THE NARCOTICS Control Bureau (NCB) has dropped Aryan Khan, son of Bollywood star Shah Rukh Khan, and five others from its chargesheet filed on Friday in the Mumbai cruise raid case with officials pointing to "lack of sufficient evidence" and "shortcomings" in the probe — from no video of searches, dodgy witnesses and improper seizure of phones to no medical test for those apprehended.

DEEPTIMAN TIWARY NEW DELHI, MAY 27

THE SEIZURE of his mobile phone, how it was unlocked without due procedure, and how "drug chats" referring to a period in 2018 in Los Angeles were misinterpreted are the key factors at the heart of the Narcotics Control Bureau's clean chit for Aryan Khan in the Mumbai cruise raid case, according to the chargesheet filed by the

DIRECTING THE J&K government to exhume the body of Amir Magrey, one of the four suspected militants/associates killed in the Hyderpora encounter in Srinagar on November 15, 2021, the Jammu and Kashmir High Court Friday said the administration had "arbitrarily" turned down the request of Amir's father for exhumation since he "was a resident of Gool, a remote village in Jammu Province and did not (have) much say in the Valley".

The four people were killed in the encounter and buried quickly by the J&K Police in Handwara, 70 km away from Srinagar. The family members of three killed (the fourth was allegedly a militant from Pakistan) contested police claims they were either militants or had militant links.

have been found on a phone seized from him. Following the raid on October 2, Aryan was arrested the next day and granted bail on October 29 - after he had spent over three weeks in jail.

On Friday, the NCB said in a "SIT (Special statement: Investigation Team) carried out its investigation in an objective manner. The touchstone of the principle of proof beyond reasonable doubt has been applied. Based on the investigation carried out by SIT, a complaint against 14 persons under various sections of NDPS Act is being filed. Complaint against rest six persons is not being filed due to lack of sufficient evidence."

NCB Director-General S N Pradhan confirmed that the names of Aryan and five others were not included in the 6,000page chargesheet filed in a Mumbai court. "There were shortcomings in the investigations. There was no corroborative physical evidence to support the allegations," he said.

Sources in the Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) said the Government has recommended action against Wankhede for "shoddy investigation" in the case. Action has also been initiated in connection with a separate allegation linking him to a fake caste certificate, sources said.

Detailing the agency's findings in the cruise raid case, SIT chief and NCB Deputy Director-General (Operations) Sanjay Singh said: "There was no video recording of the searches done by the investigating team. Most of the people were arrested on the basis of confessions. No medical test was done on anyone to prove whether they consumed drugs." Singh said: "A basic premise was given that Aryan's friend Arbaaz Merchant (who was also arrested) had the drugs. But Arbaaz never said he had brought it for Aryan, nor was there any evidence to prove the same. In fact, Aryan had told Arbaaz not to carry any drugs to the party.'

Apart from Aryan, the names of Avin Sahu, Gopal Ji Anand, Sameer Sehgal, Bhaskar Arora and Manav Singhal have been dropped in the chargesheet. Anand, Sehgal, Arora and Singhal were employees of Caneplus Trading, the company that organised the cruise.

According to SIT chief Singh, even the legal requirement of having panch or independent witnesses during the search was not fulfilled properly. "One of the panch witnesses, Prabhakar Sail (who died recently), told us he was not present during the search and was made to sign blank papers by Wankhede's team. Two witnesses didn't turn up during investigation," Singh said.

On the purported WhatsApp chats cited by Wankhede's team to allege an "international conspiracy", Singh said phones were seized and chats opened without following procedure, "We looked at the chats and no international conspiracy was found," he said.

According to Singh, Wankhede had built a "blanket case". "All of them were booked under the same charges, which was not legally tenable. We have divided the accused in groups. All the accused are not part of the same group. They are not connected. We have divided them into sixseven sub-groups," he said.

The SIT chief also gave organisers of the cruise party and owners of the ship a clean chit. "We have taken into account the terms and agreements that the organisers signed. We have not found anything that makes them responsible for frisking, checking and ensuring that people boarding the cruise do not consume drugs. The NCB looked at the contract of Cordelia (the cruise company). Their responsibility was to organise the show," Singh said.

On October 2 last year, the NCB intercepted Aryan, Arbaaz and several others at the International Port Terminal, and on the ship. The NCB claimed it was relying on "voluntary statements" given by some of the accused to show they had consumed contraband drugs.

The statements were later retracted. And within a month of the raid, the case was transferred to an SIT. In March, the SIT sought an extension to file the chargesheet, and was granted 60 days ending May 30.

The case had also triggered a long-running spat between Maharashtra minister Nawab Malik and Wankhede over allegations that the NCB's action was an alleged attempt at extortion – a charge that the official repeatedly denied. On Friday, the ruling coalition in Maharashtra slammed Wankhede and the NCB for framing" Aryan in the case.

Malik is currently in custody facing an unrelated case of alleged money laundering filed by the Enforcement Directorate. A verified Twitter handle, which described itself as the "official account of the office" of Malik, tweeted: "Now that Aryan Khan and five others get a clean chit. will NCB take action against would be carrying drugs. These Sameer Wankhede, his team and the private army? Or will it shield its culprits?"

NĈP spokesperson Clyde Crasto said: "If Aryan Khan was clean, why was he tainted, what was the motive, who will be held responsible for the trauma this young man suffered, many questions arise.'

Congress spokesperson Atul Londhe said: "Aryan Khan was kept in custody even though no drugs were found in his possession. Now Aryan Khan's name is not even in the NCB chargesheet. NCB official Sameer Wankhede has worked to discredit Mumbai and Maharashtra along with Bollywood."

Shiv Sena's Raut said: "An attempt to destroy the life of a young man was done for the sake of publicity and due to political pressure. To have such an officer (Sameer Wankhede) in any department is dangerous for the government and the country."

The leadership of the BJP in Maharashtra refrained from commenting. Keshav Upadhya, the party's chief spokesperson in the state, said: "The BIP has taken a uniform stand on the matter... It has been consistent in stating all are equal before law. And the law will take its own course."

Officer

SIT's internal report says: "It is strange to note that in spite of clear cut denial by Arbaaz (Merchant) – Khan's friend from whom small amount of charas was seized — regarding involvement of Aryan in procurement or possession of drugs, Investigating Officer started looking at WhatsApp chats of Aryan without even formally seizing his mobile phone. It appears the IO was motivated to somehow implicate Aryan Khan in the drug case."

Sources said Wankhede was allowed a free hand to deal with his cases in the way he liked. His immediate superior in Mumbai, Deputy Director General Mutha Ashok Jain, proceeded on leave the day the raids were carried out – on October 2 last year.

In fact, until the next day, even the NCB headquarters in Delhi was not aware of the evidence that Wankhede's team had collected. But Wankhede was already all over media, alleging a major drugs conspiracy by Aryan.

This in fact, was similar to the way Wankhede had investigated the case against Bollywood actress Rhea Chakraborty, the girlfriend of Sushant Singh Rajput, who died by suicide in 2020, sources said. No drugs were recovered from Rhea, and the case against her was built on WhatsApp chats alone.

The sources said Wankhede's team had received information about 10 people who were going to a party on the cruise ship on October 2, 2021, and that they individuals were identified as: Aryan Khan, Karan, Prince Shehrawat, Saumya Singh, Munmun Dhamecha, Mohak Jaiswal, Gaumit Chopra, Nupur Satija, Arbaaz Merchant, and Ishmeet Singh. "It is still unknown how the team identified these people on the cruise just on the basis of names. These are things which can be addressed with better supervision in the initial stage," an officer privy to the probe said.

Sources said the informer in the case had first approached Mumbai Police, which did not show interest as it found the case

Once it became clear that no drugs were found on Arvan and questions were raised on the investigation, a senior officer from Delhi was sent to Mumbai to supervise the case. But Wankhede continued to push the envelope, the sources said. One example was the way an NCB team reached Shah Rukh Khan's bungalow on October 21 last year in an ostensible "raid".

Sources said Wankhede had sought permission to search the actor's premises, but was refused. "So he prepared summons for recovery of some documents from Mannat and sent a team inside to serve the same. The media had been informed beforehand about an impending "raid". It was finally a call from Delhi that stopped the team from going inside Shah Rukh's house," an officer said.

There was additional drama on TV after NCP leader Nawab Malik claimed Wankhede was a Muslim who had fraudulently claimed a caste benefit, and that a BIP leader was part of the raids. Wankhede's family issued a rebuttal on TV. While the political class in Delhi remained silent except saying the "law will take its own course" - the rightwing ecosystem on social media rallied behind Wankhede.

Sources said Wankhede had even tried to interfere with the probe subsequently by claiming internally that some SIT officers were trying to influence witnesses to change their statements.

"When he was asked why he had arrested Aryan Khan when no drugs were found on him, Wankhede said he had found a rolling paper. He had to be reminded then that rolling paper was not a banned item, and that many people used it to roll tobacco," another officer said.

When contacted on Friday, Sameer Wankhede declined to comment on the issue. However, an officer linked to the case said that the decision to arrest a person is not taken by an individual officer, but is carried out only after approval by top officers of the organisation.

participants at Class 3 level and 36% of the 10,359 participants at Class 5 level reported a lack of access to devices. At Class 8 participating reported that they did not have access to digital devices at home.

This reinforces the observation that in homes with only one device to be shared among multiple siblings, it was common for families to prioritise the classes and needs of the older children.

 $At the time that the NAS \,was$ conducted, on November 12, children in primary and middle classes in Delhi had not been to school even for two weeks since the start of the pandemic. Schools had opened for the first time since the pandemic began for students of these grades on November 1, 2021. Nationally, 24% respondents across all grades reported that they did not have access to digital devices. The two top performing states in this survey were Punjab and Rajasthan. In Punjab, 42% of participants across all grades reported no access to digital devices which is close to the percentage in Delhi, and in Rajasthan, this stood at 54%, considerably higher than in Delhi. In both these states as well, Class 8 had by far the highest number of respondents reporting lack of access.

Another statistic in the survey findings was of students experiencing worry, anxiety and fear during the pandemic. As many as 58% of the participating children in Delhi said they did, with the figure going up to as much as 97% for Class 8 level.

At the same time, 58% children across all grades reported that they learnt new things and had new experiences at home during the period, such as painting, singing, playing indoor games, yoga, playing musical instruments and spending time with their parents, grandparents and siblings.

in the instant case," the chargesheet stated.

It said that Merchant, who has been chargesheeted, has not claimed in any of his statements that the 6-gm of charas recovered from his possession was meant for Aryan. "In fact, Arbaaz A Merchant...stated that he was warned by Aryan Khan to not carry any Narcotic Drug on to the Cruise," the chargesheet stated.

The chargesheet also detailed how Aryan's mobile phone was unlocked without due procedure. "Arvan further stated that his phone was unlocked at the terminal by his face ID, after his denial to give password of the phone and after opening of phone, his drug chats were shown to him to which Aryan told that these drug chats were from Los Angeles, America," the chargesheet said, adding that the statements of his friends supported this assertion.

It stated that a creative executive with Shah Rukh Khan's production Red Chillies Entertainment, identified as Manav Chauhan, told NCB that Arvan once told him "he was into hash and weed smoking while he was in the USA, and has procured it multiple times as it is legal there".

According to the chargesheet, Arvan did this in 2018 to tackle sleeping disorders and after having read on the Internet that "weed" can help.

It stated that the NCB's also recovered a "drug chat" between Aryan and Bollywood actor Ananya Pandey. "Ananya Pandey, when shown her drug chat held in 2019...told that the chats related to weed were said in jest and it was a joke in an attempt to be funny," the chargesheet said.

Another chat suggesting a conversation between Aryan and another person identified as Aachit about payment of money in the form of weed, has been discounted by the SIT as the transaction never happened.

According to the chargesheet, Aachit said that he could not repay Arvan as he was under financial strain. "He further told that Arvan Khan offered him to pay the remaining money back in kind (weed). ...but he has never supplied him (Aryan Khan) weed," the chargesheet said.

The chargesheet has also listed statements of Aryan's friends on the cruise, including a person identified as Aamir Furniturewala, who said that when they were in the NCB's office, Merchant came over and apologised for putting them in this situation.

Booker Prize

Like the novel that they now share, their relationship unfolded slowly over time, through "hundreds of emails" and intense discussions on the process of translation. On Thursday, Tomb of Sand won the 2022 International Man Booker Prize, the first book written in an Indian language to have won the honour. It is also the first novel translated from Hindi to be recognised by the award. Announcing the win, Frank Wynne, Irish translator and jury chair, said: "...We were captivated by the power, the poignancy and the playfulness of Tomb of Sand, Geetanjali Shree's polyphonic novel of identity and belonging, in Daisy Rockwell's exuberant, coruscating translation. This is a luminous novel of India and Partition, but one whose spellbinding brio and fierce compassion weaves youth and age, male and female, family and nation into a kaleidoscopic whole.

"This (the award) is not just about me, the individual. I represent a language and culture and this recognition brings into larger purview the entire world of Hindi literature in particular and Indian literature as a whole," said Delhibased Shree, 64, the author of three novels and several volumes of stories. She described the win as "a bolt from the blue" that had left her "reeling".

"Tomb of Sand is an elegy for the world we inhabit, a laughing elegy that retains hope in the face of impending doom. The Booker will surely take it to many more people than it would have reached otherwise. That should do the world no harm," she said in her acceptance speech in London.

The International Booker Prize, earlier known as the Man Booker International Prize, was launched in 2004 to reward, every two years, a contemporary author of any nationality for a body of work published in English or available in English translation.

Since 2016, the £50,000 prize has been awarded annually to a book translated into English and published in the UK or Ireland. The award is split equally between the writer and the translator.

Set in north India, Tomb of Sand examines boundaries - between nations, religions and genders – even as it follows the story of Ma ji, its octogenarian protagonist, whose husband's death pushes her to assess her choices.

7 soldiers killed statement.

"Seven individuals have been declared fatal so far. There are grievous injuries to others as well," it said.

The statement said the 26soldier team was moving from a transit camp in Partapur to a forward location in the Hanif subsector around 9 am on Friday. About 25 km from Thoise, a major military base in Nubra Valley, the vehicle skidded off the road and fell into the Shvok river, "resulting in injuries to all occupants".

Prime Minister Narendra Modi tweeted: "Anguished by the bus accident in Ladakh in which we have lost our brave army personnel. My thoughts are with the bereaved families. I hope those injured recover at the earliest. All possible assistance is being given to the affected."

Defence Minister Rajnath Singh said he had spoken to the Army chief on the incident.

"Deeply saddened by the loss of lives of our brave Indian Army personnel... We will never forget their exemplary service to our nation...," he tweeted.

bodies of Altaf Bhat, a businessman, and Mudassir Gul, a dentist — both from the Valley — and returned these to their families for burial. The body of Aamir Magrey, however, remained buried at Handwara.

In his order, Justice Sajeev Kumar held the decision of the I&K Police to deny last rites to the Magrey family as violative of Article 14 of the Constitution. "The decision of the respondents not to allow the petitioner to take away the dead body of his son to his native village for last rites was per se arbitrary and falls foul of Article 14...," he said in the order.

"It transpires that due to public pressure and demand by the relatives of the two deceased namely, Altaf Ahmad Bhat and Dr. Mudasir Gul. the respondents relented and permitted their dead bodies to be exhumed and handed over to their relatives. Since the petitioner was a resident of Gool, a remote village in Iammu Province and did not (have) much say in the Valley and, therefore, his request was arbitrarily turned down. The action of the respondents is not traceable to any procedure established by law which is just, fair, and equitable," the court said.

However, noting that the dead body "must be in advance stage of putrefaction," the order said, "if the body is highly putrefied and is not in deliverable state or is likely to pose risk to public health and hygiene, the petitioner and his close relatives shall be allowed to perform last rites as per their tradition and religious belief in the Wadder Payeen graveyard itself."

In that situation, the single judge bench said, the government shall pay Rs 5 lakh to the petitioner as compensation for deprivation of his right to have the body of his son and give him a decent burial as per family traditions, religious obligations, and faith which the deceased professed when he was alive.

The order also said that while the respondents — the Union of India, UT administration, DG and IG of J&K police — submitted that as per the SIT investigation, Magrey was a confirmed terrorist whereas the other two killed, Altaf Ahmad Bhat and Mudasir Gul, were only associates of the terrorists; "I do not find any logic or sense in (the) distinction..."

Hike fines for mosquito breeding, HC suggests to Delhi govt

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, MAY 27

THE DELHI High Court has said that the Delhi government should seriously examine the proposal to impose spot fines for mosquito breeding, instead of issuing chal-lans, to ensure deterrence among people. The court last year initiated a suo motu case in the wake of a surge in dengue cases.

"We are also of the view that where institutions are found guilty of such conduct, the quantum of fine should not be limited to merely Rs 5,000, and should be shall examine these aspects at the highest level and respond on the next date," the court said.

'Inverted rifle, helmet' at India Gate moved to National War Memorial

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, MAY 27

FOUR MONTHS after the eternal flame from the Amar Jawan Jyoti from under the India Gate was "merged" with the immortal flame at the National War Memorial 100 metres away, the symbol of the fallen soldier at India Gate has also been moved to the National War Memorial.

In a ceremony headed by Chief of Integrated Defence to the Chairman, Chiefs of Staff Committee (CISC) Air Marshal B R Krishna Friday, the armed forces moved the inverted rifle and helmet, a memorial to the soldiers who laid down their lives in the 1971 war, from India Gate to the National War Memorial, which was inaugurated by PM

Narendra Modi in February 2019. The Amar Jawan Jyoti had been moved just ahead of Republic Day this year. It was the first time in 50 years since the memorial was established after India's victory over Pakistan in 1971, leading to the liberation of Bangladesh, that the eternal flame was extinguished from under India Gate, which itself is a memorial to Indian soldiers who died during World War 1 and other military campaigns till 1931.

The National War Memorial has been built over a 40-acre area close to India Gate, and has names of over 26,000 Indian soldiers

It stated that with this ceremony, "the integration of the Memorial of Fallen Soldiers of

As part of the ceremony, a final salute was given and CISC offered a wreath at India Gate, the statement mentioned, adding that afterwards, "the Inverted Rifle and Helmet was removed and carried in a ceremonial vehicle to the Param Yodha Sthal and installed at a newly created monument". The CISC was accompanied by Adjutant General equivalents from the Army, the Navy and the Air Force.

