SREENIVAS JANYALA HYDERABAD, NOVEMBER 23

FOR CLOSE to 20 days, about 300 girls of Hyderabad's prestigious Nizam College sat on a silent protest near the physics department. Holding placards that said, "Why UG girls denied hostel? Why only PG?" and "Struggle for our rights. We won't give up", the girls were seeking what they said was a "basic right": accommodation for undergraduate girls on campus.

Protests were held for about 20 days. Express

On November 16, the girls scored a historic win when the government decided to allocate

a newly built, 76-room hostel building for 400 undergraduate girls – a first in the 135-year-old history of the college

From skipping classes to sit on the protest from 10 am to 5 pm every day, to submitting representations to the Education Department and boldly putting their point of view across to Education Minister Sabitha Indra Reddy, the 17-18-year-olds persisted till the government directed the college management to accommodate the girls.

"It was exhausting but it was worth it. And yes, it is a sweet victory for us," says Navya G, a second-year psychology student who was one of the leaders of the protest.

STARTING NEXT ACADEMIC SESSION Madrasas under Uttarakhand Waqf to have uniform, regular 6-hr classes

AVANEESH MISHRA DEHRADUN, NOVEMBER 23

ALL 103 madrasas under the Uttarakhand Waqf Board will have a uniform dress code and classes will be run from 8 am to 2 pm like any "regular school". the state Waqf Board chairman said on Wednesday.

statement from The Uttarakhand Waqf Board chairman Shadab Shams comes a month after he suggested that a committee is expected to be soon formed by the state government to survey all madrasas in the state

Shams told The Indian Express: "The next session will start from March next year. We will get the model madrasas registered with the Uttarakhand Board. We have five-time namaz at madrassas. After the early morning namaz at around 6.30 am, one hour will be designated for Quran studies. From 8 am to

He said the Waqf Board has not yet decided what the dress code will be, but it could be the same as the uniform in Uttarakhand Board schools.

"We have already announced that we are going to implement the NCERT syllabus in our madrassas," Shams, also a state BJP spokesperson, said. "We have now proposed in the recent board meeting that we will develop seven of our madrassas into model madrasas. These seven will include two each in Dehradun, Haridwar, and Udham Singh Nagar, and one in Nainital. Through these model madrasas we will show how we should be running a madrasa. These seven will be run directly by the Waqf Board."

Shams said those opting for Islamic Studies will stay at a madrasa as residential students, and others can join as

While three were in the age group of 0-11 months, eight were in the 1-2 years group, and two in 3-5 years group. The first death was reported between October 26-27, when three children died within 48 hours, all in Govandi area. Besides a 14-month-old girl who died in Kalwa district hospital in Thane, all the other deaths were reported in Mumbai hospitals. Seven pockets of Mumbai -

Dharavi, Govandi, Kurla, Mahim, Bandra and Matunga - have emerged as hotspots. While the case count was 25 till September, 60 cases were reported in the city in October, indicating the start of the outbreak.

Officials blamed the spike in cases on a gap in vaccination due to Covid. According to the national immunisation programme, the measles vaccine has to be administered in two doses - at 9 and 15 months of age. "Amid Covid-19, the vaccination got impacted. We have around 20,000 children who didn't get the measles vaccine. Now, we are tracking all these children and holding vaccination camps on priority," said Dr Mangala Gomare, executive health officer, BMC.

While the civic body has ramped up vaccination, data showed that till October, when the outbreak started, only 41 per cent of the eligible children had been vaccinated in Mumbai.

The AG said there was no order by the court against making the appointment.

Agreeing that there was no such order, Justice Joseph said, "But the application was there... We are not sitting in judgement over the appointment. But we would like to know ... If everything is hunky-dory, everything is going on smoothly, as you claim, you have nothing to fear."

Expressing "strong reservations", the AG said, "We are in the framework of a larger question." The bench, however, said the issue of the new appointment is

'interlinked". Venkataramani said "the interlink is being brought in to throw doubts" to ensure that the court necessarily gets into the larger picture.

Earlier, Justice Rastogi too asked the Centre about the mechanism followed in the appointment of Goel. "Show us what mechanism you adopted in making the appointment two days before," he said, inquiring if there was any specific mechanism or if it was on the recommendation of the Council of Ministers. The AG asked if the court was trying to say "there is an underlying malice about the accountability of the Council of Ministers and the Cabinet". "No, we just wanted to know, for our satisfaction. Let us know the mechanism you adopted," Justice Rastogi said.

there are stray instances when things go wrong," Additional Solicitor General Balbir Singh said. He pointed out that even in the case of appointment of judges, what is followed is a convention. Justice Rastogi said "the test denominator has changed from time to time... There was a time when selections were made ... just on a request being made by the Chief Justice to a lawyer, please join... That also worked well...

Venkataramani said he had already explained that it was on the basis of a time-tested convention. "A list of serving and retired of-recommends one name to the President. A note with the recommendation is submitted to the President of India. That's how the system works." he said.

The appointment of Election Commissioners, he said, follows seniority and the senior among the two ECs goes on to become the CEC. "It's all on the basis of timetested convention. Therefore, there is a procedure that is being followed," he said, adding "so it was not a pick-and-choose at all," he said.

On Tuesday, the bench had mooted the idea of including the Chief Justice of India in the committee which appoints Election Commissioner to ensure "neutrality". Opposing this Wednesday, the government told the court that there had been no complaints, except for some isolated instances, about the independence of the Election Commission and its work had even received international applause. It said that even in the appointments of judges, there are 'stray instances" of things going wrong and wondered if similar instances in the case of the working of the Election Commission should be enough for the court to intervene. "This court has got a foolproof system as far as appointment of judges are concerned, but

OPPOSING KARNATAKA Congress president D K Shivakumar's plea urging Delhi High Court to restrain the Enforcement Directorate from taking any coercive steps against him in a money laundering case, the central agency told the court that there has been no violation of Shivakumar's fundamental rights at the summoning stage.

Contesting the plea, which also argues that ED's case (ECIR) lodged in 2020 was based on the same set of facts that had already been investigated by the agency in a previous ECIR of 2018, the agency, in its reply, informed the court that ECIRs against Shivakumar belong to different cases with certain overlapping of facts, which cannot be termed as re-investigation. A division bench of Justices Shivakumar has challenged the ED probe against him in connection with a 2020 money laundering case. He has claimed the ED had already conducted an investigation on allegations of money laundering in a 2018 case.

He has also challenged the constitutional validity of Section 13 of Prevention of Money Laundering (Amendment) Act [PMLA], by virtue of which the Schedule of PMLA was amended and Section 13 of the Prevention of Corruption Act (PCA) was included.

In her written complaint submitted two years ago, Walkar wrote: "Today, he tried to kill me by suffocating me and he scares and blackmails me that he will kill me, cut me up in pieces and throw me away. It's been 6 months he has been hitting me but I did not have the guts to go to the police Officials identified those killed from the village as Thal Shadap (45), Sik Talang (55), Chirup Sumer (40), Tal Nartiang (40) and Nikhasi Dhar (65). The body of the sixth person killed in the clash ---Assam Forest Guard Bidyasing Lekhte -- was handed over to the neighbouring state.

"People are sad, insecure and angry. They are worried that they (Assam Police) will come again with guns. These are not rubber bullets. These are real bullets." said Hamboide Sumer, the village headman. He said the incident reopened wounds from 20 years ago when six people from the village were shot by armed insurgents. "Both the Meghalaya and Assam governments have an-pensation for the families of those killed. Money can't bring back the dead. Instead, those who were behind this unprovoked firing should be brought to justice immediately," Sumer said.

"Mukroh is not a disputed area but it has suffered so much from the boundary conflict. Nobody will accept blood money. Some police and forest officials were suspended, transferred. What good will it do? They should be arrested immediately," said Sumer.

(PTI quoted Assam officials as saying that protesters had torched a forest office and a government vehicle near the site of the incident in Meghalaya's West Jaintia Hills bordering Assam's West Karbi Anglong on Tuesday night, hours after the clash.)

Officials in Assam have warned against vehicles from the state travelling through Meghalaya. A vehicle with an Assam number plate was set ablaze in Jhalupara area of Shillong, they said. West Jaintia

In Mukroh, Pynyoolad Kyndiah, a resident, pointed to frequent run-ins with authorities from across the border in Assam. "A majority of villagers are farmers and most of their paddy fields are in an area where Assam authorities frequently come to disturb them.... a police border outpost should at least be set up here to prevent such flare-ups," he said.

Late Wednesday, Assam Chief Minister Sarma took to Twitter and described the incident as "unfortunate". "We decided to request Hon Justice Smt Rumi Phukan, Retd Judge of Gauhati HC, to conduct a judicial probe into facts & circumstances that led to the incident & conclude the enquiry within 60 days. Our Cabinet also decided to hand over the related police investigation to CBI," he wrote. 3 kids dead as mother jumps into water tank with them

Gurgaon: Three children drowned after a 30-year-old woman jumped into a water tank at her home with them in Nuh Tuesday. The woman is undergoing treatment at a hospital. Police said preliminary probe has found that she was upset due to the deteriorating health of her children. Police have registered a case of murder against the woman. According to police, the incident took place around 11 am in Kherla village in Nuh district. Police said at the time of the incident, the woman and her three children, Shabana (10), Saad (8) and four-month-old Ikra, were at the house. Around 11 am Tuesday, she threw the children into the water tank before hurling herself in."

CPWD CORDONS OFF SECTIONS Amid heavy footfall, lawns at India Gate temporarily shut in parts to keep grass alive

DAMINI NATH NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 23

THE INDIA Gate lawns that reopened to the public in September, after 20 months of redevelopment, are being temporarily closed in sections to give the grass a breather from the heavy footfall, Central Public Works Department (CPWD) officials said.

In order to keep the grass that was planted alive, the CPWD has taken to cordoning off sections with rope and putting up "under maintenance" signs to keep visitors off the lawns for 15 days at a time. an official said. This intervention is only required on the two sections nearest to the India Gate due to the footfall - at the C-Hexagon and the section till Man Singh Road — the official said. With preparations for the Republic Day Parade set to begin soon, the official said it would be a challenge to retain the grass after the one-month period when it is covered by bleachers for the parade.

The lawns along the Kartavva Path opened to the public on September 9, after the redeveloped stretch from India Gate to Vijay Chowk was inaugurated by Prime Minister Narendra Modi the previous day. While barricades and security guards have been deployed to manage crowds, the stretch, earlier known as Rajpath, has seen large crowds, particularly on weekends, since reopening.

Naturalist and author Pradip Krishen, who was asked for advice on the plantation plan by the project's architects, HCP Planning and Design. Management, said he had suggested a different species of grass that could grow under the shade of the jamun trees there. "It's tricky, with grass. It takes lots of water and nutrients, and a lot of intense labour to do the weeding, etc to create a perfect lawn. Further, the particular kind of grass that they use doesn't grow in the shade. So what to do under the canopies of the rai-jamun trees? We discussed the possibility of moving away from the idea of an English lawn. We suggested a species of grass that could grow in the shade, and some other low-growing (prostrate) plants, like Volvulopsis and Oxalis, that do well in drier landscapes," he said.

But, this suggestion was met with resistance by the CPWD officials, he added.

Nidhi Madan, a landscape architect and member of the Indian Society of Landscape Architects that had raised concerns with the Rajpath plan last year, said closing off public spaces was not the solution. "Central Vista is a democratic public open space with equitable access for one and all. This is represented in its visual and open space character and public use. Cordoning it off compromises this very idea. A landscape management plan needs to be put in place keeping this in

Back from rehab, man kills grandmother, parents, sister

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 23

UPSET OVER constant fights about his job and drug abuse, a 26-year-old man allegedly killed his grandmother, parents and sister at their Palam residence in Southwest Delhi. The victims were found lying in different rooms on the second-floor residence – while the grandmother was smothered, others were stabbed.

The accused, Keshav, tried to flee but was caught by his cousin and the police. According to his relatives and investigators, Keshav spent 5-6 months at a de-addiction centre in Delhi and came home six months ago. Police said he often fought with his parents as they complained about his lifestyle choices, unstable job – he was employed in Gurgaon - and "habits".

Around 10.30 pm on Tuesday, Keshav's cousin Kuldeep, who lives with his parents on the first floor, said that he heard screams from the floor above.

