SETTING THE stage for a standoff with the judiciary on appointment of judges, the government has returned 19 of the 21 pending recommendations by the Supreme Court Collegium for appointment of High Court judges,

The Indian Express has learnt. It is learnt that the recommendations were returned hours before the Supreme Court hearing on judicial appointments on November 28. These include 10 names that were pending after they were reiterated by the Collegium, and 9 names pending after the first recommendation.

Two recommendations, Union Law Minister Kiren Rijiju said in a tweet Tuesday, have been accepted.

Court says police clean chit in predicate offence has no bearing on PMLA case

ABHISHEK ANGAD RANCHI, NOVEMBER 29

A SPECIAL Court in Ranchi has said that even if an accused is exonerated by police in a predicate offence that becomes the ground by Enforcement Directorate (ED) to start money laundering investigation, it is up to the court to decide on dropping charges under PMLA.

The observation was made by Special Judge Prabhat Kumar Sharma on November 26 while rejecting the bail application of Pankaj Mishra, Jharkhand Chief Minister Hemant Soren's representative, who is in judicial custody. The order was uploaded on the official website on Tuesday.

Iharkhand Police had exonerated Mishra from a bunch of FIRs clubbed together, including a threat case in connection with Barharwa toll plaza bidding process that had formed the basis for ED investigation

In the bail application, the defence lawyer submitted: "...if a person is not prosecuted in the predicate offence, he cannot be prosecuted under the PMLA." ED's special public prosecutor,

But the fault, the family argues, lies with the local authorities.

If the pro-Modi sentiment is common, so are complaints about roads, education facilities, job opportunities, besides rising prices. It is this that makes some of them consider Kejriwal's promises of welfare measures. The other reason is a desire for "change" after 20-plus years of the BJP.

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 29

A DELHI court has granted bail to eight men accused of being members of the banned outfit Popular Front of India (PFI) after police failed to show how they were involved in unlawful activities when they were, in fact, inside Tihar jail. The men have been charged under the Unlawful Activities Prevention

In the aftermath of the ban on PFI, police arrested the accused after they received information that they had allegedly raised PFI zindabad slogans. The police also claimed to have recovered six PFI flags from the ac-

Additional Sessions Judge Sanjay Khanagwal said the acwere arrested on September 27 and the PFI was banned on September 28, with a notification coming into effect on September 29.

The judge also took note of the fact that the accused persons were released from Tihar jail on October 2 and 4, and were arrested again during the early morning hours

The IO has not been able to show sufficient incriminating material against the accused persons collected during the investigation that as to when accused persons were in custody from 27.09.2022 and remained in Tihar Jail till 04.10.2022 or 03.10.2022, then how the accused persons have carried out such activities which are aimed at advocating, abetting or inciting/assisting any unlawful activity of unlawful organisation mitted that the bank details of PFI have been recovered and investigation in this regard is going on to establish the link of the accused with the funding.

The court, however, said that the "material collected during the investigation is silent as to the role of accused persons in financial activities or in advocating the activities of unlawful organisation after its ban...".

After perusing the call record details of the accused, it noted that "even from that also, nothing could be shown to prove that the accused persons were involved in unlawful activity from the date of declaring PFI as unlawful organisation till their arrest in the present case".

Advocate Mujeeb Rehman, who appeared for some of the accused, argued that they were unlawfully picked up and detained by the police.

The defence counsel submitted that "they were in fact picked up from the jail itself and were not apprehended from the place as alleged against them", and that the activities alleged against them were carried out prior to the ban on the outfit.

The defence counsel for the accused played a CCTV footage in court to argue that the accused can be seen on October 2 and 4 "being picked up forcibly by the police officials" and later on, following release from judicial custody, they "were picked up by the police officials from the exit gate of the jail itself and were taken to the police station for their false implication".

However, the court said that it would not comment on this piece of evidence since the people and the registration numbers of the vehicles appearing in the CCTV footage were not clear.

Court seeks report from Tihar on Jain's weight loss

New Delhi: A Delhi court Tuesday sought a report from Tihar jail authorities on follow-up action being taken as AAP leader Satyendar Jain allegedly lost weight after he was admitted to jail.

Special Judge Vikas Dhull has asked jail authorities to submit the report by December 3. The authorities had verbally told the court that Jain weighed 75 kg at present. "Let medical officer, Tihar jail, file a report as to what follow-up action is being taken since... Jain has lost weight from the date of his admission in terms of Rule 475(VI) of Delhi Prison Rules, 2018, and the report of MRI scan too," the court said.

Senior advocate Rahul Mehra. appearing for Jain, told the court that though authorities had to record his weight frequently, the fact that his weight was not recorded was a violation of prison rules. "Because of bias, they don't want to show how much weight I have lost...," he told the court. Jain's lawyers alleged that he lost 28 kg since his special diet of fruits, vegetables, and nuts, was withdrawn by jail authorities. The court rejected this by stating that jail officials showed preferential treatment towards Jain. The court held that weight loss cannot be attributed to jail administration as it was Jain's decision to go on a religious fast, and said that a person loses weight if they go on a fast.

Meanwhile, Jain has moved the Delhi High Court against a trial court order denying him bail in an alleged money laundering case probed by the Enforcement Directorate (ED). ENS

Amid cyber attack, AIIMS seeks a helping hand from DRDO

ANKITA UPADHYAY NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 29

AMID A ransomware attack on the institute which has crippled services since Wednesday, AIIMS Delhi has decided to get four new servers from the Defence Research and Development Organisation(DRDO)soit can resume its e-hospital facility for patients, said officials on Tuesday.

According to official sources, a meeting was conducted by the director of the institute. Dr M Srinivas, with all department heads, where it was decided that four servers will be purchased immediately to resume the functioning of the institute.

"The four servers will be used on an immediate basis for OPD. IPD and emergency ward of the institute. These four servers will help generate bills, UHID cards, lab reports," said an official.

He added that the institute's computer facility department along with other agencies are trying to retrieve the data from the existing servers, but it is possible some of it will be restored and transferred to the new servers. The four servers will be beneficial for new patients but perhaps not much for patients who are undergoing treatment at the institute.

However, faculty members will still have to deal with not being able to retrieve e-library or using other websites, halting academic work. "This is set to impact the functioning of the faculty as there is research and reports of past patients for future references, which all the doctors used to revisit for retrospective analysis and teaching students. Downloading of such studies and research, data and case history will not be possible in the new server," the official added. "There are thousands of computers in the institute and the administration is trying to sanitise them all. An anti-virus system is also being installed. This will take almost a week. However, there is no assurance that the patient data and other material will be retrieved as well," he added.

According to a senior doctor, it is not confirmed whether the four servers will be purchased or taken on loan from DRDO but the organisation is helping out the institute.

Meanwhile, the AIIMS public relations officer said that the eHospital data has been restored on the servers. Network is being sanitised before the services can be restored. The process is taking some time due to the volume of data and large number of servers for hospital services..., he added. Senior doctors said they have not been informed anything about the investigation process and are conducting all the medical work manually. "Had this been ministry or bank website, it would have been restored in a day or two," said a resident doctor.

Sources in the Delhi Police said they are checking how the AIIMS server was hacked. "It is suspected that most of the data is gone and won't be recovered

Walking through first-class colonies, and third-rate roads

GAYATHRI MANI

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 29

THE ROADS of the national capital are known for being wide, but a safe walk on these roads, be it arterial or ones inside residential colonies, is still a distant dream for pedestrians. With the Municipal Corporation of Delhi (MCD) elections ahead, The Indian Express took a walk through some of the upscale colonies of the city to find that most roads under the MCD colonies do not have proper pavements or a safe footpath. At six colonies in South Delhi

Greater Kailash-II, East of Kailash, RK Puram, Green Park Extension, Kalkaji, Chittaranjan Park- most roads were dilapidated, unpaved and riddled with potholes. The ability to walk safely through these roads was the biggest grievance, especially for senior citizens and children. D-Block in East of Kailash, which houses about 4,000 houses, hardly had any space for pedestrians. Pavements were either encroached on by vendors and illegal parking or were broken and teeming with broken bricks, dust, open manholes, and non-functioning stormwater

"Poor roads, potholes and waterlogging are major problems the residents face. Complaints have fallen on deaf ears. Due to poorly maintained terlogged and soggy with mud, resulting in potholes. Besides, a lack of pavements poses challenges for residents, especially senior citizens," said Karan Aggarwal, general secretary, Roads at GK-II and Green Park Extension were encroached on by cars and old vehicles. At some junctions, roads were dug up after sewerage and under-

"A portion of the road was cordoned off by a telecom company as wires lay haphazardly. Similar is the situation with the Delhi Jal Board projects. When the RWAs raise this matter with the municipal body, the blame game begins. There is no synergy between the departments of the MCD. There are 30 departments and they will make you run from just a sham," said Nakul Sharan, former president of Green Park extension, H Block.

Residents at CR Park and Greater Kailash-II too seemed equally peeved. Besides the condition of colony roads, they complained about waterlogging during monsoon, improper parking, poorly maintained stormwater drains.

"We don't care which party comes in the MCD, our grievances are surrounding basic civic amenities. We pay huge amounts as house tax expecting better roads and sewer lines, but the MCD says they don't have funds. People are left in the lurch. caught between AAP and BJP's politics," said Manish Kumar, a resident of CR Park.

In RK Puram's Sector-1, a similar issue persists. Although the ment residential colony, roads are in poor shape. A resident said, "I am a differently-abled person and rely on a wheelchair. The roads inside the colony are uneven, and when we complain. they just do patchwork. Disabled-friendly walkways and roads in colonies are no politician's concern."

About 15,500 km of inner roads with 60 feet or less come under the MCD. According to officials, the corporation requires approximately Rs 150 crore to repair all roads maintained by the civic body. Express

About 15,500 km of inner roads with 60 feet or less come under the MCD. According to officials, the corporation requires approximately Rs 150 crore to repair all roads maintained by the civic body. However, due to the ongoing politics between the BJP and AAP over funding, several MCD official.

He added, "The erstwhile North and South MCDs earmarked budget to repair about 200 km of MCD roads but after the merging of the MCD, projects were delayed." MCD has set a target to develop about 75 km of roads by March 2023 and the remaining 125 km by June 2023.

Kejriwal campaign: Door to door, dil se dil

GAYATHRI MANI NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 29

ONLY A handful of Aam Aadmi Party workers stood at the entrance of Chirag Dilli village on a usual Tuesday morning as campaigning for the MCD polls took off. Within minutes, however, most of the residents were out on the streets realising that it was Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal at their doorstep.

From octogenarians to children — people poured out into the narrow street to get a glimpse as he walked through their lanes, stopping for a word every now and then.

Taking over the party's final leg of campaigning ahead of the polls in the Municipal Corporation of Delhi (MCD), Kejriwal's campaign was a surprise. He took selfies with residents and asked them if they were happy with AAP and were receiving the promised water and electricity.

Savitri, an 80-year-old who met Kejriwal for the first time, blessed him and said, "You are our son, god bless vou. Hume aap jaise neta chahiye." When the CM asked her if she had been on the government-sponsored teerth yatra, she said, "Haan, mujhe ek baar aur jana hai.' As he walked through the streets and waved, a woman asked, "Sir, aapne muffler nahi pehna?" to which the CM laughed and said, "Abhi thand nahi aayi hai." Keiriwal later walked to the Prajapati Chowk, the centre point of the village and spoke to people in a dhaba over a cup of tea. Exchanging greetings, the CM promised, "Last time I took you to Rameshwaram, this time if come to power in MCD, will take you all to Ayodhya dharshan." Addressing the residents, the

CM said, "I came here last in 2013 and found out that the main issue here was water availability. I promised to provide 24*7 water supply. Have you all got it?" he asked. He added, "Now, I see there is garbage everywhere across Delhi. Give me one chance, I will clean the garbage and landfill site and make the city clean and shine in the next five years."

Shambhu Yadav, a resident, said, "I wanted to meet the CM but could not because of the crowd. I have no complaints except for water. The supply has improved but we get limited water. The other major issue here is garbage, even this road was cleaned just because of his visit." An upset 19-year-old said, "I wanted to take a selfie and post it on my Instagram story but could not get inside." Interacting further with the public there, Kejriwal said,

'Chirag Dilli village now has a mohalla clinic and hospital. The only thing that is lacking is cleanliness. and I could not clean this place because the MCD does not come under us. Now, I want one chance, and we will make Delhi shine." The CM attacked BIP over their campaign by CMs of other states and central cabinet ministers. "If the BJP had done any good work in the last 15 years, there would have been no need to bring 17 central ministers, Chief Ministers and MPs on the ground to seek votes for the MCD polls. See, I am campaigning alone," he said. He referred to the BJP as a "film production company" over the recently leaked videos of AAP minister Satyendar Jain purportedly showing him taking "massage" and having food in jail. "The BIP has become a film production company. The only difference is, normal movies are released on Friday. These people release a movie every day...," he added.

Taking over AAP's final leg of campaigning, Kejriwal visited Chirag Dilli on Tuesday. Abhinav Saha

Driven by 'revenge', Hindu Sena men often discussed Aaftab attack

PAVNEET SINGH CHADHA GURGAON, NOVEMBER 29

AMONG THE sword-wielding men who attacked a police van taking murder-accused Aaftab Poonawala from the forensic science laboratory in Rohini to Tihar jail on Monday was the current Haryana state president of the Hindu Sena who went there looking for "revenge"

Delhi Police have arrested two members of the outfit, Kuldeep Thakur and Nigam Gujjar, both Gurgaon residents. According to the FIR, they came to the FSL office with their associates after watching the news about the Shraddha Walkar case. "They had come to know that... Aaftab, who allegedly killed Shraddha, will be taken to FSL. They were waiting outside the office in their car to take revenge. They said that when police came out with Aaftab, they first blocked the way of the vehicle with theirs and attacked the police vehicle with swords," the FIR reads. Police have recovered at least three swords.

Thakur (34), Haryana state president, Hindu Sena, hails from Bhiwani district in Haryana and has been associated with Hindu Sena for four-five years. A father of three, including two girls, he is a contractor in welding, construction as well as a second-hand car salesman. "He has been working for the Hindu cause and would often put up banners," said Surjit

Men attack the police van carrying Aaftab. ANI

Yadav, national vice-president of the Hindu Sena, Surjit said Thakur and at least 8-10 men from Gurgaon left for Rohini Monday.

"I was not aware that people from the Hindu Sena from Gurgaon had gone to attack the accused... they had been discussing recently beating him... baat toh karte hi the ki peetenge.. but he was in police custody. I heard they went in two cars some were from Mohammadpur Iharsa village and Dhanwapur, I saw them later on television speaking to the media," said Surjit.

In Rohini on Monday evening, before the alleged attack, Thakur told the media: "He killed someone's daughter... he cut a girl into 35 pieces. I am a father of two girls...Jab hmari behn beti surakshit nahi toh kya karein... hum maarenge inko.

A police source in Gurgaon said Thakur has a criminal record and was booked in Gurgaon for an assault case at Rajendra Park police station and in another case related to possession of arms in Manesar a few years ago.

Surjit told The Indian Express, 'I do not know where they got the swords. In our organisation, we often give swords symbolically, but they are not as sharp and bend easily. The ones in the video were sharp. I think they were procured from Delhi."

He added that another suspect named in the FIR, Dhan Singh alias Lilu Gujjar, is the Gurgaon district president of Hindu Sena and a contractor in construction. His associate from Mohammadpur Jharsa village, Nigam Gujjar (32) alias Narender, has also been arrested. "Nigam does not hold any post. He is an associate of Lilu and occupies a muscleman type of role in the organisation," said Suriit.

Vishnu Gupta, national president of Hindu Sena, said, "We will get bail for all the arrested workers of the Hindu Sena... Aaftab killed a Hindu girl... The workers were angry and they took such a step, which they should not have. Through this, a message has been sent. Kanoon toh saza dega hi, par samaj bi chhodega nahi," he said.

Delhi Police said that during questioning, the accused claimed they wanted to "take revenge". DCPRohini GSSidhu said, "We arrested the two men and sent them to judicial custody in the morning. They were interrogated. Police stopped them in time and controlled the situation. As per our records, they don't have a criminal record.'

Personnel guarding him say attackers came out of nowhere

JIGNASA SINHA NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 29

A TEAM of five policemen, led by sub-inspectors Ravinder and Vikram, had boarded the police van with Aaftab Poonawala outside the FSL office in Rohini when a group of men stopped the vehicle and attacked it with swords. The officers say they were "shocked" as they had no idea the miscreants were hiding outside the office.