Traffic police draw up list of 200 waterlogging hotspots in capital

GAYATHRI MANI NEW DELHI, MAY 27

AHEAD OF the monsoon season, the Delhi Traffic Police identified 211 waterlogging hotspots and has written to all civic agencies concerned - Public Works Department (PWD), Municipal Corporation of Delhi (MCD), Delhi Development Authority (DDA), Irrigation and Flood Control Department — to install pumps and desilt drains on time to prevent flooding.

Of the total hotspots, 132 (mostly stormwater drains) are under the PWD as compared to 147 locations last year, showing an improvement, said officials. "Desilting work has started in several divisions and the first phase will be completed by June 15. We have also identified 15 critical locations where underground sumps, with a capacity of nearly 7-7.5 lakh litres, and permanent pump houses, with more than 500 horsepower, are being constructed to release water immediately," said a senior PWD official. The department is also constructing stormwater drains which will have the capacity to drain out 60 lakh litres of water per hour. Some critical locations where sumps, permanent pump houses and stormwater drains

ABOUT 89,801 people availed of free rides on DTC's electric buses that were launched on May 24. The Delhi government had decided to offer free travel on its 150 e-buses for three days (May 24 to May 26), in a bid to encourage people to use public transport. According to data shared by the Transport department, of 89,801 passengers who travelled for free in these e-buses, 51% were men and 40.96% were women passengers. The remaining were staff and bus pass users.

On Tuesday, Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal had flagged off the buses and inaugurated three depots at Mundela Kalan, Rajghat, Rohini Sector-37.

Data also showed that 55,455 people travelled on buses that plied from the Rohini Sector 37 depot, followed by 33,120 at Mundela Kalan and 1,226 at Rajghat Depot.

The e-buses are air-conditioned and have state-of-the-art facilities such as CCTV cameras, ramp facilities, panic buttons, and space for wheelchairs. They also have dedicated pink seats for women passengers as well as live video streaming in case of an emergency and a fire detection and suppression system.

The government had also announced a public contest, called 'I ride E-bus', under which commuters have to click a selfie of their ride and post it on social media, from which three entries will get a chance to win an iPad.

96 ill at condo, contamination in water supply suspected

PAVNEET SINGH CHADHA GURGAON, MAY 27

AT LEAST 96 residents, including children and senior citizens, living in Westend Heights condominium in Gurgaon's DLF5 have reported falling sick with symptoms of nausea and vomiting in the past two days, prompting the health department to look into complaints of suspected contamination in the water supply. Health department officials said they have taken samples for examination.

Virender Yadav, chief medical officer (CMO), Gurgaon, said, "We received 205 complaints from the society. A total of 96 people, who had nausea and vomitingrelated symptoms, were given medicine. A two-year-old child was admitted to the hospital. We have taken samples of water from the society and a report will come out on Monday.'

Priti Anand, the residents' welfare association secretary, said she and her domestic help fell sick Wednesday and initially assumed it was due to food poisoning. "Later, when other residents posted on the society group about experiencing symptoms of vomiting and diarrhoea, we realised there could be an issue with the water. We informed the authorities. This is a matter of concern and has caused panic among residents. As of now, we are dependent on bottled water for consumption. The society's swimming pool has been drained out," she said.

"Water tanks are cleaned on a regular basis and we maintain records of water testing. GMDA (Gurugram Metropolitan Development Authority) should test the water supply," she said. Anamika Sagar, a resident of the society, said on Wednesday, her daughter and husband fell sick. "We assumed it is due to a stomach infection. My husband vomited while he was returning from work and later got diarrhoea. I was concerned as my daughter has a board exam in the coming week. Yesterday, I experienced similar symptoms. Then, we heard many residents had come down with symptoms. We suspect this is due to water supply contamination and authorities should look into it. We are using bottled water and boiling it," she said.

GMDA officials denied the water supply was contaminated. stating that the society's internal storage and underground tanks were not cleaned and maintained regularly, causing the issue.

'Water supply by GMDA across all connections in the city carries no trace of any contamination. The issue lies in Westend Heights society where the water quality complaint has been raised. Their internal storage and underground tanks are not cleaned and maintained regularly, which is why residents are facing difficulties. The management has to look into their internal operation and maintenance of these water tanks. Water being supplied from GMDA pipelines to all corners of Gurgaon is completely safe and free of any health hazards," said Abhinav Verma, executive engineer, Infrastructure 2. GMDA.

COMMON CAUSE

AT A time when the issue of caste census is dominating politics in Bihar, several Opposition parties are set to rally around the cause in the national capital during an event to commemorate the 35th death anniversary of former Prime Minister Chaudhary Charan Singh on Sunday. The programme, which will be hosted by the Jayant Chaudhary-led Rashtriya Lok Dal, is likely to be attended by representatives of the RJD, JD(U), SP, BSP, TMC, AAP and the CPI(M) among others. Meghalaya Governor Satyapal Malik, who hails from the RLD stronghold of western Uttar Pradesh, is also scheduled to attend the event, where demands to set up a Social Justice Commission is also likely to be raised.

TESTING GROUND

THE UTTARAKHAND government's move to set up a committee headed by Justice Ranjana Desai, former judge of Supreme Court, to draft a Uniform Civil Code is being keenly watched by the Centre. The issue of Uniform Civil Code is crucial for the BIP and has also been a part of its manifesto. However, many in the party believe that states should be the testing ground for such a law before the Centre acts. Sources said that since marriage, divorce and other personal laws are in the concurrent list of the Constitution, states are free to legislate in the absence of a central law. Once all the bottlenecks are identified and sufficient public consensus is built, a central law can be brought which will overrule state laws.

Hate speech: Kerala HC grants bail to P C George

Thiruvananthapuram: The Kerala High Court on Friday granted bail to senior politician P C George who has been in judicial custody since Thursday after a court here cancelled the bail granted to him in a case pertaining to his alleged hate speech at a Hindu mahasammelan here last month.

On Wednesday, George was taken into custody from a police station in Kochi, where he had turned up as part of the probe into another hate speech delivered earlier this month during a temple festival in Kochi.

The magistrate court in Thiruvananthapuram had cancelled George's bail after the prosecution informed the court that he violated the bail conditions, citing another alleged hate speech that George had delivered in Kochi. After the court cancelled his bail, George was arrested and taken to Thiruvananthapuram, where he was produced before

6 events in 3 months: Modi woos Patidars ahead of polls

KAMAAL SAIYED, GOPAL KATESHIYA & PARIMAL DABHI

SURAT, RAJKOT, AHMEDABAD,

ON SATURDAY, Prime Minister Narendra Modi will be in Gujarat to inaugurate, among other projects, the KD Parvadiya hospital, a multi-speciality facility built by a Patidar group, at Atkot village in Rajkot district.

This is yet another outreach effort by Modi to woo the Patidar community that felt alienated ahead the 2017 Assembly elections. Of the 17 events that Modi addressed in his home state since March, six were organised by groups with strong links to the Patidar community.

The BJP leadership is doing everything it can, including bringing in a 'Patel Chief Minister' and a new ministry last year, to win back the Patidars who were somewhat disenchanted before the 2017 elections following the quota agitation led by Hardik Patel.

The Patidar community holds a significant influence over the electoral politics of Guiarat. They form around 12 per cent of the total over 6 crore population in the state. There are many Assembly constituencies where around 15 per cent population belongs to the Patidar community and could directly influence the electoral outcome. The community is also considered an effective fund manager in electoral politics.

Hardik quit the Congress last week and has not ruled out joining the BIP.

EXPLAINE

While Congress gained from Patidar anger in 2017, the community seemed to have backed the AAP in the 2021 local body elections.

Another key Patidar leader, Rajkot-based businessman Naresh Patel, chairman of the Shree Khodaldham Trust. has announced plans to join politics and has been in conversation with the Congress, though nothing concrete has emerged. It is in this backdrop that the PM's efforts to engage constantly with the community assumes significance.

Modi had on April 28, virtually inaugurated K K Patel Super Speciality hospital in Bhuj, which was also built by a Patidar organisation, Shri Kutch Leuva Patel Education & Medical Trust. KD Parvadiya Hospital, to be inaugurated Saturday, has been constructed by Patel Seva Samaj, Atkot, a Patidar charitable trust.

On April 29, Modi virtually addressed Gujarat Patidar Business Summit, 2022, organised by Sardardham, a Patidar organisation. This year, Modi decided to virtually address the summit's third edition for the first time in Surat. In an apparent reference to the 2015 Patidar quota agitation, Modi had then said: "There are some boys in your area, who come out against us, rais> ing flags... they would not even know how you spent your days in darkness... tell them... about what kind of days you have seen and from

According to a senior BJP leader, "For our party, 'Sabka Saath, Sabka Vikas' is not just a slogan but a strategy. We cannot just appease one community, it will go against us electorally." Another leader describes the Patidars as the "backbone" of the BJP.

Leading Congress Patidar leader Paresh Dhanani said the Patidars will not fall for Modi's attempts to "deceive" them.

Assets case: Chautala gets 4 years in prison

ANAND MOHAN J & VARINDER BHATIA

NEW DELHI, CHANDIGARH. MAY 27

OBSERVING THAT a "strong message" needs to be sent to "potential offenders who acquire assets by abusing their official positions", a Delhi court Friday sentenced former Haryana chie minister Om Prakash Chautala to four years rigorous imprisonment after he was found guilty in a disproportionate assets case.

Taking note of the "galloping rise in cases where misuse of official positions" by public servants, Special Judge Vikas Dhull said the sentence awarded to Chautala was "just and reasonable to meet the ends of justice".

The court also imposed a fine of Rs 50 lakh and seized four properties belonging to the 87vear-old Chautala — two in Delhi and one each in Gurgaon and Panchkula – observing that if potential offenders acquire assets abusing their official positions, "then not only will they be punished heavily but even their properties so acquired shall be liable for confiscation." Of the Rs 50 lakh, the court ordered Rs 5 lakh be given to CBI for expenses incurred in prosecuting this case.

The court added that the period that Chautala has undergone in custody in the present case will be set aside.

Chautala who was present in the courtroom was brought in his wheelchair. His counsel Harsh Kumar Sharma had contended that Chautala was 90 per cent physically disabled, was suffering from infection in his lungs, could not even change clothes on his own, and needs an attendant

The court, however, said that no medical document was brought on record to show that his incarceration would lead to further deterioration of health.

The CBI prosecutor had asked the court to show no leniency to Chautala "being a political leader and an elected representative, had belied the trust of the voters of his constituency by abusing his official position to generate assets for himself.' CBI counsel Ajay Gupta had said that any leniency while awarding punishment to Chautala, who remained a CM, shall send a "wrong message"

Later, 87-year-old Chautala was taken into custody. His son and Ellenabad MLA Abhav Chautala said, "We will be filing an appeal against the verdict in a higher court".

The court had last week convicted Chautala after he failed to satisfactorily account for the assets detected by the CBI between 1993 and 2006 that were disproportionate to his legitimate sources of income.

ED summons former J&K CM Farooq in JKCA funds case

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, MAY 27

ENFORCEMENT DIRECTORATE has summoned former J&K chief minister Farooq Abdullah to appear before it in Srinagar on May 31 in connection with its money laundering probe into the Jammu and Kashmir Cricket Association

"Abdullah had missed an earlier summon. So he has been called again for questioning," an ED official said.

The National Conference on Friday confirmed the summons in a tweet. "ED summons to JKNC president Dr Farooq Abdullah [is] nothing new, this is common for all opposition parties in India. He has continued to maintain his innocence in the matter and has co-operated with the investigative agencies and will do so in this case as well," it said.

In March, ED had provisionally attached assets worth Rs 7.25 crore of an accused in the case. The agency has earlier attached assets of Farooq Abdullah as well in the case. The case is related to alleged irregularities in grants the JKCA got from BCCI. It was alleged that between 2002 and 2011, funds of over Rs 43 crore were siphoned off from the JKCA coffers. These funds were part of the Rs 112 crore grant given by the BCCI to JKCA.

Use your own hair to get rid of baldness

Dr Shalini Malhotra is one of the few master surgeons who performs the advanced FUE (Follicular Unit Excision) technique of hair transplant using implanters that's safe, painless, without any visible scarring and gives natural results

What does having a Diplomate of American Board of Hair Restoration Surgery (ABHRS) actually mean for

With a post-graduate degree in dermatology, I underwent rigorous training in hair transplantation from the DHI (Direct Hair Implant) Academy in Greece, where I also worked as a Master Surgeon for over four years. I then cleared the challenging American Board of Hair Restoration Surgery (ABHRS) examination in Chicago, the USA, thereby becoming one of the handful of doctors in India to have earned the prestigious and only certification of ABHRS for hair transplantation globally.

I'm the first Indian to be elected to the Board of Directors of ABHRS, which is a matter of great pride for me. The ABHRS exam stands as the only psychometrically and statistically validated examination for hair restoration surgery. Finding the best and most qualified hair surgeon among a vast pool of surgeons can be challenging for patients. Therefore, the primary purpose of board certification of medical specialists is to assure the public about a physician's knowledge and skill regarding hair restoration surgeries. With so many hair transplant facilities available in India, people should definitely do proper research before choosing a procedure. In many set-ups, hair transplantation is done by technicians rather than qualified doctors. In such a scenario, it becomes imperative for people to know about the best practices in hair transplantations and then decide who they should approach for getting theirs done.

Who is qualified for hair transplanta-

Hair transplant is not just a medical proce-

Having a vast experience of 10 years with over 3,500 hair restoration surgeries and exceptional and consistent results to her credit, Dr Shalini Malhotra, MBBS, DNB (Dermatology), MNAMS, DIPLOMATE of ABHRS (USA), makes sure that you have a crowning glory on your head. "I perform every hair restoration surgery myself and do not believe in leaving the patient in the hands of technicians. I'm trained in performing an extremely refined procedure for hair transplant called The Advanced FUE technique," says she. She uses extremely fine and technologically advanced instruments called implanters. These are single-use and ensure safety during the procedure as well as quality in results. There is minimal handling of grafts resulting in almost 99 per cent survival of hair follicles.

BEFORE AFTER dure that requires a high degree of technical skills but also an artistic one. So, it is aptly termed as a combination of art and science. A hair transplant doctor should have degrees such as MD or DNB in Dermatology or Plastic Surgery. A board certification can be of value. The American Board of Hair Restoration Surgery (ABHRS) is the only recognised organization by the International Society of Hair Restoration Surgery (ISHRS) that offers certification for doctors specialising in hair transplantation. Apart from this, a qualified hair transplant doctor is someone who has extensive training in hair transplant surgery, understands hair loss well and has many satisfied clients. Looking at one's before and after results can be a testament to one's skills. Finally, ethics is the key. Too many clinics have aggressive salesmen to push you into a procedure that the surgeon might otherwise think is dangerous or inappropriate. Ethical judgment on when not to operate is very im-

Which procedure of hair transplantation should one opt for?

There are two basic techniques that are available for hair transplantation worldwide. The FUT or the strip technique and the FUE or the follicular unit excision technique. In the FUT/strip technique, a linear strip of skin is excised from the back of the head (donor area). The hair units are harvested from that strip, which are then implanted over the bald patch, which has already been prepped with reception holes and slits, with the help of forstitches. Understandably, upon healing, a linear scar will be seen despite the best of cosmetic work. Complications such as bleeding, pain, swelling, infection may also be there. FUE Technique is a refined technique whereby punches, with a diameter of 0.7 mm to 1 mm, are used to extract follicular units. These are then implanted one by one on the bald patch. In this procedure, no linear scar is formed and stitches are not required.

Please elaborate on the technique you use?

I perform the FUE technique using implanters. It is an extremely refined technique of hair restoration performed only by a handful of surgeons globally. In this technique, individual follicles are manually plucked out from the back of the head by a minimally invasive technique and a disposable handheld device. They are then implanted one by one in the bald patch without the creation of any reception holes, using a pen-like device called the implanter. The use of motorised punches and thick needles is avoided. There is minimal handling of grafts resulting in almost 99 per cent survival of the hair follicles.

How much does a hair transplant

The cost varies depending on the number of grafts required, the area to be covered, the quality of instruments, the technique used, the experience of the doctor, facilities and infrastructure of the clinic.

Are the results permanent? When can you expect to see full results?

ADVERTORIAL

The transplanted grafts follow the principle of donor dominance, which means they retain the characteristics of the donor samples. Since the hair roots are extracted from an area of scalp resistant to baldness, on implantation they remain resistant and do not fall with the passage of time. Results can be expected within nine to 12 months.

Is hair transplant painful?

It's a painless procedure barring the first few minutes when local anaesthesia is given. Once the effect of anaesthesia sets in, the patient does not feel any pain.

Is it necessary to shave one's head to get a hair transplant done?

NO. Unshaven sessions are also possible. These sessions are commonly done at my

Do you perform hair transplants on

Yes. Contrary to what many people think, hair transplant is a beautiful option to restore lost hair in women suffering from genetic baldness.

How long does the procedure take? The hair transplant procedure takes six hours. Patients can go home the same day

When can the patient see a full crop of and resume work the very next day.

Final results show in six to nine months.

Who performs surgery at your clinic? The complete implantation is done by me. Technicians are not allowed to perform surgeries in my operation theatre.

What is the USP of a hair transplant procedure at your clinic?

Since I perform the surgery and take full responsibility, the patient is in safe hands.

I use the Advanced FUE procedure using implanters which gives dense hair with natural looking results. Patients can resume normal activities from the next day. There is no need to shave the hair. We have a state-ofthe-art facility wherein all sterilisation protocols are followed strictly.

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE HYDERABAD, MAY 27

The woman was undergoing treatment at hospital and her condition was stated to be critical with deep gashes on head, neck, chest and abdomen. Police identified the suspect as Shaikh Nasiruddin alias Habib, a neighbour of the victim, Syed Noor Bano.