"My cousin Urvashi (23) shouted, 'Bhaiya, please mujhe bacha lo(save me)'. I was returning home after work. I rushed upstairs and kept knocking on the door for 10 minutes, but nobody answered. After some time, Keshav asked me to leave, peeping through the window. He said that it was his family matter. I told him they are my family, too. I got worried and called the police, and when they came, he jumped through the shaft and tried to escape. I chased and caught him and handed him to the police. He has been involved with drugs for over a decade now. His parents brought him back from the rehab centre, but he kept up his old ways. He

There are no witnesses as he killed all family members. Though Keshav has confessed to his crime, he has not spoken much." Police said he has been involved in two cases of robbery in the past. Relatives claimed the murders were premeditated as he sat in the house for four hours after killing Diwano Devi, waiting for others to come home. Keshav's aunt Krishna Saini said, "My mother Diwano shifted to their home the day before yesterday. I visited her in the morning, and she was crying and complaining about Keshav. She said he was taking drugs again and was trying to extort her. He even threatened to kill her and others. I had stopped talking to him. He had robbed my phone. My brother and his wife loved him and brought him back from the centre. He pretended that he had changed."

"We believe he first killed my mother around 6.30 pm in her sleep. She was smothered. Later, around 7 pm, Darshan entered the house and was also killed. After an hour, Dinesh came back from work. Urvashi had gone out with friends and came home around 10 pm. We only heard her screams. We think they were all killed before her... When police were taking him, he said he would take revenge and kill everyone in the family," Krishna claimed.

The family said Urvashi was while Dinesh worked as a driver.

Jaipur: Union minister Anurag Thakur Wednesday referred to a purported leaked video that showed Delhi minister Satyendar Jain having a meal inside his jail cell to launch an attack on the AAP, saying a minister facing corruption charges was enjoying "fivestar luxuries" in prison. "They tell lies. They talk about problems related to prison food but get food plates better than five-star hotels in jail. They get mineral water and massages there," Thakur said. PTI

AAP LEADER Satyendar Jain's lawyers have told a Delhi court that the latest video leak showing him eating inside his cell at Tihar jail was based on doctored clips.

Representing Jain, senior advocate Rahul Mehra made a series of prayers before Special Judge Vikas Dhull, including a plea that Tihar jail authorities be restrained from leaking Jain's CCTV footage. The court has directed the jail authorities to submit a report Thursday. The jail authorities have in the meantime told court that the Enforcement Directorate (ED) was in possession of the video in question. Mehra had also called for a report from Tihar jail authorities to state whether the AAP leader was being provided with his special diet comprising of fruits, vegetables, and nuts. The court has asked jail authorities to provide Jain with food available to an inmate on a religious fast subject to prison rules. The report on Jain's diet restriction will also be submitted to the court Thursday.

Mehra told the court, "This is a court of law and it should not be made a mockery of. I am not leaking anything every day, there is a leakage. I am helpless. I am here till adjudication. Give every minute (of) CCTV to this court. Why go all over the country (with the video in a) doctored manner (of) displaying it."

"Today in the morning, one video has been released. At least ask the top manager of authorities in jail. Who leaked this ...? Every day selective leaks in a doctored manner are being done which will give a certain impression to the people... Is this a media trial?..." Mehra said.

Advocate Abhijit Shankar, appearing for jail authorities, told court, "The video is from September 30. We know that in 30 days the footage is deleted. We cannot get personal and leak CCTV footage and put something on media. The ED raids were going on and they had the video..."

complaint and also confront Aaftab with this newly emerged information. Mumbai Police have said that Walkar withdrew the complaint 26 days after submitting it on November 23, 2020, saying in another statement at the time that her dispute with Poonawala had been resolved. A day earlier, in the first acknowledgement in court of violence between him and Walkar, Poonawala had told a Delhi court that he hit her because she provoked him. "He told the judge that he was provoked because of which he hit." advocate Avinash Kumar, Poonawala's legal aid counsel, told The Indian Express. During questioning too, Poonawala has said he acted in a fit of rage, police said. However, the letter, which has striking similarities to Walkar's alleged fate -Poonawala has told police he cut her body into over 30 pieces and disposed of them over the next few months – will prompt police to revisit their line of questioning, sources said.

Police had earlier called Poonawala's responses "deceptive", and added that "each uttering of the accused is being assessed upon the crucible of admissible evidentiary value".

ent, he claims to have killed her in a fit of rage. He and the couple's friends have told us about multiple fights they had in the last two vears. Walkar's family and friends were aware of the domestic violence," said an officer.

Poonawala is yet to undergo the polygraph test, with sources saying he complained of a fever which is why the process was delayed. Sagarpreet Hooda, Special CP, Law and Order, confirmed that the test was not conducted on Wednesday.

An FSL official said. "One cannot start the polygraph process during the first visit. On Tuesday, he was here for 3-5 hours and experts checked his health and observed his psyche to see if he is fit and ready for the test. On Wednesday, we were informed he has a fever and is not feeling well. He has taken medicines for the same. This could affect the observations and hence the tests have been delayed." On Tuesday evening, he was taken to the FSL office in Rohini for "pre-analysis" by forensic experts. Police teams also paid another visit to the Chhattarpur Pahadi residence. where Walkar was allegedly murdered, on Wednesday.

"I ask everyone present here to go and visit the landfill sites for one last time, and also do take selfies with the kooda pahad (garbage mountain) because the Kejriwal government is also going to come to power in the MCD, and once we do, all three landfill sites that the BJP could not clear in the last 15 will be razed down. He said, "Jaise bijli ka bill zero hua, waise, kooda pahad bhi zero hone wala hai. (Like the electric-

After jan sabha, padyatra and ward meetings, the AAP started a new campaign called 'Kejriwal ki Sarkar, Kejriwal ka Parshad' on Wednesday. The party's star campaigners will hold 1,000 nukkad sabhas across the 250 wards.

Frame rules for fixing electricity tariff in 3 months: SC to state panels

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI. NOVEMBER 23

THE SUPREME Court Wednesday directed all the state electricity regulatory commissions to frame within three months rules under the Electricity Act-2003 on the terms and conditions for determination of tariff.

The ruling came while the court dismissed an appeal by Tata Power Company Limited Transmission, challenging the February 18, 2022 order of the Appellate Tribunal that had dismissed an appeal filed by it against the decision of Maharashtra Electricity Regulatory Commission (MERC) under the Act to grant transmission licence to Adani Electricity Mumbai Infra Limited (AEMIL) for setting up a 1,000 MW High Voltage Direct Current (Voltage Source Converter based) link.

The three-judge bench of Chief Justice D Y Chandrachud and Justices A S Bopanna and J B Pardiwala noted that the 2003 Act "was enacted with the objective of providing the States with sufficient flexibility to regulate the intra-state electricity system and simultaneously provided the regulatory commissions with the power to determine tariffs" and that "though the government, both at the Centre and in the States, have framed statutory policies and guidelines regulating the electricity sector, we have noticed that the Regulatory Commissions have not framed the necessary regulations to put into effect the principles prescribed under the Act".

"Where the Appropriate Commission(s) has already framed regulations, they shall be amended to include provisions on the criteria for choosing the modalities to determine the tariff, in case they have not been already included," the court said.

Tata Power challenged the grant of licence to Adani Electricity Mumbai Infra Limited (AEMIL) on the ground that it was not preceded by a Tariff Based Competitive Bidding (TBCB) process.

Rejecting the plea, the SC said "the Electricity Act 2003 or the policy framework, ...did not make it binding upon MERC to allot the High Voltage Direct Current project only through the TBCB route... and that therefore, the Regulatory Commission's decision to grant the project under Section 62 was within a reasonable exercise of its powers".

Putting up a spirited fight against the BJP and giving the Congress a run for its money in Gujarat, the Aam Aadmi Party tweeted Tuesday evening: "Bhajpa half, Congress saaf, Gujarat mein sirf AAP hee AAP (BJP is reduced to half, Congress is wiped out, it's only AAP in Gujarat).'

The Congress, whose campaign has been lacklustre, with the Gandhis staying away, replied with: "Bhajpa sunn, AAP tunn, Gujarat mein bas Congress ki dhun (BJP is stunned, AAP is smug, Gujarat is humming only the Congress tune).'

Demolitions in Bet Dwarka, with its Lord Krishna links, figure in poll speeches

GOPAL KATESHIYA DWARKA, NOVEMBER 23

RESIDENTS OF Bet Dwarka and Okha town were caught unawares as a huge contingent comprising policemen from four districts swamped Bet Dwarka island on October 1, accompanying JCB excavators and dump trucks into its narrow lanes.

Over the next week, around a hundred structures were razed. including more than two dozen religious structures of the minority community, as police imposed restrictions on movement to and from Bet Dwarka, a 36-sq km island with a population of around 15,000, located off Okha.

A month later, the drive on the island, which holds the Shree Dwarkadhis Mukhya Mandir dedicated to Lord Krishna, who is believed to have set up his kingdom here, plus other Hindu temples, has become a recurring theme in the BJP poll narrative.

Days later, the demolition drive had started assuming political colours after Prime Minister Narendra Modi "congratulated" Gujarat Chief Minister Bhupendra Patel at a public meeting in neighbouring Jamnagar district on October 11. He said the drive had shown Gujarat the "mrudu ane makkam (soft and

Then, as the campaign for the coming elections picked up, on November 18, three JCBs were parked at the venue of a rally by Uttar Pradesh CM Yogi Adityanath in Wankaner in Morbi district. A couple of days later, an Adityanath rally at Chowpatty Ground in Porbandar also had a parked JCB.

Manek, was telling voters to make up for the support he was "set to lose due to the demolition drive". "Even I didn't know there was so much encroachment," Manek said addressing a gathering in Bhatiya village, adding he took the risk. He went on to urge people to back him "in the name of Dwarkadhis"

All through his series of meetings Tuesday evening, Manek urged people to attend Adityanath's Wednesday meeting in Dwarka, calling him a saint 'whose darshan was rare".

At his meeting in Dwarka town Wednesday, Adityanath praised the "bhavya karyakram (grand programme)" in Bet Dwarka for its "purnodhhar (restoration)". Manek, who was also present, called Modi and Aditynath God's "chosen ones" worth darshan. He added: "Modiji and Yogiji, when they did their fill of punya for seven lives, they were told(byGod)thatyou(Modi)take the seat of Delhi and you (Aditynath) take the seat of UP, and do good with a (bull) dozer."

While Manek told The Indian Express he was confident of retaining Muslim support, a senior BJP leader admitted he "will lose a few Muslim votes". However, he added. "We expect to make good that loss by consolidating the non-Muslim votes.

BJP's 7-time winner says not elected, 'but selected by all groups'

GOPAL KATESHIYA DWARKA, NOVEMBER 23

PABUBHA MANEK, the BJP candidate from Dwarka, has never lost an election from the Assembly seat – winning it consecutively seven times, since 1990. The last time he defeated the Congress's Mulu Kandoriya by 5,739 votes.

This Assembly election marks the third time in succession that the two leaders will be facing off against each other.

Manek's unshakeable hold on the seat is at least partially due to support from all communities, including Muslims, That may now be hit after the Bet Dwarka demolitions.

Kandoriya has been unable to defeat Manek despite belonging to the largest group of voters in Dwarka seat, of the Ahirs (around 52,000). They are followed by another OBC group, Sathvaras (40,000), with Vaghers, the community Manek hails from, third at around 25,000. Muslims, mainly con-

Sarma was commenting on the beard spotted by Rahul now after he began his Bharat Jodo Yatra, while speaking at a rally in Ahmedabad.

"I just saw that his looks have also changed. I said in a TV interview a few days back that there is nothing wrong with his new look. But if you have to change the looks, at least make it like Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel, or even Jawaharlal Nehru will do. It is better if it looks like Gandhiii. He added: "This is because the Congress culture is not close to Indian people. Their culture is Hitting back, senior Congress leader Manish Tewari said the Assam CM was sounding like a "petty troll". Addressing a press conference in Ahmedabad, he said: "I would not even like to dignify this diatribe with my reaction. I think it is very important that we maintain the decorum of language in public and maintain some propriety. The CM of Assam unfortunately sounds like a petty troll when he articulates sentences of this type."

Supriya Shrinate, Chairperson of the Congress's Social Media and Digital Platforms, tweeted: "I had called him a Rs 2 troll. He is actually a 25 paise troll." She later tweeted a video of Rahul, saying: "You are a rockstar boss."

Leader of Opposition in the Karnataka Legislative Council Hariprasad BK attacked Sarma, tweeting: "He should have looked at his own face in the mirror before commenting on others.

Gadhvi faces an uphill battle as in the constituency caste identities have traditionally trumped other factors. The Gadhvi community to which he belongs has only about 14,000 votes.

Elders of the Ahir community, the dominant group in the constituency at 54,000 among its approximately 3.2 lakh voters, have traditionally supported either the BJP or the Congress, and say they will not shift loyalties to AAP.

Gadhvi believes "caste equa-

And so, other than banking on Gadhvi's popularity as a former celebrity anchor, AAP is also hoping to get the support of numerically strong communities.