"They had been waiting there for a long time. We had just boarded the van when they came. It was a shock as 4-5 swordwielding men surrounded the vehicle. They even pelted stones. One of them opened the van door from behind but one of our constables stepped out and stopped them. Meanwhile, we jumped and asked them to stop. They were wielding their swords and threatening to kill the inmate. After some time, we managed to stop them with pistols. We returned to our seats. They tried hit $ting \, the \, back \, of \, the \, van \, again \, with$ swords but we safely left the ## RWAs could get more power if CM has his way RWAs," Kejriwal said on Tuesday.

MALLICA JOSHI NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 29

DELHI CHIEF Minister Arvind Kejriwal said Tuesday that Resident Welfare Associations in the capital will be given the status of 'mini-councillors' if the Aam Aadmi Party is voted to power.

In Delhi, RWAs are a phenomenon of gated colonies and are elected by homeowners. They are responsible for security arrangements, beautification and greening of public areas and managing control of community halls and spaces. "If voted into power, AAP will launch a scheme called Janta Chalayegi MCD. Presently, to get any work done, people have to run after leaders from pillar to post. Under this scheme, this system will end. Now, the people will make decisions and the government will work for them. Under this scheme, an RWA will be given mini-parshad (councillor) status; they will be given all power to address the issues of their locality. Funds will be allocated to the RWAs," Kejriwal

The move is politically significant as RWAs hold sway in the city's planned, authorised areas,

New Delhi

While senior party leaders said that a step-by-step roadmap of the scheme is not ready yet, it will entail RWAs being in touch with their area MLAs regarding the society. RWAs will tell the MLA about their problems and coordinate with them, government officials said. Depending on the work, MLAs will allocate money to RWAs using their MLALAD fund any work that is to be done inside of Rs 4 crore per year. "Once the project is discussed and sanctioned, the RWA will have to ensure that it is executed in a time-bound manner and a report is submitted to the MLA. A fund cap for each RWA has not been decided yet," said an official.

What kind of work can RWAs seek money for?

RWAs, which charge maintenance or development charges from residents, can approach MLAs for work regarding internal roads, beautification of parks and common areas, cleanliness and other issues such as sewer and water. Maintenance of internal roads, parks and cleanliness come under the jurisdiction of civic bodies.

"Our main aim is to make the people of Delhi leaders. People should be the councillor and CM in the state. Governance will be handed over to the public, they will run the government through

What was the need for a new system?

According to officials, councillors would not be able to act on hundreds of requests from residents in their wards and RWAs would act as helping hands. "Councillors may not be able to handle all the complaints. The fund allocated to them (around Rs 50 lakh) is also far less than that for MLAs and that has to be used for small streets and roads in their area, cleanliness, and other civic issues. This scheme will give people a direct line with the MLA." said an official.

Asked about setting accountability and answerability, Kejriwal said, "A proper system will be set up both online and offline. It will be completely transparent.'

This is not the first time the government has tied up with resdent associations.

In 2003, the then Sheila Dikshit government had launched the Bhagidari scheme with RWAs, wherein Dikshit would attend web meetings with them, alongside government officials where grievances were raised and addressed. The initiative won the 2005 UN Public Service award. Over the years, however, it fizzled out and stopped once the Congress government was voted out in 2013.

"(If I were Rahul) I would have started my Bharat Jodo Yatra from Somnath... Last time, Congress was fighting for satta (power), now it's for astitva (identity). AAP is fighting for the Congress's place," says former BJP CM Vijay Rupani

VANDITA MISHRA RAJKOT, NOVEMBER 29

THE PRIME MINISTER'S late evening rally in Rajkot didn't come close to filling up its Race Course ground two days before the city goes to vote. Rows of empty white plastic chairs were conspicuous and most of seemed made of party cadres. In village Vanapari, about 30 km from Rajkot city, a group of women say they will vote for the BJP because of the (BJP) sarpanch. "Our village is small, our work gets done through the sarpanch," says Manju. It has been the same BJP sarpanch for 25 years. "For us, sarpanch is raja (king)," says Rama ben. "Modi se koi lena dena nahin hai (we have nothing to do with Modi)," Manju says.

Those two images are deceptive and telling.

The empty seats at the PM's rally are not a political sign in an election in which one thing seems clear — Modi's charisma is undimmed in the state where he was Chief Minister and which he is still tied to by a kind of benign remote control that allows him to enjoy presence and power but shields him from the growing calls for accountability.

Anti-incumbency is real in Gujarat. It is made of grievances on issues ranging from price rise to low MSPs, the State's retreat from education to government job examination paper leaks. But Modi remains the only towering pan-Gujarat figure Congress has only regional satraps, while the AAP's big leader, Arvind Kejriwal, is neither PM nor son of the state.

The apparent preference of the BJP sarpanch over Modi expressed by the women in Vanpari village is actually a statement of the political infrastructure the BJP has built in this state over its 27 years in power.

This is especially so in Saurashtra. In this election, this region is being closely tracked because the BJP's relatively poor good showing here in 2017 had narrowed the gap between the two parties to 99 vs 77.

At that time, resentments against the BJP government were sparked by the coming together of several storms — the Patidar quota agitation, the farmers' unrest that had sharpened after floods and fumbles in the introduction

Five years later, those resentments have faded. Now, a more traditional Saurashtra picture may be re-surfacing: In this region, of the 52 seats in 1998, the BJP won 44. In 2002, after delimitation, of the 48 seats, the BIP won 35. In 2012, the BJP won 30, before dropping to 19 in 2017.

Over the last five years, political change in Saurashtra may be framed by another set of figures: 99, 112, 9. The BJP tally, which had come down to 99 in 2017, went up to 112 on the back of crossovers by Congress MLAs who got re-elected on a BJP ticket - as many as nine in Saurashtra.

In these five years, the BIP has also won almost all local election, in Saurashtra.

Caste rears its head, most sharply in Gujarat, in Saurashtra. Patidars and Kolis — excluded from the Congress's traditional formula of KHAM — are the two big communities and the AAP's entry has made the caste configuration a talking point.

Congress disadvantage in this region is also made of older sentiment fuelled by the Navnirman Aandolan which kicked off from here, in Morbi. The BJP has grown in this region as a party of aandolan or movement, since the days of the Jan Sangh. Modi fought his first election from Rajkot's "safe seat". Now, as the skies overhead buzz with private helicopters carrying BJP and AAP heavymost oblivious to the stakes.

At the Congress office in Bhavnagar, candidate Kishorsinh Kumbhaji Gohil speaks optimistically of an older caste formula falling into place: "15 per cent vote of Patidar vote is still ours, and then the whole of Muslim, Kshatriya and Dalit vote." "(If I were Rahul) I would have started my Bharat Jodo Yatra from Somnath," says Vijay Rupani, who belongs to Rajkot and who was abruptly removed as chief minister by the BJP in 2021 to blunt anti-incumbency. Now prabhari for Punjab and Chandigarh, Rupani says: "In the last election, the Congress was fighting for satta (power), in this election for astitva (identity). The AAP is fighting for the Congress's place."

For now, the AAP has injected itself into conversations in Saurashtra — not just in the urban centres but also in villages.

In MVM Science and Home Science women's college at Rajkot, Trupti, a student, argues for Kejriwal's party: "Because education fee will go down... The AAP has worked in Delhi."

Adivasi. Rahul Gandhi also said it. When the whole world knows us as Adivasi, indigenous people, a (distinction) is being created... Like Rahul Gandhi said, Adivasis are the original owners of the land. These BJP people feel that all the resources are in the Adivasi area — jal, jungle, zameen – and how to take these away by calling them Vanvasi.

In Kevadia, they said there is so much development and that Adivasis will get employment. Changing sheets of a hotel room or doing the dishes is employment?... The Congress at least gave us land... In these 27 years, the BJP has not done anything good for the Adivasis.

Sitting MLA in the shade; it's a Yogi show, bulldozer in tow, in Godhra

SOHINI GHOSH GODHRA, NOVEMBER 29

CAMPAIGNING in Godhra Tuesday, 3 km from where the fire in a coach of the Sabarmati train in 2002 set off the Gujarat riots, Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath said the 'sacrifice of the Ram bhakts" 20 years ago had ushered in an era of peace and development in the

"20 varsh pehle, jo balidaan Godhra mein hua... Ram bhakton ke uss balidan ne Gujarat ko ek model ke roop mein aage badhaya aur Gujarat ne uss samay curfew par sadev ke liye curfew laga dala. Ab curfew nahin lagta Gujarat mein, dange nahin hote Gujarat mein. Gujarat mein har vyakti surakshit hai, vyapar phal-phool raha hai, beti aur behnen surakshit hain (20 years ago, the sacrifice made by Ram bhakts in Gujarat resulted in a 'Gujarat model', and a curfew was put forever on frequent curfews, making the state curfew-free, riot free. Every person in Gujarat is safe, business is flourishing, women are safe),"

Adityanath said. To chants of Jai Shri Ram from the crowd, the BJP leader added that the "balidan" by the Ram bhakts had led to the country getting the "yashaswi netritva (dynamic leadership)" of Prime Minister Narendra Modi. "It's thanks to it that work began in Ayodhya for the construction of a grand temple of Lord Ram."

Leading the roadshow at Godhra was a bulldozer adorned with BJP flags, trailed by 100-odd

BJP supporters lined up to see, hear Yogi Adityanath in Godhra Tuesday. Nirmal Harindran bikes, before Adityanath made an appearance, atop a truck. Throughout his series of rallies Tuesday, Adityanath's message was similar. He invoked Hindu pride, talked of temples, and spoke about Modi's administration ensuring an end to riots, and consolidation of security.

Apart from religious references, Adityanath also made it a point to mention Mahatma Gandhi and Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel in his speeches, specifically talking of the Junagadh and Hyderabad States conceding to join India due to Patel's efforts. Cutting an awkward figure in his own constituency though was incumbent Godhra BJP MLA C K Raulji, on whose behalf Adityanath took out the kilometre-long roadshow, followed by a public address. At least a dozen persons The Indian Express spoke to during the roadshow did not know who the sitting MLA was, and admitted they had come to see or hear the UP CM. At one point during the public address, Raulji, 68, bent down to touch 50-year-old Adityanath's feet.

A five-term MLA from Godhra, who won last time by a wafer-thin margin of 258 votes, Raulji was part of the Jail Advisory Committee that recommended the early release of the 11 convicts in the Bilkis Banogangrape case.

Raulji was earlier with the Congress, winning in 2012 by over 2,800 votes and in 2007 by 14,500 votes. He switched over to the BJP ahead of the 2017 Assembly polls. A Godhra BIP member said he would have it easy this time. "One of the key reasons for his low margin (in 2017) was that nearly 18,000 votes went to Independent Jashvantsinh Parmar. The bulk of those will come to Raulji this time." Parmar, having crossed back to the BJP, has been campaigning for Raulji this season.

For many lined up to see Adityanath Tuesday, these calculations were far from their minds. "We have come here to see Yogiji... we know he has done a lot of work in Mathura," said a woman, who along with two others said she was referring to the development of Krishna Janmabhoomi by the UPCM. The group cheered and hooted from as Adityanath passed by waving.

Advocate and notary Divyesh Sheth, who had come to the Godhra rally with his wife and two young kids, said he had come to "listen to Yogiji". "Modiji and Yogiji have my blind support. Even if they put up a thief, my vote will go to them."

Khan speaks to DEEPTIMAN TIWARY about BJP's claims of winning over Muslims, and why he remains confident of the SP retaining the seat. Excerpts:

The BJP is also accusing 'secular' parties of ignoring Pasmanda Muslims, and is wooing them and claiming they will vote for the party.

Iam so happy that the BJP is at least changing course. Now it has come down to Muslim appeasement. I want to congratulate them for this. If they start thinking about all Muslims, it will be even better. All those engaged in cow slaughter in Rampur, and accused in scores of such cases, have all become the pride of the BJP's dais. All hardened Muslim criminals have joined the BIP. It has now become the Muslim Bharatiya Janata Party. The good work that they are doing for Muslims here, by scaring them, by beating them up and by threatening them, if they start doing this with all Muslims in the country, all issues will be over. The issues of Mandir-Masjid, loudspeaker, naqab, will all disappear. We also want the same. So why only Pasmanda Muslims? All Muslims are Pasmanda (backward). But the question is when all those who slaughter cows sit with the BIP. who will protect the cows?

Day after Kharge's 'Raavan' jibe at PM, a BJP-Cong slugfest

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 29

A DAY after Congress president Mallikarjun Kharge, while taking on Prime Minister Narendra Modi for asking people in all constituencies to vote for BJP on the basis of his face, asked whether he is hundred-headed Raavan with a head everywhere, the BJP hit back, calling it an insult of Modi and every Gujarati. The ruling party called it a "testimony to their hate for Gujaratis", and asked people of the state to teach the party a "lesson" by voting for BJP.

The Congress countered the attack on its chief — and the party's tallest leader from Dalit community – by accusing BJP leaders of unleashing an "anti-Dalit Taking a strong exception to Kharge's remarks, Gujarat CM Bhupendra Patel tweeted, "Bereft of any development agenda and support from the people, Congress is out to abuse Gujarat and Gujaratis. The statement made by Kharge-ji against PM Narendra Modi-ji is a testitheir hate for Gujaratis..."

Patel was reacting to Kharge's address at a public rally Monday night at Ahmedabad's Behrampura. Hitting out at BJP for relying on Modi for every election, Kharge said, "We see your (Modi's) face in corporation elections, MLA elections or MP elections, everywhere... Do you have a hundred heads like Raavan?"

He also said, "I have been seeing that votes are sought in the name of Modi-ji -- be it municipality elections, corporation elections (or Assembly polls)... Ask for vote in the name of the candidate...is Modi going to come and work at the municipality? Is he going to help you in times of your need?

Reacting sharply, BJP spokesperson Sambit Patra on Tuesday asked people in Gujarat to cast "100 per cent" votes for "son of the soil" Modi and take "revenge" in a democratic manner. At a press conference, he alleged Kharge was voicing the views of Congress leaders Sonia and Rahul Gandhi Personal at-DECISION tacks on Modi started with Sonia's "maut ka saudagar" (merchant of death) remarks during 2007 Gujarat Assembly polls, Patra pointed out. "What Kharge said is condemnable and shows the mindset of the Congress. This is not merely an insult of Modi but of every Gujarati," he said.

BJP IT cell head Amit Malviya tweeted, "Unable to take the heat of Gujarat election, pushed to the fringe, Congress national president Mallikariun Kharge loses control over his words, calls Prime Minister Narendra Modi "Ravan". From "Maut ka Saudagar" to "Ravan", Congress continues to insult Guiarat and its son."

Congress media department head Pawan Khera shot back, "Why can't you digest the fact that a Dalit who has worked his way up is the elected president of the Congress? Calling him fringe shows what you and your party thinks of Dalits.'

Complaint over Shah's '2002 lesson' remark 'under process' in poll panel

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, AHMEDABAD NOVEMBER 29

THREE DAYS after a retired IAS officer complained to the EC seeking action against Home Minister Amit Shah for saying the BJP had taught a lesson to rioters in 2002, an EC official Tuesday said the matter is "under process"

The official said the poll panel has sought a report from the Chief Electoral Officer in Gujarat, where Shah had made the remark while campaigning on November 25.

When contacted, additional chief electoral officer of Gujarat, Kuldeep Arya, however, told The Indian Express the report was sent to the EC "two days back".

"We had sought a report from the District Election Officer of Kheda regarding a speech carrying a reference of 'lesson being taught in 2002'. The report, which includes a video clip, does not have anything objectionable," Arva said.

Arva further said: "He (Shah) is directly not inciting anyone. He is saying rioters were at large and we have taught a lesson and after that no rioting has taken place in Gujarat. So no particular community has been targeted. We have sent the report two days back to ECI," Arya said.

In his letter to the EC on November 26, a retired bureaucrat, E A S Sarma, said Shah had allegedly violated the poll code restrictions on seeking votes on communal basis. Sarma cited news reports which quoted Shah as saying a section of society had been "taught a lesson in 2002".

Sena name, symbol dispute: EC fixes hearing on Dec 12

New Delhi: The Election Commission (EC) will hold its first hearing in the Shiv Sena factions' dispute on December 12, an EC official said Tuesday.

The poll body had on November 12 asked the two factions led by Maharashtra Chief Minister Eknath Shinde and former CM Uddhav Thackeray to submit documents supporting their claims to the party's name and symbol by November 23.

While the hearing will be held on December 12, the two sides have been told they can submit further documents or statements by 5pm on December 9, the official said.

Meanwhile, the EC has deferred its hearing in the dispute between the two factions of the Lok Janshakti Party led by Chirag Paswan and Union Minister Pashupati Kumar Paras. The hearing was scheduled to be held Tuesday.