CRUISE DRUG BUST CASE

As case crumbles, MVA leaders rally behind Nawab Malik: 'Truth wins'

ZEESHAN SHAIKH

"TRUTH ALWAYS wins" is how former NCP minister Nawab Malik's daughter Sana Malik Shaikh received the news of the Narcotics Control Bureau (NCB) chargesheet giving a clean chit to Arvan Khan.

In the days following the arrest of Bollywood superstar Shah Rukh's son, Nawab Malik had waged literally a one-man campaign against NCB Mumbai Zone in-charge Sameer Wankhede, with his revelations against the way the probe was handled punching holes into the case against Aryan.

Malik subsequently was held on charges by the Enforcement Directorate and has been in iail since February 23.

On Friday, as the NCB admitted there was no case against Aryan, the NCP and its allies Congress and Shiv Sena rallied behind Malik. "It is clear today that Malik's allegations were true. Aryan was kept in custody even though no drugs were found in his possession. Now Arvan's name is not even in the NCB chargesheet. Wankhede has worked to discredit Mumbai and Maharashtra along with Bollywood," Congress spokesperson Atul Londhe said.

"Malik ji made serious allegations on the style of working of Wankhede, thereby drawing the ire of some powerful people in Delhi. Today he is paying the price for speaking the truth," NCP spokesman Mahesh Tapase said.

said, "The truth has come out. An attempt to destroy the life of a young man was done for the sake of publicity and due to political pressure. To have such an officer (Wankhede) in any department is dangerous."

In his series of press conferences against Wankhede, Malik had raised questions about due process in the NCB's probe into the Cordelia cruise ship case on October 2, 2021.

Malik's opponents had countered that his press conferences were prompted by the NCB's case against his son-in-law Sameer Khan, over alleged drug recovery. Sameer spent nine months in jail before he was granted bail in September, with the court saying that there was no case for illicit drug trafficking and conspiracy against him.

BJP MLA Atul Bhatkhalkar on Friday said the NCB chargesheet was actually proof that "the Modi government and their agencies always act fairly and truth always prevails". He added: "Those who are welcoming the clean chit by the NCB should now agree that Nawab Malik is prima facie guilty."

Congress' PChidambaram reacted to the news through a couple of tweets. "It is now admitted that there was no evidence against Aryan. Who will bear responsibility for the trauma of the young man? Investigation must lead to arrest. Sadly, in many cases, arrest comes first and investigation follows. This is a perversion of the procedure established by law."

NEW DELHI, MAY 27

THE SUPREME Court collegium headed by Chief Justice of India NV Ramana has recommended transfer of six high court judges to other high courts.

Top court collegium

recommends transfer

While the collegium took the decision taken last week, the recommendations were made public on Friday.

Justice Purushaindra Kumar Kaurav of Madhya Pradesh High Court has been recommended for transfer to Delhi High Court. Sources told The Indian Express that Justice Kauray, who was also the former Advocate General of Madhya Pradesh, had sought the transfer on "personal grounds".

Justice Chitta Ranjan Dash of Orissa High Court has been recommended for transfer to Calcutta High Court while Justice Subhashis Talapatra has been recommended to be moved from Tripura High Court to Orissa High Court.

Justice Lanusungkum Jamir of Manipur High Court has been recommended for transfer to Gauhati High Court while Justice Dhiraj Singh Thakur has been recommended for transfer from Jammu and Kashmir High Court to Bombay High Court.

Justice Thakur, the third senior-most judge in Jammu and Kashmir High Court, is also the brother of former CIITS Thakur. The significant among the six transfer recommendations is that Justice Ahsanuddin Amanatullah of Andhra Pradesh High Court. The collegium has recommended the "repatriation" of Justice Amanatullah to his parent high court – Patna High Court.

Incidentally, the collegium headed by CJI Ramana itself had recommended that Justice Amanatullah be transferred from Patna to Andhra Pradesh High Court in September last vear. He took oath in October and within seven months, the same collegium has recommended his "repatriation".

This is the second such decision to transfer a judge back to the parent high court within a short duration. In September 2021, Justice Joymalya Bagchi was recommended for "retransfer" to Calcutta High Court, just nine months after he had been transferred to Andhra Pradesh High Court.

In December 2020, the colegium, then headed by former CJI S A Bobde, had recommended his transfer from Calcutta High Court amidst a controversy at that time over allegations by Andhra Pradesh Chief Minister Y S Jaganmohan Reddy that a senior judge of Supreme Court was interfering with the functioning of Andhra Pradesh High Court.

Later, in September 2021, the collegium in a statement said. "The Supreme Court Collegium in its meeting held on 16th September, 2021 has recommended re-transfer of Mr Justice Joymalya Bagchi, Judge, Andhra Pradesh High Court to Calcutta High Court.

Transfers are often recommended in the "better administration of justice" but the collegium does not disclose reasons

MANGALORE UNIVERSITY has decided not to allow hijab in its classrooms, saying that the March 15 Karnataka High Court order upholding the hijab ban in pre-university colleges will apply to degree colleges as well.

The decision was taken following a meeting Vice-Chancellor Subrahmanya Yadapadithaya had with the College Development Council (CDC) and others after students of a constituent college protested on Thursday against girls wearing the hijab despite the college having a uniform. According to the Vice-Chancellor, girl students will be allowed to wear the hijab on campus but they must change to the college uniform before entering the classroom, library and canteen areas. "Our college used to allow girls to wear the headscarf matching with the uniform colour. But after the Karnataka High Court order, and following the meeting with CDC president and MLA of Mangalore South constituency Vedavyas Kamath and members of the syndicate, it has been decided that hijab and other religious outfits will not be allowed inside classrooms," said Yadapadithaya.

"There was confusion about whether the court order would apply to degree colleges. However, according to the advisory of the state government, the higher education council, and the court order, all colleges will have to comply with the uniform."

He said the university is making will speak to those students who insist on wearing the hijab.

"We have learned that about 15 girls are firm about wearing hijab to class. We are ready to counsel them. If counseling does not work, we will help them get admission in educational institutions where the hijab is allowed or where they do not have a uniform," said Yadapadithaya.

AVANEESH MISHRA DEHRADUN, MAY 27 THE UTTARAKHAND government has formed an expert committee headed by a retired Supreme Court judge for implementing Uniform Civil Code (UCC) and to check all the relevant laws that control personal matters for those living in Uttarakhand. A state government order said that a five-member committee will be headed by retired Supreme Court judge Ranjana Desai, who currently heads the Delimitation Commission of India. Other members of the committee are: retired Delhi High Court judge Pramod Kohli, social activist Manu Gaur, retired IAS officer Shatrughan Singh, and Doon University Vice-

Chancellor Surekha Dangwal. "The Governor has given his permission to establish an expert committee to check all the relevant laws which control personal matters for people living in Uttarakhand, and to prepare a report on amendments in the present laws," reads the order by the state Home Department.

Earlier in March, after the first cabinet meeting of the newly formed government. Chief Minister Pushkar Singh Dhami had announced to form a committee of experts for implementation of the Uniform Civil Code (UCC) in the state. The UCC is referred to a common set of laws governing personal matters such as marriage, divorce, adoption, inheritance and succession for all citizens, irrespective of religion.

Making the announcement after the meeting, Dhami had said that the cabinet has unanimously approved setting up of a highpowered committee at the earliest on the issue. Soon after the oath-taking ceremony, the BJP government will form a committee of those with knowledge of the legal system, retired employees, prominent people from society, and other stakeholders to prepare a

This will also be an effective step towards Article 44 of the Constitution that talks about securing a UCC for every citizen of the country. The apex court, too, from time to time has emphasised on its implementation," he had added.

IN AN indictment of sorts, a committee formed by the Akali Dal to analyse reasons for its rout in the recent Assembly election has, without naming the Badal clan, suggested that only one person from a family be allowed to contest polls. The panel also put the party-led Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee in dock saying that it has has failed in stopping the religious conversions of Sikhs into other faiths leading to serious political implications. "The SAD workers feel that there are political implications for successful in stopping the religious conversions of Sikhs into other faiths. The sub-committee felt that the increasing Dera culture and the new trend of luring the Sikh families for conversions is needed to be stopped. The SGPC, Sikh bodies, Nihang bodies, preachers all should come together and play their role in stop-the party as the SGPC has been un-member sub-committee. Its former ally the Bhartiya Janata Party has often raised the issue of conversion of Sikhs into other faiths, but it is for the first time that Akali Dal has acknowledged it as a problem that played a role in scuttling the party's elec-ping it," reads the report of the 12-toral chances.

A part of the report, submitted by the panel that was formed on march 24, and accessed by The Indian Express also sought to address the issue of dynasty politics in the 100-year-old panthic party.

Conversions hurt poll prospects: Akali Dal panel; suggests 'one family, one ticket' rule

Without naming the Badals, the committee has suggested that only one member from one family should be allowed to contest either of the Assembly, parliamentary, block samiti, local body or zila parishad election. "If a person has won any election on the party symbol, then no other member from his family should be allowed to take any position in any official capacity in the party," the committee suggested.

This may come as an indictment for the Badal family. In this year's Assembly polls, the party had fielded former chief minister Parkash Singh Badal from Lambi, his son and party president Sukhbir Singh Badal from Jalalbad, Sukhbir's brother-in-law Bikram Majithia from Amritsar, and latter's wife Ganieve Kaur from — the committee pointed out that the the incidents of sacrilege and subsequent police firing on peaceful protesters in 2015, the appointment of Sumedh Singh Saini as state police chief, and the political support of Dera Sacha Sauda in Assembly polls has hurt the sentiments of the Sikh masses. "These incidents still has great impact on Sikh psyche and it hurt Sikh sentiments," reads the report.

The 2015 Bargari sacrilege incidents followed by the police firing at Behbal Kalan had hurt the credibility of the party, which was ruling Puinjab, among the Sikh masses and the SAD is yet to recover from the impact.

SAD had appointed Saini as DGP ignoring his controversial past and allegations of human rights violations against him by Sikh bodies. Ahead of the 2017 elections, the party had openly took the support of Dera Sacha Sauda, which was excommunicated by Akal Takht in 2007. The committee has now asked party leadership to seek apology for all these developments. "Such developments has created a heavy anger. Then CM Parkash Singh Badal, the then Cabinet members, SAD president Sukhbir Singh Badal and the whole party leadership, as humble Sikhs, should seek apology from the almighty and the Sikh masses," reads the report.

Inquiry ordered into trader's 'death in police station' in UP

Lucknow: A detailed inquiry has been ordered into the death of a 58-year-old milk trader who died allegedly at the Kamlapur police station in Sitapur district where he had gone to lodge a case on May 25 against his neighbour for "assaulting" his sister-in-law.

The police later lodged an FIR on Yadav's complaint against four persons - all Dalits - for allegedly assaulting Ramesh's sister-in-law Rajni Yadav (45) on charges of attempt to murder and others.

APRIL 2018 MP CASTE VIOLENCE

Chouhan: Will withdraw cases against people from both sides

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE BHOPAL, MAY 27

MADHYA PRADESH Chief Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan on Friday announced to withdraw cases registered against Dalits as well as upper caste people in connection with the April 2018 violence in the backdrop of a Supreme Court verdict overturning the provisions of SC-ST Atrocities Act.

The move came on a day when the Madhya Pradesh Election Commission announced the civic body elections in three phases, starting from June 25, 2022.

The violent clashes had broken out in Madhya Pradesh's Gwalior-Chambal region on April 2 in 2018 on a Dalit organisation's call. The violence had left seven dead and dozens injured.

The Supreme Court on March 20, 2018, had protected a public servant against arrest under the SC-ST Atrocities Act-1989 without a preliminary inquiry, overturning the provisions in the Act that has provision of immediate arrest.

Interacting with reporters on Friday morning, Chouhan said, "On April 4 in 2018, Madhya Pradesh saw violent clashes, specifically in Gwalior-Chambal region, between various communities owing to some misunderstanding. This led to various cases being registered against brothers of the SC/ST community as well as those from the general category. I had gone there recently with my cabinet ministers where Union Minister Ivotiraditya Scindia was also present. Members from both communities met me separately and both agreed that cases registered against members of both the communities should be taken back.'

Chouhan further added that "we consulted all stake-holders; Scindia was present; we also spoke to Union Minister Narendra Tomar. It was decided that cases registered against both communities will be taken back in the interest of communal harmony.'

In the Gwalior-Chambal region which has 34 Assembly seats, the Congress won 26 seats in 2018 whereas the BJP, which had won 20 seats in 2014, could bag only 7. Although the saffron party regained some seats in the 2020 bypolls after Jyotiraditya Scindia joined the party.

The Dalits comprise at least 20 per cent of population in Chambal with the Jatavs being the most dominant.

In Bhind, the police had booked more than 50 people, and had detained hundreds of locals. In Morena, the police had named and booked 134 people, announcing rewards between Rs 5.000 and Rs 10.000 against 12 absconding Dalit leaders. Similarly, in Gwalior, police had booked more than 100 people, and arrested many as suspects under sections 147, 148, 149, 307, 336, 353, 186, 188 and 341 of the IPC.

According to officials, the cases that are to be withdrawn will be decided between Home and Law departments with the final files being put before the court by the Home Department after consulting the Law Department.

Incidentally, soon after coming to power in 2018, the Congress had announced to withdraw all cases of 'political vendetta' filed against Dalit and farmers during the previous BJP

Southwest monsoon over Kerala in next 2-3 days, says IMD

ANJALI MARAR PUNE, MAY 27

AS THE Southwest Monsoon on advanced over Lakshadweep, Comorin and entire Maldives, it may not be a smooth start to the rainy season over mainland India post the onset over Kerala

In its latest forecast issued on Friday, the India Meteorological Department (IMD) said that conditions are favourable for the monsoon to hit Kerala during the next two to three days. If realised, it will be close to the normal monsoon date of onset of June 1, here.

Earlier this month, IMD said the monsoon onset over Kerala would take place on May 27, with a standard deviation of four days on either side.

According to the latest Extended Range Forecast (ERF) issued by the IMD, after onset over Kerala, the progress over Karnataka, Goa and the entire northeast India -- where the monsoon's initial advancement happens -- appears to be slow. The ERF shows that the rain will remain normal to below normal till about June 8 along these

Despite this, the monsoon could still make a timely entry and make up for this slow progress. As for instance, the normal date for monsoon arrival over Guwahati. Dibrugarh, Agartala, Dimapur, Udupi, Chennai is June 4; the same over Tezpur, Aizawl, Shillong, Imphal and Itanagar is June 5; over Gangawati is June 6 and Goa is Iune 7. However, the IMD has a word of caution for the farmers before they take up sowing ahead of the Kharif season.

"The farmers must not be in a hurry to carry out sowing, anticipating good rain over their regions soon after onset over Kerala. The IMD is continuously monitoring the onset over Kerala," said an IMD official on Friday. All southern states / UTs have received above normal rain since March. Only Telangana (minus 30 per cent) remains rain deficient during the pre-monsoon season.

This year, the IMD has predicted normal rain with chances of 99 per cent rain of the Long Period Average (LPA).

Court summons Rubaiya Sayeed in her abduction case

ARUN SHARMA JAMMU, MAY 27

A TADA court on Friday summoned Rubaiya Sayeed, daughter of former Union Home Minister Mufti Mohammad Sayeed, on July 15 to record her statement in a case relating to her abduction in December 1989 involving JKLF chief Yasin Malik.

This is the first time Rubaiya has been summoned in the case, and the development comes two davs after an NIA court in Delhi sentenced the Kashmiri separatist leader to life imprisonment in a case related to terrorism and secessionist activities in 2016-17. Rubaiya was abducted in Srinagar on December 8, 1989 – days after her father took over as the Union Home Minister. She was freed from captivity five days later after the then VPSingh government released five JKLF militants in exchange Rubaiya is one of the prosecution witnesses in the case involving Malik and nine others, against whom the TADA court framed charges in January last year more than 31 years after her abduction. The nine others are Ali

The case is currently at evidence stage, with CBI counsel Monica Kohli presenting prosecution evidence against the accused. While Malik, Ali Mohammad

Mir, Gandroo, Sofi, Sheikh and Pahloo have been charged with entering into criminal conspiracy, kidnapping Rubaiva with an intention to murder and keeping her in wrongful confinement under provisions of Ranbir Penal Code, Terrorists and Disruptive Activities Act and Indian Arms Act, the others have been charged with criminal conspiracy, keeping Rubaiya in wrongful confinement and provisions of TADA Act. Apart from these 10 accused, the CBI named 14 others in its charge sheet filed in the TADA court. While two of them have died, 12 others are absconding. According to the CBI charge sheet, the accused entered into a criminal conspiracy in the first week of December 1989 to abduct Rubaiya, who was then undergoing resident rotatory internship training in Srinagar's Lal Ded Hospital, for release of five associates lodged in different jails. According to the CBI, the accused borrowed a blue car Ghulam Mohammad, and assembled in the house of Mushtaq Ahmed Lone on December 8,1989. They planned to kidnap Rubaiya while she is on her way back from the hospital to her residence at Nowgam Bypass, Srinagar. The accused intercepted the mini-bus in which Rubaiya was travelling, and made her board a car. She was kept in captivity till five the JKLF militants were released from different jails.

THREE DAYS after a mother and two daughters allegedly died by suicide during a police raid at their residence in Baghpat's Bachod village, a police officer named in the FIR has been suspended and a three-member Special InvestigationTeam(SIT)hasbeen set up for further probe in the case.

The then in-charge of the Chaprauli police station, Nareshpal, who led the team during the raid, has been suspended following protests by local resiMehak Singh (49), alleged that all the three had consumed poison in the presence of the policemen, who "misbehaved" with them. TOUR OF DUTY RECRUITMENT: MAJOR CHANGES PROPOSED

Release all recruits after 4 years, re-enlist 25% of them after a month

MAN AMAN SINGH CHHINA CHANDIGARH, MAY 27

SOME RADICAL changes have been proposed in the new system of recruitment in the three services – Army, Navy and the Air Force — under the Tour of Duty/Agneepath scheme wherein 100 per cent of the soldiers recruited shall be released from service after four years and then 25 per cent re-enlisted for full service.

Highly placed sources have informed that there has been much discussion over the final format of the Tour of Duty and that some new suggestions have been proposed and are likely to be accepted as the announcement of the new recruitment scheme is expected any day now.