PM holds 4 rallies, targets Cong: They never had grip on law & order

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE AHMEDABAD, NOVEMBER 23

ADDRESSING FOUR election rallies in Gujarat on Wednesday, Prime Minister Narendra Modi tore into the Congress, accusing the main opposition party of having ignored people from tribal communities - to the extent that it opposed nomination of a tribal woman, Droupadi Murmu, to the post of President – engaging in vote-bank politics, nepotism, and failing to get a grip of law and order during decades it governed the state.

In Vadodara, Modi blamed past Congress governments in Gujarat for "curfews" witnessed in the city and said that the Congress regime never had a "grip on law and order"

He said, "Do you recall the time when curfew was imposed regularly (in Vadodara) and the terror of the anti-social elements? They knew they could get away by doing anything because they were given the freedom by those sitting in Gandhinagar. They had the protection of the Congress... Even today, such news is reported regularly in Congress-run states."

Accusing the Congress of having "no connection with law and order in the state", he said, "In Porbandar, there were boards during the Congress regime stat-

OPPOSITION PARTIES Wednesday accused the BJP government of weakening the Election Commission and raised doubts over the selection of poll panel members after the Supreme Court asked the Centre to produce the file on the recent appointment of Arun Goel as election commissioner.

'The EC should be neutral and fearless. The SC remarks reflect the manner in which the EC has been lax in some cases and sometimes tilts in favour of the ruling party. We welcome the SC remarks and the EC should draw lessons from it," Tyagi said.

LUCKNOW, NOVEMBER 23

THERE'S AN unusual buzz around Rampur, one of the gateways to Nainital in the Kumaon hills. Through the early morning mist, one can see campaign groups with saffron flags, scurrying to meet labourers before they set out for their daily work

Once considered the impenetrable fortress of SP leader Azam Khan, the Rampur Sadar seat fell vacant after he was disgualified last month following his conviction in a 2019 hate speech case. Since the 1980s, Khan won from the constituency 10 times - the Congress breached his defences once. in 1996.

Now, for the first time, the BJP in UP is aggressively wooing Muslim voters in the countdown to the Rampur Assembly bypoll, scheduled December 5.

This election will be a fight between the BJP's Akash Saxena, who lost to Azam Khan in March, and Azam Khan lovalist Mohammed Asim Raja of the SP, who lost the Lok Sabha bypoll to BJP's Ghanshyam Singh Lodhi in June.

With the Congress and the BSP staying away from the contest, it's a direct contest between Raja and Saxena who is the complainant against Khan and his family in some of the cases against them. Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath will address a public meeting in Rampur on December 2. At least a dozen ministers will tour Rampur before the end of can-

Khanna, Baldev Singh Aulakh and party state president Bhupendra Singh Chaudhary too have travelled in the constituency.

While the BIP has deployed a number of Muslim leaders for its campaign, on the ground they are facing questions over the state government's decision to conduct a survey of madrasas in the state. "The Muslim community in Rampur is not talking about the Gyanvapi dispute in Varanasi or the construction of the Ram Mandir in Avodhya. But they are asking questions about the survey of madrasas, when we ask them to vote for the BJP and try telling them that the BJP government is working for their welfare," a leader of the BJP's minority wing said.

The leader said party workers have been told to calmly answer such questions and tell voters that the survey is being done because the government wants madrasa students to get modern education and make careers as engineers and IAS officers. On August 30, the state government had directed district magistrates to conduct a survey of unrecognised madrasas.

BJP campaigners are claiming that over three crore Pasmanda Muslims in UP have got free ration, over 1.25 lakh have got benefits of the Ayushman card, 75 lakh received the PM Kisan Samman Nidhi, over 40 lakh have got free electricity connections and 20 lakh got houses.

The party has held a convention of Pasmanda Muslims in Rampur, addressed by Deputy Chief Minister Braiesh Pathak.ex-Union Minister Mukhtar Abbas Naqvi, Minister of State in UP government Danish Azad Ansari and state president of the party's minority wing Kunwar Basit Ali. According to sources, the party has asked Naqvi to hold dialogues with Muslim clerics in Rampur, while other leaders have been involved in door-to-door campaigning.

"Senior leaders and other workers of the minority wing have all been assigned responsibilities to campaign in Rampur, which has been divided in four mandal units. We have special focus on Pasmanda Muslims, because they were neglected in the past by governments of the SP and the BSP. As they are beneficiaries of different government schemes. we are approaching them to get their votes," a BJP leader said.

As part of its strategy, the BJP is identifying prominent Muslims who are "upset with Azam Khan". The BIP is contacting them individually to seek support.

The party received a shot in the arm Monday when Azam Khan's long-time loyalist Fasahat Ali Khan alias Shanu joined the BIP and was immediately deployed in the campaign. Last Saturday, Khan's long-time rival Kazim Ali Khan, who belongs to the erstwhile family of nawabs of Rampur, had offered support to the BIP. Kunwar Basit Ali said over 200 leaders of the party minority wing from different districts are camping in Rampur and going door-todoor, canvassing for the BJP candidate.

"We are sure that a good chunk of Muslim voters who are beneficiaries of government schemes will vote for the BIP in the bypoll. We are speaking to them, answering their queries," he said. portedly issued under Gupta's "influence". that while the IO described the Gandhinagar FSL's report on the CD, he did not reproduce certain points, and did not make transcripts "as per directions". He noted, "In addition, FSL Gandhinagar had sent a deleted data's DVD (from the phone with which the audio was recorded) which the IO had not studied...'

The SP noted that although the IO did not study the deleted data, the daily diary investigation said the mobile phone was "not related" to the probe and "allegations cannot be verified". He said the IO should have investi-

The Indian EXPRESS

IT'S NOT SO EC

SC's diagnosis that Election Commission needs to be insulated from political pressure is spot on – but its prescription is not

HE FIVE-JUDGE CONSTITUTION Bench of the Supreme Court has proposed the idea of including the Chief Justice of India in the committee that appoints the Chief Election Commissioner (CEC). The Bench observed that this would help ensure "neutrality" (in the functioning decisions of the institution) and the selection of a person who "does not allow himself to be bulldozed". The Bench is right in flagging the need for the Election Commission (EC) to be insulated against political pressure. The court's implicit trust in itself is understandable. However, that the CJI's presence in the appointment panel can provide that shield is a fraught assumption.

Indeed, the Election Commission has earned public trust due to its exemplary work as an independent and neutral authority that both organises and referees elections with minimum fuss and controversy. This achievement has been made possible because as a constitutional authority, the EC's autonomy is guaranteed and its functioning insulated from the interference of the executive and judiciary. It is one of Indian democracy's enduring success stories. However, there is growing concern on that front, as the SC Bench has suggested. In November last year, then CEC and the two commissioners joined an online "interaction" called by the Prime Minister's Office (PMO). At the peak of the pandemic, the panel imposed Covid restrictions on electioneering only after the Prime Minister completed his campaign. Its unwillingness to censure the ruling party's top leadership for violating the Model Code of Conduct while pulling up Opposition leaders during the 2019 general election; delaying a Rajya Sabha poll in Kerala to consider a reference from the Law and Justice Ministry, its alacrity in joining the freebie debate, raise questions about pressure. However, the corrective has to be provided from within the institution itself. In fact, the Commission must stand its ground in the face of over-reach by the political executive, it must push back - and be seen to be pushing back.

Every institution, it's been said, is to some extent, the "lengthened shadow" of its leader. The SC's proposal for reforming the appointment of Commissioners, has highlighted some pertinent issues about institutions and their autonomy. But by asking for files related to appointments of commissioners and underlining that the CJI could be the guarantee to independence, the court is taking a blinkered view. The CJI is on the committee that appoints the CBI director, surely that hasn't ensured the independence of the investigative agency – the agency and the political executive decide on that. Perhaps there is a case for the Leader of the Opposition to also have a say, but let Parliament decide and debate that. So far, the judiciary has respected and stayed at an arm's length from the Election Commission, there is no case for changing that.

FRAGILE PEACE

Assam and Meghalaya governments must not let the recent violence derail the border talks between the two states

ESS THAN EIGHT months after Assam and Meghalaya agreed to hold talks to resolve their five-decade-long border dispute, an untoward incident is threatening to disturb the fragile peace in the region. On Tuesday, six persons including a forest guard were killed in a clash between the Assam police and a mob in the area bordering West Karbi Anglong district of Assam and Meghalaya's West Jaintia Hills. Reports indicate the incident was triggered by an alleged incident of timber smuggling and the Assam Police seems to have opened fire in self-defence. Meghalaya Chief Minister Conrad Sangma has, however, accused the security forces of "unprovoked firing" and has sought a probe by central agencies. The state will constitute a judicial com-

Fixing Election Commission PRATAP BHANU MEHTA

SC should address specific concerns about EC, not use ad hoc observations to undermine legitimacy of institution

THE SUPREME COURT is creating a minor buzz by hearing a case pertaining to the appointment of the election commissioners. In terms of maintaining the integrity of the electoral process, the case pertaining to electoral bonds is far more consequential than this one. It will be the real test of the Court's commitment to the integrity of the electoral process. Issues pertaining to the appointment of election commissioners are, at best, pocket change in this story. The Court and the public should not be misled by erroneous and purely lawyerly framings of the issue. What you might end up with, as is often the case, a simulacrum of reform, while substantive issues go unaddressed.

The Election Commission (EC) has evolved over time. Like so many constitutional evolutions, including that of appointments of the Supreme Court itself, change has produced anomalies. Article 324 envisaged that the Commission be led by a single CEC (Chief Election Commissioner), though the President can appoint more commissioners. As the wonderful chapter on the Election Commission by E Sreedharan and Milan Vaishnav in Public Institutions in India documented, there are several unresolved issues The number of commissioners the EC can have is not specified. In principle, a government can enlarge the Commission sometimes with a view to undermine the authority of existing commissioners. The Supreme Court itself left this matter hanging when it put its seal of approval on the expansion of the Commission in 1995. The other commissioners do not enjoy the security of tenure and constitutional status of the CEC. Could this affect their independence? What are the CEC's powers in relation to other commissioners? Can the CEC ask them for an explanation of conduct or recommend their removal, as N Gopalaswamy had claimed in the case of Navin Chawla? What happens in the case of open conflict between the commissioners? Potentially, there is another issue. There have been demands that the CEC be selected by seniority amongst existing commissioners. As Vaishnav and Sreedharan pointed out, all of these issues have been put to the test in the past. But the striking thing, in their account, is that, in the end, these matters were resolved by political negotiation, restraint and judgement.

There are concerns over the partisanship of

We should be troubled about the construction of legitimacy implied in placing the CJI in these situations. Whenever it comes to the political executive, this construction of 'judiciary neutral and virtuous,' the political executive 'partisan and open to manipulation' narrative is dangerous. Putting Chief Justices on selection committees where the Prime Minister sits is odd.

the EC. The Commission has made many questionable judgements. Concerns about its political neutrality are growing. But the Supreme Court needs to be careful here. It should address specific concerns. It should not use ad hoc observations to undermine the legitimacy of the EC as a whole, as if one constitutional body commenting on another was drawing room talk.

But of more concern is the persistent delusions we have about what produces independent institutions or institutional leaders. The prevailing framing seems to be that if there is a "collegium" type system of which the Chief Justice of India is a member, you will get better appointments. This theory is deeply misguided.

It is difficult to get minds besotted by legalism to see that institutional design seriously underdetermines the performance of an institution. Formal appointments processes are no predictors of performance or bulwarks against the underlying distribution of political power. The Supreme Court itself is a great example. The role of the CJI in selection committees can be counterproductive. Institutionally, the desire within the judiciary to get more entangled in appointments is possibly more about leverage than virtue. It risks violating the separation of powers. In the appointment of the CBI director Subodh Kumar Jaiswal, the then CJI's presence ensured that some candidates were put out of contention by invoking the rule that persons close to retirement should not be appointed. But the CJI then ended up publicly commenting on the virtues of and style of functioning of the chosen candidate. But more importantly, has the CBI's reputation for independence and neutrality in any way been enhanced with the CJI's presence on the selection committee? If it has, the message is certainly lost. Or think of neutral committees making a hash of appointments of vice-chancellors.