IN JAIPUR to review the Bharat Jodo Yatra (BJY) preparations, the All India Congress Committee (AICC) in charge for Organisation, K C Venugopal, brokered a truce between Rajasthan CM Ashok Gehlot and former deputy CM Sachin Pilot on Tuesday. The Rahul Gandhi-led Yatra is set to enter Rajasthan over the weekend.

Venugopal met the two leaders separately behind closed doors for about half an hour and is said to have communicated the AICC's opinion on the recent developments in the state. In a recent interview to NDTV, Gehlot said Pilot cannot be made the CM as party MLAs will not accept a "gaddar (traitor)" who colluded with the BJP to topple the government in 2020. Gehlot also alleged that the BJP had given Rs 10 crore to each MLA to bring down his government.

In the BJY review meeting with party leaders, which lasted for about two hours, Venugopal also gave a stern warning that there should not be any more incendiary public statements by party leaders. If a minister is found making such comments, he may even be dropped from the council of ministers, Venugopal is learnt to have said, emphasising that this is applicable to everyone. While the closed-door meeting with both leaders is said to have been "positive", the results may be temporary. Sources said the party wants both leaders to keep their differences aside and focus on the BIY. Later, addressing a press conference flanked by Gehlot and

Pilot, both of whom spoke before him, Venugopal raised their hands in the air and said "this is Raiasthan Congress" to indicate unity in the faction-ridden state unit. "We are very much united. Here Ashok ji (and) Sachin Pilot ii both already told you that the Congress party is united in Rajasthan. This yatra is not going to be a short-term event. Till election, we will fight together and we will win the election in Rajasthan again," Venugopal

Asked about comments by state Congress leaders despite his September 29 advisory, Venugopal said, "Whoever has given statements since the advisory, I asked for an explanation from the PCC president ... we will take (it) up separately." On September 29, Venugopal had directed party leaders in Rajasthan to refrain from making "public statements against other leaders or about party's internal matters". However, several party leaders from both factions, including Gehlot, have been commenting against each other since then.

"Yesterday that (the issue of factionalism) has been cleared by Rahul Gandhi, our leader, very clearly. Ashok Gehlot and Sachin Pilot, both are assets for the party," Venugopal declared.

At the joint press conference, Gehlot said, "We all are united in Rajasthan. I have said that Rahul Gandhi ji yesterday said...that Ashok Gehlot and Sachin Pilot are assets...and our party's virtue is that when our leader's message comes, then everyone down to the base work together..."

While the closed door meeting with both leaders is said to have been 'positive', the results may be temporary. Sources said that the party wants both leaders to keep their differences aside and focus on the BIY. In that regard, the truce may

As India takes G20 charge, govt plans year-long cultural splash

SHUBHAJIT ROY NEW DELHI NOVEMBER 29

AS INDIA assumes the Presidency of G20 on December 1, the government plans to begin its diplomatic calendar with a series of cultural initiatives. On the agenda is an interaction with 75 educational institutions, lighting up 100 monuments with the G20 logo. showcasing G20 at the Hornbill festival in Nagaland, and sand artist Sudarshan Patnaik etching the 20-nation global forum's logo on Puri beach, among others.

Sources said this will be the beginning of India's activities as it prepares to host more than 200 meetings across the country at more than 50 locations. These will include ministerial meetings, and those at official and non-governmental levels, to be held between December 1, 2022, and November 30, 2023. India will host the G20 leaders' summit in New Delhi on September 9-10, 2023.

the run-up to the summit will take place at exotic locations across the country. Some of them will be held alongside festivals in those states and regions - for example, the kite festival in Gujarat.

Sources said the venues will include J&K, but there is no clarity yet on Arunachal Pradesh, According to sources, the meetings are being scheduled in remote parts of the country, in line with PM Narendra Modi's vision to connect all districts and blocks with G20, so that the message reaches the masses through Jan Bhagidari — or people's participation — initiatives. As part of the government's initiative to showcase the 'One District One Product' initiative, G20 delegates will be gifted with local products, it is learnt. This will mean products renowned in those particular regions and districts will be promoted during those G20 meetings. The plans include involving the youth through events such as quiz competitions and talks, cultural programmes and competitions revolving around the G20 summit and its themes. One idea is to have selfie contests with the G20 logo across India's iconic monuments, and will be held across social media platforms.

Sources said the government is planning to push India's initiatives through social media platforms, including the indigenous platform, 'Koo'.

UNDERLINING THAT India's rise is deeply linked to the rise of Indian technology, External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar on Tuesday said India's geopolitical positioning will be a net assessment of politics of energy; economics and technological interests.

Speaking at the Global Technology Summit in New Delhi – organised by Carnegie India and the Ministry of External Affairs – Jaishankar said. "Geopolitics ultimately comes down to partners and choices. For India, who gives access; who provides markets and who collaborates are the key criteria."

India would like to use its G20 Presidency to reflect the interests and concerns of the global south that have been sidened over the years, he said. "The rise of India is deeply be given substantial weight in deciding India's geopolitical positioning as it would play a key role in striking alliances in a multipolar world.

"We cannot be agnostic about technology. We have to stop thinking that there is something neutral about technology...more and more things are technology driven and we need to understand that there is a very strong political connotation in-built into technology," Jaishankar said.

He said the principle of economic strategic autonomy will hold the key to global rebalancing and big players will constantly strive to be more capable technologically.

ROW OVER IFFI JURY CHIEF'S CRITICISM OF THE KASHMIR FILES AS A 'PROPAGANDA FILM'

Agnihotri dares Lapid: Prove even one scene wrong, will quit filmmaking

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 29

A DAY AFTER Israeli filmmaker and a jury chief at the International Film Festival of India (IFFI), Nadav Lapid, slammed the inclusion of Vivek Agnihotri's film, The Kashmir Files, in the competitive section of the festival, calling it a "vulgar" work of "propaganda", Agnihotri Tuesday put up a video on social media and stated that "what was surprising was that a terrorist's narrative was given a platform at an event organised by the Indian government, and Indians living in India used this narrative against their own country".

The Kashmir Files, released earlier this year, is based on mass exodus of Kashmiri Pandits from the Valley in the 1990s.

Agnihotri said the fact that his film was slammed "isn't new for me.(as) Urban Naxals, members of the Tukde Tukde gang, and terrorists have been saying this for a long time".

He stated, "...I conducted 700 interviews for this film. Are they saying people that I interviewed, people whose family members were murdered and gang-raped, are lying? A land that used to be occupied by Hindus is no longer occupied by Hindus. They are still being killed there. Is this propaganda? They keep calling The Kashmir Files a propaganda film. Are they saying that the genocide of Hindus didn't happen? Today, I challenge all intellectuals of the world, all the Urban Naxals of the world — and even this great filmmaker from

Vivek Agnihotri, director

Israel — if they can prove even one scene, one dialogue in The Kashmir Files is fictional. I will stop making films.

The only Indian member in the jury panel for the section, filmmaker Sudipto Sen, said Nadav's statements "were done in his personal capacity".

Other members of the jury included film producer Jinko Gotoh from the US, documentary filmmaker and film critic Javier Angulo Barturen and film editor Pascale Chavance from France. Vani Tripathi, a member of IFFI's steering committee, said: "You can have creative differences but to comment so sharply as he (Lapid) has done is unusual. There can be creative differences of opinion but as a jury chief you have to keep...politics out."

BJP leader Shivam Chhabra, who was part of the IFFI preview committee, told The Indian Express, "It is not the prerogative of jury members to question the selection of films; their mandate is to adjudge films selected by a competent panel, which has on board filmmakers, film critics and other eminent people from DISTANCING HIMSELF from Nadav Lapid's statement on 'The Kashmir Files' at the closing ceremony of IFFI, filmmaker Sudipto Sen on Tuesday said the Israeli filmmaker made the remarks in his "personal capacity".

Stating that all winners were chosen "unanimously", Sen, a member of the International Competition section, said that after the meeting with the festival director, and the subsequent press conference, Lapid should not have shared his "personal opinion" at a "public platform".

He told The Indian Express on Tuesday: "Nadav went to speak...as the jury chairman of the International Competition. However, the statements he made there were in his personal capacity. Whatever we had to say as part of the Jury Board about the films in competition, we said in the official presentation to the festival director and other officials on November 27, and later at a press conference. We are proud of the selection, but we are hurt by Nadav's action."

Protests in China are unlikely to lead to regime change, but it has dented the authority of the President

SC is right in pushing back at government's signals on judges' appointments. It must resist overreach — and look within, too

HE SUPREME COURT has gently, yet firmly, spoken its mind on the recent remarks by Union Law Minister Kiren Rijiju on the Collegium system that decides on the appointment of judges. In a recent interview, Rijiju, who described the Collegium system as "alien" to the Constitution, said, "Never say that the government is sitting on the files, then don't send the files to the government, you appoint yourself, you run the show." Justice S K Kaul's response to this petulant framing of the matter as a Court versus government faceoff was measured: "It came from somebody high. Should not have. All I can say is, it should not have happened." The bare facts are that there are vacancies in the apex court while the government is refusing to approve the names cleared by the Collegium for appointment as judges. The Court had reiterated the same suggestions after the government returned the files for reconsideration. If propriety and the law suggest that the government approve them, the law minister has sought to discredit the process itself by suggesting that it is also unconstitutional.

For long, the judiciary and the government have had their disagreements on how SC judges are to be appointed. The Centre proposed the National Judicial Appointments Commission (NJAC) to replace the Collegium system in 2015, but a five-judge constitutional bench of the Supreme Court struck down the Act a year later. Clearly, the executive has not reconciled with the rejection of the NJAC. But as Justice Kaul said on Monday, "maybe you have reservations on the law... But till the law stands, it is the law of the law... if the government says it will delay or not adhere to the law of the land, tomorrow somebody else may say something like this about another portion of the law". As Justice Kaul said, the government should "look at the larger picture". The larger picture is dismal. Despite a 2020 judgment that fixed timelines to clear appointments, recommendations are stuck at the government's end. Such delays, Justice Kaul remarked, have affected recruitments with good candidates reluctant to join the judiciary. Shortage of judicial officers is a major reason for pendencies, which has been repeatedly flagged by the Court.

Yet, Rijiju has a point about the opacity in the system and, fortunately, judges, too, are veering towards the idea of institutionalising a system of transparency and evaluation that brings some sunlight into the appointment process without compromising its integrity. As this government has said so many times, and with reason, especially during Emergency anniversaries, that Indira Gandhi's idea of a "committed judiciary" is the death knell of a democracy. The Constitution is clear on the balance of powers, the Supreme Court's pushback against what tantamounts to overreach by the political executive is timely and welcome. In parallel, the court should step into overdrive when it comes to reforms within — that make it more transparent and accountable, the twin pillars on which independence often rests.

THE BIG PICTURE

IFFI jury chair can speak his mind, India-Israel ties are strong enough to give him that space

VER THE SEVEN decades of its existence, the International Film Festival of India (IFFI) has developed into a prestigious show by a country that makes more films than any other in the world. It may not be a Cannes or Berlin, and despite being a government-run show, the IFFI has the convening power to attract some of the world's best cinema and filmmakers aside from providing coveted space to India's own best. As such, multiple views, not all of the same shade, are bound to be aired and exchanged. Thus it was natural that a film director of the eminence of Nadav Lapid, who headed the jury for the international competitive section, would have strong views about films and cinema. Presumably, this is what made him the right choice to chair the jury of the showcase segment of the film festival.

Lapid's opinion of the film The Kashmir Files, which he described as "vulgar propaganda", may not have gone down well with many who packed cinema halls earlier this year to see it and who saw, in the film, the breaking of a long silence — over the treatment of minority Kashmiri Hindus — in popular art. Of course, it is odd that a losing film was singled out for criticism — jury speeches are usually about the winners. Moreover, one of the jury members has come out to say that this wasn't, as Lapid claims, a consensus view. But then what is a film festival where an artist, especially one invited to chair a jury, can't speak his mind? Lapid, who has never made the specious claim of being "apolitical" — a term celebrities often use to mask their political choices — is not known for mincing his words including in his own country, Israel. Those who run the IFFI should know that without this freedom that top practitioners of the art like to take for granted, its annual celebration of India's formidable soft power will be just another polite back-scratching film awards night. So the Lapid controversy must not become a justification for the IFFI to pack the jury with the like-minded.

Israel's ambassador to India, Naor Gilon, took it upon himself to give Lapid a tongue lashing and apologise to India for the offence caused by the filmmaker's remarks. This was uncalled for diplomatic intervention in a matter that had nothing to do with him or the Israeli state. For one, Lapid did not identify his views as those of Israel. More importantly, India-Israel ties, do not not hang by the slender thread of a film review even if it was promoted by government leaders as a must-watch. As two countries that have come together in a considered and deliberate way to build their bilateral relationship over the last three decades, their ties are surely strong enough to shrug off Lapid's remarks as par for the democratic course.

SIXER FATIGUE

Ruturaj Gaikwad's record seven sixes raises the bar. But sixhitting in the T20 age has become non-events

AHARASHTRA'S TALENTED BATSMAN Ruturaj Gaikwad's seven sixes in a domestic 50-overs game received muted reactions. The feat trended briefly on social media, making the meme-lovers chuckle at the numerical oddity of the seventh six. The young star did make it to the headlines but he didn't quite set the cricketing world on fire. How did cricket reach this space of nosurprise? When cricket stopped gasping at such feats, it wasn't the proverbial loss of innocence, but a landmark in its continuous evolution. A six lost its visceral thrill a long time back. Ravi Shastri and Gary Sobers didn't do it in international matches either, but a generation would talk about it. They are still finding the ball that rolled out onto the road from the Sobers hit; fake ones wink in auction. Similarly talked about was the last-ball six by Javed Miandad in Sharjah in 1986. Now, the cricketing world is over all that mush.

For Indians, from the last decade, was MS Dhoni's twirl at Wankhede stadium in 2011 the last six that has stayed in the mind? Now, it has to be something sensational for it to stick: Like Virat Kohli's twin sixes against Haris Rauf in the World T20 game against Pakistan at MCG. Suryakumar Yadav contorts his body into scarcely believable positions to unfurl sixes. Otherwise, not much stays for long.

Over the years, even the batsmen have started to treat sixes as non-events. There is a ridiculous nonchalance in the new-age six strikers. So used to hitting the ball outside the park, there seems to be an obvious absence of the adrenalin rush. For many T20 stars, it's a bread and butter stroke — as routine a cover drive for a Test opener. The modern-day batsmen have honed and practised big hitting so thoroughly that they retain their "shape". There is nothing visceral about the hitting to gasp. Even if there are seven sixes.

IT IS A cliché about protests in authoritarian societies that they appear unlikely ex ante, inevitable in retrospect, and uncertain in the train of events they unleash. But, based on preliminary assessment, the widespread protests against China's Covid policy are unprecedented and will test President Xi Jinping's authority. In all likelihood, the protests will be quelled with a combination of repression and some concessions. But in significant ways these protests have already challenged the authority of Xi.

Protests in China are not new. For years, the Chinese state used protests as a safety valve and an information conduit, a way of identifying fault lines in society and responding to them. Most of those protests did not dent the authority of the Communist Party. They were used to strengthen it. But that strategy had four assumptions.

First, the issues taken up in the protest were usually very specific. Second, they worked in a system of relative decentralisation, where the protests could be taken as an indicator of local performance, while the central leadership could step in as a knight in shining armour. So, traditionally, in surveys, distrust of local government was always much higher than central government. Third, the protest was used as information. But the guiding assumption was that the central leadership had some kind of knowledge authority that was in a position to correct errors. And the fourth, was the ability to control the information order enough to stop any possible contagion effects.

All four assumptions are being tested in these protests. The first is harder to gauge. The protests are ostensibly against Covid policies. In some places they are becoming a magnet for other grievances including labour rights and curbs on freedom. But we have to be very cautious in assessing the scale and grammar of these protests. But the fact that China has become more centralised is a problem for Xi. Though local governments institute regionspecific policies, there is no doubt that the failures of Covid policy will be attributed entirely to the central government. The spectacle of Xi's politburo being entirely constituted of "yes men" also suggests that channelling up discontent through party channels is no longer considered an easy option. Ironically, These protests have global implications. The global mood affiliation about democracy will undergo a shift. Democracies might be in crisis. But authoritarian regimes are in a deeper crisis. The protests underscore the fact that demands for a fair degree of personal freedom, freer information, or that governments justify themselves to their citizens are not parochial cultural values. But the economic and strategic implications of this shift are uncertain. Is a Xi regime, with its authority dented, more likely to mobilise nationalism and assert Chinese power on the international stage?

the successful consolidation of power at the top takes away the possibility of engaging with alternative viewpoints within the system. Perhaps the people are willing to see this.