As against the initial proposal that certain percentage of the recruits would be released after three years of service, including released after five years of contractual service with around 25 per cent retained for full term, the new proposal envisages release of 100 per cent recruits of the new scheme after four years. However, with a period of approximately 30 days of release of these soldiers after four years of contractual service, 25 per cent of them would be recalled and re-enlisted as soldiers with a fresh date of joining. Their past four years of contractual service would not be counted towards their full service for the fixation of pay and pension. A substantial sum of money is expected to be saved this way.

Sources say there would be some exceptions made for certain trades of soldiers in the three services wherein these may be retained beyond the four year contractual service because of the technical nature of their job. These could also include personnel serving in the Army Medical Corps.

With no recruitment taking place for nearly two years now in the military, there has been considerable anxiety among the youth of those areas which firm the bedrock of traditional recruiting. There have been protests in Haryana as well as Punjab over the delay in recruitment with many youth fearing that they would turn overage by the time the government decides to reopen recruitment. There have also been instances of youth dying by suicide in Haryana in frustration over not being able to join the Army and getting overage.

Collapse of Narcotics Control Bureau's case against him points to a failed witch hunt. Those who were complicit in it must pay

HE DROPPING OF all charges against Aryan Khan and five others who were arrested by the Narcotics Control Bureau in a raid on the passengers of a cruise ship is well deserved ignominy for the central investigating agency. Ever since the Sushant Singh Rajput suicide case, which saw several central investigation agencies launch parallel investigations on the premise that Mumbai Police had not covered all angles to the case, the NCB had apparently assigned itself the task of dismantling the "Bollywood drug citadel". Red flags should have gone up in Delhi then, and the fact that they didn't may have had more than a little to do with Maharashtra being an Opposition-ruled state, and the imminence of an election in Bihar, Rajput's home state. No attempt was made, therefore, to rein in Sameer Wankhede, then the local head of the NCB, from his celebrity hunt. The October 2021 raid at the Mumbai port jetty from where Khan, son of actor Shah Rukh Khan, was about to board a cruise boat to Goa, appeared prompted by the rush to make a "high value" arrest. At the time, no drugs were found on him, and no test was conducted to ascertain if he or any of the others had used any narcotic substance. The entire case that Khan not only did drugs, but was also a part of a narcotics trafficking ring, rested on WhatsApp chats between him and his friends. Procedural flaws came to light, with serious questions raised on the credibility of at least two of the panch witnesses. The whole episode reeked of a campaign to take Khan down. Clearly, no lessons had been learnt from the stinging rebuke the Bombay High Court had delivered on the case contrived against Rhea Chakraborty, while granting the young actor bail.

It was only after a series of dramatic disclosures about the problems with the Aryan Khan case by NCP politician Nawab Malik that the NCB bosses set up a special investigation team to take over the case. Seven months later, it has admitted that there is no evidence against six persons including Khan. It has chargesheeted 14 others arrested at the time, but has abandoned Wankhede's theory that all 20 were part of an "international conspiracy". The NCB has indicated that Wankhede will be punished. But who will compensate for the time that the six young adults spent in jail while being branded as drug runners, with their parents not being spared either?

The shabby episode does nothing for the reputation of central investigating agencies. It has been apparent for some time that the government is not above wielding these agencies to fix political rivals and others who cross its path. Even without orders from the top, a bullheaded official can feel emboldened enough in the prevailing ecosystem to believe he can get away with acts that might be purely motivated by a personal or political agenda. It should be sobering that Wankhede drew not a little encouragement from cheerleaders in the electronic and social media exulting in the damage that was being done to the reputation of the Khan father and son, just like they did in the defamation of Chakraborty. In a case where so many have lost face, genuine closure will come only by bringing to book Wankhede and all those who misused their power and position to pursue a tawdry witch hunt in this high-profile case.

SHREE'S STORY

It is fitting that a novel that speaks of the fallacy of boundaries should win an award that honours a work in translation

HAT COULD A bird or a butterfly, a road or a passer-by, say about the life of an octogenarian on the cusp of momentous change? Perhaps they could iterate that timeless cliché that every end is a beginning; perhaps, they could speak of the unexpected, often exhilarating insights that come from looking into one's life from the outside. In Tomb of Sand (2021), Daisy Rockwell's English translation of Geetanjali Shree's Hindi novel Ret Samadhi (2018), which, on Friday, became the first book in any Indian language to win the International Booker Prize, they speak of all these and more. In the polyphony of voices that they present as they follow the journey of its protagonist Maiji, they make a case for diversity, but also for the inherent connections that bind us — a befitting tribute to not just the theme of the novel, but also to the idea of translation.

It is somewhat emblematic that a novel that speaks of the fallacy of boundaries should win an award that honours a work in translation. Tomb of Sand is the first novel in an Indian language to be even longlisted for the International Booker Prize, which annually awards a contemporary writer of any nationality for a work translated into English and published in the United Kingdom or Ireland. Shree and Rockwell's win is essential validation of the vitality of the novel in Indian languages that has, of late, benefited from the ascendancy of translated works in contemporary literary hierarchy. Tomb of Sand, for instance, was championed by translator Deborah Smith, who invested the prize money from her International Booker Prize win in 2016, for the English translation of The Vegetarian by Han Kang, into setting up Tilted Axis Press to push Asian literature to an international audience.

Often, in terms of Indian literature on a global platform, it is the work of a handful of Indian or diasporic writers writing in English that gets to share the spotlight. Frequently macroscopic, they highlight more often than not the exotica of subcontinental lives. Shree's novel, rooted in the tradition of Hindi writers such as Shrilal Shukla, Krishna Sobti and Vinod Kumar Shukla, and contemporised in Rockwell's robust linguistic retelling, captures the push and pull of the personal and the political in a region forever in churn. At the awards ceremony on Friday morning, Frank Wynne, the Irish translator and chair of the judges, spoke of the binaries that Shree's novel represents, "youth and age, male and female, family and nation" that make it "a kaleidoscopic whole" — "a novel of India".

A DOG'S LIFE

In the saga of IAS officers walking their pet in the sports stadium, there is only one happy ending

T IS RARE in any controversy involving the powerful to find a completely blameless figure. In the saga of Principal Secretary Sanjeev Khirwar and his wife (also an IAS officer of the All-India cadre) walking their dog in Delhi's Thyagraj stadium, after athletes were forced to stop their training early to allow the canine a wide berth, there is enough blame to go around — the officers' sense of entitlement, the larger culture they represent and even the notion of "punishment" postings to Arunachal Pradesh and Ladakh. Yet, the figure at the centre of the tale is blameless. The dog, after all, didn't demand world-class athletic facilities for his walks.

The chagrin at the bureaucrats is understandable. Unfortunately, their canine's public image too has become a casualty of the outrage. The pedigree dog, like so much else in an unequal society obsessed with status, is a sign of privilege: From the diminutive Pomeranian in the early 1990s, to the German Shephard and now, Huskies — dogs can be as much a marker of social mobility as the move from a hatchback to a sedan. Perhaps the officers' Great Dane, large as that breed is, was meant to serve as a social marker.

Where will the Great Dane go? His fate has been the subject of much concern on social media and beyond. Dogs, like people, are creatures of routine and since the officers are headed off to different locations, he will certainly miss one of them. But there's a silver lining. The pollution-ridden city is no place for a large animal, with or without a stadium at his disposal. Hills, clean air and space to be — that's what a dog needs. In all likelihood, the Dane will not, unlike the bureaucrat, see Ladakh or Arunachal Pradesh as a "punishment posting".

SIMT-E-KASHI SE CHALA janib-e-Mathura baadal - starting from Kashi the cloud advanced towards Mathura – are the deeply devotional words with which an Urdu writer of the recent past, Mohsin Kakorvi, had begun his poetic eulogy for Prophet Muhammad. Long before him, the uncrowned king of Urdu poetry for all times Asadullah Khan Ghalib had visited the holy city then known as Banaras and written a poem in Persian on its spiritual grandeur. Titled Charagh-e-Dair (Light of Temple), the poem described the city as "jannat-e-khurram" (blessed paradise) and "firdaus-e-mamur" (exalted heaven). Freedom-fighter Hasrat Mohani once went to Mathura on Janmashtami and pleaded with Lord Krishna: "Hasrat ki bhi qubool ho Mathura mein haziri, suntey hain aashiqon pe tumhara karam hai aaj" (Accept my pilgrimage to Mathura too, I hear you are today exceptionally kind to devotees). More recently, Anwar Jalalpuri translated the Srimad Bhagwad Gita into Urdu, with an eminently readable reverence, under the title, "Naghma-e-Ilmo-Amal" (hymnody of wisdom and virtue). Unfortunately, these tributes to India's spiritual figures and holy places are lying in oblivion. The masses remember only what a medieval-age despotic Muslim ruler had supposedly done to some ancient shrines in these holy cities.

Going by the ground realities in the country, Muslim citizens cannot keep sailing against the tide. There is no use loudly invoking provisions of the nation's professedly secular Constitution. That quasi-secular charter of governance adopted over seven decades ago includes several religious concessions for chosen communities and leaves ample scope for their reasonable expansion. Time and again it has been modified – well over a 100 amendments in 70 years - and keeps the doors open for further changes. Devised by the first-generation nationalists, this statute of governance may not be seen now as a sacrosanct rulebook, perpetually binding on all future generations. No jurisprudential discourses on interpretation of statutes can perhaps disObstinacy and fanaticism on either side will lead us nowhere. If a minority rigidly sticks to its demands on religious grounds, the dominant majority cannot be expected to be lagging behind. Both have to find together a viable roadmap to nationwide peace. On the holy soil of India, there are millions of old and new temples, mosques, churches and gurdwaras. In such a country, perennial fighting over a few chosen shrines situated in each other's vicinity is irrational and suade the present-day nationalists from reading its provisions in accordance with their ideology.

The Places of Worship (Special Provisions) Act of 1991, as a parliamentary legislation, has even an inferior status. However, in the Ayodhya temple case decided in 2019 by a five-judge bench of the Supreme Court it was projected as a law falling within the parameters of the inviolable basic structure of the Constitution. This doctrine of constitutional jurisprudence was laid down by an 11-judge bench of the court half a century ago. It is to be seen to what extent can this doctrine and its possible dimensions be preserved by the apex court in the present-day circumstances.

What is, then, the way out? The solution indeed lies in the thinking and conduct of to use the Constitution's prefatory terminology — "We the people of India" who together constitute this great nation. It is for us to join hands to preserve peace in our beloved nation, no matter what cost is to be paid for it. Religious freedom here has its own limits for all, be it any particular minority or the dominant majority. Obstinacy and fanaticism on either side will lead us nowhere. If a minority rigidly sticks to its demands on religious grounds, the dominant majority cannot be expected to be lagging behind. Both have to find together a viable roadmap to nationwide peace. On the holy soil of India, there are millions of old and new temples, mosques, churches and gurdwaras. In such a country, perennial fighting over a few chosen shrines situated in each other's vicinity is irrational and indefensible. An amicable settlement of these disputes in the interest of peace in the country - even if not absolutely fair to all factions, it will not be an unconscionable bargain for them.

The judiciary in a predominantly non-Muslim country cannot be expected to be always protecting religious sentiments of the minorities by a watertight adherence to the secular tenor of the Constitution. Balancing competing claims in religious disputes of large magnitude and dispeling even remote chances of perpetual friction in the society form part of the judiciary's Constitutional obligations. Glimpses of the apex court's concerns and constraints in this regard can be seen in a number of its past decisions. In an old case the Lahore High Court had held that "the view that once consecrated a mosque always remains a place of worship as a mosque is not the Mohammedan law of India as approved by the Indian courts" — and the observation was later endorsed by the Privy Council in the Masjid Shahidganj case of 1940. Affirming it in Ismail Faruqui (1995), the Supreme Court had even added that the mosque is "not an essential part of the practice of the religion of Islam" - and had later summarily dismissed a plea for omitting these words from the judgment. And then, above all, there is the Constitution Bench decision of 2019 in the Ayodhya dispute.

If the Kashi-Mathura disputes are finally adjudicated upon by the nation's top court, whatever decision it gives in the interest of peace and harmony should not raise eyebrows. Hopefully, the court will direct necessary measures to be adopted for not allowing the fire to escalate and engulf other places of worship — of whichever community and wherever in the country — and certainly never to any of the national heritage sites. Strict measures are also required to be devised to curb the now free-for-all pastime of denigrating the Muslim religion and throwing mud on their highly revered Prophet.

As regards the Muslims, they must remember Prophet Muhammad's exclamation, recorded in authentic collections of his sayings, that he smelt "areej-ul-ruhaniyah" (fragrance of spirituality) coming from India. It is the sacred obligation of the Muslim leadership in the country to not let it be turned into a dar-ul-harb (abode of hostility) by adopting a confrontationist attitude. They must ensure, at whatever cost they have to pay, that our motherland remains a dar-ul-aman (abode of peace) which it has so far been under the Islamic theories of statecraft.

VIOLENCE OF MONOTHEISM

Idea that god takes multiple forms is ingrained in Indic religions

M Rajivlochan

THE LATEST CONTROVERSIES around Gyanvapi, Qutb Minar and the masjid at Mathura have given new life to the accusation that Hindus committed violence in the past against Buddhists and Jains. The evidence for such violence comes from a few stray references in the Divyavadana where Pushyamitra Sunga is said to have hounded Buddhist monks and a few references that tell us that the Huna ruler Mihirakula destroved Buddhist monasteries and killed monks. Romila Thapar also cites references to Ajaypala in Gujarat who desecrated Jaina temples. In all of 3,000 years of recorded history, these are the only instances of evil behaviour in the name of religion in pre-Islamic India.

Nowhere in Indic texts were any acts of desecration valourised as bringing glory to god. Richard Eaton does refer to incidents where the idol in a temple was kidnapped by a rival king and installed in a temple elsewhere. In the early 10th century, the Pratihara king Herambapala seized a solid gold image of Vishnu Vaikuntha when he defeated the Shahi king of Kangra. By the mid-10th century the same image was seized from the Pratiharas by the Chandella king Yasovarman and installed in the Lakshmana temple of Khajuraho. However, this is very different from images being broken and used by the invaders to wipe their feet on.

Nor are there reports of mass murders in the name of religion. This is what distinguishes these acts from what India saw in the course of the Turkish and Afghan invasions starting Whatever be the text you might choose to pick up, be it any of the Smritis or the Vedas or anything else, you will easily find an equal and opposite view. Even the parody of Hinduism as an Abrahamic religion that was sought to be created during British rule found little resonance among the

from the 11th century till the Marathas put an end to it in the late 17th century. The contemporary Islamic chroniclers who wrote about these events, indicated clearly that murder and temple desecration was entirely justified in a religious jihad and that non-believers were a lesser category of human beings.

In her book Somanatha, Romila Thapar does not deny that the temple of Somanatha was destroyed and the Shiya lingam broken. the upper half being taken to Ghazni for people to walk on. Nor does she deny that the priests of Somanatha had earlier supported the efforts of Persian traders to set up a mosque in the vicinity of the temple. But she does her best to find what can at best be called iustifications for Sultan Mahmud's actions. Isn't it feasible, she suggests, that the Turko-Persian chroniclers were exaggerating in order to glorify the Sultan as the founder of Islamic rule in India? Besides, she points out, Mahmud desecrated mosques of Muslim minority groups like Ismailis and Shias too.

Is someone scared to acknowledge that there indeed was/is a body of people in India who imagine their religion to be the only possible truth and who think that it is alright to wage war against those who believed differently?

The idea that god takes multiple forms, that there are multiple truths, is ingrained in the Indic mind. Whatever be the text you might choose to pick up, be it any of the Smritis or the Vedas or anything else, you will easily find an equal and opposite view. Even the parody of Hinduism as an Abrahamic religion that was sought to be created during British rule found little resonance among the masses. Scholars like Raja Ram Mohun Roy claimed that the Advaita philosophy of Sankaracharya, the Vedanta were living proof that indic religious tradition had the idea of a single god. But Ram Mohun did not find any takers for what he said, even among his own family. A belief in monotheistic Hinduism remained confined to an Indian elite reeling under the impact of British rule and eager to claim that the Abrahamic benchmarks of religion also existed within Hinduism.

The Hindu reluctance to acknowledge that Muslims were willing to kill for their beliefs did not make such beliefs go away. In a survey of opinions of Muslims in 21 countries conducted between 2008 and 2012 by the Pew Research Center, support for suicide bombings against civilian targets as a justification to defend Islam against its enemies was found in 39 per cent of respondents in Afghanistan, 26 per cent in Bangladesh and 13 per cent in Pakistan. Scholar Christine Fair, who used this data set, finds a high correlation between such views and scriptural literalism — what is said in the scriptures is to be taken literally.

It does not matter whether you believe in peace or not, the Taliban have christened a military contingent in Afghanistan as Panipat recently.

How to crack the case

The key to an improved criminal justice system is quality forensic labs and well-trained staff, not more legislation and harsher punishments

OPENING ARGUMENT

BY MENAKA GURUSWAMY

ONE OF THE things I love most about the practice of law is the criminal cases I get to argue. Spanning the gamut from murders to assaults to following money trails - legal and illegal criminal law is an exacting detail-oriented discipline. It is the piecing together by the prosecution of "they did it" while the defence will strive to establish that "the State has not proved beyond reasonable doubt that we did it". Part of the process of investigation that results in the collection of proof pointing to innocence or guilt involves the deployment of forensic

What is forensic science? Katherine Ramsland writes in her book, Beating the Devil's Game: A History of Forensic Science and Criminal Investigation, that "forensic science is the application of scientific perspectives and techniques to the legal process, including investigations and courtroom protocol. It is accurate to say that it is the use of scientific data and procedures specifically for the legal system." She adds that "the disciplines rely on the same values and methodology used by other members of the scientific community. There is rigorous procedure involved, including controlled conditions, reliable data collection and the attempt to disprove hypotheses."

What does this forensic science of data collection and attempt to prove or disprove the hypothesis look like from the perspective of familiar techniques or methods? Essentially, methodologies like the autopsy procedures, fingerprinting, testing and matching for poisons, blood spatter analysis, matching guns to bullets fired (ballistics), voice sample matches, handwriting assessments and DNA analysis are all facets of forensic science.