Third, there are peculiar assumptions about who is in a good position to judge the best candidate, especially in complex institutional roles. These judgements, especially when they involve character, are never easy. But they are often helped by selectors having a wide rather than narrow social and institutional experience (which politicians and administrators are more likely to have), than judges, especially who by their vocation need to be a bit distant from the grubby workings of power. It is important not to fetishise personal qualities ex ante. So many of our independent institutions, judiciary included, are littered with the mayhem caused by good candidates. And so many ex post heroes like T N Seshan, would have been disqualified on their prior reputations for political intrigue. Some who did excellent work, like MS Gill, cast a shadow on their own good work by accepting political appointments post-retirement. Obviously, there is a sense in which we all search for good candidates to the best of our knowledge. But a historic sense of roles, occasions, structures and actual tests of temptation matter far more. The late Bhairon Singh Shekhawat used to often say that kursi charitra dikhate hain, aur kaam sikhate hain (it is the chair that reveals the character, and teaches you the work). In the end, structures of accountability matter more

We should be troubled about the construction of legitimacy implied in placing the CJI in these situations. Whenever it comes to the political executive, this construction of "judiciary neutral and virtuous," the political executive "partisan and open to manipulation" narrative is dangerous. Putting Chief Justices on selection committees where the Prime Minister sits is odd. For one thing, no matter what you think of particular PMs, they have the authority of the demos behind them, and in the actual situation of disagreement (unless there is some rank illegality), it is not clear the CJI should have precedence, or be thought of as a more virtuous check on elected executives. In most cases, they will not be able to compete with the authority of the Prime Minister anyway.

We continue to play out this charade that some formal administrative tinkering with appointments and procedures can replace political accountability. We all applaud doubleengine governments, but worry less about the fact that the key engine of democracy, Parliament, is more or less defunct as an institution of accountability. Many of the questions about independent institutions would be better resolved using Parliament and parliamentary committees. With courts, you risk getting only illusory virtue signalling, while those who want to subvert democracy laugh all their way to the bank mission and a Special Investigation Team to probe the incident, he said. The Assam gov ernment has also formed a one-member commission and asked for its report within three months. It has also issued a border alert. The two governments must exercise caution and do nothing that will make matters boil over.

In recent times, Assam's BJP government has come under fire for a high number of "encounters" involving alleged lawbreakers such as drug peddlers, poachers and smugglers. Years of fighting insurgency may have given Assam Police a sense of immunity in using extra-legal means. The Gauhati High Court is currently hearing a PIL on encounter killings. According to an affidavit submitted by the state government to the court in July, 51 people have been killed and more than 70 injured in police action between May 2021 and June this year. The state government maintains that law-enforcing authorities do not cross boundaries. But CM Himanta Biswa Sarma's – who also holds the home portfolio – frequent statements about the state's zero-tolerance policy towards criminals have invited criticism about the Assam government encouraging a trigger-happy attitude in the police force.

Meghalaya was carved out of Assam in 1972 on the basis of the Assam Reorganisation Act of 1969, but governments in Shillong have always contested the border-related provision of this legislation. In 2011, Meghalaya identified 12 disputed stretches along the 880-km border between the two states. Since July last year, Sarma and Sangma have been in talks to solve the dispute. The second round of talks that begin in March is scheduled to begin at the end of this month. There is a concern in Delhi that Tuesday's incident could derail the dialogue. Assam and Meghalaya must guard against that.

Now in their sunset years, Chinese retirees are finding that they no longer have to put their dreams and yearning for creativity and adventure on hold. Senior citizens like the elegant foursome Glamma Beijing that offers style and makeup tips, or Sister Wang is Coming, a trio that makes funny music videos featuring novelty rap about food, are the new social media sensations in China, finding viral fame, following and influence.

These retirees are far from the conventionally imagined ideals of grandparents, finding fulfillment in pursuing hobbies - and even second careers - thanks to the opportunities offered by the internet. Seen one way, this is a sign of growing emancipation from strictlydefined roles, an understanding that leaving the workforce could mean the beginning of a new kind of life. In more developed societies, this understanding has existed for a long time, with retirees encouraged to pursue hobbies, travel and form new friendships. Seen another way, however, it indicates a deeper social upheaval in the making for traditional societies such as China or even India: If the elderly aren't around to offer free caregiving or babysitting duties, as they are typically expected to do, who will fulfil them? Are there extra-familial systems that are robust enough to smoothly take their place? And who will pay for them?

As populations in some parts of the world age more rapidly than others – China is starting to go grey faster than almost any other country - these questions will need to be addressed with greater urgency. At the moment, India has the advantage of a youthful population - it is not something to be frittered away. Citizens of any age must have the freedom to shed traditional roles and it is for the state to ensure that the conditions are right for them to do so unhindered.

THE FOOTBALL world cup started in Qatar just as the COP27 climate summit ended in Egypt. The two are guite similar in many ways. The underdogs try to take on better-equipped teams. There is big business surrounding the actual games. And the outcome can come down to a game-changing moment.

The clear winner at COP27 was the group of climate-vulnerable developing countries that succeeded in creating a special fund to pay for climate impacts. For decades, they had testified to their helplessness against a problem they never caused. They were up against the richest nations in the world who refused to even put the topic on the summit agenda.

Two things changed recently, which boosted their cause. First, climate scientists developed methods to attribute the likelihood of an extreme weather event to global warming. We now know that the heat wave that hit north India in 2022 was 30 times more likely only due to climate change. Second, two regional governments - Scotland in the UK and Wallonia in Belgium – broke away from the stance of their national governments and put forward the first sums of money for losses due to climate impacts. This created peer pressure for other industrialised countries.

What does this mean for India? India has made maior advances in early warning systems and rarely seeks international help in natural disasters. For us, it is perhaps more important to stand with other vulnerable countries. The creation of this new "loss and damage" fund is a victory against all odds.

The poor track record of rich countries in delivering finance has caused resentment. As Mia Mottley, the prime minister of Barbados, said, 'We were the ones whose blood, sweat and tears financed the industrial revolution. Are we now to face double jeopardy by having to pay the cost as a result of those greenhouse gases from the industrial revolution?'

This year's climate summit took place against a backdrop of war and energy insecurity. Renewable energy has become big business and is seeing record breaking growth. From 2019 to 2021, solar power generation grew by 47 per cent and wind by 31 per cent worldwide. But the share of renewables in the global electricity mix is stuck at around 35 per cent for the last 20 years. It needs to become about 75 per cent by 2030 to meet the growing demand for power while limiting global warming to 1.5°C. This means that even as renewable energy scales up, fossil fuel use will need to be phased down. Last year's COP pledged to phase down coal, and this year India challenged all countries to commit to phasing down all fossil fuels. However, the final statement from the COP only calls for a diversified energy mix, implicitly endorsing the continued expansion of gas.

For India, the transition to a net-zero emissions future may require an additional investment of nearly $3 trillion over three decades. We need to build infrastructure to generate renewable energy, store it, transmit it, use it to run electric vehicles, and produce green hydrogen for industry. For comparison. India's total FDI is about $100 billion a year. The gamechanging action in the COP could be its call to reform the international financial system to unleash concessional funds for climate action.

During the pandemic, many developing countries were forced to cut back their domestic investments for building climate resilience. Other developing countries were pushed deeper into debt because the climate finance they received from rich countries was in the form of loans had to be repaid in foreign currency. Developing countries face high costs of borrowing capital for clean energy projects. Adapting to climate risks in sectors like agriculture, water, and health currently gets only a fifth of available climate finance, and needs grants than loans. Last year's COP promised to double the funding for adaptation by 2025.

The poor track record of rich countries in delivering finance has caused resentment. As Mia Mottley, the prime minister of Barbados, said. "We were the ones whose blood, sweat and tears financed the industrial revolution. Are we now to face double jeopardy by having to pay the cost as a result of those greenhouse gases from the industrial revolution?"

Injecting fresh funds by reforming the practices of international financial institutions may be the real legacy of COP27. India will take up the presidency of the G20 from December 1. As G20 president, India will have a unique platform to drive the sustainable energy transition agenda forward.

Poverty, uncensored

Recent claims of spectacular poverty decline under the Modi government miss the plot

JEAN DRÈZE

CHILDREN OFTEN DECLARE a game over when they happen to be on a winning streak, just to be able to claim victory. That seems to be what Surjit Bhalla is trying to do in a recent article, co-authored with Karan Bhasin (IE, November 4, 'Poverty is down, period'). In that article, the authors (B&B) make startling claims of runaway poverty decline under the Narendra Modi government, and proceed to state without false modesty that this "unambiguous and strong conclusion" allows them to "close this debate". Problem is, their figures are very misleading.

B&B's central claim is that poverty decline accelerated under Modi across the full range of 10 deprivations used in the calculation of "multidimensional poverty" (MP). The claim is based on a set of figures presented by B&B as deprivation-specific "headcount ratios" (HCRs) – the percentage of deprived persons in the population. The deprivations of interest are those commonly used in MP calculations, and relate to three distinct domains - health, education and household amenities (also called "living standards"). HCR estimates for 2005-06, 2015-16 and 2019-21 are presented, based on successive National Family Health Surveys. The authors also insert, in this series, 2011-12 estimates based on the second India Human Development Survey (IHDS-2).

B&B then compare the annual rate of decline of deprivation-specific HCRs before and after 2011-12. The results are startling. Across the board, the rate of decline of HCRs was higher after 2011-12 - even "eight times higher" on average. Wow!

But here is the rub. The 2011-12 figures are plain wrong, as B&B graciously admitted by email. They are actually 2005-06 figures from an outdated MP series, copypasted by mistake. So, the alleged comparison between 2005-06 and "2011-12" is actually a comparison between two different sets of estimates for 2005-06 (indeed, the respective figures are very close to each other), and the comparison between "2011-12" and 2019-21 is actually a comparison between 2005-06 and 2019-21. No wonder B&B found that HCR decline was so slow before "2011-12", and so rapid after that

This goof-up cannot be repaired, because IHDS data are not comparable with NFHS in any case. We can try to salvage something from this wreck by discarding the 2011-12 figures and focusing on the comparable NFHS figures for 2005-06, 2015-16 and 2019-21. Alas, those figures are wrong too, as anyone familiar with NFHS data would immediately notice. The figures projected by B&B as indicator-specific HCRs ("the percent poor/deprived according to that indicator", as they put it) are not, in fact, headcount ratios. They are "censored headcount ratios", very misleading for the authors' purpose as I shall explain shortly.

Meanwhile, the correct HCRs are presented in the accompanying table, along with the corresponding rates of decline before and after 2015-16. Contrary to B&B's analysis, the rate of HCR decline was not uniformly faster in the second period - far from it. It was faster for most household amenities, but slower for most other indicators.

How we judge overall progress would depend on how much "weight" we attach to different indicators. In MP work, the convention is to give equal weight (one third each) to health, education and amenities, and then equal weight to individual indicators within each domain. Based on the conventional MP weights, we find that the overall rate of decline of deprivation was the same in both periods.

Another way of judging overall progress is to look at the "multidimensional poverty" HCR. Briefly and approximately, this is the proportion of persons who are "multidimensionally poor" in the sense of experiencing more than a threshold number of deprivations. The multidimensionalpoverty HCR, it turns out, declined faster in the second period (last row in the table). This is not necessarily surprising, since a given percentage decline is easier to achieve from a lower base. The fast decline of multidimensional poverty in the second period is largely driven by the rapid improvement of amenities. The latter is also driving the rapid decline of B&B's "censored HCRs". For a given deprivation, the censored HCR is the proportion, in the total population, of people who are deprived and multidimensionally poor. Even if there is no improvement in. say, nutrition, the censored HCR for nutrition deprivation would decline over time of these MP-related indicators capture short-term purchasing power. As B&B rightly point out, amenity improvements in the second period are more a reflection of public policy and subsidies than rising incomes. The impact of public policy in this domain deserves appreciation. But trends in household purchasing power would also be important to look at. On this, the first period was almost certainly more favourable: The rate of growth of per-capita consumption, according to national accounts figures presented by B&B themselves, crashed in the second period (after the demonetisation self-goal, much applauded by Surjit Bhalla). And remember, all this pertains to the pre-Covid years - most sample households in the 2019-21 NFHS survey were interviewed before the Covid crisis began.

That, roughly, is the picture as things stand, with all the qualifications that apply to these indicators and methods. None of them are perfect, and the debate must certainly continue. Hopefully, the next NSSO consumer expenditure survey and third India Human Development Survey will soon shed further light on these matters. This is my third analysis – in three years – of Surjit Bhalla's legendary spinning skills. I promise to leave it at that for now time to quit!

Reading the inflation tea leaves

While inflation may have peaked, the pain is far from over- and that has consequences for the wider economy

OVER THE PAST several months there has been much concern, and rightfully so, over the trajectory of inflation. The most recent data, however, seems to indicate that retail inflation has possibly peaked and is now likely to trend downwards. But, it would be wise to exercise caution. The latest data, while providing useful nuggets of information about price trends in the economy, challenges some of the widely held conceptions about inflation, and gives mixed signals about its trajectory. Five broad causes of high inflation in India has in recent months centred around the Russia-Ukraine

war. The sharp rise in commodity prices as a consequence of the war is considered to have been largely responsible for the spurt in inflation this year, pushing it beyond the upper threshold of the RBI's inflation-targeting framework. There is some truth to this. For instance, India's crude oil import price rose from $84.67 per barrel in January to $112.87 in March, and further to $116.01 in June. The ripple effects of higher commodity prices

been on a downward trend. Case in point:

India's crude oil import basket price has fallen by around 20 per cent since then to less than $92/barrel in November. Yet, over the same period, core inflation has edged upward. If high core inflation in the months after the beginning of hostilities was an outcome of the passthrough, either in part or completely, of the Ukraine war, then the decline in commodity prices since then should have led to a moderation in core inflation.