Xi cannot displace the blame to protect his own aura. But most importantly, the protests have dented Xi and the leadership's epistemic authority. The protests are a statement that the leadership is not in the best position to judge what trade-offs are appropriate. It cannot endlessly use people as fodder for its own preferred targets. The regime cannot disguise its failure to vaccinate or prepare the health system enough to open up. And ironically, increasing ambiguity about on the ground policies may have made the situation worse. With steep slowdown in economic growth, this authority will be challenged further. Even if Xi cracks down, this dent in authority might surreptitiously work itself out in the party over the coming few months.

And, finally, there is control over the information order. Despite censorship and propaganda, two lessons are clear. It is impossible to suppress or distract from information in the long run: One uncensored shot of a football World Cup game being watched without masks can trigger emotions. It is also a reminder that closed societies that put nationalist pride over the wellbeing of people run risks. In this case, China's refusal to use vaccines made elsewhere left it vulnerable to a larger lockdown. There is no direct line from economic development to political freedom, but the modern world does require space for personal freedom that political orders challenge in the long run at their own peril lenge in the long run at their own peril. Whether the protests are sustained depends on a number of things. First, the dynamics of contagion effects cannot be predicted. Could a precipitating incident galvanise more protests, or does the fear of anarchy lead to holding back? Major changes almost always come as a surprise because of the dynamics of collective action. But it is equally sobering to remember how most protests end up being domesticated or repressed. The second issue is elite cohesion. In protests that lead to major upheavals, usually there is a crack in the power elite that allows popular protest to channel up into change. This seems unlikely at the moment, partly because Xi has marginalised anyone with independent authority.

Third, a lot depends on how Xi responds. Tactful concessions and some targeted repression may work. Giving concessions may not be as significant a loss of face as everyone assumes. The greater danger is Xi appearing indecisive, as, in fact, he has in his management of Covid. But he does have a problem that he is stuck with Covid — opening up risks steep rise in infections and deaths. But a lockdown is not sustainable either. We also don't know how the generational divide might work out in this - the protest seems to be led by young people - and Xi may have to do a balancing act. But it would be out of character for this regime not to want to reassert its authority very quickly. Even in 1989, where there was arguably more elite division, the revolt was snuffed out. And the analogies with Arab Spring are a bit far-fetched, since the Chinese

These protests have global implications. The global mood affiliation about democracy will undergo a shift. Democracies might be in crisis. But authoritarian regimes are in a deeper crisis. The protests underscore the fact that demands for a fair degree of personal freedom, freer information, or that governments justify themselves to their citizens are not parochial cultural values. But the economic and strategic implications of this shift are uncertain. Is a Xi regime, with its authority dented, more likely to mobilise nationalism and assert Chinese power on the international stage? Does it feed a greater conspiratorial mind set about regime change being instituted from the outside? Or does it make him more risk averse?

state has deeper social roots.

The challenge for Xi is that with his authority dented, he cannot easily pivot to a new domestic narrative to reclaim aura for the party. Reclaiming the economic high ground will not be easy, as the Chinese state did after 1989. So you might be looking at the regime with immense power but increasingly unsure of its own authority, a deadly combination. The protests may not change the regime. But, as good political action does, they will rupture the aura, self-confidence and presumptuousness of the regime. Nothing is more democratic than that.

A QUESTION OF MERIT

IFFI jury chair criticised not the content of 'The Kashmir Files', but its quality

C S Venkiteswaran

THE REMARKS MADE by Nadav Lapid, the jury chairman of the recently concluded International Film Festival of India at Goa, about the Indian film The Kashmir Files, raises disturbing questions about the film and the festival. While commenting on films that were included in the competition section, he expressed his concern about The Kashmir Files. He thought it was "like a propaganda, vulgar movie inappropriate for an artistic competitive section of such a prestigious film festival". This comment has triggered a series of responses for and against him and the movie.

The damning comment by a respected filmmaker and jury chairman says a lot. Lapid was making this observation representing the jury consisting of eminent filmmakers whose very mandate is to evaluate the films. What else is expected of a responsible jury but such honest and open evaluation of the films? Isn't his duty to the spirit of cinema and to an illustrious film festival to speak honestly?

Another disturbing aspect is the polemical response of a large section of society to the comment. There is a category error here: While talking about the film, Lapid was commenting upon its artistic merit — as to whether or not it is a work of art worth being considered in the competition section of a prestigious film festival in terms of its aesthetic quality. The idea of "quality" or "merit" of Art does take sides — that of justice and peace. It looks beyond boundaries and borders of all kinds. So, judgments about art are not about assuaging or justifying something or the other, but to keep on interrogating the given, the accepted, the taken-for-granted things, and to open up our imaginations to diverse experiences and possibilities of life.

Though such judgements are subjective, they can be discussed in discourses on art in aesthetic terms — the very idea of a jury and the process of judgement are based on it. This is a jury of peers from the domain who are knowledgeable about the field and capable of free and fair judgement. Lapid's mandate as a jury member was to judge and comment upon the artistic merits of the movie rather than its political in/correctness — which is exactly what he did, sharply and passionately. In doing so, he was upholding the jury's mandate and also being true to himself, the spirit of cinema and the festival. An international film festival owes its reputation to the values and concerns it upholds, which is reflected in its programme content and organisational intent. There has been a lot of criticism about the selection process for the festival, but no one knows who is answerable or to whom one should complain or appeal. After the unplanned and hurried merger of all national film institutions into the National Film Development Corporation, and the dissolution of the Directorate of Film Festivals, the mystery regarding who actually runs IFFI remains unresolved. All this naturally gets reflected in the priorities and packaging of content which, in turn, lead to embarrassing situations like this. This comment, in fact, is a stark reminder to the festival authorities about the philosophy of the festival and an appeal to rea work of art is, of course, a very slippery one.

think the process of film selection.
It is unfair to criticise the jury for commenting on a film based on its artistic merit by using categories or arguments from a totally different domain. In this category confusion between artistic merit and political opinion, aesthetic perception and vested interests, what is lost is art. Art is something that does not lend itself to the whims of the status quo or political exigencies. It is based on far deeper concerns and understanding about aesthetic imagination. So, it transcends both the expectations of the popular and also the woke. Art unsettles fixed identities and rigid notions, and dreams about other modes of being and radical futures. Art does take sides - for justice and peace. It looks beyond boundaries and borders of all kinds. So, judgements about art are not about assuaging or justifying something or the other, but to keep on interrogating the given, the accepted, the taken-for-granted things, and to open up our imaginations to diverse experiences and possibilities of life.

Lapid's comments too come from such an artistic urge and political responsibility, as his own words testify: "I feel comfortable to openly share this feeling with you since the spirit of the festival can truly accept critical discussion which is essential for art and life."

The climate change generation

Education should be leveraged to avert climate-related crises and shape opportunities that a green economy will bring

AARAN PATEL

INSTEAD OF MIRRORING a broken development paradigm predicated on an extractive relationship with nature, India can lead with an approach that's better for both people and the planet. A climate-resilient education system will be essential to realising this opportunity. This will enable Indians to move from vulnerability to agency, for forest-dwelling youth to be entrepreneurs in a nature-based economy, for children dis-placed by climate-induced disasters to attain a transformative education and be on pathways towards green jobs.

At COP27, India released its Long-Term Low Emissions and Development Strategies (LT-LEDS). This outlines priorities for carbonintensive sectors like electricity and industry and transport, and emphasises the role of a Lifestyle for Environment (LiFE) as a mass movement towards sustainable consumption and production. From behavioural shifts of individuals to the re-shaping of markets, education has a vital role in the LiFE movement. This could make a significant dent in reducing planet-warming gases - demand-side actions have the potential to cut greenhouse gas emissions by 40-70 per cent in 2050, according to the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC)

However, the education sector and children face several headwinds. First, school closures during the pandemic have led to a learning deficit that's getting reflected in reduced test scores. This will likely impact productivity and per capita income levels in the long term. One year of school closures could reduce GDP levels by anywhere from 1.1 to 4.7 per cent by mid-century, according to a paper by the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development. The lasting impacts of Covid-19 could hinder economic mobility for a generation of Indians and alter the arithmetic for public finance.

Second, climate impacts are already disrupting children's learning and well-being globally. For instance, extreme heat reduces students' learning levels and causes physiological harm. Schools are temporarily shut down and children's health is affected due to persistently poor air quality in cities like Delhi. Debilitating deluges are permanently displacing families, often leading to children (and disproportionately girls) dropping out of schools and being trafficked or subject to child labour due to distressed household incomes. As these disasters grow more frequent and intense, we must prepare the infrastructure, content, and delivery of the public education system to protect the most vulnerable citizens, many of whom will be climate refugees

Third, the lived experiences of climate-induced disasters and anxiety about the future are causing despair and dread among young people. This is compounded by digital platforms and news cycles that don't linger long enough to make sense of challenges or build a widespread understanding of breakthroughs like the significant reductions in the costs of renewable energy.

Consequently, the education system ought to be leveraged to both avert crises and shape opportunities. At a national level, a strong enabling framework for a climate-resilient education system could cover matters from curricula to nutrition to school building codes in a climate-changed world. With its scale and source of learning but also shelter, clothing, food, and community for millions. Building off a recent UNICEF paper, India should create this framework through a consultative exercise with educators, students, experts from the humanities and sciences, and relevant ministries and departments.

Design and implementation in states and districts should be shaped by existing local needs and anticipated climate risks. This could involve infrastructure investments so school buildings can double up as emergency shelters in cyclone-prone areas and capacity additions so government schools in mega-cities that are destinations for climate migrants can integrate and empower children. Across the board, children should be able to access clean water and nutritious food. Students' mental health needs should be served through an empathic expansion and an emphasis on social and emotional learning.

Curricula can be infused with scientific d technical know-how alongside indigenous and local knowledge. In pockets, there are already innovative initiatives under-way where non-government organisations are adding tremendous value through contextualisation and close work with communities. These efforts range from the buffer zone of Kanha National Park where Baiga and Gond students are learning about the potential of integrating biodiversity conservation with regenerative agriculture to the by-lanes of Bengaluru where youth are taking civic and climate actions from waste management to lake restorations to make their city more liveable

The cross-cutting imperative should be to foster critical thinking instead of rote learning so that the next generation can embrace complexity and make informed choices. While we must strive for abundance and equity, societies and individuals will likely need to negoCurricula can be infused with scientific and technical know-how alongside indigenous and local knowledge. tiate scarcity and trade-offs.

There are important considerations that could qualify these arguments. Some may rightly point out the need for climate education across society rather than simply at the primary and secondary levels. The imperative to retrain workers in industries that have a limited future in a green economy is being underlined in recent times. So is the need to prioritise technical training in colleges and universities so we can rapidly accelerate our decarbonisation pathway. While each of these goals should be pursued, decades of data reflect how investments in primary and secondary education are the greatest lever for development and can often be net positive for public finance in the long term. Furthermore, we can't afford to be narrowly focusing on technical training for the innovation, research, and development of climate technologies. Rather, we should develop strong analytical capabilities and holistic thinking about societal transformations and how new technologies will be embedded in communities. A blinkered short-term approach could lead to a suboptimal transition addressing symptoms rather than the root causes and merely shifting unsustainable demand from one set of finite resources to another. As Elizabeth Kolbert, the Pulitzer Prizewinning journalist put it, "the 'invisible hand' always grasps for more".

From consumer choices to innovation to policy to finance, each aspect of a green economy will be underpinned by a strong education system that is resilient to climate change. This could be the greatest enabler of a uniquely Indian Lifestyle for Environment that taps into our civilisational richness and becomes a model and movement to be emulated by the world.

Poor get their due

Verdict in EWS case is in keeping with the vision of a dynamic Constitution with equity at its heart

ASHWANI KUMAR

THE SUPREME COURT'S majority judgment in Janhit Abhiyan is a watershed moment in the nation's endeavour to advance intergenerational justice. It views reservation in government employment and educational institutions as a tool of affirmative action and reparative justice, beyond identity and representation. Endorsing the 103rd constitutional amendment, the Court has expanded the sweep of affirmative action by extending the benefit of quotas to the hitherto excluded economically weaker sections (EWS) of the "forward classes". It repelled the legal challenge to the amendment, mounted principally on the ground that reservation on the basis of economic backwardness alone was a species of class discrimination constitutionally impermissible and violative of the Constitution"s basic structure (Kesavanand Bharti, 1973). The Court also rejected the argument that the exclusion of SCs, STs and the non-creamy layer of OBC's from the 10 per cent reservation was discriminatory and that the amendment breached the judicially-mandated 50 per cent cap on reservation. The majority thus endorsed the central premise of the amendment - economic deprivation, with its attendant consequences, must be addressed as part of the government's affirmative action policies for empowerment of the poor, not covered by caste based reservation.

The defining logic of the majority view, also accepted in principle by the minority, is that the debasing impact of poverty on human dignity is caste neutral. Indeed, the ravages of history and histories of marginalisation including our own experience as an oppressed colonial nation tell us that "calculated oppression" is a function of eco-nomic deprivation that scars the soul in a dehumanising perpetuation of poverty. An acute awareness of the social and economic inequities that have inspired the Constitution's preambular promise, elaborated in the inter-play of Directive Principles (Articles 38, 39A, 46) and Fundamental Rights provide the edifice for the Court's majority judgment. In upholding the challenged amendment, the majority reasoned that reservation was an exception to the equality principle and therefore, not a part of the basic structure of the Constitution. It could thus be modulated for the benefit of those not already availing of the benefits of affirmative action. It held that the new beneficiaries could be treated as a distinct and separate category for the purpose of reservation with reference to the twin constitutional tests of rational differentiation and the object sought to be achieved. Breaching of the 50 per cent cap on reservation has been justified on the basis that it was judicially conceived only in respect of the backward classes and is not "inflexible and immovable for all times to come".

Recalling its judgment in N M Thomas (1976) and logic of the Punjab and Haryana High Court in Jagdish Rai (1977), as also the dissenting judgment of Chief justice of Patna

High Court in Sudarshan Thakur (1957) endorsing the State's power to provide reservation in case of "undeserved want", the Court rejected "the tying(of) substantive equality to a fixed category of backwardness". It recognised "a constantly evolving situation where groups that are the sites of social and institutional disadvantages can change over time and even new groups can be added as times change".

In a compelling construct of the nation's democratic arrangement enshrined in a dynamic Constitution, the Court affirmed that each generation must invest the document with new content to make it a "living organic thing"; "not bound to be understood or acceptable to the original understanding of the constitutional economics..." (Association of United Tele services Providers, 2014). The majority view builds upon a stated deference to Living Tree Constitutionalism and unfolds an expansive judicial gaze upon the Constitution, not frozen in time, to ensure its continuing relevance in the advancement of national goals. The majority decision affirms that in a parliamentary democracy, policy choices representing the harmonising of conflicting interests through pragmatic adjustments is essentially a legislative function that ought not to be overridden by judicial fiats, unless plainly offensive to the

However, in a never-ending process of justice, the split verdict in the case will keep the competing arguments alive on complex questions at the intersection of law and politics. For the moment, the majority view with its precedential value must hold the field. Legal finesse apart, the distinction of the majority view rests upon its exposition of an idea of constitutional justice consistent with current popular sensitivities and aspirations and is grounded in "reasoned engagement". It addresses the disquiet amongst the economically disadvantaged sections at being excluded so far from the orbit of the state's empowering policies, validating thereby the Constitution's stabilising function through the redressal of remedial injustices.

Political parties, reportedly having politically expedient second thoughts on the validity of the amendment, even after unreservedly supporting its passage in Parliament, must know that politics based on compromised principles inevitably fails. And only those who appealed to "the brooding spirit of the law, to the intelligence of a future day..." post Indra Sawhney (1992), can now claim vindication.