Forensic sciences have gained great cultural popularity over the past two decades with the onset of crime shows on television. My favourites among these crime shows are Law and Order (the American series set in New York City), Mare of Easttown, Shetland and Real Detective. These are series built around crimes being solved by police conducting investigations aided by forensic science. The weary and overworked detective, fighting an apathetic system, watching the medical examiner explain the wounds on the corpse or sipping coffee while waiting impatiently for the crucial DNA test result are now all seared into our popular imagination. Towards the end of the episode, the detective solves the crime and the "bad guy" is caught.

However, real-life crime-solving is a bit different. India has amongst the highest disparities in police-citizens and judge-citizens ratios. However, that is the subject matter of another column. We also have a woefully inadequate number of forensic science laboratories (FSL). There are seven central forensic laboratories in India at Hyderabad, Kolkata, Chandigarh, New Delhi, Guwahati, Bhopal and Pune. The laboratory in Delhi is under the control of the CBI and investigates cases on its behalf.

Six of these laboratories, barring Delhi, are under the control of the Directorate of Forensic Science Services (DFSS), and its mission is to render high quality and credible forensic services to the justice delivery system. A National Forensic Sciences University was established in Gandhinagar, Gujarat in 2020. The existing National Institute of Criminology and Forensic Science in Delhi has been integrated into this new university. There are 32 state FSLs and about 529 mobile FSL units, of which Delhi has one state FSL and six mobile units. There are many private forensic laboratories in the country and their quality and standards of integrity

What does it mean to have inadequate state forensic facilities? It means that the FSL reports that the police and the defence so eagerly await take an inordinate amount of time to be prepared. It also means that often, forensic analysis is simply not conducted and the criminal justice system relies principally on witness statements. Let us consider some statistics.

The DNA tests discovered in 1985 are used identify individuals involved in alleged crimes. In 2017, The Hindu reported that while the United Kingdom completes DNA testing on over 60.000 crimes annually. India with over 13 times the population completes such tests on less than 7,500 cases. The average pendency at each lab is huge.

Some shortages are caused by the lack of laboratories while others are caused by a lack of adequate qualified personnel. The Supreme Court observed In Re: Speedy Trial of Undertrial Prisoners (2018) after assessing the state of the Central Forensic Science Laboratories that 97 posts of scientific officers and 67 administrative posts are unfilled. On state facilities, there was a lack of information on staffing from the labs in many states. In all states, there were over 50 per cent vacancies in personnel at their facilities. The Court had asked the central government to address the situation. The Court recognised that the lack of personnel meant that often trials were delayed to non-receipt of FSL

India has long and enduring ties to the forensic sciences. In 1896, Edward Henry, a magistrate in the country, during a long train ride, came up with the loop and delta system, which is the foundation for all fingerprinting today. Henry's discoveries aside, we certainly need more investment in the establishment of FSL laboratories, the training and appointment of personnel adept at forensic methodologies and reforms within our police to establish a trained and skilled detective cadre tasked with solving complex and heinous crimes.

There is a desperate need for good quality raining facilities, standards of accreditation and continuous education programmes for our forensic experts. Forensic science is also everevolving, and it is important to know which facets of the science are still credible and what methodologies must be discarded. It is not more legislation and harsher punishments that will solve crimes, but well-trained forensic staff plying their craft in good quality laboratories that will aid our criminal justice

Power, not civilisation

Those who celebrate India as a 'civilisational state', present a partial picture of history and society

Aparna Vaidik

AT A recent seminar in Delhi University, the vice-chancellor of JNU made a tough case for history as a knowledge system based on sacredness of facts. She was seeking to straighten the historical record by spotlighting one such fact that she claims has been distorted by professional historians. According to her, Indian civilisation is the fount of Indian nationalism and its statehood (and not the Indian Constitution). She makes her argument for India as a "civilisational state" while admonishing historians for being more invested in their interpretations than in facts of history. Are historical facts, as the VC assumes, objective evidence of past happenings? Do they come to us unmediated by any other reality?

Such a notion of facts has long been contested by both social and natural scientists. Even E H Carr, whom she (mis)interprets, believed that not all facts served as evidence, and it was a historian's subjectivity that distinguished one from the other. The crucial variable in a historian's search for facts, what gets construed as facts, the way facts are narrativised and the imagery that certain facts evoke for the readers is the historian's framework. Even within science, facts do not have the same meaning for all scientists. Thomas Kuhn argued in The Structure of Scientific Revolutions (1962) that the same facts seen from diverse paradigms can appear different. One's framework, therefore, serves as the lens or filter through which a historian examines "facts" and comes up with "interpretations".

Civilisation as a framework became a unit of study with Arnold J Toynbee's Civilisation on Trial (1948). Previously, the term "civilisation" was used in the 19th century in different contexts by the Orientalists and Indians like Rabindranath Tagore but it came into academic language to describe an ancient social formation with archaeologist V Gordon Childe's Man Makes Himself (1936). Childe identified several human achievements that were essential for a society to be called a civilisation. For him, a civilisation was a homogenous and internally cohesive entity, one without diversity and difference. The idea harboured an imagination of a Golden Age, which was meant to be a celebration of the grand human conquest over nature. The term civilisation thus entered common parlance as a European cultural framework which, for instance, celebrated Greek civilisation's democracy but invisibilised its brutal slave system. What remained in view were the triumphs and not the savagery and exploitation that undergirded the very idea of

What vision of Indian history does the civilisational lens open up? True to its European antecedents, this framework freezes time and immobilises history by mothballing the golden human age in the very ancient past (Satyug) and where the present becomes a regression (Kaliyug). The time of the past is believed to hold in its belly an eternal truth from which evolved the notion of Hindu universalism. That is, the idea of Hinduism as a civilisation coterminous with the idea of India spiritual, non-violent, and assimilative. And one that would become the fount of Indian nationalism. This sanatan dharma, however, was believed to have been degraded with the passage of time as a result of contact with the barbarian Other (Muslims) that now needs to be recovered and protected for India to become a vishwaguru. For the cultural nationalist, Indian civilisation is a resplendent tableau of high Brahmanical culture with Sanskrit at its core. It valorises Chola conquest in the same breath as the idea of universal brotherhood (Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam) and holds up 3,000 crore Hindu gods as emblematic of Indian diversity. The VC's speech further assimilates the Dravidian history into what is primarily a north Indian Brahmanical discourse by talking about the Chola empire and the Tamil culture as part of the larger pan-Indian Hindu

This civilisational understanding of Indian history, much like that of the ancient Greek civilisation, rests on a willful forgetting of the exploitation of women and the oppression of labouring castes, pastoral, nomadic and forest communities. It forgets that the genealogy of mass movements in India starts with Jotiba Phule and not with Bal Gangadhar Tilak as stated in the VC's speech. As shown by the late sociologist Sharmila Rege, Tilak, in fact, drew on the mobilisation of the satyashodhak jalsa when he started the Ganapati festival in 1898. Later he went on to co-opt Shivaji as the go-brahman pratipalak, as an anti-Muslim leader. For the Dalits, this variant of Indian civilisation is a story of Aryan cruelty, Lord Rama beheading Shambhuka, and savarna masters violating their women. In their haste to dislodge the Constitution, one wonders if the adherents of the civilisational framework realise how inherently violent, elite and European this epistemic

The past does not reveal itself to us on its own but comes to us refracted through our frameworks which, in turn, make only certain kinds of pasts available to us. History is a very potent form of authenticating the knowledge of the past and can, therefore, help in excavating the manner in which power is upheld or critiqued. How does a particular framework conceive of power, does it legitimise, authenticate and establish power or does it question, unsettle, and overturn power? In order words, what kind of social order does this history celebrate and what type of social hierarchies does it project as desirable? Power is the static noise, the low hum with which history buzzes. It is power that creates dis-

Justice, a click away

Embracing technology can ensure speed, efficiency and closure

Syed Ali Murtaza Naqvi

RICHARD ERIC Susskind in his book, The Future of Law, wrote that in the coming years, lawyers and their litigants would communicate through email. In Online Courts and the Future of Justice, he contended that technology will bring drastic changes in the field of law and will transform the Court system.

The Indian judiciary has increasingly started using technology and the change is reflected in the legal profession in general as well. Some significant developments had taken place before the Covid-19 crisis in 2020, with the digitisation of judicial records and establishing of e-courts. Hence, it is imperative that the use of digital technology be discussed to better utilise its potential, particularly in terms of digitisation of court records, e-filing of cases and their virtual hearing, live streaming of court proceedings.

In India, e-governance in the field of administration of justice began in the late 1990s, but it accelerated after the enactment of the Information and Technology Act, 2000. As the 21st century began, the focus was on digitising the court's records and establishing ecourts across the country. In the year of 2006, e-courts were launched as a part of the National e-Governance Plan (NEGP).

In this regard, the Allahabad High Court is a guiding example. When he was the Chief Justice of Allahabad HC, Justice D Y Chandrachud had conceptualised and initiated the project to digitise approximately one crore case files in one year. This was necessary as not only was a large space required to store so many files, it was also becoming difficult to manually preserve decades-old documents. Another purpose was to ensure that these files are traceable electronically as and when required. The consequences of missing court records are grave. In State of Uttar Pradesh v. Abhay Raj Singh it was held by the Supreme Court that if court records go missing and reconstruction is not possible, the courts are bound to set aside the conviction. Thus, convicts can go free for want of court records. This is not a rare occurrence and in many old cases, criminal records are found to go missing thereby leading to the acquittal of the accused.

The time consumed in summoning $records from \, the \, lower \, courts \, to \, the \, appellate$ courts is one of the major factors causing delays in cases. With digitisation, it will take much less time for the lower courts to transmit the records as and when called for. It has also been observed that cases are adjourned simply because affidavits filed several years ago were not restored with the record or were not traceable. Once the documents are digitised and e-filed by counsels, at least the cases would not get adjourned by the courts on this account.

Once a lawyer or a litigant files a case digitally, he or she can check the status of the filing, the status of applications and affidavits, date of the next hearing, orders passed by the courts etc. just by clicking on an app. The lawyers benefit because they or their staff are no longer required to visit the reporting sections or other sections of the court to know about the status of their cases. This has been sought to be implemented by the e-Committee of the Supreme Court by issuing directions to ensure that e-filing of cases/petitions by state governments in all matters be made mandatory from January

Before the pandemic, virtual hearings were used only in a limited manner; for example, in criminal cases where it was not possible to produce the accused physically before the court or while extending the remand of the accused. Not every case can be disposed of virtually, however. Cases related to matrimonial issues and domestic violence, bounced cheques, motor accident compensation referred to mediation centres and lok adalats could be included in the list of cases fit for disposal through the virtual hearing.

 $The \ hearing \ of \ matrimonial \ cases \ through$ video-conferencing was approved by the Supreme Court in the matter of Krishna Veni Nagam v Harish Nagam (2017), however, the direction was short-lived and a coordinate bench of the Supreme Court in the case of Santhini v Vijaya Venkatesh (2018) referred the matter for reconsideration before a larger bench. Recently, the Supreme Court in Anjali Brahmawar Chauhan v Navin Chauhan allowed the family court, Gautam Buddha Nagar, to conduct the trial of a matrimonial case through videoconferencing.

In 2018, the Supreme Court allowed the live-streaming of cases of constitutional and national importance on the basis of the judgment in Swapnil Tripathi. The livestreaming of court proceedings is a step towards ensuring transparency and openness.

While several reservations were expressed against it, the Gujarat HC in July 2021 became the first court in the country to livestream its proceedings. The legal and technical impediments in the process of livestreaming were ably done away under the leadership of Justice Vikram Nath, the then Chief Justice of Gujarat HC. Its example was followed by other HCs like Karnataka, Odisha, Madhya Pradesh and

Internet connectivity issues and the need for a well-equipped space where lawyers can conduct their cases are some of the major problems requiring attention, Political will and the support of judges and lawyers are also necessary. Judges, court staff and lawyers are not well-versed with digital technology and its benefits. The need of the hour is for them to be made aware of these and receive adequate training. Virtual hearings cannot be a substitute for physical court hearings in all cases. However, in appropriate cases and certain categories of cases as identified by the court administration in consultation with the members of the Bar, virtual hearing should be made

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

PUBLIC FIRST

THIS REFERS TO the editorial, 'The ugly VIP' (IE, May 27). For the high-profile bureaucrat, it is clear that walking his dog took priority over young athletes, who represent our country internationally, to have access to public spaces to train. The bureaucrat's expedient denial of having cleared out the park to walk his dog, and his boss's obliviousness to this misuse of power point to the regularity of events like these, as well as the immunity these VIPs enjoy. ROOT CAUSE

THIS REFERS TO the editorial, 'The ugly VIP' (IE, May 27). A senior IAS officer using public property at his own discretion is disgraceful. However, to single out the bureaucracy for entrenched VIP culture is unfair. The military establishment, corporations, people with deep pockets, judiciary and, media houses are all part of the same VIP ecosystem. In India, brushes with the public are limited to photo-ops meant to appeal to populist sensibilitues. We witnessed, during the pandemic, how VIPs got admitted to private hospitals, while millions struggled for oxygen cylinders. Deepak Singhal, Noida

WHAT NEXT?

THIS REFERS TO the article, 'Note to the consumer' (IE, May 27). India is a largely agrarian economy characterised by deep economic divides amongst different sections of the society. The global crisis triggered by the war in Ukraine has had an adverse impact on the Indian economy. The price of petrol and diesel skyrocketed leading to inflation of basic agricultural commodities. The Government has finally intervened and made a pacifying move by taking various measures, like reducing excise duties on petrol and diesel. Hopefully, there will be some respite soon.

TIME TO LEARN

THIS REFERS TO the editorial, 'Relearning to learn' (IE, 27 May). The National Assessment Survey report confirms our fears on the impact of the pandemic on school education. The setback aggravates an existing problem and makes the task of imparting a good school education tougher. It also highlights the shortcomings of an over reliance on online learning. Challenging as it may be, the task of bringing our schools on track must be taken up in earnest. As a start, the authorities must remove the impediments to learning, such as poor school infrastructure, inadequate quantity of teachers and the quality of their training, curtailed mid day meals, and the widening digital divide.

A Timely Reminder

THE MINIATURIST OF JUNAGADH

Director: Kaushal Oza Cast: Naseeruddin Shah, Rasika Dugal, Raj Arjun, Padmavati Rao Streaming on: Large Short Films

ALAKA SAHANI

GRIEVING OVER loss can manifest in unexpected ways. Kaushal Oza's agony over losing his ancestral home prodded him to write and direct The Miniaturist of Junagadh. Set during the post-Partition period in Junagadh, the short film is a poignant account of a blind miniature artist Husyn Naqqash (Shah) selling his home and belongings before moving to Karachi with his wife Sakina (Rao) and daughter Noor (Dugal). Naqqash is leaving behind a place where he lived his whole life, apart from enjoying appreciation for his artistic excellence.

It is a painful displacement for the family, which had once seen glorious days and fame. Their story, told in less than 30 minutes, is a reminder of the loss that our society has suffered in the past over religious intolerance.

The film cautions us not to forget our past as we navigate today's faultlines

When Oza's centuryold ancestral bungalow in Mumbai's Borivli was going to be demolished to build a housing complex in its place some years ago, he wanted to preserve its memory by shooting a movie there. Eventually, he chose to adapt the German short story, Die Unsichtbare Sammlung, written by Stefan Zweig after World War I. Oza set the story in Junagadh, as he believes that the impact of Partition on western India has not been shown much in films.

The short film, which travelled to several festivals before its online release, dwells on the loss of home and identity. It is also a celebration of the wonderful fusion of Hindu-Muslim culture that has enriched the subcontinent's age-old artistic traditions. While grief and nostalgia are the mainstays of the film, it offers a glimmer of hope through art and music. A miniature painting - considered to be a priceless work by Naggash — is what moves Kishorilal (Arjun), a hardcore businessman, who is not only buying the once-revered miniaturist's home but also eying his other valuable possessions.

The film offers insight into human behaviour. It also underlines the need for empathy to bridge the communal divide. The cast delivers a captivating performance, capturing the complex emotions associated with the loss of home. The film cautions us not to forget our past as we navigate today's faultlines.

THERE'S A difference between being old-fashioned and outdated, and Nirmal Pathak Ki Ghar Wapsi often finds itself on the wrong side of this thin line. Ironically, for a show that arrives at the peak of the streaming era, the fiveepisode drama has the dubious power to transport you back to the days when Doordarshan had three scripted shows and the news to watch.

A sappy melodrama that occasionally switches to broad comedy, the show tells the story of the titular Nirmal Pathak, a city-bred man in his 30s, who travels back to his ancestral village in Bihar to attend a family wedding. Immediately, things are unclear. Why, for instance, does Nirmal have two mothers – one an English-speaking 'mom' and the other a ghunghat-wearing 'maa'?

We are drip-fed information about Nirmal's father, a well-respected man who was outcast from the village many years ago, after having some kind of a mysterious altercation with his brother,

Nirmal's 'chacha'. This man, who is perpetually yelling the top his lungs every time he appears on screen, sees Nirmal as some kind of external threat and a reminder of his more accomplished brother. The domestic disputes take a backseat when, inevitably, the show turns to

Swades and attempts to solve every social ill within sight. "Yeh ladai aap logon ki hai, meri nahi hai," a weepy Nirmal tells an elderly lower-caste man in the village, reminding him that he will be around only for four days. In those four days, however, Nirmal tackles issues as complex as patriarchy, municipal corruption, the education system, and the idea of consent. Later, when his 'maa' falls gravely ill, he lashes out at his family for downplaying her health concerns, yelling, "Pura din naukrani jaise kaam karti hain," without realising the built-in discriminatory subtext of his callous statement, where a 'naukrani' is beneath Nirmal's 'maa'. What this brief example of ingrained classism suggests is that the show's wokemindedness is not only inorganically infused in the storytelling, but worse, it's performative.

The show parades its protagonist around town. like some sort of messiah. There's a laid-back pace to the storytelling, which I suppose is designed to mimic the rustic Hindi novels that it is trying to pay homage to — Nirmal himself is a writer.