But that does not seem to be the case. If anything core inflation has firmed up in recent months - from 6.1 per cent in June to around 6.6 per cent in October. Perhaps, the tion is getting more generalised across both the formal and informal segments of the economy. One indication of this comes from the clothing and footwear category - a highly fragmented industry with the presence of both formal and informal segments.

Inflation in this category has averaged 9.7

per cent over the past eight months (March-effects will be visible with a lag.

item-wise weight in the inflation index, any movement in either direction, however small, would have a large impact on core inflation.

Third, during the pandemic, supply-side disruptions had caused goods inflation to rise, even as services inflation remained relatively muted owing to risk-averse behaviour by consumers and restrictions on highcontact intensive sectors. But as activities normalised, there was an expectation that services inflation would see a strong pickup. The recent data indicates that this has not been the case. While services inflation has risen, it remains considerably lower than goods inflation, perhaps owing to a combination of lower cost-push pressures, more slack and less demand.

Fourth, to what extent prices are rigid on the downside will depend not only on how demand fares now with monetary conditions having been tightened, but also on the extent of competition in the economy, among others. After all, greater market concentration creates conditions for greater pricing power. A badly damaged non-corporate sector (MSMEs) would have led to ruptures in the low-cost economy, increasing the pricing power of the corporate sector during this period. This would reflect in healthy corporate margins. It is conceivable that these forces are also at work in the clothing and footwear category – a sector that witnessed perhaps the largest firm death rates during the pandemic, creating geographical pricing power for both the surviving formal and informal firms.

However, preliminary data on the second quarter results seem to suggest that firm margins have begun to come under pressure. Perhaps, as the non-corporate sector recovers, greater competition will limit corporate pricing power. As per a recent Crisil report, almost all the formal MSMEs are likely to recover to their pre-pandemic level of revenue by this year. Though whether the same holds for the informal MSMEs is difficult to gauge.

Fifth, it seems unlikely that this spurt in inflation will translate into a wage-price spiral. Unlike in countries like the US, price pressures in India coexist with weak, not tight, labour market conditions. Inflation in India is not a consequence of a strong economy. Wage growth in the large informal rural economy has been lower than inflation. And while some skill-intensive segments of the urban formal labour force may be able to exercise some bargaining power, the labour force participation rates suggest continuing slack in urban labour markets.

How these forces play out will determine to what extent non-food prices are sticky on the downside. The RBI expects inflation to edge downwards from 6.5 per cent in the third quarter to 5.8 per cent in the fourth guarter and then to 5 per cent in the first quarter of the next financial year (2023-24). But, considering its forecasting errors in the past, it is possible that the central bank continues to underestimate the price pressures in the economy. While inflation may have peaked, it is far from being quashed.

Another possible indication comes from rentals. Rental inflation in India had tended to remain largely range-bound over much of the past few years. However, there has been a steady uptick over the past five months. It is possible that this is a one-time correction - landlords who would have held back on raising rents during the pandemic would now be adjusting for lost time. A win-win deal

India-Australia ECTA is a landmark in bilateral relations, will deepen ties

RAKESH MOHAN JOSHI

THE RATIFICATION OF the India-Australia Economic Cooperation and Trade Agreement (ECTA) by the Australian parliament on Tuesday demonstrates India's skill in trade negotiations. The deal sailed smoothly through the Australian parliament, despite the fact that it was negotiated when the Liberal Party was in power and signed on April 2, 2022, and Labour came to power in May. This is salient also because most free trade deals New Delhi has negotiated and entered into have been mostly with South Asian countries and hardly served India's trade interests. Rather, they became counterproductive. Prime Minister Narendra Modi and his Australian counterpart Prime Minister Anthony Albanese and Commerce Minister, Piyush Goyal and his counterpart, Trade, Tourism and Investment Minister of Australia, Don Farrell need to be complemented for striking the first trade deal with a developed country in a decade. On the one hand, it provides an opportunity for Australian exporters to tap the vast Indian market of 1.4 billion consumers, on the other, it provides an opportunity for Indian exporters to market their value-added products.

Considerable preparation and hard work had gone into finalising the negotiating agenda. Indian negotiators must be complimented for managing to get exclusions for the most sensitive sectors, and dairy and agriculture. These provide employment in rural areas to about 50-55 per cent of its population with small landholdings and 1-2 cattle per farmer. This is in sharp contrast to Australian agriculture and dairying. This bone of contention had stood in the way of a free trade deal.

India and Australia both are Commonwealth countries, and parliamentary democracies with similar legal systems. Besides. India and Australia also are members of the Quad, a trilateral Supply Chain Resilience Initiative (SCRI) and the Indo-Pacific Economic Framework (IPEF).

China is Australia's largest trade partner with a 33 per cent share in its exports and a 27 per cent share in its imports, compared to India's 3.7 per cent share in its exports and a 2.4 per cent share in its imports as of 2021. Strategically, the need for trade diversification away from China for Australia, in view of a multiplicity of geopolitical factors, significantly tilts the balance in favour of India, leading to a win-win partnership. Manufactured goods such as petroleum, medicaments, diamonds, jewellery, railway coaches and vehicles, milled rice and herbicides constitute 72 per cent of India's exports to Australia. India primarily imports raw materials. Eighty-two per cent of its imports from Australia are coal, gold, copper ore, aluminium oxide, liquified natural gas, manganese ore, aluminium waste, pigments, lentils, etc.

The Ind-Aus ECTA will lead to duty elimination on 100 per cent tariff lines with no restrictions and benefit India's labour-intensive exports such as textiles and apparel, agriculture and fish products, leather, footwear and furniture, several engineering products, jewellery, select pharmaceutical and medical devices, furniture and sports goods. These now fetch 4-5 per cent import duty in the Australian market. The agreement would provide duty-free access to over 6,000 broad categories of Indian products in the Australian market.

The trade deal will boost exports of pharmaceuticals, India's second-largest export after petroleum products, to Australia, as medicaments that have already been approved in the US and the UK will get expeditious regulatory approval from Australian authorities.

India is the world's largest importer of coal. Out of India's coal trade deficit of $24 billion, Australia accounts for $11 billion. The Ind-Aus ECTA is likely to make coal, a crucial input for India's energy needs and its industrial growth, available at competitive prices. Besides, duty-free imports of Australian raw materials such as copper. nickel, aluminium, manganese, wool, hide and skins, etc, would boost the competitiveness of Indian industry and create enormous job opportunities. Australia will also allow duty-free import of Indian wines, while India will reduce import duties from 150 per cent to 100 per cent on Australian wines of $5 per bottle, down to 50 per cent in 10 years chandise trade and the Indian services sector also gets a major boost as it makes wideranging commitments in around 135 service sectors. The Most Favoured Nation (MFN) status will be granted in about 120 sub-sectors covering key areas of India's interest such as IT, ITES, education, health and audio-visual. The deal provides an annual quota of 1,800 for yoga teachers and Indian chefs and a commitment to over one lakh of India's outgoing students to Australia, who are likely to benefit from post-study work-visa ranging from one-and-half years to four vears.

The Ind-Aus ECTA is expected to increase bilateral merchandise exports by $10 billion by 2026-27. It will contribute to the creation of additional job opportunities for Indians in Australia and an additional 10 lakh jobs in India as a result of Australian investments. The trade deal also resolves the long-pending Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement (DTAA) related to IT/ITES. This will lead to yearly savings of over $200 million, a remarkable achievement.

The trade deal will prove to be a milestone in India-Australia relations that will not only increase mutual cooperation, but also significantly contribute to boosting economic growth and the strategic partnership between the two countries.

SPARK OF DEFIANCE

THIS REFERS TO the article, 'Woman, life, liberty' (IE, November 23). Sporting events have been used quite successfully to draw attention towards issues of importance. The Iranian football team's players standing mum when their national anthem was played sends a loud message to the world: Matters of womens' rights can no longer be dismissed in the name of religious diktats and/or despotism. The death of Mahsa Amini has resulted not only in an emotional outcry but more than that, a fearlessness among Iranians, especially the youth, which may well prove to be the trigger for some long-awaited reforms in the country.

A FINE ART

THIS REFERS TO the article, 'A land with no joy'(IE, November 23). Cinema reflects the reality of a particular time and is about contextual issues in a society. Films, then, are not just entertainment, they are an art form. Art is a way of sensitising and humanising people. Art conveys lessons in artistic ways. There is a difference between "what ought to be" and "what actually is". Cinema, at times, explores the latter. Seeing the trailer for Joyland made me change my opinion on the state of freedom of speech and expression in Pakistan. It is delightful that citizens of other South Asian nations too are getting opportunities for exploring and showcasing their creativity. Casting a transgender actor is a step forward. Cinema is an art without creative boundaries and to ban or circumscribe it is limiting the humanity of the artist.

COURT'S REBUKE

THIS REFERS TO the report, 'Need CEC who can't be bulldozed, Seshan happens once in a while: SC' (IE, November 23). The remark by the five-judge bench of the Supreme Court hearing petitions about the appointment process of the Election Commissioners is a stinging rebuke. The Court said that the Chief Election Commissioner should be someone "with character" who "does not allow himself to be bulldozed". In a sense, it also puts the government in the dock for its recent appointments to the post.

URBAN ISSUES

THIS REFERS TO the editorial, 'Stay with local' (IE, November 23). The upcoming Delhi Municipal Corporation elections have turned on the heat between the BJP and AAP. Undoubtedly, both parties have focused on the ongoing civic problems in Delhi during the campaign. However, beyond that, they must bring to light and address the structural issues that prevail and affect the workings of urban local bodies. Apart from winning elections, each party should do their best to address these issues as well as work on the infrastructure deficit.

Was it because Shraddha's last name was Walkar or because he (the accused's name is) Aaftab? Or was it because chief minister (Uddhav Thackeray) was supported by NCP and Congress?"

The Bandra West MLA further said, "If political pressure comes in way of police action, it is a serious matter. Just because perpetrator belongs to certain community, you cannot go out of the way to shield his crime. Crime has no caste or religion. Unfortunately, a Marathi woman paid with her life because of MVA's complacency."

The Shiv Sena (UBT), meanwhile, hit out at BJP. Party spokesperson Manisha Kayande said, "BJP, which inducts MLA Sanjay Rathod in the ministry, who was accused in Pooja Chavan case and felicitates convicts in Bilkis Bano rape case, should not speak about all this. Their double standard on the issue of women is visible. It is sad that Shelar is indulging in dirty politics and trying to give the matter a religious colour. We demand strict action against the policemen responsible for (inaction into Shraddha's letter).'

Responding to Shelar, Sena (UBT) MP, Arvind Sawant, said, "I condemn the way these people use the dead for politics ... '

BJP said that led by Shelar, its Mumbai Minority Morcha will a stage protest at party office in Nariman Point Thursday. At the protest, the morcha will seek death sentence for Aaftab.

AMID QUESTIONS being raised over why police did not take any action following the written complaint lodged by Shraddha Walkar in November 2020 against her live-in partner Aaftab Poonawala and Maharashtra Deputy CM Devendra Fadnavis assuring an investigation into it, several retired police officers in the state said that police should have acted promptly.

Several retired police officers in Maharashtra told The Indian Express that the police sub-inspector who was inquiring into the written complaint lodged by Shraddha should have acted promptly after she approached Tulini police station on November

Bipin Bihari, a retired IPS officer, said, "Aaftab Poonawala should have been at least brought to the police station and warned. After verifying facts, if the officer had acted promptly, then they could have even parted ways."

Another retired police officer also said Aaftab should have been called to police station. "If the officer called and warned him then he would have been aware as to what will happen if anything goes wrong with the woman," he said. FULLREPORTON

HAVING REMOVED the Armed Forces Special Powers Act (AFSPA) from several areas of Nagaland, Assam and Manipur earlier this year, and having expressed willingness to progressively remove them from other areas as well, the Centre has asked police forces of the states concerned to assess their preparedness to meet security challenges and lead counterinsur-

To get this working, special units of the Bureau of Police Research and Development (BPR&D) and the Central Reserve Police Force (CRPF) are being set up in Northeast to train police personnel in operations, investigations and prosecution, it was spelt out at a special conference of DGPs of these states and regional heads of 12 central agencies.