However, for the new architecture of "compensatory discrimination" scripted by the majority in Janhit to endure, it is necessary to ensure that reverse discrimination is not stretched to a point where it "eat(s) up the rule of equality". This is a burden of statesmanship and of the quality of our democratic politics. In the final analysis, constitutional doctrines and changes in the temper of intellectual speculations reflect the fluctuating conditions of social, economic and political life. BR Ambedkar's reminder that "the spirit of the Constitution is the spirit of the age", is the unmistakable message of the majority judgment in the

That's what every athlete should have in India@100

LOOKING AT

Suma Shirur

WHEN THE INDIAN women's hockey team came fourth at the Olympics, we still celebrated them on their amazing rollercoaster ride. At the end of the day, in sport, these are the sort of fighters we want to watch. That's why when I think of where Indian sport should be at 100, in 2047, I don't want to put a dull number to the medals we ought to win. Sport should be about standout memories. In 2047, I want to see firebrand Indian athletes, like the women's hockey team, make headlines, I want every Indian athlete to make the finals and put themselves in a position to stand tall on the

When we started shooting 25 years ago, we had nothing, but then each of us from that generation decided to give back through coaching and setting up academies. Back then, we were only riding our talent. We made winning four Olympic medals look easy. After two Olympic Games with no medals, we now want our shooters to be far better prepared. We are not the US or China or Russia — we are unique and shouldn't ape other countries. We should be wise and mature in setting goals. The aim isn't just medals. We should have athletes who can perform at will.

We are 10 years behind everyone in terms of sports science. We have only recently started looking at coaches' training programmes, and our own data collection, analysis and research. The results that you see today are largely due to shooters from a generation ago. Over the years, the number of aspirants has grown exponentially. Now, we must focus on quality. In 25 years, we should be a consistent and confident medalling

In team sports like hockey and cricket, I want parity for women — in what they earn, number of matches and leagues they play, and what facilities they get. Every child's first love is football; I've seen that among shooters and in my two sons. And by 2047, if India can get to the FIFA World Cup level in men's and women's football, they will be gods and goddesses in this country.

While I'm a big believer in capitalising on traditional hubs in wrestling and boxing, I also know so many girls from cities who want to take up boxing. By 2047, we should be able to provide young people options shooting for those in rural areas, boxing in big cities and wrestling in urban schools and universities. Sponsorship, infrastructure and sports programs at universities like in the US, ought to be the trajectory to aim at.

Athletes from smaller towns are more driven, but the willingness to work hard doesn't come easily to city kids, in my experience. They lead cushioned lives, and many schools are air-conditioned now - who will go out and sweat it out in the sun? Maybe golf and tennis operate in elite circles, but we need urban kids to play sports and aspire to be elite athletes.

Young people from privileged backgrounds have opportunities galore, which gives them a greater chance to shine brighter in sports. On the other hand, those from less privileged families find themselves struggling for opportunities and facilities. The skill and talent are there but there are small things like travelling abroad, performing in a different set-up, and different food and language - getting that confidence takes a while, which we should make available to all athletes irrespective of their backgrounds, from early on.

I think by 2047, every Indian child should get some kind of exposure to all the options in sport, so they know if they get a sense of where their interest and talent lie. Competition is good, but not to the point where it becomes a mental health issue or is unsafe for children. We need good structures for this, and the whole sporting ecosystem should know how far to push young athletes.

Medals are won or lost on decimals. A mature approach which thinks of athletes first - win or lose - and makes sport enjoyable should be the aim for India at 100.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Preventive action THIS REFERS TO the article, 'A story too familiar' (IE, November 28). The article strikes the right chord amidst the increasing cases of gendered abuse and violence. While justice for the reported cases is non-negotiable, we also need preventive action through coordinated efforts from various sections including government, media, NGOs and civil society. The increasing number of shows portraying violence on electronic media and the ease of access to all sorts of pornography will only worsen things. To effectively counter these, we need to take sustained action. Priya Parikh, via email

REFORM SYSTEM

THIS REFERS TO the editorial, 'Bail vs jail' (IE, November 28). Overcrowded prisons don't necessarily mean that the crime rates in society have increased. A systemic failure on part of the criminal justice system may contribute to this problem. Policymakers have failed to initiate reform in the penal system. We need alternatives to custodial sentencing in certain categories of crimes. Trial courts should be encouraged to order sentences like a public apology, monetary compensation, unpaid community services, and conditional discharge of undertrials in certain cases.

Sudip Kumar Dey, Barasat

CENTRE'S OVERREACH THIS REFERS TO the report, 'SC upset over Rijiju remarks, says can name judges if given power' (IE, November 29). It is disheartening that the government is leaving no opportunity to interfere in the decisions of the judiciary. This only highlights the insecurity of the Centre and its thirst for absolute power. The judiciary is meant to be an autonomous body. The government ought to understand that it cannot direct every institution. With the Centre already being infamous for unleashing central agencies such as ED, CBI at its whims and fancy, these actions further dents its credibility.

Aanya Singhal, Noida

WHAT CHINA NEEDS

THIS REFERS TO the editorial, 'Restive China' (IE, November 29). The pandemic has severely impacted the global economy. While many countries are returning to normalcy, this prospect still eludes China. The stringent norms to tackle the spread of the virus have also impacted the learning process, leading to resentment, frustration and anger, which those in power may not have anticipated. The zero-Covid rule seems to have destabilised the economic situation in the country as well. Freedom of expression is the need of the hour.

Terror-gangsters nexus: NIA searches 13 spots in two UTs, three states

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 29

DAYS AFTER arresting three jailed gangsters Lawrence Bishnoi, Navin Bali and Sunil Man alias Tillu Tajpuriya, the National Investigation Agency (NIA) on Tuesday carried out searches at 13 locations in three states and two Union Territories as part of its crackdown on the alleged nexus between terrorists, gangsters and drug smugglers.

"The third round of raids and searches were conducted in Punjab, Haryana, Rajasthan and Union Territories of Chandigarh and Delhi. The raids and searches were conducted in Fazilka, Taran Taran, Ludhiana, Sangrur and Mohali districts of Punjab, Yamuna Nagar district of Haryana, Sikar district of Raiasthan and Outer North district of Delhi/NCR to dismantle and disrupt the emerging nexus between terrorists, gangsters and drug smugglers and traffickers based in India and abroad in two cases registered in August,"said a NIA spokesperson. According to the NIA, the raids and searches are part of the crackdown against organised criminal syndicates and networks, top gangsters, their criminal and business associates based in Punjab, Haryana and Rajasthan and arms suppliers based in Rajasthan and Delhi. "Searches were conducted at houses and other premises of Kaushal Chaudhary of Gurugram, Rajasthan, Vishal Maan of Prahladpur, Delhi, Binny Gurjar of Sangrur, Punjab, Ravi Rajgarh of Ludhiana, Punjab, and their associates," the spokesperson said.

"During the searches, incriminating materials, including various types of contraband and ammunition have been seized," the spokesperson said.

"These gangs were carrying out targeted killings and raising funds for criminal activities through smuggling of drugs and weapons. The recent crimes and extortion calls bysyndicates and gangsters to businessmen and professionals, including doctors, had created a widespread scare among the people. These gangs were using cyber space to publicise these crimes to create terror among the public at large,"

POLICE TEAM IN CHHATTISGARH TO NAB ACCUSED POLITICIAN

Girl taken to three states, raped; Jharkhand cops hunt for accused

ABHISHEK ANGAD RANCHI, NOVEMBER 29

A POLICE team from Jharkhand's East Singhbhum district has gone to Chhattisgarh to arrest a political leader in a rape and POCSO case registered in the district in 2019, police said on Tuesday.

According to the police, this is the fifth time that a team is visiting the neighbouring state to nab the accused political leader – he was found "absconding" on each previous occasion.

The case relates to rape and gangrape of the girl, who was 15 when the case was registered in 2019 - a victim of sex trafficking, she was sexually assaulted by multiple accused in multiple locations across at least four states, according to records.

Court records say she was Jharkhand, raped in Chhattisgarh, West Bengal, Odisha, and back again in East Singhbhum district.

Details of investigation from police records show the minor had a diary, which contained names and numbers of some of person who allegedly raped her; and she would later count the numbers. The case was registered in 2019 when a hotel owner in East Singhbhum informed police when she was brought to the hotel for the crime.

Police have invoked IPC Sections 366A (inducement of any minor girl, forced or otherwise, to illicit intercourse), 370 (trafficking), 376(3) (rape with a minor), 376(D)(gang rape), among others, besides POCSO and Immoral Fraffic (Prevention) Acts.

Senior Superintendent of Police, East Singhbhum, Prabhat Kumar said: "This is not the first time police have gone to Chhattisgarh to arrest (the accused persons). We have arrested five out of 10 accused and have filed a charge sheet against them. The remaining five, including a political party leader, will be arrested soon.'

Asked about the delay in arrest of all the accused men, SSP Kumar said, "It is an ongoing investigation.... We could not arrest the political leader earlier (in Chhattisgarh), but we will arrest

THE ADANI Group on Tuesday won the bid for the redevelopment of Dharavi in Mumbai, givceptualised nearly two decades ago. The redevelopment of the area, which is one of the largest slum clusters in Asia, will be carried out by Adani Realty, the real estate wing of Adani Group.

Adani emerged as the winning bidder by quoting a sum of Rs 5,069 crore, trumping the DLF Group, which had quoted Rs 2,025 crore.

"There were three bidders in all. However, only Adani and DLF remained in the race in the final bidding since the other bidder, Naman Group, did not qualify for the technical bid. Adani Group quoted Rs 5,069 crore while DLF submitted a bid of Rs 2,025 cr," said S V R Srinivas, Chief Executive Officer of Dharavi Redevelopment Project.

While the entire redevelopment project is estimated to cost Rs 20,000 crore, the winner was selected based on the highest initial investment commitment shown by the bidder, said officials. The entire project is expected to be completed in 17 years and the government has set a seven-year target to rehabilitate all eligible tenants.

"We will now send the proposal to the high-power committee led by secretaries of Maharashtra government. Once the committee gives its nod, a special purpose vehicle (SPV) will be formed with the bidder as the lead partner and the Maharashtra government before work commences." Srinivas said.

He added that tenants who

> It was decided to develop Dharavi by using land as a resource to cross-subsidise the cost of development through a sale component on the basis of the Slum Rehabilitation Scheme. It would be divided into sectors and developers appointed for the same. The government also decided to notify the whole of Dharavi as an undeveloped area and to appoint a special planning authority for its development. In 2007, global tenders were floated by the Dharavi Redevelopment Authority evoking a response from 101 companies. The process, however, got stuck and the entire tendering process got cancelled in 2011.

Although Dubai-based infrastructure firm Seclink Technologies Corporation turned out to be a successful bidder in January 2019 against Adani, the tender was not awarded following the decision to include Railways land in the redevelopment project.

PETITION BEFORE TREE AUTHORITY

SC allows MMRCL to pursue plea for felling 84 trees at Aarey

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 29

REFUSING TO stay the Maharashtra government's decision to allow the car depot for Line 3 of Mumbai Metro to be located in Aarey region, the Supreme Court on Tuesday allowed the Mumbai Metro Rail Corporation Ltd (MMRCL) to pursue its application before the Tree Authority for felling 84 trees to construct a ramp for the project.

A bench of CII D Y Chandrachud and Justice P S Narasimha said, "It would not be possible for the court at the interim stage to stay the decision."

The court said the Tree Authority will be at liberty to take an independent decision and impose such conditions as it deems necessary. The court was hearing an application by the MMRCLurging it to modify its October 7, 2019 order by which it had directed status quo to be maintained at Aarey and stopped felling of trees.

The MMRCL said although it had moved an application before the Tree Authority seeking permission to fell trees, no action was forthcoming on it yet due to the operation of the SC's status quo order.

Allowing the request, the bench said, "The order of this court, which has the effect of directing the preservation of the status quo on the felling of trees, shall stand modified to the above extent thereby permitting the MM-RCL to move the Tree Authority on its application for felling 84 trees."

Those opposing the construction of the car shed at Aarey opposed the grant of any relief before their pending appeals against the project are decided by the apex court.

The Supreme Court, however, said, "Prima facie, there is a view of the Bombay High Court which held the permission for felling of trees and the decision to locate the Metro car shed on the land at Aarey as valid."

"In such projects involving large outlay of public funds, the court cannot be oblivious to the serious dislocation, which would be caused if the public investment that has gone into the project were to be disregarded. Undoubtedly, considerations pertaining to the environment are of concern. It is well settled, be sustainable," it said.

"As already noted earlier, 2,144 trees were felled in executing the work pertaining to the car depot, while 212 trees were felled for executing the work relating to the ramp. What is now sought is a permission to apply to the Tree Authority for the felling of 84 trees pertaining to the ramp..." said the bench.

The court said it will hear the appeals against the plans to locate the car shed on Aarey land in the first week of February 2023.

Of 110 nations, India tops global minority index, finds study

DIVYA A NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 29

PATNA-BASED research institute Centre for Policy Analysis (CPA) has put India on top of the 'global minority index', followed by South Korea, Japan, Panama and the US, in its Global Minority Report tabulating 110 countries. Maldives, Afghanistan and Somalia figure at the bottom of the list, while the UK is ranked 54, and the UAE 61. Durga Nand Jha, CPA execuve chairman and author of the report, said their approach has been mathematical and the grading of countries was done on the basis of approach of the State towards minority religions, and the extent of their inclusiveness. This report only takes into account macro parameters to analyse the status of religious minorities in a country, and the approach of a state towards them, said Jha. "Only those parameters have been taken into account to assess the status of religious minorities which relate to Constitutional provisions, policies of a government, and other broader indicators, such as the laws of the land," he said.

Unveiling the report, former vice president of India M Venkaiah Naidu, said India, through the centuries, has been a cradle of cosmopolitan culture, and a melting pot of belief systems, religions, dogmas, ideologies and cults. "India is a living example of our ancient belief of 'vasudhaiva kutumbakam (the world is a family)," he said.

Aligarh RTI activist beaten, dies: kin say killed for exposing graft, blame pradhan

ARNAV CHANDRASEKHAR ALIGARH, NOVEMBER 29

TWO DAYS after an RTI activist from Aligarh district of western Ulttar Pradesh died, after he was severely assaulted, allegedly by the village pradhan and his supporters, over filing RTI queries on substandard work and alleged corruption by the pradhan, his family on Tuesday said the pradhan's accomplices have "long been involved in crimes and of harassing people", but this was the first time they retaliated such violently.

"And a life has been lost," said Sunil Singh, cousin of RTI activist and farmer Devjit Singh, 32, who succumbed to injuries on Sunday evening.

According to the family, Devjit was working on the family's farm, along with younger brother Surendra, when eight people, allegedly including village pradhan Devendra and his son, attacked them around 6 pm.

"I saw them (assailants) leaving on their two-wheelers. They attacked my sons with sticks and other weapons...Devjit survived until he could tell a constable what had happened and then he passed away. Surendra is still in hospital – he has sustained injuries in the rib and has a broken arm.," said Mahendra Singh, Devjit's father, who had just left the field, where wheat has been sown, when the attack took place

Wife Nisha, a daughter aged two and a son aged three survive Devjit. Surendra is still in hospital. One of the eight accused, Harvir, has been arrested, police said on Tuesday. The others are on the run. Police have registered an FIR for rioting, criminal intimidation, grievous hurt, murder,

He said Devjit had earlier sent complaint letters to the Chief Minister's Office, police headquarters in Lucknow, the Aligarh SP and the District Magistrate, mentioning verbal abuse directed at him and his family members, that the pradhan and his supporters had allegedly threatened him with dire consequences and to implicate him in false cases.

Relatives and many villagers had protested initially. The family performed the last rites after the "local DSP and inspector assured us that action would be taken within 24 hours and they will make all efforts to arrest the accused". Sunil said.

Relatives recalled Devjit, a BSc graduate, as an intelligent man. Sunil said, "He worked with a private firm in Agra and returned to the village after marriage. He ran a small internet cafe in the village. Who else but a man like him would have filed RTI applications on these issues?'

An uncle, DP Singh, said, "We will do whatever we have to do. even if we have to go to Delhi or Lucknow to demand justice.'

TEACHING MBBS IN TAMIL VIA WHATSAPP

Think in mother tongue, practise in English: Medicos tip to students

ARUN JANARDHANAN CHENNAI, NOVEMBER 29

ON OCTOBER 16. Union home minister Amit Shah launched an MBBS course in Hindi in Bhopal for the first time in the country, describing it as a "moment of renaissance and reconstruction' of the education sector.

Several months earlier, a voluntary group of senior medical professionals from various Tamil Nadu medical colleges started a similar initiative to teach some MBBS textbooks in Tamil, to help primarily first-year medical students who attended Tamilmedium schools.