Nirmal Pathak Ki Ghar Wapsi is a modest show, but while stylistic simplicity can be forgiven, the ideas that it attempts to unpack deserved a defter hand.

ANEK ★★★

Director: Anubhav Sinha Cast: Ayushmann Khurrana, JD Chakravarthy, Andrea Kevichusa, Manoj Pahwa, Kumud Mishra, Loitongbam Dorendra Singh, Mipham Otsal

SHUBHRAGUPTA

THE NORTHEAST states, long been dubbed the 'seven sisters', a phrase which has fallen into disuse these days, is the focus of Anubhav Sinha's Anek. The title is smart, incorporating not only the acronym 'NE', but also talking up how this part of India, long a hotbed of insurgency and turmoil, can now be brought within the fold.

Is the film a reality check, or wish fulfilment? Sinha, who has been consistently engaging with the political in his second coming (communal politics in Mulk, gender politics in Thappad, caste politics in Article 15) dips his toe into relatively unexplored territory, with mixed results. Attempting to unravel the complex layers of a region still considered remote and faintly foreign by a large swathe of India, is in and of itself brave, and the director who has also written the movie, takes on the challenge manfully. But the difficulties of being fully cognizant of the Northeast's manylayered facets weigh upon the film: in trying to say it like it is, as well as please the many players which currently train a hawk's eye on what the movies say and how they say it, it becomes neither this nor that.

In Mani Ratnam's 1998 Dil Se, Shah Rukh Khan's All India Radio reporter, Amar, becomes the medium through which we hear the voice of Assam's gun-toting insurgents, as well as their sympathisers. So many years later, it is Ayushmann Khurrana's Aman who, despite being a much more active and propulsive instrument of the state, does something similar in trying to become that conduit.

Belonging to a state-owned radio network, Amar moves from asking statist questions to looking at how long-term oppression by the armed forces, and central neglect, has impacted the people of Assam: here, the undercover agent, Aman, ricochets between his feelings for the attractive Aido (Andrea Kevichusa), a talented boxer who wants to play for India, and his loyalties towards those who employ him. Part of what the film attempts is to show how Aman moves from one end of the spectrum, where he is merely following instructions, to become aware of more not just the girl with her boxing dreams, but also a mother and teenage son who are victims of the games being played on the ground, and a man who may represent what the people' want. We get a series of expository statements, but the leading man and the film come off woolly, being careful to stay in the middle of the while-on-the-one-side, but-also tightrope. Machinations in Delhi, ably carried out by senior sarkaari officials (Manoj Pahwa pointedly playing a Kashmiri Muslim, and Kumud Mishra smiling darkly through his crafty babu) pull strings in the faraway state where we see people play football, sing songs, strum the guitar, and land punches in the ring, all the stuff people do 'in the Northeast'. We hear racist, crude remarks like 'chilli chicken' (one among the many pejoratives used for people from the Northeast) being flung about. We see rows of young men, their hands tied to bamboo sticks, being beaten mercilessly. We see a rag-tag bunch of armed insurgents being caught in the crossfire. We see a powerful leader who is pushing for 'peace', but is involved in all kinds of illegal activities. These are strong strands but they never quite become an impactful whole.

Once in a while we also hear the deeprooted cynicism that immediately cuts close to the bone and which belongs much more to what this film is striving for: do 'they' want 'peace' or 'a peace accord'? There's a difference, and only those who know, know. There's also this: 'who really wants peace, because war is much more profitable'. These are the moments which feel true. And then the film swings back to its springy safety net. Conviction or cop-out? Your decision will depend on which side of the fence you are on.

National Facility for Gene Function in Health & Disease: what it will do, what's in it

ANJALI MARAR

PUNE, MAY 27

THE NATIONAL Facility for Gene Function in Health and Disease (NFGFHD) was inaugurated in Pune by Dharmendra Pradhan, Union Minister of Education, on Friday.

The NFGFHD has been set up at the Indian Institute of Science Education and Research (IISER), Pune. Built by IISER Pune and supported by the Department of Biotechnology (DBT) at a total cost of about Rs 45 crore, this will be one-of-its-kind large facilities providing timely supply of animal models to researchers studying a range of diseases from cancer to diabetes. Rats, mice and rabbits will be housed here, doing away with the need to import them.

Why it is needed

With a growing zoonotic disease burden on human health, there is an increased urgency to perform disease studies based on physiological evidence and methods. Since human trials alone cannot suffice for such studies, the need for having experimental setups using animal models has become imperative. Hence, animal, plant and microorganism-based models are now being significantly deployed to study diseases in a time-bound manner.

"Scientists depend on small animals such as rats, mice and rabbits to study human diseases. When an animal model is used to study diseases, we need to carefully follow the animal's well-being for long durations. During this time-frame, the animals are prudently observed, bred for further generations. Their behaviours are monitored in responses to stimuli, signs for any phenotypic variations, feeding behaviours and changes in habits if any," said Prof Anjan Banerjee, Dean, Research and Development at IISER, Pune.

Technological facilities

The facility houses molecular biology laboratories and mico-injection setups to generate mouse models, in which scientists will knock out existing genes and replace them with external or artificial genes that are linked to the disease under study. This is done through CRISPR / Cas9 systems.

There are facilities for making embryonic stem cell-based models and traditional transgenic mice models, embryo and sperm cryopreservation, and in-vitro fertilisation.

"We now have trained and skilled manpower, including veterinary scientists and technicians to provide timely service such as transgenic (gene knockout or knock-in) mice, rats, to scientists working at IISER Pune and other institutes, universities and industries across the country," Dr Banerjee said.

PM Modi's gifts to other Quad leaders, and their cultural roots

VANDANA KALRA

AT THE Quad summit in Tokyo, Prime Minister Narendra Modi presented gifts to the leaders of the US,

Australia and Japan showcasing India's cultural heritage and art forms.

SANJHI ART PANEL: The intricate Sanjhi panel that Modi gifted to US President Joe Biden is based on the theme of Thakurani Ghat on the banks of the Yamuna in Gokul. The traditional art form, that originated out of the cult of Krishna, involves creating stencils based on incidents from the life of the deity and then hand-cutting them on thin sheets of paper using scissors. Banana leaves were used in the olden days, and handmade and recycled paper are used now.

Radha, according to Hindu mythology, used to paint Sanihi patterns on the walls for her beloved Krishna. Later, the form was used to make ceremonial rangolis in Krishna temples. Sanjhi painting popularised in the 15th and the 16th centuries by Vaishnava temple priests. The Mughal period introduced contemporary themes.

GOND ART PAINTING: Modi's gift to Australian PM Anthony Albanese depicted a popular motif in Gond art — the Tree of Life. This form of painting is practised by one of the largest tribal groups in India, the Gonds. The art's popularity is often traced to Jangarh Shyam, who in the 1970s began drawing oral myths and legends of the tribe on the walls of homes in Madhya Pradesh's Patangarh village. As the form received global attention, several Gond artists gained recogni-

Monkeypox rising, what now

Cases of monkeypox have spread to nearly 20 countries that are usually not known to have such outbreaks. What are the concerns for India, what warning signs must you look for, and what steps are being taken?

From The Indian Express panel of specialists, exclusive insight

What do we know so far about this outbreak?

Cases have been reported since May 13. Several countries have reported cases, all of which are non-endemic for monkeypox and outside Africa. Different approaches to preparedness are being used by the World Health Organization (WHO) and member states for handling patients and testing the samples. The United Kingdom has also reported community transmission, which has made the situation worrisome. But so far, no associated deaths have been reported.

There are no established travel links to the endemic area. This is another concern. We know that the monkeypox virus belongs to Orthopoxvirus genus of the Poxviridae family which also includes smallpox. Since these are DNA viruses, we need a PCR test. Genome sequencing was done from a lesion swab sample of a case in Portugal and has indicated a very close match of the monkeypox virus causing the current outbreak, which was first exported from Nigeria to the UK, Israel and Singapore in 2018 and 2019.

Surveillance in non-endemic areas has been limited but it is now expanding. As of now, no cases have been reported from the Southeast Asian region. Epidemiological investigations are ongoing and a travel advisory has been issued. We continue to discuss various issues on the monkeypox virus.

Is this the first time so many cases have been found in non-endemic countries?

Absolutely right. Cases have been identified in 11 African countries since 1970. But the true burden of the monkeypox virus was

CONFIRMED CASES SO FAR The WHO has confirmed nearly 200 monkeypox cases in 20 countries; the online resource Our World in Data lists over 300 cases in 19 countries as of May 26. Germany Sweden Israel Switzerland 3 United Arab Emirates 1 23 United Kingdom 90 Portugal 58 United States 9 Slovenia 2 known much later. For example, in 1996-97, there was an outbreak in Congo with a higher incidence and case fatality ratio. Since 2017, Nigeria has experienced a large outbreak with over 500 suspected cases and over 200 cases with a case fatality ratio of approximately 3%.

In India, what has been the prevalence of diseases related to monkeypox?

As we all know, smallpox was a very dangerous disease but using mass immunisation programme, we eradicated it in 1978. In India, there is another disease related to the same tural heritage. He is also considered a master of the ancient art of Avadhana (literary performance) and is credited with reviving the art in Kannada. His Sanskrit works include

Anvesanam, an allegorical one-act play, and Sankaravivekiyam, a poem with two readings.

family: cowpox and buffalopox. Sporadic cases have been reported not only in cows or buffaloes but in humans too, indicating animal-to-human transmission. However, till now, monkeypox cases has never been reported in the country. Hence, it is an exotic pathogen. That is why we need more precautionary measures in place because it is a disease that we have not been exposed to and don't have immunity against. That is a challenge and matter of concern.

What symptoms to watch out for?

Although this disease goes through four phases, the phase I would like to describe is very important per se. The first invasion period, between 0-5 days, is characterised by fever, headache and lymph node swelling. The swelling of the lymph nodes is not observed in similar rash-causing diseases like measles and chickenpox. Patients also show generalised weakness or lack of energy. Skin eruptions usually show up within two days of fever. The rash is more concentrated on the face as is apparent in 95% cases. In 75% cases, it is found in the palm and sole of the feet. It affects the oral mucous membrane in 70% of the cases. The conjunctiva, cornea of the eye and the genital area can also get affected.

Although it is largely a self-limiting disease, it can lead to some difficult phases when it affects the lungs and the eyes. High-risk groups include children, pregnant women and immune-compromised patients, including those who have diabetes. They can have more severe consequences compared to others.

Can smallpox vaccines also protect against monkeypox? Since the eradication of smallpox in 1980, use of smallpox vaccination was stopped for the general public. When it was eradicated, the virus was kept in two maximum containment laboratories, in Russia and in the US. In the US, the FDA approved the Jynneos smallpox vaccine against monkeypox in 2019. Past data from Africa suggests that this vaccine is at least 85% effective in preventing monkeypox. Experts also believe that vaccination after exposure to monkeypox might help prevent the disease or make it less severe. The smallpox vaccine gives protection but waning response with time can lead to re-occurrence.

The smallpox vaccine is not available to the general public. So that is another challenge if anybody wants to go for it.

How will India prepare?

Whenever there is a threat of a new viral disease, there is a travel advisory and a preparedness alert to all states. International travel to endemic and outbreak regions would be a significant risk factor for importation of cases. So, any such cases would be under surveillance at entry points. Samples of symptomatic patients will be referred to NIV, Pune. Since it is a DNA virus, we will need to do a PCR test and sequencing of genome. We also have the orthopox PCR test, which can rule out other pox viruses. Based on the confirmation and genome sequencing, the authorities will be informed about positive cases if any.

SC directions on sex workers: history of the case, and where it stands now

ANANTHAKRISHNANG NEW DELHI, MAY 27

EXERCISING POWERS under Article 142 of the Constitution, the Supreme Court on May 19 asked states and Union Territories to "implement" and "to act in strict compliance of" certain recommendations made by a panel appointed by the court in 2011 on the rehabilitation of sex workers.

What was the case about?

In 2010, an appeal was filed in the SC against a July 25, 2007 order of the Calcutta High Court by which the latter upheld the life imprisonment imposed on a man named Budhadev Karmaskar, found guilty of murdering a sex worker in Kolkata's red light area in September 1999. On February 14, 2011, the SC dismissed Karmaskar's appeal against his conviction and sentencing.

The court suo motu converted the case into a PIL to address the problems of sex workers. It said: "We strongly feel that the Central and the State Governments through Social Welfare Boards should prepare schemes for rehabilitation all over the country for physically and sexually abused women commonly known as prostitutes as we are of the view that the prostitutes also have a right to live with dignity under Article 21 of the Constitution..." It issued notices seeking responses from the central and state governments.

What happened thereafter?

On July 19,2011, the SC appointed a panel comprising Senior Advocates Pradip Ghosh and Jayant Bhushan, and the NGOs Usha Multipurpose Co-operative Society, Durbar Mahila Samanwaya Committee and Roshni Academy "to assist and advise" it "for giving suitable directions in this matter".

The panel was asked to study and make "suitable suggestions" on "prevention of trafficking...rehabilitation of sex workers who wish to leave sex work" and, as per a revised term of reference, "on conditions conducive for sex workers to live with dignity in accordance with the provisions of Article 21...".

What did the panel say in its report? In its final report submitted on September 14, 2016, the panel noted that sex workers found it difficult to acquire proofs of identity such as ration cards or voter cards because they lacked a proof of residence. It said that district authorities did not recognise the identities of sex workers and their children, and sex workers did not have access to schemes meant for their rehabilitation. They also had no access to credit offered by states, because the lack of documents prevented them from opening bank accounts, the panel said.

The committee recommended that amendments should be made to The Immoral Traffic (Prevention) Act, 1956.

How did the Centre respond?

The Centre told the court that the amendments suggested by the committee were under active consideration for a comprehensive law to be enacted by Parliament. On February 27, 2020, the government's law officer informed the SC "that a Group of Ministers has been constituted to examine the two draft legislations" and the "Report of the Committee appointed by this Court shall be taken into consideration by the Group of Ministers".

What happened in court subsequently? The SC continued to monitor developments and, on September 29, 2020, directed States and Union Territories to provide dry rations to sex workers identified by National Aids Control Organisation (NACO) without insisting on proof of identity. It asked District Legal Services Authorities to assist in this.

On January 10, 2022, the court asked states and UTs to complete the process of issuing ration cards/voter cards to all sex workers, as was recommended by the committee in an interim report.

On May 19, a Bench led by Justice L Nageswara Rao noted that despite its assurances, the Centre was still to bring a law on the subject. Therefore, the court used its extraordinary powers under Article 142 (which enables it to pass orders necessary to do "complete justice" in a pending matter), and directed that some of the recommendations which "relate only to the rehabilitation measures in respect of sex workers and other connected issues" be implemented by states and UTs. The directions, it said, "will hold the field till a legislation is made by the Union of India".

Which are the recommendations that the SC has directed to be implemented?

The May 19 order listed 10 recommendations of the panel, and directed that six of them should be implemented.

These include: provision for immediate medical assistance for any sex worker who is a victim of sexual assault; direction to states to do a survey of all Immoral Trafficking (Prevention) Act Protective Homes so that cases of adult women who are detained against their will can be reviewed and processed for release in a time-bound manner; sensitising police and other law enforcement agencies to the rights of sex workers and to ensure that police treat them with dignity and do not abuse them verbally or physically or coerce them into any sexual activity;

New Delhi

ask The Press Council of India to issue appropriate guidelines for the media to take utmost care not to reveal the identities of sex workers; and direction that measures that sex workers employ for their health and safety (condoms, etc.) must neither be construed as offences nor seen as evidence of commission of an offence.

Which recommendations remain pending?

The Centre said it had "certain reservations" on four recommendations of the panel. These are: no criminal action against sex worker who is adult and participating with consent; arresting only the brothel owner and not sex workers during raid on brothels; role of sex workers in decision-making processes, including planning, designing and implementing policy relating to sex work; a recommendation with regard to children of sex workers.

The SC has asked the Centre to file its response to the recommendations of the panel within six weeks.

Lyman's fall followed intense artillery bombardments, including from one of the most fearsome weapons in Russia's conventional arsenal: fuel-air bombs that set off huge, destructive shock waves. And while the weapons' use highlighted the pyrrhic victories Russia's military has achieved in its scaleddown objectives in Ukraine's east, its capturing of Lyman also showed its ability to gain ground using creeping advances.

President Volodymyr Zelenskyy of Ukraine warned in an overnight address that Russian forces were trying to turn cities and towns in the east of the country "to ashes." With civilians also being killed at an alarming rate. he charged that the actions amounted to "an obvious policy of genocide pursued by Russia."

A new report from international legal scholars released on Friday echoed such claims about the war generally. It said that mass killings, deliberate attacks on shelters or evacuation routes, and the indiscriminate bombardment of residential areas by Russian forces established a "genocidal pattern" indicating an intent to wipe out a substantial part of the Ukrainian population.

Al Jazeera says will go to ICC over killing of journalist during Israeli raid

JOSEPH KRAUSS JERUSALEM, MAY 27

THE AL Jazeera news network said it would submit a case file to the International Criminal Court on the killing of reporter Shireen Abu Akleh, who was shot dead earlier this month during an Israeli raid in the occupied West Bank.

The Qatar-based network and the Palestinian Authority have accused Israeli soldiers of deliberately killing her. Israel reiects those allegations. It has said she was shot during a firefight between soldiers and Palestinian militants, and that only ballistic analysis of the bullet — which is held by the PA — can determine who fired the fatal shot.

An AP reconstruction lent support to witnesses who say the veteran Palestinian-American correspondent was killed by Israeli fire.

Al Jazeera said late Thursday t has formed an international legal team to prepare a case dossier to be submitted to the ICC. Israel is not a member of the international court.

Over the next 78 minutes, more than half a dozen harrowing calls were made to 911, at least two from students, describing unfolding carnage inside classrooms and begging for police. As many as 19 police officers were gathered in the school's hallway shortly after noon, but, McCraw said, they made "no effort" to breach the classroom door.

