer announces the end of the 15minute interaction. No one pestered, "One more question, please.'

They probably had more questions, but they would not disturb. Everyone wanted to present their most polished side before Messi. Instead, they rose from their seats and clapped. Messi was overwhelmed, turned back, flashed a thumbs-up and flew a louder Muchas Gracias and strolled to the exit.

But on the edge of the dais, a few journalists quietly asked him for a selfie. He bent and obliged. As he walked out of the room, the light in the room dimmed too. The ceiling and walls wore a pallid, lifeless look.

Able support cast gives Argentina best shot at glory

SHASHANK NAIR

LIONEL MESSI has a chance. It might not be as good a chance as on that night at the Maracana when Mario Goetze took away what he yearned for. But it is a chance nonetheless.

While 2014 had the star names of Gonzalo Higuain and Sergio Aguero but a large imbalance otherwise, and 2018 saw the Argentines collide into eventual champions France, the 2022 Argentina World Cup squad checks all

It starts with the defence

One of the key statistics to look out for in this World Cup will be how high the defensive line for most teams is going to be. Argentina employ two of Nicolas Otamendi, Christian Romero and Lisandro Martinez at the heart of their defence. Martinez plays near the halfway line and is crucial as the first stab at an interception, or a tackle when the opposition attempt to free up their attackers. His reliability on the ball should ideally assure him of a spot in the starting line-up. Martinez is not only a capable passer of the ball, but also has the skill-set to shimmy away from dangerous positions. He can also pass in tight spaces, with impeccable timing to boot.

A midfield to watch out

One of the advantages that Argentina have over other top teams at this World Cup is a settled midfield. The combination of Rodrigo de Paul and Leandro Paredes provide them with a key metric - progressive play.

The Argentine midfield has the ability to gather the ball and move it forward. They can pass the ball, carry it forward and press the opposition midfield when not in possession.

It doesn't put the onus on Messi to come deep into midfield, collect the ball and move it forward. All that is left now is for Lionel Scaloni to pick his third midfielder. A player he could very well look at is Exequiel Palacios. The Bayer Leverkusen player provides tackles and interceptions while having the ability to make effective passes.

An forward line of dreams

In Lautoro Martinez and Messi, Argentina have the ability to hold the ball in the final third of the pitch. Martinez often likes to drop back and pull a defender or two out of the opposition's defensive line. The result – two attackers on the flank with space to exploit. Argentina can either play an attacking trio of Angel Di Maria, Martinez and Messi, or field Martinez and Di Maria as two strikers and allow Messi to roam as a shadow No. 9.

Three Lions roar: Saka's sweet redemption and World Cup's first Gen Z goal scorer

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NOVEMBER 21

England 6-2 Iran

AT THE 2018 World Cup, England had fewer shots on target from open play (six) than everyone except Iran. The way Iran were set-up in this game, with an ultra-defensive system, they ended with few attempts on goal and put the onus will be on England to ensure this doesn't end up being a yawn fest. And the Three Lions ensured a roaring start to their campaign, beating the Asian giants 6-2 in their Group Bopener at the Khalifa Stadium.

Hey Jude!

Jude Bellingham gave England the lead after heading home from a Luke Shaw cross. It was a landmark goal on many fronts - his first goal for England; the second youngest player to score for England at a World Cup after Michael Owen and the World Cup's first goal scorer who was born after the year 2000.

Bellingham, interestingly, was the only player in England's starting XI, flush with Premier League stars, who doesn't play club football in his country. He plies his trade in Germany for Borussia Dortmund and his stock would've only increased after Monday's per-

No wonder Pep Guardiola had this to say about the 19-year-old: "I said when he was 17, it wasn't just the quality, it was about he was shouting, leading, kicking, and going to the referee. I thought this guy was something special in terms of mentality. Now, at 19 years old, he is already one of the captains of the team, and when that happens at 19 years old it is quite impressive. The quality and skills, everyone knows it, but it's not just about that. It's about the whole package. He's really good. He's already in the national team playing with them at 19. That is quite impressive.'

Sweet redemption for Saka

He's a straight-A student, a top tennis player and a talented runner. And now, he is a World Cup goal scorer. Seeing Bukayo Saka celebrate with his teammates after scoring England's second goal against Iran in their opening World Cup match against Iran, one couldn't help but go back to the last time he played a major tournament for England.

In the 2020 European Championship final against Italy, Saka, then 19, took England's fifth and final kick in the shootout. His shot was saved by Italian goalkeeper Gianluigi Donnarumma meaning that England lost the final and Saka was reduced the tears.

What followed was a barrage of racist abuse, mostly online, towards him, Jadon Sancho and Marcus Rashford, all of who failed to score in the shoot-out. A few days later, describing how he was "hurting so much", Saka promised he would "not let that moment or the negativity that I've received this week break me".

In a rare foray into public affairs, he also told Instagram, Twitter and Facebook that "it is a sad reality that your powerful platforms are not doing enough to stop these messages".

Born to Nigerian parents Yomi, a building surveyor, and Nike, a chartered accountant, in Ealing, Saka and his older brother Yomi played in the back garden and that's where he spent most of his time, taking steps that would see him play for England in the biggest of stages.

As a child, he would go to school every day and recite a prayer, according to the Sunday Times. "Heavenly Father, you have given this new day to me, help me to make it one that pleases you by doing my best in everything. Amen." His prayers have been answered. And so have the prayers of England fans.

New Delhi

Iran goalie injured

It didn't help Iran that their star goalkeeper Ali Beiranvand was injured and carried off the field early in the match after clashing heads with a teammate. He has been crucial to Iran's tactics. No one in the world can throw the football as far as Beiranvand. Believe it or not, he can lob the ball to 61 metres. Iran's long-ball tactics have depended on their goalkeeper.

Iran tried everything to keep him on the field. The team's medics and captain Ehsan Hajisafi tended to the keeper, who appeared to be in discomfort with a bloody nose. At one point, Hajisafi splashed water on Beiranvand's face. With substitute Hossein Hosseini standing by and ready to come on, Iran decided to leave Beiranvand on the field, a move which appeared to contravene FIFA concussion protocols.

Beiranvand, however, continued playing briefly before he asked to be substituted after collapsing to the ground. He eventually left the field on a stretcher.