Dr Subash Gandhi, a 41-yearold Tamil Nadu public health official, said the group "Tamilini Thunaivan" was now wrapping up the first batch of MBBS students this year after having completed 107 classes for about 350 first-year students from different parts of the state. "This is the time for practicals, and we will also be conducting tests for them before the next batch's classes start," said Gandhi, who founded the group on WhatsApp in light of the challenges he encountered as a student from a Tamilmedium school while starting his MBBS studies in Thanjavur Medical College in the late 1990s "Being from a Tamil-medium

was not to help the students get high marks, but to help them get the idea and concept in medical education, help them continue to think in their mother tongue, which is important, while presenting and practising in English is a necessity. So we help them understand basic terminologies, teach them to write in simple English, about how to present a case or explain a scenario," he said. On whether their group was doing the groundwork for teaching the MBBS programme in Tamil, similar to the one in Hindi in Madhva Pradesh, Gandhi said: "No. Because creating an MBBS programme in Tamil or Hindi is not about translating those textbooks. It is also about whether an Indian language has enough scientific terminologies, words and usages for modern science, like Spanish or many European languages which have achieved that. The evolution of local languages to have meaningful modern scientific terminologies may be a gradual process facilitated by local collectives interested in research. I had looked at some of the Hindi MBBS textbooks used in Madhya Pradesh and found that the same English terminologies were used in Physiology text books though written in Hindi, and that many diagrams were marked in English itself."

A slew of medical professionals interested in Tamil language and literature established a forum "Tamilini" three years ago, which launched the "Tamilini Thunaivan" for Tamil MBBS students earlier this year.

"Tamilini Thunaivan" uses WhatsApp and Google Meet to run the medical teaching project and follows the National Medical Council (NMC) guidelines. About 48 senior medical professors from several private and government medical colleges are taking classes for it. They include some of the state medical colleges' department heads, top surgeons and Puducherry IIPMER doctors. Anatomy, physiology and biochemistry are the three departments, which are coordinated by three retired doctors.

The classes under this initiative are held on Google Meet on Monday, Tuesday Wednesday. "We schedule classes between 6 pm and 7 pm to avoid disrupting students' playtime and mess time. Even if they're the brightest students from Tamil medium schools, they face an unusual challenge when they encounter English medicine and terminologies," Dr. Gandhi said.

In Tamil language, artery is "thamani", vein is "sirai" and nerve is "narambu". Being one of the world's most ancient languages, Tamil has a lot of terminologies to go with modern science literature. FULL REPORT ON

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 29

IN EFFORTS to boost international air traffic, the civil aviation ministry has allowed Indian airlines to take wide-body planes on wet lease for up to one year. A senior ministry official said on Sunday that the rules had been relaxed, allowing the wet leasing for a year as opposed to the six months permitted so far.

What is wet leasing

Wet leasing means renting the plane along with operating crew and engineers, while dry leasing refers to taking only the

OAG, a global travel data provider, says on its website, "The technical term for wet leasing is ACMI which stands for aircraft. crew, maintenance and insurance. These are the aspects of the operation that the wet lease airline takes care of, while the airline client will still be responsible for paying for direct operating costs such catering and fuel as well as fees such as airport fees, ground handling charges and navigation fees."

Operations of an aircraft on wet lease is not encouraged by the Directorate General of Civil Aviation (DGCA) as the crew is often not approved by Indian authorities. Also, wet leasing is generally a short-term arrangement, as it is more expensive than a dry lease.

Why limit extended

The country's largest airline, IndiGo, has announced it plans to wet lease some aircraft. "We have plans for inducting B777 aircraft on wet/damp lease basis during the current winter schedule," the airline said.

The relaxation will be available to all Indian carriers and will be granted based on international destinations they wish to

With Covid-related restrictions lifting, international travel is picking up, and the wet leasing will allow airlines to add more flights at a short notice. Wide-body planes can accommodate more passengers and fly longer flights, boosting revenue. Also, as most airlines acquire more aircraft to scale up operations, there is a shortage of planes, and wet leasing is sometimes the only solution.

Why airlines lease aircraft

A lot of planes used by airlines in India are not owned but leased. Airlines and aircraft operators prefer leasing planes in order to avoid massive lump sum payments that buying them would entail, and to quickly increase capacity, perhaps temporarily, on certain routes or sectors.

Racist, stigmatising: Why WHO will now call monkeypox 'mpox'

THE WORLD Health Organisation (WHO) announced on Monday that it would start using the term "mpox" for monkeypox, which has infected about 80,000 people in the first major outbreak of the viral disease outside Africa early this summer. The disease spread mainly in the Americas, including the United States and Europe, primarily among men who have sex with men (MSM).

The change of name, announced after a series of consultations with global experts, has been provoked by the racist connotations that "monkeypox" sometimes carries. Both names will be used simultaneously for one year while "monkeypox" is phased out, the WHO said.

"When the outbreak of monkeypox expanded earlier this year, racist and stigmatizing language online, in other settings and in some communities was observed and reported to WHO. In several meetings, public and private, a number of individuals and countries raised concerns and asked WHO to propose a way forward to change the name," the WHO said in a news release.

In fact, monkeypox, which was named in 1970 because the virus that causes the disease was first discovered in captive monkeys in 1958, does not have much to do with monkeys. The most likely reservoir for the virus, which has circulated for several years in a few central African countries after jumping to humans through zoonosis in the bush, are rodents.

This year's outbreak mainly among MSM has increased the marginalisation of the community that has traditionally been stigmatised for its association with

The WHO said that assigning names to new and, in some cases, existing diseases is the responsibility of the global body under the International Classification of Diseases (ICD) and the WHO Family of International Health Related Classifications through a consultative process which includes WHO Member States. In the case of monkeypox, the process was accelerated,

According to WHO best practices, "new disease names should be given with the aim to minimize unnecessary negative impact of names on trade, travel, tourism or animal welfare, and avoid causing offence to any cultural, social, national, regional, professional or ethnic groups".

The release said "various advisory bodies were heard during the consultation process, including experts from the medical and scientific and classification and statistics advisory committees which constituted representatives from government authorities of 45 different countries".

EXPLAINED CLIMATE CHANGE

Mobilising green funds

The COP27 agreement included an estimate of the money required to fight climate change. To meet the demand, corporates will have to step in. New taxes may have to be imposed, and innovative solutions found

AMITABH SINHA

AS THE world struggles to check rising global temperatures, it is getting increasingly clear that the single-biggest challenge in putting up an effective response to climate change is the failure to mobilise adequate financial resources. The money currently being channelised for climate action is barely one to 10 per cent of the estimated requirements.

At the recently concluded climate change meeting in Sharm el-Sheikh, Egypt, countries agreed that a transformation of the international financial system was needed to significantly scale up resources for climate action. Accordingly, the meeting called upon the multilateral development banks, lending agencies and other financial institutions to align their priorities with the global climate goals, and redesign their structures and

Enormity of the problem

The final Sharm el-Sheikh agreement includes an estimate of the scale of money required. It says that the global transition to a low-carbon economy would likely require about US$ 4-6 trillion every year till 2050. About US$ 4 trillion would need to be invested annually in the renewable energy sector till 2030 if the net-zero emissions targets were to be achieved.

The cumulative requirement of the developing countries, just for implementing their climate action plans, was about US$ 6 trillion between now and 2030.

Of course, these are not mutually exclusive requirements. There would be considerable overlap. But even US$ 5-7 trillion every year is a huge ask. It means that at least five per cent of the global GDP would need to be directed into climate action every year. It also shows how quickly the cost of inaction has been rising. Just a few years ago, the estimated requirements ranged between 1 and 1.5 per cent of global GDP.

The current requirements are, therefore, about two orders of magnitude higher than the money being made available. The US$ 100 billion amount that the developed countries have promised to mobilise every year represents practically the entire money in play right now. And even this US$ 100 billion has not yet been fully realised. Developed countries say they would reach this target by 2023. As of now, all that is flowing in is about US$ 50-80 billion every year.

Women and children shelter from the devastating flood that hit Pakistan in August, Disasters related to climate change are becoming more frequent, creating an urgent need for money to fight it. Reuters

Overhaul of financial system

There are two main dimensions to the problem of climate finance - availability and access. The transformation of the financial sector needs to address both of these.

One straightforward way of ensuring funds is for developed countries to increase their contributions. But even if this happens, it will likely result in only a marginal increase in the overall pie. The more significant jump would come from businesses and corporations investing money into green projects.

In social or health sector projects, every dollar of public money invested is expected to mobilise about four dollars in private money. In climate finance thus far, private investments have lagged behind public money. Barely 30 per cent of current financial flows are coming from private sources. There is a clear opportunity here. But businesses and corporations do not invest unless they are reasonably sure of healthy returns. It is here that the international financial institutions can engage with governments, central banks, commercial banks and other financial players operating at national or regional levels to create the right environment for investments in green projects. Incentivising climate-friendly investments and discouraging, or even penalising, dirty investments would be at the heart of this approach.

The current rules and regulations of the difficult for large number of countries to access international finance, particularly those with political instabilities, or weaker institutional and governance structures. The transformation would, therefore, also involve simplification of practices, changes in the way risks to investments are assessed, and an overhaul of the credit rating systems.

Besides availability and access, there is a third element as well - transparency. Climate finance flows through a maze of channels – bilateral, regional, multilateral. It is in the form of grants, concessionary loans, debt, equity, carbon credits, and more. There are differences of opinion over whether a particular sum of money is actually climate-related. As a result, there are widely differing assessments of the quantum of climate finance currently being mobilised. This needs to be addressed.

New sources

Whether we like it or not, the bulk of the additional financial resources to fight climate change would come from the pockets of the common citizen. There already are growing number of voices calling for an early fixing of carbon price, so that the carbon markets can start functioning quickly.

Invariably, this would, sooner or later, also result in different types of carbon taxes, even at the consumer level. The use of petrol and diesel, and other fossil fuels is almost surely global financial system make it extremely going to be taxed. The production of coal is almoney, is time.

The said provision says that and it has been generating valuable resources for the government, which has utilised it mainly for investing in clean technologies. These funds have also been utilised for works in the Clean Ganga Mission and during the Covid-19 pandemic. Newer forms of carbon tax are likely to be imposed on businesses too. In many cases, these would filter down to the common person.

ready being taxed for several years in India,

Many more innovative sources of money would have to be explored. For example, the efforts to prevent urban flooding in a city like Mumbai or Bengaluru can seek financial participation of the corporate houses who suffer losses because of damage to their assets or disruptions in activities.

As of now, it is the job of the government to build resilient infrastructure or early warning systems. But very soon, it would make sense for the corporates to join hands and facilitate these processes. Bankers who have lent money to build up corporate assets, or the insurers of those assets, would have an interest in pushing businesses into doing so. It is likely that more climate money would be raised locally, rather than sourced from outside.

More money is flowing into the green economy than a few years ago, but the pace of increase is nowhere adequate. Unfortunately, when it comes to climate action, the other thing in short supply, besides

In-camera proceedings: when are they allowed

OMKAR GOKHALE

MUMBAI, NOVEMBER 29

THE SUPREME Court on Monday rejected a plea by Tarun Tejpal, former editor of Tehelka magazine, for in-camera hearing of a rape case against him. The High Court of Bombay in Goa is to hear the Goa government's appeal against Tejpal's acquittal in the case his colleague's rape.

Tejpal was accused of sexually assaulting a then colleague in Goa in November 2013. After an in-camera trial, Additional Sessions Judge Kshama Joshi had acquitted him of all charges on May 21, 2021.

What are in-camera proceedings?

In-camera proceedings are private, unlike open court proceedings. Conducted as per the court's discretion in sensitive matters to ensure protection and privacy of the parties involved, the proceedings are usually held through video conferencing or in closed chambers, from which the public and press are

In an open court or open justice system, which is the usual course of proceedings, the press is allowed to report on the matter being heard.

In-camera trial in rape cases

Section 327 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (CrPC) has detailed the types of cases that should be recorded on camera, including inquiry into and trial in rape case.

The said section states that if the presiding judge or a magistrate thinks fit, she can order at any stage of the proceedings that the public generally, or any particular person, shall not remain present in the courtroom or the court building.

Goa has challenged Tejpal's acquittal in a rape case. File gang rapes on adult and minor women. The law also prescribes that in such cases, the trial be conducted as far as possible by a woman judge or a magistrate.

Section 327 of the CrPC states that it shall not be lawful to publish any matter in relation to in-camera proceedings except with the previous permission of the court. It adds that the ban on publishing of trial proceedings for offence of rape may be lifted subject to maintaining confidentiality of name and address of the parties.

In which other cases are in-camera proceedings held?

In-camera proceedings are usually conducted at family courts in cases of matrimonial disputes, including judicial separation, divorce proceedings, impotence, and more. In-camera proceedings are also conducted during the deposition of witnesses of terrorist activities as per the court's discretion, so as to protect them and maintain national security.

What did SC say in Tejpal case?

The Supreme Court bench led by CJI DY Chandrachud said that the object of section 327 of CrPC is to protect the victim's rights so that she can depose fearlessly. It noted that while inquiry leading up to the trial is to be conducted in-camera and the proceedings have crossed that stage, the accused has no vested right to demand in-camera hearing.

'Arc of moral universe bends toward justice': What the famous phrase means

YASHEE

NEW DELHI, NOVEMBER 29

SPEAKING AT the Constitution Day celebrations at the Supreme Court on Saturday, Chief Justice of India DY Chandrachud used the famous phrase about the arc of the moral universe bending towards justice. Talking about the accessibility of the justice system, the CJI said, "The Indian judiciary has been adopting several measures of institutional reform with the single objective and I borrow the celebrated phrase of American civil rights activist Dr Martin Luther King Junior to describe it — to bend the arc of the moral universe towards justice.'

The phrase has been used several times by former US President Barack Obama too, who even had it woven into a rug at the Oval Office during his presidency.

What is the full quote?

Martin Luther King had used the phrase several times in different contexts. One of its recorded uses, according to the US's National Public Radio (NPR), is during the march from Selma in 1965, which had been taken out over the issue of African-American people's right to vote. Asked how long it would take to see social justice, Dr King said, "How long? Not long. Because the arc of the moral universe is long, but it bends toward justice. How long? Not long."

On another occasion, he wrote, "Evil may so shape events that Caesar will occupy a palace and Christ a cross, but that same Christ will rise up and split history into AD and BC, so that even the life of Caesar must be dated by his name. Yes, 'the arc of the moral universe is long, but it bends toward justice."

President Murmu with CII DY Chandrachud at Constitution Day celebrations in Supreme Court. PTI

Note the single quote marks around 'the arc of...' that Dr King put. This is because the statement is not originally his, and he was in fact borrowing from the 19th-century Unitarian minister and abolitionist Theodore Parker, of Massachusetts.

Thanks to Dr King's popularity and his prominent role in the US civil rights movement, the quote is often believed to be his.

So what is the original quote?

Dr King had paraphrased the words of Parker, who, in a sermon in 1853, said, "I do not pretend to understand the moral universe. The arc is a long one. My eye reaches but little ways. I cannot calculate the curve and complete the figure by experience of sight, I can divine it by conscience. And from what I see I am sure it bends toward justice."

Meaning, criticism

Put very simply, the phrase means that though justice may take long, the universe moves towards it.

However, many have pointed out that the version popular today — "the arc of the moral universe is long, but it bends toward justice" – makes it sound like justice is a foregone conclusion, and will eventually come about on its own because that is how the arc of the universe bends. What is often missed is that the arc won't automatically bend towards justice, but has to be made to do so through human efforts.

While the quote paraphrased by Dr King is punchier and cheering, the original is more circumspect. Parker has written that he can't see the long arc, but "can divine it by conscience", and "from what I see I am sure it bends toward justice." Thus, while as a clergyman, Parker believed in an eventually just world, he was offering cautious hope, not an easy certainty.

CJI Chandrachud, in his speech, made the need for effort clear when he said the judiciary is "adopting several measures" to attain the objective of bending "the arc of the moral universe towards justice."

Another criticism of the phrase — and one relevant to the Indian context — is that it seems to assume everyone is agreed upon what is "justice". Often, competing interest groups in a diverse population, like in India, can have very different ideas of what is "justice", and critics claim that before trotting the phrase around like a happy platitude, a robust debate is needed to arrive at an informed and fair definition of justice.

Students sent home, police on patrol as China curbs growing Covid protests golden era with

AGENCIES

BEIJING, NOVEMBER 29

CHINESE UNIVERSITIES sent students home and police fanned out in Beijing and Shanghai to prevent more protests Tuesday after crowds angered by severe antivirus restrictions called for leader Xi Jinping to resign in the biggest show of public dissent in decades.

Authorities have also begun inquiries into some of the people who gathered at weekend protests, people who were at the Beijing demonstrations said. They have also eased some controls after demonstrations in at least eight mainland cities and Hong Kong, but maintained they would stick to a "zero-COVID" strategy. Security forces have detained an unknown number of people and stepped up surveillance.

Two protesters said callers identifying themselves as Beijing police officers asked them to report to a police station on Tuesday with written accounts of their activities on Sunday night..