WHO: 200 monkeypox cases in over 20 nations

MARIA CHENG LONDON, MAY 27

THE WORLD Health Organisation said nearly 200 cases of monkeypox was reported in more than 20 countries not usually known to have outbreaks of the unusual disease, but described the epidemic as "containable" and proposed creating a stockpile to equitably share the limited vaccines and drugs available worldwide. During a public briefing on Friday, the UN health agency said there are still many unanswered questions about how the current epidemic arose, but there is no evidence that any genetic changes in the virus are responsible for the unprecedented epidemic.

UN's health agency said the epidemic was 'containable'

"The first sequencing of the virus shows that the strain is not different from the strains we can find in endemic countries and (this outbreak) is probably due more to a change in human behaviour," said Dr. Sylvie Briand, WHO's director of pandemic and epidemic diseases

Earlier this week, a top adviser to WHO said the outbreak in Europe, US, Israel, Australia and beyond was likely linked to sex at two recent raves in Spain and Belgium. That marks a significant departure from the disease's typical pattern of spread in central and western Africa, where people are mainly infected by animals like wild rodents and primates, and outbreaks haven't spilled across borders.

On Friday, Spanish authorities said the number of cases there had risen to 98, including one woman, whose infection is "directly related" to a chain of transmission that had been previously limited to men, according to officials in the region of Madrid.

Doctors in Britain, Spain,

Portugal, Canada, the US and elsewhere have noted that the majority of infections to date have been in gav and bisexual men, or men who have sex with men. The disease is no more likely to affect people because of their sexual orientation and scientists warn the virus could infect others if transmission isn't curbed.

WHO's Briand said that based on how past outbreaks of the disease in Africa have evolved, the current situation appeared "containable".

Still, she said WHO expected to see more cases reported in the future, noting "we don't know if we are just seeing the peak of the iceberg (or) if there are many more cases that are undetected in communities," she said. AP

Senate Republicans block domestic terrorism Bill

FARNOUSH AMIRI & LISA MASCARO

WASHINGTON, MAY 27

DEMOCRATS' FIRST attempt at responding to the back-to-back mass shootings in Buffalo, New York, and Uvalde, Texas, failed in the Senate as Republicans blocked a domestic terrorism Bill that would have opened debate on difficult questions surrounding hate crimes and gun safety.

Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer, a Democrat, tried to nudge Republicans into taking up a domestic terrorism Bill that had cleared the House quickly last week after mass shootings at a grocery store in Buffalo and a church in Southern California targeting people of color. He said it could become the basis for negotiation.

But the Thursday vote failed along party lines, raising fresh doubts about the possibility of robust debate, let alone eventual compromise, on gun safety measures. The final vote was 47-47, short of the 60 needed to take up the bill. All Republicans voted against it.

"We're disappointed," said White House press secretary Karine Jean-Pierre. She said it's "shameful" that the National Rifle Association and others have stood in the way of such measures. AP

STAR OF 'GOODFELLAS' AND 'FIELD OF DREAMS' DIES AT 67

Intense in dramas, adept at comedy, Ray Liotta refused to be pigeonholed

NEIL GENZLINGER MAY 27

RAY LIOTTA, who created intense, memorable characters in Goodfellas, Field of Dreams and other films as well as on television, died in his sleep Wednesday night or early Thursday in the Dominican Republic. He was 67. His publicist, Jennifer Allen, said that he was filming a movie, Dangerous Waters, and died in his hotel room. She said the cause was not yet known.

Liotta was known primarily for having played Joey Perrini on soap opera Another World, a character he once called "the nicest guy in the world", when he landed an entirely different kind of role in the 1986 comic crime story Something Wild. His friend Melanie Griffith leaned on the film's director, Jonathan Demme, to consider him, and he got the role of her character's menacing husband, an ex-con. "Mr Liotta, a newcomer, nearly walks off with his sections of the film," Vincent Canby wrote in his review in The New York Times — and suddenly he was in demand for such parts.

"I had offers for every crazy guy around," Liotta told The Los Angeles Times in 1990.

But he resisted being "pigeonholed as Hollywood's resident psychopath," as one newspaper account put it. His next film after Something Wild was Dominick and Eugene (1988), in which he played a man whose twin brother (played by Tom Hulce) is mentally impaired as a result of a childhood accident.

"The two leading actors do a superb job of bringing these characters to life," Janet Maslin wrote in The New York Times. "Mr Liotta, such a menacing villain in 'Something Wild,' makes Gino a touchingly devoted figure, a man willing to sacrifice almost anything for his brother's welfare." The next year he won acclaim as baseball player Shoeless Joe

Jackson, the spectral figure who appears on the ballfield built by Kevin Costner's character in Field of Dreams and later brings along his teammates. Liotta showed a quieter type of intensity in embodying Jackson than he had in Something Wild.

One role defined Liotta's career more than any other: gangster Henry Hill in Martin Scorsese's acclaimed 1990 film Goodfellas. That sprawling film was based on the real-life story of Hill, and Liotta said it challenged him like no job before.

"In this film, I had to show jealousy, rage, happiness, anger - everything was there," he told The Associated Press in 1990. "You want to take that challenge as an actor. It was pretty intense.

'STRUCTURAL REFORMS KEY TO BALANCED, INCLUSIVE GROWTH'

Some NBFCs pose 'potential threat' to stability, RBI says in annual report

ENSECONOMIC BUREAU MUMBAI, MAY 27

THE RESERVE Bank of India (RBI) has cautioned in its annual report released on Friday that the higher risk appetite of non-banking finance companies (NBFCs) poses a "potential threat" to the country's financial stability.

The report also mapped the road ahead, suggesting that while an economic recovery is underway in spite of headwinds and challenges brought by the fiscal year 2022, structural reforms to improve medium-term growth potential hold the key to sustained, balanced and inclusive growth. Referring to NBFCs, the RBI report said: "The higher risk appetite of NBFCs has contributed over time to their size, complexity, and interconnectedness, thus making some of the entities systemically significant that pose potential threat to financial stability.' Nearly a dozen NBFCs have ex-

Cautious on road ahead

THE RBI report is both a warning and a roadmap. While highlighting the potential threat posed by risk-taking NBFCs, it suggests structural reforms as the way to face inflation and improve growth in the face of global challenges, mainly posed by the war in Ukraine.

panded their balance sheets exponentially, mainly in the retail segment, prompting the RBI to bring down the regulatory arbitrage of such companies with banks — and make them almost on par with banks in terms of regulatory oversight.

The central bank has been closely watching the top 50 NBFCs ties like IL&FS group, DHFL and Srei Infrastructure Finance in the past few years. It has strengthened on-site supervision and compliance as it believes the failure of an NBFC will pose a threat to the banking system. The total exposure of banks to NBFCs was Rs 10.54 lakh crore as on March 25, 2022, according to RBI data.

"The future path of growth will be conditioned by addressing supply-side bottlenecks, calibrating monetary policy to bring inflation within the target while supporting growth and targeted fiscal policy support to aggregate demand, especially by boosting capital spending," the report said.

"The conflict over Ukraine and the consequent spike in commodity prices has overcast the outlook for inflation in India as in the rest of the world," it said.

Earlier this month, the RBI's policy panel hiked the repo rate by 40 basis points to 4.4 per cent to rein in inflation. "The immediate is on inflation, with close to threefourth of the consumer price index at risk," the RBI said. The elevation in international prices of crude, metals and fertilisers has translated into a trade shock that has widened trade and current account deficits, it said.

The near-term outlook for the global economy is fluid, rapidly evolving and extremely uncertain —and recovery is expected to suffer a significant loss of momentum in 2022, the RBI report said. It will likely have a bearing on longer-term prospects, including by exacerbating the scars of the pandemic, by deglobalisation, financial fragmentation and by setting back the initiatives towards climate change, it said. The central bank said the persistence of high inflation is forcing countervailing monetary policy action at a time when supporting the economic recovery should have been assigned priority. 'Monetisation' axed, MeitY's fresh draft to 'encourage' cos to share non-personal data

SOUMYARENDRA BARIK NEW DELHI, MAY 27

THE MINISTRY of Electronics and Information Technology (MeitY) has floated a fresh draft policy which proposes that private companies be "encouraged" to share non-personal data with startups and Indian researchers through a proposed initiative called the India Datasets programme. This will also include non-personal data of Indian citizens collected by the Central government. The new draft, called 'National Data Governance Framework Policy', is a replacement of the now scrapped data accessibility policy, a draft of which was floated by the MeitY in February. The old draft policy was axed as it faced severe criticism over its proposal to monetise government data.

Experts indicated the fresh draft could also face a pushback, given that private companies are unlikely to be keen on voluntarily sharing non-personal data as there could be trade and intellectual property issues.

The most significant change in the new draft is the omission of perhaps the most contentious provision in the old draft — selling data collected at the Central level in the open market. The old draft - 'India Data Accessibility and Use Policy' — floated in February, had proposed that data collected by the Centre that has "undergone value addition" can be sold in the open market for an "appropriate price". It faced widespread criticism with questions being raised about the government collecting data to monetise it in the absence of a data protection law in India.

Instead, the new draft places significant focus on sharing nonpersonal data. To do so, it calls for the creation of an India Datasets programme, which will consist of non-personal and anonymised OLD DRAFT FLOATED IN FEBRUARY

■The new draft, called 'National Data Governance Framework Policy', is a replacement of the now scrapped data accessibility policy, a draft of which was floated in February. The old draft was axed over criticism for its proposal to monetise government data entities that have collected data from Indian citizens or those in India. Private companies, it says. will be "encouraged" to share such data. The non-personal data housed within this programme would be accessible to startups and Indian researchers, the draft proposal said.

In its most basic form, nonpersonal data is any set of data which does not contain personally identifiable information. This in essence means that no individual or living person can be identified by looking at such data. The push to harness non-personal data was first proposed by a government committee headed by co-founder Kris Gopalakrishnan, which was set up to unlock the economic value of such data and also address concerns arising out of it.

Among the stated objectives of the policy are to modernise the government's data collection, with an aim to improve governance and to enable an artificial intelligence (AI) and data-led research and startup ecosystem in the country. Once finalised, the policy will be applicable to all Central government departments along with all non-personal datasets and related standards and rules governing its access by startups and researchers. State governments will be "encouraged" to adopt the provisions of the policy, according to the draft.

The draft also calls for creation of an India Data Management Office (IDMO), which will be incharge of designing and managing the India Datasets platform that will process requests and provide access to the non-personal datasets to Indian researchers and startups. The IDMO will "prescribe rules and standards, including anonymisation standards for all entities (government and private) that deal with data that will cause every government ministry/department/organisation to identify and classify available datasets and build a vibrant, diverse and large base of datasets for research and innovation," according to the draft. For purposes of safety and trust, any non-personal data sharing by any entity can be only via platforms designated and authorised by IDMO, it added.

In what appears to be a potential preventive measure against the new draft running into privacy-related issues, the MeitY has stated that the IDMO will set and publish data anonymisation standards and rules to "ensure informational privacy is maintained". Industry experts, meanwhile, pointed out that several contours such as the composition of the IDMO and the process through which data housed in the India Datasets programme can be accessed by startups and researchers — have not been made clear in the new draft policy.

Experts also said that private companies may not voluntarily share non-personal data. "There may be trade and intellectual property issues, so it is possible that private companies will not share at least non-personal datasets that are critical to their business," a senior industry pro-

SECTOR WATCH CYBERSECURITY NORMS

'Difficult' for biz in India: 11 industry bodies to CERT-In

SOUMYARENDRA BARIK NEW DELHI, MAY 27

THE RECENTLY announced cybersecurity norms are facing a larger pushback, with 11 industry bodies from countries in the EU, UK, and the US, including the likes of US Chamber of Commerce and US-India Business Council, writing to the Indian Computer Emergency Response Team (CERT-In). They have raised concerns around its recent cybersecurity norms, arguing that the "onerous nature" of the directive may make it "more difficult for companies

In a letter to Sanjay Bahl, Director General of CERT-In, the industry groupings said that the cybersecurity directive will have a "detrimental impact on cybersecurity for organisations that operate in India. In particular, they have flagged the six-hour timeline to report cybersecurity incidents, requirements that companies furnish sensitive logs to, an "overbroad" definition of reportable incidents, and that virtual private networks (VPNs) will have to store data on its users for five years. "If left unaddressed, these provisions will have a significant adverse impact on organisations that operate in India with no commensurate benefit to cybersecurity," the letter said.

The signatories count Big Tech firms like Facebook, Google, Apple, Amazon and Microsoft along with other tech firms as members. The signatories include: Asia Securities Industry & Financial Markets Association, Bank Policy Institute, BSA, Coalition to Reduce Cyber Risk. Europe, Information Technology Industry Council, techUK, US Chamber of Commerce, USIBC, and US-India Strategic Partnership Forum, They have called for increasing the reporting timeline to 72 hours.

The letter comes a week after CERT-In released clarifications on its rules after compliance burden-related concerns were raised by stakeholders.

'Bilaterals may get squeezed'

Mumbai: The bilateral contests between international teams may get "squeezed" if the window for T20 $leagues \ like \ the \ IPL keep \ getting \ longer,$ ICC Chairman Greg Barclay said on Friday. "It is a good question. There will be an increase in both the scoping scale of some of the domestic leagues like the IPL and possibly some of the others and there will be new leagues. "But they are the sovereign domain of the members, the domestic competitions, they can run as they choose to. But more events, and longer time periods through those events mean there is going to be squeeze, we know there are only 365 days a year..." PTI

Leclerc fastest in practice in Monaco

Monaco: Ferrari's Charles Leclerc set the pace in practice for his home Monaco Grand Prix on Friday while former winner Daniel Ricciardo crashed his McLaren in a nightmare start to the Australian's weekend. Leclerc led team mate Carlos Sainz in a one-two in the second session, lapping the unforgiving street circuit with a fastest lap of one minute 12.656 seconds on a hot and sunny afternoon. REUTERS

Gokulam Kerala win IWL title

Bhubaneswar: Gokulam Kerala FC registered a 3-1 win over Sethu FC on the final day of the Hero Indian Women's League 2022 to clinch the trophy for a second successive time. Sethu FC took the lead in just the third minute of the game after Anju Tamang's powerful strike deflected off a defender and onto the head of Renu Rani who slotting home from close range. However, Gokulam Keralaequalised in the 14th minute. Loitongbam Ashalata Devi scored from the spot after Elshaddai Acheampong drew a foul inside the box. The Ghanaian forward went on to make it 2-1 for the defending champions in the 33rd minute. PTI

Chhetri returns for Jordan friendly

Doha: Upbeat with the return of striker Sunil Chhetri, India still have a tough task at hand when they face higher-ranked Jordan in an international football friendly match on Saturday. Chhetri last played for India during their 3-0 win over Nepal in the SAFF Championships final in October, but since then was side-lined due to injuries. PTI

India face Japan in Super-4 game

Jakarta: Having risen like a proverbial phoenix from the ashes, a rejuvenated Indian men's hockey team would like to put up a much-improved performance when it takes on Japan in its first 'Super 4' match of the Asia Cup here on Saturday. Despite facing a belowpar Indonesia in its final group league game, the young side coached by Sardar Singh must be lauded for being able to score a whopping 16 goals in just an hour. PTI

The Buttler did it

RR's player of season hits 4th century as Royals book first final berth since 2008

Jos Buttler's unbeaten 106 ensured there were no major hicupps during the chase.

SYNOPSIS: Prasidh Krishna and Obed McCoy restrict RCB to 157, before Jos Buttler launches Rajasthan Royals into the final with his fourth century of IPL 2022.

ABHISHEK PUROHIT AHMEDABAD, MAY 27

ROYAL CHALLENGERS Bangalore were 130 for 4 in 15.2 overs against Lucknow Super Giants in the Eliminator at Eden Gardens. Rajat Patidar had just mowed Ravi Bishnoi for six. The next ball, Patidar pulled again, straight to deep midwicket, where Deepak Hooda dropped a sitter. Patidar blew LSG away thereafter as he led RCB to 207. In Qualifier 2 at Narendra Modi Stadium against Rajasthan Royals, RCB were 130 for 3 in 15.2 overs, with Patidar in flow again.

He even picked the wide carom ball from Ravichandran Ashwin and bashed it flat to long-off, where Jos Buttler, on the very edge of the boundary, held on to a much harder chance than Hooda had spilled. RR forced open this window of opportunity so firmly they blew RCB out the door; instead of the 77 runs that LSG had leaked after dropping Patidar, RR gave away just 27 in the remainder of the RCB innings. Jos Buttler, equalling Virat Kohli's season record with his fourth century of IPL 2022, lapped up the chase of 158 on a small outfield like a nice glass of buttermilk after a hearty Gujarati thali.

Prasidh presses pause on RCB

Prasidh Krishna had bowled an outstanding three-over burst in the Powerplay for only 14 runs and the wicket of Kohli. Utilising the liberal carry and some early movement, Krishna had bounced out Kohli and almost removed Patidar for only 13, but Riyan Parag put a slice down at backward point.

Kohli has almost forever gone forward outside off to feel bat on the ball, especially in white-ball cricket. It is a nothing shot in that it is neither intended to bring him runs, nor is he really required to play a defensive some way outside off.

At times, he does something similar with the short of a length ball that holds its line or leaves him. He feels it with a half-poke, half-steer, instead of attacking it or leaving it. And that is what consumed him in Krishna's first over. Krishna's last over was held back by Royals until the 19th. When he did return to the attack, he took out RCB's most potent death-over weapon this season: Dinesh Karthik. The veteran had come in and knocked it around for run-a-ball six, but had two overs to play with. At Wankhede Stadium in the season's first meeting between these two teams, he needed a single 21-run over from Ashwin to turn the game on its head

Krishna ran in and rolled his fingers slightly across a pitched-up, wide delivery. Karthik sensed the opportunity to go for a straight six, and ended up hitting it high to long-on. Next ball, he uprooted the stumps of Wanindu Hasaranga with a steaming, angled-in, precise yorker. On a night on which Yuzvendra Chahal went for 0 for 45, Obed McCoy turned up with his dipping slow full tosses and slow, wide bouncers to prise out three wickets, including that of Faf du Plessis.

Patidar impresses again

Patidar batted in the same mode that had made him the only uncapped player to make a century in the IPL playoffs.

a century in the IPL playoffs. He does not hold back at all with his powerful bat-swing, and that total commitment to the stroke is perhaps also what makes the close ones go his way often.