Organised by the Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) and Intelligence Bureau with an aim to foster greater cooperation among state police forces in combatting insurgency and smuggling, the two-day conference in Agartala, Tripura, wound up on Wednesday.

The conference, which also discussed developments in Myanmar, counter-smuggling measures and means to stop illicit drug trade, assumes significance since it came in the backdrop of Tuesday's clash between Assam Police and people from

WITH AN exhibition, two panel discussions and addresses by union cabinet ministers, including Prime Minister Narendra Modi, the Assam government is culminating its valourisation of 17th century Ahom general Lachit Barphukan through his 400th birth anniversary celebrations this vear in Delhi.

Three days of these celebrations were kicked off in the national capital Wednesday with Union Minister of Finance Nirmala Sitharaman inaugurating an exhibition on Barphukan and the Lachit Barphukon is best known for leading the Ahom troops which fought and defeated advancing Mughal troops at the Battle of Saraighat on the outskirts of Guwahati in 1671. Through these high-profile celebrations of his 400th birth anniversary, the Assam government is pushing for his national recognition as a hero along the lines of Shivaji, and as an

by foiling their imperialist policy at Saraighat," he added.

The Assam government has been having a week-long celebration since November 18, which included the release of a theme song by renowned singer Zubeen Garg. On Wednesday, Sarma announced that a book and a documentary on Barphukan have been prepared and the government is working on memorial projects including a building in Barphukan's honour at the National Police Academy in Hyderabad.

"I would strongly urge the government of Assam to make sure this display is taken to the different parts of the country, to different universities where young

Union Home Minister Amit Shah will attend the celebrations on Thursday and Prime Minister Modi will attend on Friday.

TELSTAR, AZTECA, AL RIHLA: A SHORT HISTORY OF WORLD CUP BALLS

NARAYANAN S KOCHI, NOVEMBER 23

Fifa World Cup balls

ACCORDING TO Fifa, Al Rihla, the official match ball for the Qatar World Cup, is faster than any other in the tournament's history. It is the 14th successive ball created by Adidas for Fifa World Cups, starting from Mexico 1970.

The Al Rihla ball

Al Rihla means 'the journey' in Arabic. It is also the name of the travelogue of Ibn Battuta, the 14th-century Moroccan explorer who travelled extensively around Asia, Europe, and Africa, and visited the court of Sultan Muhammad bin Tughlaq in Delhi.

According to a Fifa statement, Al Rihla is the first World Cup ball to be made exclusively with waterbased inks and glues, as sustainability was a key priority for the makers. Its bold colour is inspired by Qatar's culture, architecture, iconic boats and flag, the game's governing body said after revealing the ball in March this year.

The ball's main design features are a CRT core and speedshell

According to Fifa, the core provides speed, accuracy, and consistency for fast-paced action and precision, with maximal shape and air retention, and rebound accuracy; the speedshell is a textured polyurethane skin with a new 20-piece panel shape, improving accuracy, flight stability and swerve.

Offside technology

For the first time Fifa has used a semi-automated technology for offside calls. Twelve dedicated tracking cameras have been mounted underneath the stadium roof to track the ball and up to 29 data points of each individual player, 50 times per second, calculating their exact position on the pitch

The first World Cup in 1930 had no official ball. Before the final, Uruguay and Argentina sparred over the choice of the match ball and reached a compromise that the first half would be played with Argentina's choice Tiento, followed by the T-model preferred by Uruguay. Curiously, Uruguay overturned a 1-2 deficit to win 4-2 with their preferred ball and became champions.

In 1950, the World Cup returned after a 12-year break, owing to World War II, with Duplo T, which did not have laces. It had valves through which the ball could be inflated with a pump and a needle.

The era of Adidas balls

TELSTAR: At Mexico 1970, Adidas came into the picture for the first time, with a 32-panel black-andwhite design for its iconic Telstar, which had considerably improved visibility on TV. At West Germany 1974, Adidas became an official partner of Fifa as the company's name featured on the ball for the first time.

AZTECA: At Mexico 1986, Adidas introduced Azteca, the first fully synthetic ball in the tournament's history. The ball retained its shape after being kicked and fared much better than leather balls in water resistance and durability.

TRICOLORE: France 1998 saw multicoloured balls for the first time. Tricolore had the colours of the French flag - red, white and blue - adorning the triads.

JABULANI: At South Africa 2010, Adidas produced the most controversial World Cup ball of all time. The company reduced the number of panels to eight to make the ball more round, but its unpredictable behaviour in the air made the players, especially goalkeepers such as Gianluigi Buffon of Italy and Julio Cesar of Brazil, extremely unhappy.

EXPLAINED ECONOMICS Rupee, inflation, and the RBI

A veteran policy maker who has had a ringside view of the economy over decades, weighs in on the factors driving the depreciation of the rupee; why it is essential to contain domestic inflation to stop the slide

CRANGARAJAN

From The Indian Express panel of specialists, exclusive insight

Why is the rupee falling against the dollar?

First of all, we need to understand how the value of the rupee is determined. Several decades ago, there was a theory called the purchasing power parity theory, which explained how the value of any currency is determined. The idea was that the external value of a currency is determined by its internal value --meaning that the rate differential between one currency and another depends upon the difference in the inflation in the two countries.

That was a time when the balance of payments of a country was dominated by what we call the current account - that is, the export and import of goods and services.

But over time, this has changed. An important element now is the capital account in the balance of payments - which means the inflow and outflow of funds. The value of a currency can be strong despite the fact that it has a high current account deficit because there is enough capital flowing from outside into the country.

Therefore, the supply of foreign currency increases not because of [trade] but because of the decision to invest or because of the decision to keep deposits in our country.

In some sense what has happened in the Indian situation – and this is true of many other countries as well – is that the main reason for the rupee depreciating in its value, let's say against the dollar, is because the funds inflow into our country started diminishing.

That is because the Fed, with a view to control inflation in the United States, really raised the rate of interest.

Therefore, investors find the United States is [more] attractive, because of the higher rent account deficit.

And this is where the whole purchasing power parity comes [into the picture]. So long as inflation in our country is higher than the inflation in other countries, the value of the rupee will (continue to) depreciate.

What can be done to stabilise the rupee's exchange rate?

I have always taken the position that we must reduce our inflation rate.

For example, the US talks of 2% as the appropriate inflation, whereas, we talk of 4% as the appropriate inflation, even though our actual inflation may be higher, but at least the goal is 4%. If you have this (setting), then every year the value of the rupee will have to depreciate.

The point is that the current situation has been aggravated because of the capital flows. But over a period of time, we really need to see that our inflation --while it may not necessarily be equal to their inflation -(is) at least close to it and the margin is not that high.

From the Monetary Policy Committee minutes and statements, there appears to be an increasing divergence between what the RBI needs to do to control inflation domestically and what it might have to do to support the rupee against the interest rate hikes in the US. What should the RBI do?

A conflict of that kind does not actually exist.

I will say that even in India inflation is at a higher level. We had set 6% as the upper limit in the inflation targeting scheme, but the inflation rate has been above 6% for almost nine months.

Therefore, we too need to control inflation. In some senses, raising the rate of interest is serving two purposes: it moderates inflation and at the same time, it does have an effect in terms of the value of the rupee as well.

Therefore, I don't see that (conflict) at the moment, but the question that will arise: to what extent (should the RBI raise the interest rates)?

I do not think that India can say that we will not raise the rate of interest. I think that is ruled out in my opinion...(Because) I think we really have a problem, we also have a high inflation, (and) we need to bring it down.

Romantic artist Eugene Delacroix watched as the grand streets and boulevards of Paris filled up with protestors-regular, workingclass and middle-class people - who had had enough of their Bourbon king Charles X. They forced Charles X to flee to Versailles and Rambouillet and, a week later, announce that he was stepping down from the throne.

Delacroix commemorated the heroism of the people in one of his most evocative paintings, 'La Liberté Guidant le Peuple' (Liberty Leading the People). At the centre of the work is Marianne, the allegorical figure of Liberty, surrounded by revolutionaries

She is dressed in symbolic garments that include, on her head, a limp, brimless red cap known as the Phrygian cap, which the common people of France wore. Earlier this month, the Paris 2024 of Paris 2024.

Symbol of freedom

The origin of the Phrygian cap, also known as the liberty cap and bonnet rouge, is tied to the history of suppressed people.

The cap's floppy design can be traced to the pileus or pilos hats that were given as signs of freedom to Roman slaves. In Greek and Roman mythology, the twins Castor and Pollux hatched from an egg and are shown wearing the pileus -just as slaves are seen as being born into new life with their freedom.

Political colours

Headdress became a matter of importance in asserting political identity and loyalty during the French Revolution (1787-99). "Hats adorned with a tricolour ribbon cockade became symbols of patriotism, while the liberty cap or bonnet rouge became a symbol figure or a wise woman. Incidentally, in some cases, it was thought that the Phrygian cap was too seditious and Marianne was made to wear a diadem or a crown. Nonetheless, to this day, the red cap is associated in France with liberty. It is also an international symbol of liberty present in many emblems in North and South America.

The Olympics website says, "For Paris 2024, this new generation of Phryges will write history. Led by one Olympic and one Paralympic Phrygian, the tribe of mascots will be central to Paris 2024's vision to change lives by leading a revolution through sport. Their mission is to demonstrate to the world that sport can change everything and that it deserves to have a central role in society.'

The Olympic Games in 2024 will be held from July 26 - August 11, while the Paralympic Games will take place from August 28 to September 8.

On Assam-Meghalaya border dispute, shadow of recent killings

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE GUWAHATI, NOVEMBER 23

BOTH MEGHALAYA and Assam Wednesday said they would seek a probe from a central agency into the Assam Police firing that killed six people Tuesday along the states' border. The incident comes ahead of the second phase of talks scheduled for this month-end between the two states to resolve their boundary dispute, and there are concerns its shadow will loom large over the negotiations.

What happened

Six people, including an Assam Forest Guard, were killed and several others injured during an alleged clash between the Assam Police and a mob, around 3 am Tuesday in an area bordering the West Karbi Anglong district of Assam and Mukroh village in Meghalaya's West Jaintia Hills. The Assam Police has claimed they opened fire in self defence after a mob surrounded them when they were trying to intercept a truck allegedly smuggling timber.

Five of those killed are from Meghalaya.

The incident drew a sharp reaction from Meghalaya Chief Minister Conrad Sangma, who termed the Assam Police's actions "inhuman" and said the state will set up a judicial commission and a Special Investigation Team to probe the shooting until a central agency takes over.

On its part, Assam has announced a oneman inquiry commission under a retired High Court judge. The West Karbi Anglong Superintendent of Police has been "transferred", and the Jirikinding police station officer-in-charge and Forest Protection Officer of Kheroni Forest Range have been suspended. While Sangma in a press briefing condemned the Assam Police and forest guards for "entering Meghalaya" and resorting to "unprovoked firing", Assam, in a statement announcing the setting up of the inquiry commission, said the incident took place in the West Karbi Anglong district, which is in Assam.

What is the border dispute

Assam and Meghalaya have a longstanding dispute in 12 stretches of their 884-km shared border. The two states had signed a pact in March resolving the dispute in six out of 12 areas. In August, they decided to form regional committees. The second round of discussions for the remaining six phases was to commence by the end of this month..

The Assam-Meghalaya pact was seen as a major achievement, as Assam's border disputes with other states in the Northeast have remained unresolved despite multiple rounds of talks. Now, the firing threatens to derail the upcoming talks.

During the British rule, undivided Assam included present-day Nagaland, Arunachal Pradesh, Meghalaya and Mizoram. Meghalaya was carved out in 1972. its boundaries demarcated as per the Assam Reorganisation (Meghalaya) Act of 1969, but has held a different interpretation of the border since. In 2011, the Meghalaya government had identified 12 areas of difference with Assam, spread over approximately 2,700 sq km.

Some of these disputes stem from recommendations made by a 1951 committee headed by then Assam chief minister Gopinath Bordoloi.

For example, a 2008 research paper from the Manohar Parrikar Institute for Defence Studies and Analyses refers to the Bordoloi Committee's recommendation that Blocks I and II of Jaintia Hills (Meghalaya) be transferred to the Mikir Hill (Karbi Anglong) district of Assam, besides some areas from Meghalaya's Garo Hills to Goalpara district of Assam. The 1969 Act is based on these recommendations, which Meghalaya rejects, claiming these areas belong to the Khasi-Jaintia Hills. On the other hand, Assam says Meghalaya does not have the requisite documents to prove these areas historically belonged to Meghalaya. A number of attempts were made in the past to resolve the boundary dispute. In 1985, under then Assam chief minister Hiteswar Saikia and Meghalaya chief minister Captain W A Sangma, an official committee was constituted under the former Chief Justice of India Y V Chandrachud. However, a solution was not found.