With police out in force, there was no word of protests Tuesday in Beijing, Shanghai or other mainland cities. A far smaller group did gather at a university in Hong Kong on Tuesday to protest virus restrictions. Meanwhile, Beijing's Tsinghua University, where students rallied over the weekend, and other schools said they were protecting students from Covid by sending them home. But dispersing them to hometowns also reduces the likelihood of demonstrations. Chinese leaders are especially wary of universities.

EXPLAINED A dilemma

THE PROTESTS magnify what has been a mounting predicament for Xi: how to walk back from a policy that was initially a point of pride but is becoming a growing liability. If he were to bend to public pressure and roll back zero-Covid, he would appear weak, which might encourage people to take to the streets in future.

Dating apps, Telegram turn tools to defy govt

REUTERS BEIJING, NOVEMBER 29

OPPONENTS OF China's anti-Covid measures are resorting to dating apps and social media platforms blocked on the mainland to evade censors, spread the word about their defiance and strategy, in a high-tech game of cat and mouse with police. Videos, images and accounts of the opposition to China's tough Covid-19 curbs have poured onto China's tightly censored cyberspace since weekend protests, with activists saving them to platforms abroad before the censors delete them, social media users say. Protesters communicating via the most popular but highly censored WeChat app keep information to a bare minimum, according to online discussions.

Locations of planned gatherings are given without an explanation, or conveyed with map coordinates, or by a faint map in the background of a post.

"It was in the morning of the 27th that I got this secret clue: 11.27, 9:30, Urumqi office," said one person who took part in a Beijing protest planned for that day and time outside the Urumqi municipal government office in the capital. Many people are relying on VPN software to get past China's Great Firewall and on to encrypted messaging apps.

People have set up Telegram groups to share information for their cities, social media users say, while dating app messaging services are also being used in the hope they face less scrutiny, according to one Beijing-based protester who declined to be identified, citing safety.

UK delivering on new FTA with India, China over: Sunak

ADITIKHANNA

LONDON, NOVEMBER 29

BRITISH PRIME Minister Rishi Sunak has reiterated the UK's commitment to a free trade agreement (FTA) with India as part of the country's wider focus on enhancing ties with the Indo-Pacific region and standing up to competitors with "robust pragmatism".

Delivering his first major foreign policy speech since taking charge at the Lord Mayor of London's Banquet on Monday, Sunak reflected on his heritage and committed to promoting British values of "freedom and openness" around the world.

He also pledged to "do things differently" far removed from the so-called "golden era" with China, which he said poses a "systemic challenge" to British values and interests, "Before I came into politics, I invested in businesses around the world. And the opportunity in the Indo-Pacific is compelling," Sunak said.

London: The British government has abandoned a plan to force tech firms to remove internet content that is harmful but legal, after the proposal drew strong criticism from lawmakers and civil liberties groups. The UK on Tuesday defended its decision to water down the Online Safety Bill an ambitious but controversial attempt to crack down on online racism, sexual abuse, bullying, fraud and other harmful material. NATO ALLIES on Tuesday said they would help Ukraine repair energy infrastructure heavily damaged by Moscow's shelling, was Russia using the cold weather as "a weapon of war".

The US announced it would provide $53 million to buy power grid equipment. "This equipment will be rapidly delivered on an emergency basis to help Ukrainians persevere through the winter," a State Department statement said, adding that the package would include distribution transformers, circuit breakers and surge arresters among other equipment.

NATO foreign ministers meeting in the Romanian capital Bucharest also confirmed a 2008 NATO summit decision that Ukraine would eventually become a member of the alliance. "President Putin is trying to use winter as a weapon of war," Stoltenberg told reporters. British Foreign Secretary James Cleverly also accused Putin of targeting civilian and energy infrastructure "to try and freeze the Ukrainians into submission".

Gen Munir takes charge as Pak Army chief SAJJADHUSSAIN ISLAMABAD, NOVEMBER 29

GENERAL ASIM Munir, a former ISI head, assumed charge as the Pakistan Army chief on Tuesday, at a time when the cash-strapped country was in the midst of a political slugfest between the government and opposition leader Imran Khan over holding of snap polls and fresh threats from the dreaded Taliban militants.

General Munir replaced Munir, who is in his mid-50s, assumed charge at an impressive ceremony at the General Headquarters (GHQ) in Rawalpindi, becoming the 17th Chief of the Army Staff. The ceremony was attended by senior officers, diplomats and politicians.

Worker deaths for World Cup between 400 and 500: Qatar

Doha: A top Qatari official involved in the country's World Cup organisation has put the number of worker deaths for the tournament "between 400 and 500" for the first time, a drastically higher number than any other previously offered by Doha.

The comment by Hassan al-Thawadi, the secretary-general of Qatar's Supreme Committee for Delivery and Legacy, appeared to come off the cuff during an interview with British journalist Piers Morgan.

Over 300 dead in unrest, admits Iranian General

ASSOCIATED PRESS DUBAI, NOVEMBER 29

AN IRANIAN general on Monday acknowledged that over 300 people have been killed in the unrest surrounding nationwide protests, giving the first official word on casualties in two months.

That estimate is considerably lower than the toll reported by Human Rights Activists in Iran, a US-based group that has been closely tracking the protests since they erupted after the

September 16 death of a young woman being held by the country's morality police. The activist group says 451 protesters and 60 security forces have been killed since the start of the unrest and that more than 18,000 people have been detained. General Amir Ali Hajizadeh, the commander of the aerospace division of the paramilitary Revolutionary Guard, was quoted by a website close to the Guard as saying that over 300 people have been killed, including "martyrs," an apparent reference to security forces. He also suggested that many of those killed were ordinary Iranians not involved in the protests. He did not provide an exact figure or say where his estimate came from.

Authorities have heavily restricted media coverage of the protests. State-linked media have not reported an overall toll and have largely focused on attacks on security forces, which officials blame on shadowy militant and separatist groups.

Hajizadeh reiterated the official claim that the protests have been fomented by Iran's enemies, including Western countries and Saudi Arabia, without providing evidence. The protesters say they are fed up after decades of social and political repression, and deny having any foreign agenda.

In a separate development, Iran released a 76-year-old dual Iranian-Austrian citizen from prison for health reasons, the Austria Press Agency reported. APA quoted the Austrian Foreign Ministry confirming that Massud Mossaheb was given indefinite medical leave.

It also threatened to reinvig-

REVERED STATUE IS NOT GOING TO DUST ITSELF, THAT'S WHERE PUCCI COMES IN

When visiting Michelangelo's David in Italy, she brings a duster

ELISABETTA POVOLEDO FLORENCE, NOVEMBER 29

IMAGINE A job that lets you get up close and personal with one of the world's most famous statues.

It is one perk of being the inhouse restorer of the Galleria dell'Accademia in Florence. where Eleonora Pucci's task is to regularly dust Michelangelo's David, which she described recently as exhilarating, if somewhat nerve-wracking.

"To be able to contribute, even in a small way, to the conservation of David's beauty" makes hers "the best job in the world," Pucci said. "Is there anything greater than passing on beauty?"

It was early last Monday, the one day the Galleria is closed to the public, and the clanging of metal echoed throughout the museum as a specialised team built a scaffold tower in the airy rotunda that housed the David. Over the course of the morning, the tower would be gingerly repositioned so that Pucci could reach the 17-foottall statue from all sides.

Pucci nimbly scampered up until she was eye to giant eye with the statue that Michelangelo carved from a single block of marble from 1501 to 1504, the first nude colossal statue made since antiquity. The David has called the Galleria home since 1873.

The job begins with a photographic close-up to better track any wear and tear on the statue and to verify how much dust and debris (of microscopic dimension) has settled on it since the last time it was cleaned.

That can change depending on the season, the number of visitors and the kind of clothes they may be wearing. Microscopic fibers can get caught in tiny spiderwebs among the sculpted pretty normal," Pucci said - and all the more reason to ensure works are constantly monitored. Then the dusting begins.

Using a smallish brush with synthetic bristles - "They're better at capturing dust," she said -Pucci began to stroke the David's head. It was strapped to her back, reminiscent of the proton pack in the "Ghostbusters" movies.

After nearly four years on the job, she has developed strong feelings for Michelangelo and his genius, Dusting the David, Pucci said, brings on "big emotion" and admiration for an artist able to craft such beauty from stone. She feels the same, she said, when she dusts the Galleria's so-called prisoners or slaves, four figures Michelangelo designed for the mausoleum of Pope Julius II but left unfinished.

"In the prisoners," Pucci said, "you can see his technique, the marks of his chisel. You enter into his mental process. It gives you a sense of how he approached marble to let out the figures that he believed were trapped inside the stone." Although it is dusted six times a year, the David has not been deep-cleaned since 2004, for its 500th anniversary, and that was done amid a bitter dispute

Giorgio Caselli, an architect who oversees the maintenance of Florence's outdoor artworks. said vandalism was the No. 1 cause of damage to the city's statuary. "Humans, vandals, they are probably the biggest problem for the cultural patrimony of a city like Florence." he said. "There is a level of incivility that is too high.

over the best method to use

Caselli pointed to near-daily raffiti tags on palazzos, tourists who used fountains as personal bathrooms and unruly soccer fans in town for a game. "These are the most aggressive attacks in this moment," he said. NYT

Transmission delays hit India's solar power plants

MIHIR MISHRA

NEW DELHI. NOVEMBER 29

FRESH HURDLES could potentially trip solar power generation in the country's largest solar park at Bhadla, with over half a dozen solar generation units including that of Tata Power, Adani Power, Renew Power and Italy's Enel among those that have been asked to curtail generation of up to 10 per cent from December 1. The reason: Delays in transmission projects, including the Bikaner-2 pooling station that was scheduled to be commissioned by December 22, where currently over 50 per cent of the works are pending and stringing of the transmission lines is yet to commence.

State-owned transmission major Power Grid Corp is now targeting to complete Bikaner-2 by March 2023, but multiple sources that The Indian Express spoke to indicated that this deadline is also unlikely to be adhered to.

It is a major problem for solar developers, who typically bid at wafer thin margins and a 10 per cent curtailment could end up wiping out the margin for the devel-

A message sent to Praveer Sinha, CEO and MD, Tata Power did not elicit any response till the time of going to print. Another developer, who has been impacted due to the curtailment order, said that the bigger problem is that the transmission lines have not been able to keep pace with the capacity addition. "This is a loss of revenue for us and does hit our bottomline. The situation can only improve if transmission capacity keeps pace with the infrastructure," said an executive on a condition of anonymity. Experts say that in winter, the ambient temperatures are low and this created margin for greater power flow over the existing

"The National Load Despatch Centre or NLDC needs to take affirmative action to increase power flow and avoid curtailment of power and PGCIL needs to complete the balance grid works on a war footing to ensure that this curtailment does not happen for long. This is a blow to investment sentiment," an official aware of grid operations said. An email sent to PGCIL remained unanswered till print time. The Bhadla solar park is among the largest in the world and is spread over a total area of 14,000 acres in the Phalodi tehsil of Jodhpur.

CBDC WILL BE TESTED IN FOUR CITIES INITIALLY

RBI to begin first phase of retail e-rupee pilot from Thursday

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU MUMBAI, NOVEMBER 29

AFTER A month of e-rupee transaction in the wholesale segment, the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) will release the central bank digital currency (CBDC) for retail customers and merchants in four cities, including Mumbai and Delhi, from December 1 on pilot basis.

The pilot would initially cover four cities -- Mumbai, New Bengaluru Bhubaneswar -- and later extend to Ahmedabad, Gangtok, Guwahati, Hyderabad, Indore, Kochi, Lucknow, Patna and Shimla, the central bank said on Tuesday, adding the scope of the pilot may gradually expand to include more banks, users and locations as needed.

The pilot would cover select locations in a closed user group (CUG), comprising participating customers and merchants, the RBI said. The CBDC, or e-rupee (e-R), would be in the form of a digital token that represents legal tender. The RBI has identified eight banks for phase-wise participation in this pilot. The first phase will begin with four banks

The RBI has identified eight banks for this pilot

-- State Bank of India, ICICI Bank. Yes Bank and IDFC First Bank across the country. Four more banks -- Bank of Baroda, Union Bank of India, HDFC Bank and Kotak Mahindra Bank -- will join this pilot subsequently, it said.

E-rupee would be issued in the same denominations that paper currency and coins are currently issued. It would be distributed through intermediaries. i.e., banks.

"Users will be able to transact with e-R through a digital wallet offered by the participating banks and stored on mobile phones and devices, according to the central bank. Transactions can be both person to person (P2P) and person to merchant (P2M). Payments to merchants can be made using QR codes displayed at merchant locations. The e-R would offer features of physical cash like trust, safety and settlement finality. As in the case of cash, it will not earn any interest and can be converted to other forms of money, like deposits with banks," the RBI said.

According to the central bank, the pilot will test the robustness of the entire process of digital rupee creation, distribution and retail usage in real time.

TYPES OF • E-RUPEE BASED ON the usage and the functions performed by the digital rupee and considering the different levels of accessibility, RBI has demarcated the digital rupee into two broad categories - retail and wholesale.

"Different features and applications of the e-R token and architecture will be tested in future pilots, based on the learning from this pilot," it said.

"This (retail launch) indicates the consistent efforts on the part of RBI to bring out an efficient, user-friendly mechanism of digital currency far ahead of other central banks across the world," said Jyoti Prakash Gadia, Managing Director, Resurgent

On November 1, the RBI took a major leap towards making the country's monetary and payment systems more efficient with the launch of digital rupee for the wholesale segment to settle secondary market transactions in government securities. The model chosen for the retail rupee is different from the earlier announced for the wholesale rupee which is being used by banks for government security transactions. "The token-based mechanism as announced by the RBI for retail is more suited for the common retail customers both for individual customer transactions with select merchants and also for one individual with another individual, initially to be used within the selected closed group," Gadia said.

The four top cities have been rightly chosen for the pilot launch keeping in view the sufficient availability of customers well-versed in digital transactions usage in these cities, ana-

"Based on the learnings from the pilot launch further improvement and sophistication are expected with wider coverage by leveraging the strong digital infrastructure of the nation by the RBI," said a merchant banker. Full report on

Cloud kitchens are a phenomenon popularised by food delivery platforms. They utilise a commercial kitchen for the purpose of preparing food for delivery or takeout only, with no dine-in customers, and typically allow the delivery companies to

The segment initially took off in India, but with the onset of the Covid-19 pandemic, their novelty waned, given every restaurant essentially became a cloud kitchen. In 2020, the firm had shut down a number of its cloud kitchens as it laid off employees. "We are choosing to scale

The biggest impact here is on the cloud kitchens business, with many unknowns about volco-founder and chief executive Sriharsha Majety had written in an email to employees at the time. ## India A begin on a strong note against B'desh

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA COX'S BAZAR, NOVEMBER 29

THE PACE-spin combo of Navdeep Saini and Saurabh Kumar impressed the most as India A grabbed the opening-day honours after a commanding performance against Bangladesh A in the first unofficial Test here on Tuesday.

Opting to field after winning the toss, Saini (3/21), Saurabh (4/23) and Mukesh Kumar (2/25) helped India A bundle out their opponents for a paltry 112 in only 45

In reply, the visitors finished strongly at 120 for no loss to go ahead by eight runs by the time stumps were drawn. Yashasvi Jaiswal and India A skipper Abhimanyu Easwaran were looking good at 61 and 53, respectively, when play ended on the first day. After Saini and Mukesh picked up five of the top six with just 63 runs on the board, the hosts recovered somewhat to cross three figures owing to Mosaddek Hossain's 63.

Hossain struck six fours and three sixes after Bangladesh were reeling at 26 for five one stage. However, the problem with the home team was that it's batters also struggled against spin, with left-arm spinner Saurabh running through the lower-order to finish with excellent figures. The 29-yearold Saurabh's performance assumes significance as he could be drafted into the Indian Test team for the upcoming two-match series in Bangladesh if star all-rounder Ravindra Jadeja is ruled out.

When their time to bat came, India A were served well by the duo of young Jaiswal and Easwaran as the pair not only added 120 runs but also scored them at a good rate. While Jaiswal struck eight fours in his 106-ball knock, Easwaran found the fence six times while facing 111 deliveries at the Sheikh Kamal International Cricket Stadium. Even as veteran Easwaran led from the front, Jaiswal will resume his quest to bring up a sixth hundred in only his eighth first-class match and consolidate the visitors' position in the opener.