Like when he slashed McCoy just out of the reach of short third man, but in the same over, du Plessis found the same fielder, albeit off a fuller length. Or when he took on Krishna's bounce with a couple of forceful cuts and punches. Again, had Riyan Parag taken the third of those shots, Patidar's knock would have been cut short in the Powerplay itself

Another belter from Buttler

A 16-run opening over set the tone for RR as Yashasvi Jaiswal flicked and pulled Mohammed Siraj for boundaries. Buttler soon sent Siraj at least thirty rows into the crowd beyond long leg. He would make this chase look like an ODI pursuit. He gave due respect to Josh Hazlewood, nicely getting across and behind the line of his incutters.

But he wreaked havoc on the weak links in the RCB attack. It didn't matter on what line or length part-time left-arm spinner Shahbaz Ahmed bowled.

Buttler kept hanging back, winding up and carving him over mid-on and into the straight boundary. A small sequence of dots would suddenly be broken with a late twist of the bat and a slap for four a couple of feet past extra cover. Or a calm reaching-out to a full delivery that would go screaming into the sightscreen.

After five overs, RR had catapulted to 61 for 0. The venom had already gone out of Kohli's throws to the wicketkeeper. And a collective drooping of shoulders on the field so early in the chase was an affirmation of just how thoroughly RCB had been outplayed. Late into the game, as Kohli ran towards the boundary to take up the long-on position, the section of the crowd behind him went ballistic. That was the only solace left in another heartbreak of a campaign for RCB fans. BRIEF SCORES: Royal Challengers Bangalore: 157 for 8 in 20 overs (Rajat Patidar 58; Prasidh Krishna 3/22, Obed McCoy 3/23) lost to Rajasthan Royals: 161 for 3 in 18.1 overs (Jos Buttler 106 not out; Josh Hazlewood 2/23).

EMOTIONAL ROLLERCOASTER

Hot heads, calm minds and everything in between at the game

Same bouncing ball gets Kohli again

That same Dushmanta Chameera ball. This time it was Prasidh Krishna with a lifter from back of length outside off stump. Previously Umesh Yadav too had cracked open Virat Kohli with it. As it kicked out outside off stump, with a bit of width on it, Kohli, as is his wont, tried to ride the bounce with wrists, with a semivertical bat. Many top-order batsmen would have opted for the horizontal cut or slash but Kohli doesn't do cuts. He likes to punch and when the ball rears up more than he expects, he tries to ride the bounce with his wrists, with a shot resembling a steer somewhat. When the ball has pace allied with bounce, it becomes difficult. And unsurprisingly, Kohli edged it to Sanju Samson the wicketkeeper who quietly pouched it and just ran ahead without much celebration. Kohli had made one positive contribution to the highlights package when he walked down couple of steps to Trent Boult, picked a length delivery, and swat-flicked it over backward square-leg for a six.

Who is the real McCoy? Obed or Ajay Jadeja

Wonder if Ajay Jadeja watched the Obed McCoy catch to dismiss Glenn Maxwell. For those of us, with a bit of grey in our hair, it reminded us of Jadeja's catch at long-off to take out Allan Border in the 1992 World Cup. Off dashed McCoy ahead with full speed from fine leg but it still looked it might not be enough for the ball seemed on a death wish, dying rapidly on him. But McCoy threw in a last-instant dive, and somehow managed to get his palms under the ball in the gap where it didn't seem to exist and pouched it. When Jadeja did it back then before dawn, as the game was in New Zealand, he shrugged off any left-over sleep from our eyes, high-fiveing and gleefully grinning. These days no one is surprised by the athleticism but McCoy's effort was a throwback for Indians of a certain vintage. For the record, India lost that match by one run. #justsaying.

Patidar falls, but Parag frees him

What do you do when you have been spanked for two successive boundaries off back of length balls outside off stump? Prasidh Krishna opted to repeat the delivery, this time putting more effort into it to get it up higher and nearly had his man Rajat Patidar. But Riyan Parag spilled a head-high catch straight at him at backward point. The first two boundary balls showed what Krishna's intent was: to produce a delivery similar to the one he dismissed Kohli, Unlike Kohli, Patidar punched them to the point boundary. Once in the previous Krishna over too, he had slashed it up and over slips. Krishna persisted with it for the third time in a row rather than float anything fuller. And this one kicked up more. Patidar hopped up, feet in the air, as he tried to punch it again but the extra bounce meant he couldn't control the shot. The ball seemed heading right into the palms of Parag, who cupped his hands above his hand but it spilled out. Krishna cast an glance at Parag, Ashwin sighed, and Patidar had survived.

And it's all over for RCB

As he wrapped up the match with his fourth hundred of the edition, he shook hands with Virat Kohli, who had done the four-century feat in 2016, and proce to do the same with rest of RCB. Then, at the end, Butler turned and shouted 'Virat" who swung back, and Butler would throw his hands around Kohli's shoulder and say something. A smile appeared in Kohli's tired face. Couple of days ago, R Ashwin had spoken about how the late Shane Warne led team had won the first edition and "there is something special" in the air this time around. We shall know on Sunday if Warne's team can do it again in his memory. Placards of Warne bobbed around the stadium as Rajasthan hunted down a paltry total without much fuss. RCB were deflated as soon as Buttler and Yashasvi Jaiswal exploded away in the Powerplay and even when he caught Jaiswal in the fifth over, Kohli showed no emotions. He would have fist-pumped and roared but by then, pretty early in the piece, he must have known it was all over. And it was.

SUPERLATIVES POUR IN

Rival applauds, pundits speechless as Praggnanandhaa finishes runners-up

SANDIPG MAY 27

AFTER R Praggnanandhaa realised that all his routes for a comeback were blocked in the finals of Meltwater Champions Chess Tour Chessable Masters tournament against World No 2 Ling Diren, he flashed a wistful smile.

The 16-year-old, after being outwitted on the first day by an experienced virtuoso, had waged a rousing but futile battle. He fought back to level the game after trailing overnight and forced the duel into tiebreaks—two blitz games and then an armageddon if the game was still level.

But a couple of slip-ups—most noticeably that led to Liren escaping with a draw in the first game of the tiebreaker—cost him the match.

But after the game, Liren, who was drained, applauded the youngster while commentator Grandmaster David Howell said: "I'm almost speechless. I'm running out of superlatives, running out of praise for Pragg because he is just so good right now."

He is only 16. But in chess, more than any other sport. 16 is not too tender. 40 became Praggnanandhaa is no stranger to the circuit either — there was a manic frenzy in the chess-scape when he beat Magnus Carlsen a few months ago, the youngest to do so since the Norwegian became world champion. Then, he beat him four days ago in the Chessables, before he scalped World No 10 Anish Giri and ran Liren close.

Still, Praggnanandhaa, is looked upon as a 'kid". Before the semifinal, his opponent Giri had tweeted: "18:00 CET. Isn't that the kid's bedtime in Chennai?"

His still-adolescent looks could have deceived his opponent. The Chennai boy looks younger. He spots but a faint outline of a moustache, though his voice has acquired the shrillness of a teenager. But adolescent mischief lingers in his tone.

"For us, he would always remain a kid," says father Ramesh Babu, who drops and picks him from school. "He is still sometimes naughty, his mother still packs lunch for him, and sometimes he slips out of his house on his bicycle," he says.

Of course, he spares less time for cartoon shows (though news and Tamil comedy shows keep him glued to the television). Mother Nagalakshmi still accompanies him whenever he travels abroad (the frequency has come down due to the pandemic and chess's online boom), with her rice cooker. Then Praggnanandhaa puts out tweets Praggnanandhaa is no stranger to the circuit either — there was a manic frenzy in the chess-scape when he beat Magnus Carlsen a few months ago, the youngest to do so since the Norwegian became world champion. like these that make him seem even younger. "I have to be at school around 8.45 am, and now it is 2 am! I'll try not to sleep during my internal exam."

But child-likeness isn't frivolity. "He knows that he should keep on working hard to improve and reach the level he wants to reach. He is more driven and determined," Ramesh says. Despite the pressure of board exams, Praggnanandhaa manages to put in six to eight hours of chess-work every day. He watches a lot of tapes of various players in various positions, per his coach RB Ramesh's advice.

Quiet confidence

There is also a preternatural level-headedness about him. From a young age, he has not poured much emotion; he smiles warmly when he wins, when he loses he just stares quizzically at the board.

"He was not jumping about in joy when he beat Carlsen for the first time. He just casually told us that he had beaten Carlsen and went to sleep immediately," his father recounted. Beneath the soft-featured face, there is smouldering maturity helping him deal with the pressure of expectations. "It's a big thing of course, but I think it's quite normal. I continue to do what I do," Pragg had said then, with no tint of false modesty.

Maturity is burgeoning on the board too. His best came in defeating the seasoned Giri. The first game was stale and ended in a draw; in the second, the Indian ambushed the Dutchman by setting a lethal trap in the endgame, the first Giri had lost in the entire tournament. Giri went all out in the next game and was on the brink of a victory, but Pragg kept his nerves to force a draw.

He ratcheted up the aggression, even as

New Delhi

Praggnanandhaa stoically held on, though in the end Giri breached through his defence. In the tie-breaker, the Indian pushed his opponent to a corner, who eventually opted to resign. The expressions that danced on Giri's face captured the ever-blossoming potential of Praggnanandhaa. His emotions ranged from puzzlement and awe to shock and dejection. After the game, he tweeted: "The tweets that didn't age well are the best. They get double the likes."

Reputation does not daunt Praggnanandhaa. "He concentrated on the pieces on the board. As they say in cricket, play to the merit of the ball and not who is bowling. Praggnanandhaa too plays as per the moves on the board," says Ramesh, his coach.

Since the turn of the year, he has raised his game by a gear —in chess the gear-shifts are sometimes lengthy processes.

Beating Carlsen twice could be the icing on the cake — among others, he has vanquished Giri and Wei Yi, besides marking his career-high ELO points (2642) — though he is at an age when he is just learning to bake a cake, forget about the frosting.

He, though, is building a compelling case to be not considered a kid. Except perhaps for his doting parents.

15m tweets, 8,000 people: Survey shows Salah's star power is curbing hate crime

Research by Stanford University found Liverpool fans reduced anti-Muslim tweets compared to others

SRIRAM VEERAMUMBAI, MAY 27

"IFHE scores another few, then I'll be a Muslim too. He's sitting in the mosque, that's where I want to be... Mo Salah-la-la-la-la." In 2018, football-intoxicated white fans were belting that song in the stadiums and pubs of Liverpool about Mo Salah, the Afro-haired Egyptian footballer in their club for the English Premier League.

The juxtaposition of the object of that song and the people singing it stirred the world and startled four Stanford University researchers — Ala Alrababah, William Marble, Salma Mousa and Alexandra Siegel —who were moved to study the phenomenon. "What was that, I remember wondering. The song intrigued us," Marble told The Indian Express.

The result -- after months of hard work put in, 15 million tweets analysed, 8,000 people surveyed and crime stats dissected -- astonished the world. "We find that hate crimes in Merseyside (home to Liverpool FC) dropped by 16 per cent...and Liverpool FC fans halved their rates of posting anti-Muslim tweets relative to fans of other top-flight clubs. Our survey experiment suggests that the salience of Salah's Muslim identity enabled positive feelings toward Salah to generalise to Muslims more broadly," the report read.

On Saturday night, thousands would be echoing the spirit behind that song as Salah tears up the right wing at the Saint-Denis' Stade de France in Paris in the Champions League final where Liverpool would be chasing a famous treble, having already won the League Cup and FA Cup. The findings of the study were remarkable, especially in context of what was happening in pre-Salah Liverpool when two lawyers Abubaker Bhula and Asif Bodi went under a stairwell at the Anfield stadium, the club's home, to pray. Another fan tweeted their pictures with a tagline "Disgrace" — it went viral in right-wing groups.

Two years later, the bearded Salah joined Liverpool as an openly devout Muslim footballer who prostrated on the ground in "sajdah" after goals, who raised his index finger in "shahadah", whose daughter was named Mecca, and whose wife was veiled -- and whose social media posts were filled with religious imagery. "That was what was special. Here was a man, by all accounts, humble, a dogooder, a great footballer who was just himself. But by being himself, he stirred something in others," said Marble, the researcher. "He stays out of politics, doesn't talk up his religion even, he is just himself."

All eyes will be on Mohamed Salah during the Champions League final.

"We highlighted Salah's Muslim identity in a part of our survey and we found people saying there was no clash between Islam and British values. That a smooth integration was possible. People whom we administered the survey with that religiosity angle responded by saying they were more tolerant of Islamic values," he said. Or, in other words, there was no clash of civilisations. "We had lots of people saying it was important to understand the culture of players representing their club. That openness was highly suggestive," he said.

But Marble and his colleagues wanted to find out whether the people they surveyed walked that talk. They sought out police records for hate crimes. "What we saw was that in Merseyside there was a drop in hate crimes right after Salah was signed, compared to the rest of the country, and that continued in his first few seasons with the club. We did various statistical modelling to find if this big drop would have happened even if Salah hadn't

STORY OF FINALISTS

- The two teams have met eight times in the European Cup, with Real winning four times and Liverpool three.
- Their most recent meeting was in the quarter-finals of the 2020-21 Champions League season.
- This is the third time the teams will meet in the final -- Liverpool won 1-0 in the 1980-81 European Cup final, while Real won 3-1 in the 2017-18 Champions League final.
- Real have won the title on 13 occasions in 1956, 1957, 1958, 1959, 1960, 1966, 1998, 2000, 2002, 2014, 2016, 2017 and 2018 and have triumphed in their last seven finals.
- England's Liverpool have won the title six times in 1977, 1978, 1981, 1984, 2005 and 2019.
- Real's Carlo Ancelotti is the first coach to lead a team in five Champions League finals and is seeking a record-breaking fourth European Cup victory. He shares the landmark of three wins with former Real boss Zinedine Zidane and Liverpool's Bob Paisley.
- A victory would also make Ancelotti the first coach to win the Champions League twice with more than one club. He previously led AC Milan to two Champions League titles.
- For the second time in a row, an English team will play in the Champions League final after Chelsea beat Manchester City 1-0 in last year's clash.
- Real have never lost a final since the competition became known as the Champions League. This is their eighth appearance in the fixture.

signed and we found that wasn't the case. There seemed a direct impact of Salah from the evidence from the behavioural data that in extreme outcomes linked to bigotry," he said. On Saturday night, thousands would be echoing the spirit behind that song as Salah tears up the right wing at the Saint-Denis' Stade de France in Paris in the Champions League final where Liverpool would be chasing a famous treble, having already won the League Cup and FA Cup.

One of the tests was to check whether there was a drop in other crimes, unrelated to hate crimes. "What we found was that the biggest drop was in hate crimes, not in others. That gave me assurance that we were on the right path with Salah's impact," Marble said.

The researchers then analysed 15 million tweets as part of their philosophy to inspect several different evidence to arrive at a conclusion. "We coded their tweets where they mention Muslim/Islam and classified it as positive/negative/neutral. We found the proportion of anti-Muslim tweets of Liverpool followers dropped by half, based on what we found in other clubs' fans," the researcher said.

Asif Bodi, one of the fans targeted for praying at the stadium, spoke to the digital network Middle East Eye about the post-Salah changes. "Some fans might have been a bit more reserved and afraid to show their faith but because of the effect Salah has had, they feel emboldened to show their faith." Multi-faith prayer rooms popped up at stadiums.

Ben Bird, who self-admittedly "hated muslims" once, wrote in "The Guardian" about how Salah's presence changed him -- he even converted to Islam, "As that song 'If he scores another few then I'll be Muslim too", and I literally took that to heart... Salah showed me that you can be normal and a Muslim, if that's the right phrase. You can be yourself. He's a great player and is respected by the football community and his politics, his religion, don't matter -- and to me that's what football can do,' Bird wrote. However, British-born Pakistani poet Suhaiymah Manzoor-Khan warns about the danger of stereotyping the "good Muslim immigrant" and the need to respect all Muslims. "Love us when we are lazy, love us when we are poor, love us high as kites, unemployed, joy riding, time wasting, failing at school, love us filthy," he said. But then, that's not up to Mo Salah.

I strive to play close to perfection: Djokovic

REUTERSPARIS, MAY 27

TOP SEED Novak Djokovic powered past Aljaz Bedene of Slovenia 6-3, 6-3, 6-2 on Friday to advance to the French Open fourth round and stay firmly on course to challenge for a record-equalling 21st Grand Slam win.

The 35-year-old world No.1, who was on the court for less than two hours, next plays 15th seed Diego Schwartzmann of Argentina.

"It's not possible to play perfectly but to strive to play close to perfection," Djokovic said in an on-court interview. "I want to play my characteristic game, my aggressive game. It is not always possible but today it was very good." Bedene, ranked 195th in the world after an eight-month layoff and a return to action in March, was no match for Djokovic's power and near-flawless service games.

The Serb wasted three break points at 2-1 in the first set but he quickly got another chance to breeze through it in just over 30 minutes. He got two more breaks in the second to clinch it as quickly as the first with Bedene failing to carve out a single break chance throughout the match, and winning just five points on Djokovic's serve in the first

 $The third \, set \, went \, in \, similar \, fashion \, with \,$

Djokovic breaking early and Bedene, who made twice as many unforced errors as his opponent, failing to respond before the Serb wrapped up proceedings when the Slovenian sunk a forehand into the net after an hour and 44 minutes.

Halep's panic attack

Simona Halep said she would have to learn to put less pressure on herself after suffering a panic attack during her secondround loss at the French Open on Thursday.

The former world number one and 2018 French Open champion called for the doctor during the third set of her loss to Chinese teenager Zheng Qinwen on Court Simonne Mathieu. "It was just a panic attack, It happened," she told reporters with a smile afterwards.

"I didn't know how to handle it, because I don't have it often. I don't really know why it happened, because I was leading the match, I was playing well. "I lost it. I couldn't focus. After the match, was pretty tough. But now I'm good. I'm recovered, and I will learn from this episode. Nothing like dangerous, in my opinion."

The mental health of top women athletes has been brought into focus over the last year after Naomi Osaka and American gymnast Simone Biles spoke out about their struggles.