From July 2021, Sangma and his Assam counterpart, Himanta Biswa Sarma, held several rounds of talks to make headway.

Both state governments identified six out of 12 disputed areas for resolution in the first phase: three areas contested between West Khasi Hills district in Meghalaya and Kamrup in Assam, two between RiBhoi in Meghalaya and Kamrup-Metro, and one between East Jaintia Hills in Meghalaya and Cachar in Assam.

After a series of meetings and visits by teams to the disputed areas, both sides submitted reports based on five mutually agreed principles: historical perspective, ethnicity of local population, contiguity with boundary, peoples' will and administrative convenience.

A final set of recommendations were made jointly: out of 36.79 sq km of disputed area taken up for settlement in the first phase, Assam would get full control of 18.46 sq km and Meghalaya of 18.33 sq km. In March, an MoU was signed based on these recommendations.

in Ukraine, Moldova as Russia rains missiles JOHN LEICESTER & SAM MEDNICK KYIV, NOVEMBER 23 A PUNISHING new barrage of Russian strikes on Ukrainian infrastructure on Wednesday caused power outages across large parts of the country as well as neighboring Moldova, piling more damage onto Ukraine's already battered power network and adding to the misery for civilians as winter begins.

Multiple regions reported attacks in quick succession and Ukraine's Energy Ministry said that "the vast majority of electricity consumers were cut off."

Officials in Kyiv said three people were killed and nine wounded in the capital.

Russia has been pounding the power grid and other facilities with missiles and exploding drones for weeks and the energy system is being damaged faster than it can be repaired. Before the latest barrage, President Volodymyr Zelenskyy had said that Russian strikes had already damaged around half of Ukraine's energy infrastructure.

Moldova's pro-Western president, Maia Sandu, said in a statement that "Russia left Moldova in the dark." Moldova's foreign minister said the Russian ambassador was being summoned to give explanations.

The latest onslaught came hours after Ukrainian authorities said an overnight rocket attack destroyed a hospital maternity ward in southern Ukraine, killing a 2-day-old baby.

THE SCOTTISH government cannot hold a second referendum on independence without approval from the British parliament, the UK's top court ruled on Wednesday, dealing a hammer blow to nationalists' hopes of holding a vote next year.

Scottish First Minister Nicola Sturgeon, leader of the pro-independence Scottish National Party (SNP), had announced earlier this vear she intended to hold an advisory vote on secession next October, but that it had to be lawful and internationally recognised. After the UK Supreme Court ruled she could not do so without the approval of the United Kingdom parliament, she repeated her vow to campaign in the next UK-wide election, expected to be held in 2024, solely on a platform of whether Scotland should be independent, making it a "de facto" referendum.

The statement warned that Israel will answer for what it called the "crime." Iran has been a main supporter of Syrian

TO ENABLE SEAMLESS, CASHLESS OPD FUNCTIONING ACROSS THE COUNTRY Collect data of health professionals from repository: IRDAI to insurers

ENSECONOMIC BUREAU MUMBAI, NOVEMBER 23

THE INSURANCE Regulatory and Development Authority of India (IRDAI) has advised insurance companies to capture the identity (ID) of medical practitioners from a repository for verification while issuing or renewing health policies. The new system is expected to enable seamless, cashless functioning of outpatient treatment (OPD) across the country. According to IRDAI, insurers can validate their ID from the Healthcare Professional Registry (HPR), a comprehensive repository of registered and verified practitioners of healthcare professionals delivering modern as well as traditional healthcare services across India. "This will enable digitization and ease the process of buying and selling the Professional Indemnity policies and push for HPR registration among the healthcare professionals," the regulator said.

This will also help in avoiding medical malpractices under professional indemnity cover. General and health insurers offering health insurance policies can also consider leveraging on the Health Professional Registry for building up the network of doctors, physicians or other healthcare professionals for providing OPD or other healthcare services, IRDAI said.

As part of Ayushman Bharat Digital Mission, the National Health Authority (NHA) has incorporated a Healthcare Professional Registry (HPR). Under HPR, a healthcare professional ID(HPID) will be created via Aadhaar or other KYC, along with the medical qualifications of the medical professional which is verified by their respective State Medical Councils.

This HPID serves as a unique ID to the medical practitioners to enable connection with all stakeholders of the healthcare ecosystem. "The potential of the mandate is immense. I see three major benefits from this. First, the availability of a country-wide vetted repository of healthcare practitioners for insurers and TPAs to leverage and build on their network strength. Second, the enormous reach of Ayushman Bharat Digital Mission," said Dr Vijay Sankaran, SVP and Chief Medical Officer at MediAssist. As Ayushman Bharat Digital Mission manages to reach every nook and corner of the country. insurers and TPAs would now be able to empanel verified doctors from far reaching places, he said. "This brings me to the third and foremost benefit. We will now be able to have our cashless OPD network seamlessly spread across both metropolitans and small towns. This is a welcome move and will result in better access to healthcare in the country." Sankaran said. Health insurance is now the largest segment in the non-life insurance sector with gross premium collection touch-

Jadeja, Dayal ruled out of Bangladesh ODIs

New Delhi: All-rounder Ravindra Jadeja was on Wednesday ruled out of next month's away three-match ODI series against Bangladesh after he failed to recover from his knee injury that kept him out of the recent T20 World Cup in Australia. Besides Jadeja, left-arm medium pacer Yash Dayal was also ruled out of the series due to a lower back issue. Fast bowler Kuldeep Sen and all-rounder Shahbaz Ahmed have been named as their replacements.

Para shooters register best-ever show

New Delhi: India registered their bestever show in the World Para Shooting Championship, returning home with an impressive haul of five medals, including three gold, from Al Ain in the UAE. In doing so, the shooters also finished in the fifth place -- their best-ever after the three bronze at the Sydney 2019 Worlds -- with South Korea leading the standings with 20 medals. Hosts UAE finished at eighth place with four medals, including two gold.

Punjab, Rajasthan play out 1-1 draw

Panchkula: Punjab FC were held to a 1-1 draw by Rajasthan United, courtesy an injury time equaliser from Gyamar Nikum in the I-League here on Wednesday. Daniel Lalhimpuia had given Rajasthan United the lead at the Tau Devi Lal Stadium. Punjab FC created pressure in the opposition half and soon got the result. Lalhimpuia volleyed beautifully from the edge of the box after a clearance from Samuel Lalmuanpuia in the 13th minute, beating the Rajasthan goalkeeper.

Jofra Archer joins MI Cape Town for SA20

Cape Town: MI Cape Town on Wednesday announced England pacer Jofra Archer as their wildcard signing for the SA20 league, starting in January. Archer has not played international cricket since March 2021 due to an elbow issue, which was followed by a stress fracture of the lower back. He returned to action for England Lions in a game against the main England side in Abu Dhabi on Wednesday.

EXPRESS AT WORLD CUP

SANDIP G NOVEMBER 23

THE GEOGRAPHY shifts abruptly as you walk from Bin Mansoura Metro Station to Grand Hamad Stadium. The skyscrapers of central Doha fade in the distance, minarets pierce the cloudless skies. The bristle of the city drowns in the suffocating quiet of the neighbourhood, but for the tyre-screech of luxury cars that blurs through the near-empty road.

Just 20 kilometres off Corniche it seems further distant from the endless bustle of the World Cup-soaked Doha. From nowhere manifests the undecorated facade of the stadium, once Doha's premier stadium and home to the Al-Arabi Sports Club, but now slumbering in the past glories, unstained by uber-modernity.

For the last one week, though, the calm has been shaken off. Swathes of policemen in black jackets and caps with slick automatics tucked in their waistbands prowl the locale. The beep of sirens intrude the quietude. On those days, an army of men and women in yellow and green flock the ground, as though for a pilgrimage.

Some of the shopkeepers were initially puzzled, before they were told that the venue would be Brazil's training ground for the World Cup. The Stadium and locality was paint-brushed a fresh identity: Brazil's training ground, an address that would be tattooed forever. It's a good 30-minute walk for the fans. But that has not deterred their enthusiasm. "It's far from where we are staying, we are allowed to watch the practice, but we will always be there," says Felipe, who is from Sao Paulo. What surprised him and his friend Louise was the presence of non-Brazilian fans. "I never thought we had so many supporters in Asia. It's overwhelming. On the first day, there was a two-kilometre long queue from the metro to the stadium. It was almost like we were at home." he adds.

With drums and whistles, cutouts and flags, a river of yellow floods the road whenever they train. "People jumping and running

Like Confianca Nao Se Pega E So Salta Quando Se Ouer (Loosely translated as: With confidence, you can leap over every hurdle) and Aproveitem O Momento De Confianca (Enjoy the moment of trust). The Brazilian coach, apparently, has a volley of lines that you would often find in a motivational movement. Fittingly, he is called Professor. It was put forth to him: "Do you prefer being called sir or professor?" Tite, wearing a dry smile replied: "Professor." And chuckled.

On the first day, there was a two-kilometre-long queue from the metro station to the stadium where Brazil are training. Sandip G

He speaks eloquently, and often philosophical. Elaborating on what winning a World Cup means, he said: "It's a dream. It's a dream that inspires people, it's a dream that educates people. Winning the World Cup is realising the dream every Brazilian is dreaming .:

There is a corner for unwinding too. Like a video-game console, billiards and table tennis boards. The latter is the favourite haunt of Neymar and Richarlison, he says. And when Brazil's players are inside the stadium, it transforms to an island of carnival. Like, a match is on

An office-bearer of the club, Haji Mohammad, says the stadium has never felt alive in a long time. "We didn't get a game for the World Cup. But we will get to see the Brazil team more than all the other stadiums," he says. The Grand Hamad Stadium has regained some of the lost glory too.

Brazil promises to score goals. And dance.

They have packed nine forwards in the side. None like for like, but all bound the singular goal of scoring goals. It's like the Marvel movie where all their superheroes are collaborating Neymar, trimmed his instinct for the theatre and sharpened his eye for the goals, less inclined to feigns and step-overs and more disposed to candidness and directness, he is the leader-linchpin Tite wanted him to be. If he endures an off-day, Vinicius Junior could unleash his speed and trickery on hapless defences.

Neymar usually operates as a classical number 10 or dons a free role, where he and Vinicius swap their roles and positions in quick, neat interplay. Vinicius, too, is role-versatile, and could switch from classical nine to a false nine, or a No 10, or rip through the wings.

What makes Brazil's terrifying, and what made them hammer 40 goals in the qualifying campaign, is the brigade of attackers in Tite's arsenal. In Raphinha, Pacqeuta, Gabriel Jesus, Antony, Richarlison, Gabriel Martinelli, Perdro and Lucas Pacqueta, the coach has a plethora of goal-scoring riches. Tite calls them perninhas rapidas (fast little legs). Not to forget the aerial prowess of Thiago Silva and Marguinhos.

When they score, they promise to dance. 'We have some 10 dances prepared for each match, one for the first, one for the second, one for the third ... If we score more than 10, then we'll have to start innovating." Richarlison said.

Tite, then, dwelled on the symbolism of dance in Brazil.

"It's a cultural identity, our way of expressing it. It's not meant to disrespect our opponents. We respect them, just as we respect Arab culture," he says. At its heady peak, Brazilian football itself is dance, lithe and loose, liquid ripples eddying through the bodies, moments when the players seem but a conduit of the dancing gods.

There is an entire oeuvre of moves. Neymar himself could boast of 10, he has a routine named after him though he had copied from a local band.

"Dance is the soul of Brazilian football", the legendary Socrates had once.

And dance and goals would be an irresistible union

SHOWCASE GAME IN A NUTSHELL GROUP G

Brazil v Serbia 12.30 am (Friday), Lusail Stadium

(LIVE ON SPORTS18 AND JIOCINEMA)

The script

Brazil are one of the hot favourites to go all the way at the World Cup this year, justifiably so given their team is full of superstars like Neymar Jr, Gabriel Jesus, Thiago Silva, Vinicius Jr. Tite's side, despite a strangely muted build-up to the tournament given the divisive political situation in their country, arrive in Qatar as the ones to watch. However, they face their trickiest group stage test in their very first game against Serbia. Coach Dragan Stojkovic has not fallen for the trope of some other promising European teams, hoping for his talented plavers to produce moments of brilliance.

How they line up Brazil: 4-2-3-1

With so many options across the pitch, Tite likes to keep a back four, and switch between a 4-3-3 and a 4-2-3-1, the latter formation getting the best out of Neymar in a freeroaming position behind the striker. Expect a familiar-looking team. Likely XI: Alisson; Danilo, Marquinhos, T.Silva, Alex Sandro; Paquetta, Casemiro; Raphinha, Neymar Jr, Vinicius Jr; Richarlison.