Earlier in the day, Delhi pacer Saini struck the first blow when he bowled Mahmudul Hasan Joy, who was beaten by late swing. Mukesh had the other opener, Zakir Hasan caught behind before disturning Mominul Haque's stumps. Saini then had Najmul Hossain Shanto caught at third slip, before skipper Mohammad Mithun went for a wide one to leave Bangladesh A tottering at 26 for five. Mosaddek sought to revive the innings but there was no support at the Brief score: Bangladesh A 112 all out (Mosaddek Hossain 63, Navdeep Saini 3 for 21, Saurabh Kumar 4 for 23) vs India A 120 for 0 (Yashasvi Jaiswal 61 not out, Abhimanyu Easwaran 53 not out).

FICA ANNUAL REPORT

49% of cricketers ready to reject national contract for bigger T20 purse

According to Federation of International Cricketers' Association survey, enthusiasm for Test cricket has slipped from 82% to 74%

VENKATA KRISHNA B CHENNAI, NOVEMBER 29

CRICKET BELIEVES in numbers. And as the Federation of International Cricketers Association came out with its global employment report on Tuesday, the message is loud and clear. Out of the 400 men's players across 11 countries (excluding Indians) who were surveyed by FICA, 49 per cent have revealed that they would consider rejecting a national contract in favour of a bigger domestic T20 contract as international cricket grapples with fear of losing the top players to franchise

While there is more and more inclination towards T20 franchise cricket, 74 per cent still rate Test cricket as the most important to play in. But it has reduced from 82 per cent in the previous survey. And the day-night Tests seem to have become hugely popular among cricketers with 79 per cent giving a thumbs up to it.

Although there have been widespread calls to convert Test cricket to four days as it could free up the international calendar, 56 per cent of players are against such a decision as they want to preserve the long format. However, 63 per cent of the players want the International Cricket Council and the member boards to have a separate window for international cricket and T20 leagues.

And even though the number of T20Is is increasing every year, it is the 50-over World Cup that 54 per cent feel is the pinnacle ICC event. However, the number has reduced from 86 per cent from the previous survey conducted in 2019/20.

These numbers are not surprising. In the cover page of the report, there is Ben Stokes making a substantial point about the current cricketing landscape which is crowded with international and T20 cricket. Three formats are unsustainable for my body right now. I feel my body is letting me down because of the schedule and what is expected of us," says Stokes, who has already retired from 50-over cricket.

Then there is Trent Boult, the New Zealand seamer, who has declined the cen-

Cup in England turned into a huge success, the drop in numbers is surprising. But the T20 World Cups have showed there is space for more upsets and the bridge between the full members and Associates is getting narrow in T20s because players get an opportunity to play in domestic leagues.

While news of players preferring domestic T20 contracts in favour of national contracts will be seen as unhealthy for international cricket, there is another context that needs to be looked at. 69 per cent of players have just one year left in their national contract and nearly 50 per cent of the players feel insecure about their employment. In that sense, the T20 contracts offered by multiple domestic leagues are multi-year ones and are lucrative for players.

Balance in formats

In view of these issues, the FICA wants the ICC and the member boards to have a balanced global structure so that all the major events - the ICC events, international bilaterals and T20 domestic leagues - can co-exist. "The majority of the value in each of the three majors, revenue generating cricket landscapes, is generated through a small number of players, and those players can only be in so many places at once.

Whilst FICA does not have all the answers, and acknowledges the challenges associated with scheduling, we continue to advocate for: a balanced global structure for the game that enables the international cricket and leagues landscapes to co-exist; recognition of domestic leagues in the game's global structure; and a clear framework around bilateral international cricket scheduling," the report adds.

As this conflict leads to players choosing between international cricket and T20 leagues, the survey shows that 40% of the top T20 players in the world now do not have a central contract with a top nine cricket country.

The other 42 per cent players are in hybrid market, where they have a national contract as well as domestic T20 contract. The remaining 18 per cent is made up of Indians, who rely totally on BCCI and revenue from domestic cricket as they are barred from playing in other T20 leagues. In terms of international cricket volume, in the last three years, the number of T20 cricket matches has grown from 32 per cent in 2018 to 71 per cent in 2022.

The ODIs, which accounted for 49 per cent of total international cricket volume have now gone down to just 19 per cent, increasing concerns of sustainability of the 50 over format in the long run. Test cricket has shrunk from 19 per cent in 2018 to 9 per cent in 2022. On a grimmer note, 14 percent of those surveyed said they had been discriminated against based on race, with two thirds believing they didn't receive adequate support after reporting discrimination.

India hope for full game in final ODI

Christchurch: Frustrated by the fickle weather, a desperate Indian team would pray for a rain-free final ODI against New Zealand in its bid to finish on an even keel in a series that neither had context nor any major takeaways. There is forecast of scattered showers in Christchurch and nothing can be more irritating than playing a series where the Gen-Next of Indian cricket hardly got any game time to show their prowess. Out of five white-ball games that also includes three-match T20I series, two matches (one T20I and one ODI) didn't yield any result and one game (T20I) was curtailed significantly and ended in a tie due to Duckworth-Lewis method. With the series in line, Shikhar Dhawan and his men would aim to put up an impactful performance at the picturesque Hagley Oval ground, which has traditionally helped the seam bowlers and has an average score in the 230 range in the past few

Focus on defence in hockey test vs Aus

New Delhi: The Indian men's hockey team will look to address its defensive woes when it takes on world's number one side Australia in the third Test in Adelaide on Wednesday, hoping to bounce back from back-to-back defeats in the five-match series. A series of defensive lapses saw world number five India go down in the first two Tests despite taking early lead and this will be area which the team will need to improve in the third match. India conceded a last-minute goal to lose the opening Test 4-5. In the second game, they were leading through skipper Harmanpreet Singh's third-minute goal but were blown away in the final quarter to go down 4-7.

Hair of god goal

Ronaldo divides opinion for claiming to have scored Portugal's first goal against Uruguay, which was credited to teammate Fernandes

THE HEADER THAT WASN'T

Cristiano Ronaldo rises to seemingly nod the ball in after a Bruno Fernandes cross. AP

■ Bruno Fernandes's 54th-minute cross initially looked to have been headed into the net by Ronaldo. Television replays suggested that Ronaldo may not have got a touch.

Announcers in the stadium credited the goal to Fernandes even as the official score initially mentioned Ronaldo as the scorer. Ronaldo had claimed the goal and celebrated.

"I celebrated as if it had been Cristiano's goal. It seemed to me that he had touched the ball. My aim was to cross the ball for him," Fernandes said after Portugal's 2-0 win over Uruguay.

Adidas, the official match ball supplier, said in a statement to Daily Mail that the sensor inside the ball had determined 'there was no contact from Ronaldo for the opening goal'.

EXPRESS AT WORLD CUP

SANDIP G NOVEMBER 29

THE CRISTIANO Ronaldo celebration is a thing of pure sporting athleticism. He tears cameras snapping away to capture the moment. He clenches his fist, leaps in the air, higher the stakes the higher the leap, and spreads his legs apart like a protractor. crosses his arms, tracing an X in the air. In this moment of sheer athletic delight, he looks like the human version of a floating Eiffel Tower, gleaming in the light, from the floodlights, from the cameras, and perhaps his own halo. He lands, spins around and stretches his arms for his teammates to embrace him, the world to embrace him.

And then he shrieks: SIUUU!! The crowd echoes it back. In mood for theatre, he tugs at his ears, suggesting, rather ordering the crowd, to cheer louder. The genesis of the celebration was accidental, for all the theatre, "I started to say 'Si' — it's like 'Yes' — when I was in Real Madrid. When we would win, everyone would say 'Siiiii' and so I started to say it. I don't know why, it was natural," Ronaldo once told soccer.com. It's as if every time he scores a goal, he wants the world to converge on him. The self-obsession, for the onlooker, seems uncomfortable. Like when he celebrated the goal that was not his against Uruguay, Had that goal been added to his tally, and not Bruno Fernandes', it could have been called the 'spiked hair of God goal'. After his celebrations, and SIU, he looked at the replay on the screen, his ears waiting for the announcer to clack his name as the goalscorer.

Bruno Fernandes 90+3'(p)

Fernandes. Ronaldo smiled. But one could hear the wilt of heart.

A goal taken from his tally should be no cause to sulk. He has twice as many goals as his teammates. It was not the first time. When his Manchester United colleagues were celebrating the Champions League title in 2008, beating Chelsea in a penalty shootout, Ronaldo was sitting in a corner of the ground, away from all the revelry, and reflecting on the shot he had fluffed. It's not that Ronaldo was not feeling joyous winning his first Champions League crown, but he is such a perfectionist and individualistic, that he was thinking of himself first. It's that streak that made him successful, and it could be the trait that could unmake him as well.

It's not that he does not care for the team, or the coach, or the tactics. In his career, he has played according to the needs of his team. In his early Manchester United days, he was the jet-heeled winger who whipped up serious pace, and of course, a step-over magnet. He then evolved into a second striker a centre forward, and in his Madrid peak, he was the classical striker. But at 37, at a time when there is an obsessive emphasis on pressing and running, the machine that is Ronaldo seems beyond another upgrade. The processor simply cannot handle the new

Bundle of contradictions

The crux of his recent travails has been this tussle between the individual and the team. Ronaldo wants the team to be built around him. He has a case. He shares an alltime great pedestal with his great peer Lionel Messi. He has in his glittering gallery of trophies five Ballon d'Or honours, as many Champions League medals, a Euro Cup, league titles in three countries, and countless goals (701 for the clubs and 118 for his country). So why not build the team around the greatest? When it isn't, Ronaldo feels insulted, even derided. He craves for the unflinching light of his mid-noon peak, even now.

He is still a ruthless goal-scorer. He scored one goal in two games in his 54-match second stint with Manchester United. He has netted one goal in three games for Portugal this year, belted 13 in 14 appearances last year. So, by his logic, why should the team not revolve around him if he is doing what he's deputed to do? That is to score goals, and in the end it's goals that win games and tournaments. But there obviously is more to a game than goals, perhaps, more than ever before. A player is no longer expected to perform the duties of the number denoted on his shirt. A goalkeeper initiates attacking moves, fullbacks become play-makers, defensive midfielders create, forwards need to press, track back and cover a lot more distance than they were supposed to, say less than five years ago. So when someone lags, someone else needs to fill in, and in the process, the entire team tires out. And in a tournament as gruelling as the World Cup, it takes a quick toll on the team. The coach then has to pick a team the sluggishness upfront, where there is an extra defensive cushion.

It was not a surprise Portugal have looked the most fluent and dynamic in this World Cup after Ronaldo has been substituted.

To an extent, coach Fernando Santos has succeeded in managing a balance between Ronaldo and his own tactics. That is when Ronaldo is on the field, the pressing is not as intense as when he is not around. Then. Ronaldo was Santos' most used player in qualification (810 minutes) and Portugal's top scorer in qualifications (5). Fernandes sarcastically urged the media to keep hounding Ronaldo. "I think he likes to work under that criticism so I pray all of you keep doing that because he gets the best of himself when you do that," he would say.

Fernandes was referring to another trait of Ronaldo that made him the 'Bicho' or the beast, as Sergio Ramos calls him. His siege mentality, his drive to prove his critics wrong that has turbocharged his career, his quest to be the centre of the footballing universe.

ANIL DIAS NOVEMBER 29

BRUNO FERNANDES had joined Manchester United in January 2020. By March, he already won his first Premier League Player of the month. By December that year, he'd become the first player to win four of those awards in a single calendar year. Needless to say, he

And just as he was about to make Manchester United his own, Cristiano Ronaldo joined the club in the summer. Once there is Ronaldo, everything becomes about him and Fernandes had to play second fiddle. The same was happening with the Portugal National team. Ronaldo always took centre stage.

On Monday however, Fernandes seemed to step out of shadows of his superstar compatriot, scoring two goals as Portugal beat Uruguay to confirm their place in the knockouts of the FIFA World Cup in Qatar.

His career has been inextricably linked to Ronaldo, having played for Sporting, the club where his Portugal captain started his illustrious career before moving on to bigger

Their playing styles differ tremendously. Ronaldo has speed, power and a tremendous goal-scoring prowess. Fernandes is slithe, controls the midfield and can set up goals out of nothing by whipping in unbelievable crosses. It was one of those whipped crosses that flew past Ronaldo's head and into the back of the net and even though Ronaldo initially claimed the goal for himself, Fernandes was rightly credited with the goal later.

He then added another with a second half stoppage time penalty before rattling the post seconds later in his attempt for a hat-

As is always the case, the biggest cheers throughout the game were reserved almost exclusively for Ronaldo. The fans in the 88,000 capacity Lusail stadium were no different. Fernandes, however, left the pitch a happy man, knowing on the biggest of international stages there were now two big names in the Portuguese squad.

Whether at Sporting or at United, Fernandes was condemned to playing a supporting role to Ronaldo even though he is among the highest scoring midfielders in Europe. With Manchester United abruptly ending Ronaldo's second stint at Old Trafford following his scathing criticism of the club, Fernandes, though he refuses to take sides, club again. And he's showing just exactly what he's capable of, on the biggest of stages

His performance against Uruguay told the Portugal supporters that while they fuss over Ronaldo and his skills on the pitch, he's the man who can actually deliver what they really want. He may be playing in his second World Cup, compared to Ronaldo's fifth, but Fernandes will hope it will also be Portugal's most successful one.

ANIL DIAS

IT WAS the first time Ecuador faced an African nation at a FIFA World Cup finals on Tuesday. And it was baptism by fire for them at the Khalifa International Stadium.

With the Netherlands winning their match against hosts Qatar 2-0, Ecuador needed just a draw to qualify for the knockouts. But they got a taste of the famed 'African footballing heart' as they succumbed to a 2-1 loss to Senegal thereby being knocked out of the tournament. It's not that they didn't try. After Senegal took the lead in the 44th minute through a cool-headed Ismaila Sarr penalty, having earned it himself, Ecuador equalised in the 67th minute courtesy of Brighton star Moises Caicedo's tap-in that came following a corner. Just as it seemed Ecuador had done enough to advance from the group, Senegal were back with the lead two and a half minutes later through Chelsea defender Kalidou Koulibaly's powerful strike.

Ecuador, who remained largely uninspired in the match till then, suddenly smelt a fightback. They attacked from the wings, through the centre, and even tried their luck by floating through balls into the box. Nothing, however, could break Senegal hearts or their defence. Marshaled by Koulibaly, the Senegal defence had everything covered, including a few nervy moments late in injury time

With this win, Senegal finished second in Group A with six points from their three matches, one behind winners Netherlands and two ahead of Ecuador.

Senegal are definitely the story of this

The last time Senegal reached knockouts at the World Cup was in 2002 when they shocked then-champions France in the group stage.

World Cup so far. A lot was expected of them at this tournament since it would be the first time they would play the quadrennial extravaganza as African champions. But a knee injury to their talisman Sadio Mane, who was instrumental in their African Cup of Nations triumph, seemed to have derailed their campaign.

Their lack of decisiveness and inspiration in front of goal was visible in their opener against the Netherlands when they fell to a 0-2 loss. Though they easily managed to overcome tournament debutants Qatar 3-1 in their next match, it was clear that they needed something spectacular to beat Ecuador and leapfrog them in the group.

The bulk of that task fell on Sarr, the Watford star who had grown up playing at the same academy in Dakar as Mane – Generation Football.

And he didn't freeze, which was quite evident from his perfectly-taken penalty. Though there seemed to be an initial squabble, Sarr took the ball from his teammate Badou Ndiaye. With the weight of his nation's expectations on his shoulders, he calmly slotted the ball into the right bottom corner to send the ever-loud, drum-beating Senegal fans into a frenzy.

They knew the work wasn't done but they still chose to protect their lead rather than go for another goal to put the game beyond doubt. For Ecuador, it's been their skipper Enner Valencia who has been phenomenal. He had been on fire ahead of the World Cup, scoring 13 goals in 12 games for Fenerbahçe in the league this season. At this tournament, he's had four shots on target, with three of them finding the back of the net.

He had an injury scare when he was stretchered off in the previous game with an ice-pack on his knee. He recovered sufficiently from the knee strain and looked threatening in the opening minutes, set to make history by becoming the first player to score in seven World Cup games in a row. But it seemed like Senegal had planned for every scenario.

To cap a bad night for him, Senegal's winner came from his mistake in the box. As the cross came to him, all he could do was turn it in the direction of Koulibaly.

The Senegal captain, who played junior international football for France and is an honorary citizen of the Italian city of Naples. made no mistake with his strike to send Senegal into the World Cup knockout round for the first time in two decades

The last time Senegal reached knockouts at the World Cup was in 2002 when they shocked then-champions France in the group stage. Aliou Cisse was the captain of that Senegal side and twenty years later, he's at it again, guiding the team into the knockout rounds, only this time as coach.