Serbia: 3-4-2-1

Stojkovic is likely to go for a familiar system. Mitrovic's fitness, after having spent a few weeks out with an ankle injury, is the main point of concern. A call is needed on whether to go attacking with Milinkovic-Savic in midfield, or conservative with him as one of the inside forwards. The latter option is more likely.

Milinkovic-Savic; Likely XI: Milenkovic, S. Mitrovic, Pavlovic; Zivkovic, Gudelj, Lukic, Kostic; S. Milinkovic-Savic, Vlahovic, Tadic.

The schemer

Mitrovic may miss out, but Serbia still has Vlahovic's goal threat, and Milinkovic-Savic and Dusan Tadic's creativity. Among Serbia's most crucial players, however, is left wing-back Filip Kostic, who will play a marauding role down that channel to keep Raphinha guiet, and also form their most potent threat when the team breaks forward.

before their games that if their captains wore the OneLove armband a yellow card could be issued. The teams were expecting only to be fined.

Why in Qatar?

Wearing the OneLove armband in Qatar would have been a strong statement given that same-sex relationshops are illegal in the country. FIFA has time and again said everyone is welcome in Qatar but there have been reports of those wearing rainbow coloured hats and t-shirts being denied entry into stadiums.

German team makes a statement by covering their mouths

'Human rights non-negotiable'

The German FA(DFB) confirmed that the team came up with the idea of covering their mouths after they were threatened with sanctions if their players or captain wore the armband. The DFB tweeted about the gesture, saying: "With our captain's armband, we wanted to set an example for values that we live in the national team: diversity and mutual respect. Be loud together with other nations. This is not about a political message human rights are non-negotiable. That should go without saying. But unfortunately it still isn't. That is why this message is so important to us. Banning us from the bandage is like banning our mouths. Our stance stands.'

What rules state

What players can wear are governed by Fifa's Rule 4.3 on equipment regulations which states: "No item (of playing kit or other clothing or equipment or otherwise) may be worn or used in any controlled area if Fifa considers that it is dangerous, offensive or indecent, includes political, religious, or personal slogans, statements, or images, or otherwise does not comply in full with the laws of the game.'

The day before the tournament began, FIFA launched their own armband initiative. Captains were asked to wear a different armband on each match day, promoting social messages such as "Football unites the world", "No discrimination" and "Share the meal". in a United Nations-backed campaign.

Minister wears armband German's interior minister Nancy Faeser also wore a OneLove armband when she sat next to FIFA's president, Gianni Infantino while watching the game against Japan. Before the match, Germany manager Hansi Flick answered a question about alternative protests with a smile, and the words 'We'll see.'

CUSHIONING A floated pass with a deft first touch, Takumi Asano skittered down the right flank. He cut into the six-yard box and saw the imposing German centre-back Nico Schlotterbeck, all of six-feet-two inches, barging into him. But the five-foot-five winger outbarged him, regained the ball that had bobbled away from his feet, took a couple of yards and seconds to weigh in his options, gather his balance, and then fired in a guillotine shot past the near post of Manuel Neuer, the king of goal keeping in this era. The 83rd-minute goal, which sparked wild celebrations among thousands of fans that had descended at the Khalifa Stadium, turned match-winner, wrapping up a famous upset win for Japan over Germany, one of the tournament favourites. It could potentially be the greatest ever goal in the history of Japan football, just as the 2-1 comeback win could be the biggest upset yet in their history. The Samurai Blue are not pushovers, thrice have they reached the Round of 16, including the previous edition, where they ran Belgium close, but eventually lost 2-3. But they have struggled to harness the speed and suppleness the players possess. This, though, could be the catalyst of change. The script was eerily similar to Saudi Arabia's upending of Argentina. Germany dominated the first half, and on another day could have doubled or tripled their lead on either side of Ilkay Gundogan's 33rd-minute strike. But the Germans were unusually profligate, hampered by the absence of a classical striker in the mould of Miroslav Klose or Jurgen Klinsmann They hatched chances, but the execution

WHEN TAKUMA Asano joined Arsenal in 2016, then-manager Arsene Wenger raved about the prospect. "He is very much one for the future... we look forward to him developing over the next couple of years," he was quoted as saying by The Guardian back then. Six years later, as he scored the winner in Qatar for Japan, as they shocked the world by defeating European powerhouses Germany 2-1 at the 2022 FIFA World Cup, Wenger's words rang true. After promising in the J-League back home, Asano got a dream move to Arsenal, but it was a dream that never came to fruition. Despite being employed by the Gunners for three years, he was never given a work permit, since he failed to meet the criteria set by England's Football Association (FA) having not played enough games at a top level or for Japan's international team in a 24-month span. He spent the first two years on loan at German side Stuttgart, then one at Hannover, before getting released by Arsenal and picked up by Serbian side Partizan Belgrade. Frango – chicken – is an insult hurled at a goalie if he allows the ball to fall from his grasp and into the net. Goalkeepers who make such errors often are called frangueiros.

lacked finesse. Just before the first goal, Gundogan himself shot twice at the goal in the space of a minute. The goalkeeper Shiuchi Gonda was summoned to last-gasp saves several times in the opening half an hour. But somehow, he clawed, pawed and poked the ball away from the net. The clumsy challenge that culminated in the spot kick was the only aberration.

The saves would eventually turn invaluable for Japan. But a comeback seemed a farfetched prospect as the minutes continued to trickle down. In desperate pursuit of an equaliser, Japan coach Hajime Moriyasu, a rugged defender at his peak, substituted four players in the space of 17 minutes.

One of them was Asano (57) and the other was Ritsu Doan (71). The latter made the first decisive intervention. Just four minutes after introducing, he was perfectly positioned to slot home the rebound off Neuer's save off Takumi Minamino's (another substitute) shot. Doan just had to keep his composure and beat Neuer, who was just spreading his left arm to block the shot. But Doan was not to spill what could be the goal of his life.

Like Argentina, Hansi Flick's side seemed a touch rattled, an unusual German trait. Soon after, they could have conceded a second goal, as the usually composed defender Antonio Rudiger hacked Doan down inside the box. The referee, though, refused the penalty. Frazzled, they threw the entire kitchen sink on Japan, in the process leaving spaces behind, making them vulnerable to counterattacks.

Japan did just that. And then, in the 83rd minute, Asano struck, launching delirium among his colleagues and in the stands. And perhaps in Japan too. A winger with dancer's feet, he is aptly called the Jaguar for his pace and stealth, both gifts the defeated Germans would readily attest. For many Germans, Asano is a familiar figure as he plays for the Bundesliga side Bochum. So would most of his colleagues nine of the 26-member squad represented German clubs.

Germany had the firepower to retaliate, to at least redeem a point. They pressed and passed forward, but withered in the ironwilled resistance of the blue Japanese human wall. They flung their bodies and lunged their boots to keep their date with destiny. And when that historic moment arrived, they slipped into a happy pandemonium. The entire dugout poured onto the ground and piled onto the eleven players. Beside them, the Germans looked forlornly. Memories of the last edition, where they crashed out in the group stage, Whether Germany and Argentina, the finalists of the 2014 World Cup, bounce back or not, the tournament has been lit up by an underdog uprising, the most romantic of World Cup script. While Japan are a more lethal side than Saudi Arabia-Flick had dwelled on Japan's attacking verve in his pre-game presser-the gulf of quality and fame between them and Germany was wide as the Persian Gulf. Japan's most recognised talents are Arsenal's Takehiro Tomiyasu and ex-Liverpool forward Takumi Minamino, whereas Germany has an assembly of footballers the world covets. But the first round of the World Cup has turned out to be a scourge for the Goliath teams of the world.

year, becoming a mainstay in Vfl Bochum.

On Wednesday, it was a moment of brilliance from Asano, a moment made in Germany, that sunk German hearts.

A long ball, hopeful rather than precise, was taken down by Asano in expert fashion. letting it fall by his side before trapping it with a perfect touch beyond Germany's trailing defender Nico Schlotterbeck. He then drove to the right corner of the box, holding off Schlotterbeck's challenge and getting into an acute shooting position at Neuer's near post, before shooting hard and high into the roof of the German veteran's net. It was a moment of utter brilliance, the kind that sets events like the World Cup alight. A fever pitch of adoration from the travelling Japanese support followed, and it ultimately led to one of the shocks of the group stage

Asano's brilliance gave Japan a surprise win, but throughout the match, Japan's incisiveness in the game was a result of their familiarity with the German system. Five of Hajime Moriyasu's starting XI ply their trade in the German Bundesliga, as did three others on the bench, including Asano.

Saudi fans delirious with joy after Argentina upset but spare a thought for Messi

SANDIPG DOHA, NOVEMBER 23

WHEN ABDULLAH and Saad undertook their 20-hour journey from Jeddah on the edge of the Red Sea to Doha on the shores of the Persian Gulf in their wind-battered landcruiser, all they yearned was to watch Lionel Messi play. What unfolded at the Lusail Stadium was beyond hope and belief.

"Never, not at all. We were expecting to be thrashed, but it would not hurt because it was Argentina," says Abdullah. In fact, they went to the stadium wrapped in Messi's "original" jersey under the Saudi Arabian flag. "He is the biggest star in our country.

When Messi scored the first goal, they went delirious. A wall of green swayed and heaved. "When he scored the goal we hugged the Argentina supporter sitting next to us and screamed and cheered."

The only wish, a secret wish, was that Saudi Arabia should not lose badly, their default destiny in so many other World Cups. What unpacked in the second half transported them to a dream world, "We could not believe it. We thought it was all a dream," he says.

There is a beautiful Arabic word for dream 'hulm', that Abdullah keeps repeating. The day before they were a butt of the jokes. In metros and buses, Argentina's fans would banter at them: "Gonna lose by eight goals? Or 10. Get ready," The Saudi fans would play along, probably resigned to the fate that they would eventually lose badly. They did not pay back in kind, for Saad says it is not "in their culture to laugh at others misfortunes."

But their phones have not stopped ringing since last afternoon. "Evervone wants us to describe the goal, everyone wants to know what it felt like. I tell them I don't remember the goal. Everything happened so fast. We even forgot to take the picture. But we will treasure the ticket forever," he says.

Outside the stadium, they were greeted by thousands of Saudi fans and danced their way back to the metro station. An estimated 10,000 fans had crossed the border, more by road than air. Mostly, they remain indoors, but the day

WHAT DID MESSI TELL HIS MATES AFTER SHOCK LOSS

"It's a very hard blow because we did not expect to start in this way. We expected to get the three points that would have given us calmness. Things happen for a reason. We have to prepare for what is coming, we have to win, and it depends on us," Lionel Messi said in the mixed zone after the loss to Saudi Arabia. Not much words came out of Messi inside the locker room where they were reportedly holed up for an hour. He talked on the way to the National University of Qatar about how this is the opportunity to show "what this group is made of, get stronger than ever, and look ahead".

is a common sight. There is an extra swagger to their stride, and their face still glows with the joy of Tuesday.

Saad and Abdullah were rushing to Souq Waqif, the old town, where they would meet their friends and have a lavish lunch at a Saudi hotel. "Yesterday, all of them were packed. We could not get into any. But today we can peacefully enjoy the meal," says Saad. But they would have just the topic of discussion, Tuesday's game. Back in Saudi Arabia, Wednesday was declared a public holiday. Fans went so delirious that some broke the doors and some ran like madmen in the streets. Salem Aldawsari, the scorer of one the greatest football goals, became an overnight cult hero.

"He is our most famous player, our best in the team. But now he will become our greatest," he says. His jerseys now will be sold out as briskly as Messi's would. The win also marked a defining moment in the tricky geopolitics of the Middle East. Dubai's ruler, Sheikh Mohammed bin Rashid al-Maktoum, tweeted congratulations. Qatar's emir, Sheikh Tamim bin Hamad al-Thani briefly held the Saudi flag, five years after Saudi had boycotted Qatar Contrastingly, the usually exuberant Argentina fans were glum-faced, usually reclining to the corner of the metro, lost for words and smiles, evading stares and talks. The rest of the Latin American ilk spared no chance to tease and taunt them. Whenever they saw an Argentine, they would start chanting Messi's name, or ask them: "Como estas, Messi (how is Messi)?" often followed by "le deseo feliz recuperacion(wish him happy recovery!)" Brazil football's twitter account promptly put the crying Argentina flag on their page.

Political undertones were weaved into the bashing too. "Socialism in Argentina has shattered the behaviour of its citizens to such an extent that they lost to Saudi Arabia in the cup. What you get with socialism/communism is a wasteland," tweeted Argentina's congressman Bibo Nunes.

But Saudis are restrained in making fun of the gutted Argentina fans. "We wanted to beat a big team, but not Argentina because we love Messi," says Abdullah.
