CM Uddhav Thackeray battling to save his government

THE RULING Maha Vikas Aghadi, which came to power in Maharashtra in November 2019, plunged into crisis Tuesday after Shiv Sena leader and state Urban Development and Public Works Minister Eknath Shinde revolted against his party Monday night and showed up in a Surat hotel with over 30 MLAs including three ministers.

Caught napping, Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray was battling to save his government, sending aides to Surat to open lines of communication with the rebels. Only 18 of his party's 55 MLAs were present at a meeting called at Varsha, the CM's official residence, in the afternoon. The Sena removed Shinde as the party's leader in the state Assembly, replacing him with Shivadi MLA Ajay Choudhari. Shinde's revolt, hours after the Legislative Council elections in which the MVA suffered a setback following cross-voting by MLAs, has put a question mark on the future of the coalition.

In the House of 288 which is currently at 287 owing to the death of Sena MLA Ramesh Latke last month, the MVA needs at least 144 MLAs. Before the revolt, its strength in the House was 152 — Sena 55, NCP 53, Congress 44. The BJP strength is MONTHS BEFORE the political crisis in Maharashtra triggered by Shiv Sena Minister Eknath Shinde, NCP chief Sharad Pawar had warned Uddhav Thackeray about "growing anxiety" within the Sena and leaders of the ruling MVA — even hinting at a "possible revolt", a high-level political source told The Indian Express.

"Sharad Pawar had warned Uddhav Thackeray at least four to five months ago and had advised him to start meeting his party leaders and other ministers of MVA," the source said.

Pawar had sensed the growing dissonance among MVA leaders over the "inaccessibility" of Chief Minister Thackeray. "He had even warned Thackeray of a possible revolt but Uddhav didn't pay much attention to it," the source said.

On a few occasions, the source said, even Pawar couldn't get an appointment with Thackeray. "Pawar was upset with the inaccessibility of the CM who was not sparing time to meet political leaders across parties," the source said.

Another source said Uddhav was "not regularly interacting

TWO DAYS before Eknath Shinde revolted, he had a heated argument with Aaditya Thackeray, state cabinet minister and son of Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray, and Shiv Sena MP Sanjay Raut at the Renaissance hotel in Powai where the Sena MLAs had been kept ahead of the Legislative Council elections.

A source said the argument was over using additional votes for the Congress party, which Shinde opposed. One of the Congress candidates, Bhai Jagtap, got the votes he needed, but the other candidate, Chandrakant Handore, was not elected.

"Two days ago, when negotiations were taking place at the Renaissance hotel regarding how the votes were to be used for the Council elections, Shinde had a disagreement with Raut and Aaditya. Shinde was not amenable to the idea of using votes of Sena MLAs to get Congress candidates elected as MLCs. It turned into a heated argument between the two sides. Looking back now, it appears that this could have been a

LIZ MATHEW
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

DROUPADI MURMU, former Jharkhand Governor, is set to be elected as the next President, the first tribal woman to occupy the highest post in the country.

From the Santhal community in Odisha, 64-year-old Murmu was named the BJP-led NDA Tuesday night, hours after former Union Minister Yashwant Sinha was declared the joint nominee of major Opposition parties including the Congress, TMC and NCP.

Murmu's election is almost certain given that the numbers are heavily stacked in favour of the ruling NDA. Her candidature, announced by BJP president J P Nadda following a meeting of the party's parliamentary board, appeared to have put some of the Opposition parties in a spot, especially the Jharkhand Mukti Morcha (JMM) which draws its electoral strength from tribal votes.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi said Murmu has "devoted her life to serving society" and said he is "confident she will be a great President".

In a Twitter post, Modi said,

SEVEN YEARS after being sworn in as the first woman Governor of Jharkhand, Droupadi Murmu's political career has taken another key turn.

On Tuesday, the 64-year-old two-time BJP MLA and former Odisha minister from Rairangpur in Mayurbhanj was nominated by the NDA as its candidate for the presidential polls next month, setting the stage for her to be the first tribal woman President.

In Jharkhand, officials and politicians describe her as a "compassionate and balanced" administrator who remained "accessible and down to earth" — and recall two key junctures where she played a crucial role in allaying fears among tribals while "giving proper directions" to the government.

No rollback, conflict entrepreneurs behind Agnipath protests: NSA

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

RULING OUT any rollback in the Agnipath recruitment scheme, National Security Advisor (NSA) Ajit Doval on Tuesday blamed the ongoing protests on "conflict entrepreneurs" with "vested interests".

In an interview to ANI, Doval said there are "two kinds of opposition". One group, who has served the country, was truly concerned, but this was just "fear of the unknown", and they are now "finding it a good move", he said.

National Security Advisor Ajit Doval

"But there is another group. They do not care for the country or the security of the nation. They are conflict entrepreneurs. They want a conflict in society. These are the people who will go for stone-throwing, demonstrations and burning trains. They are with a vested interest. Whenever they have an opportunity, they think they can mislead the people," he said.

"A true Agniveer will not be influenced or misguided. The people who are doing all this, I don't think they are willing to join the Armed Forces," said Doval. He said while protests and "raising voice" are "justified in a democracy", violence and vandalism "will not be tolerated".

Doval said the government had anticipated the protests.

BASHAARAT MASOOD
SRINAGAR, JUNE 21

THE JAMMU and Kashmir (J&K) Police department has attached five residential properties in Srinagar on charges of "wilful harbouring of militants".

"The investigations proved beyond doubt that these houses were used for purpose of terrorism and shelter/ harbour was voluntarily/ knowingly given by the member(s) of the house... Many attacks on civilians, security forces were conspired and planned by terrorists while using these houses as hideouts," the J&K Police said in a statement.

Police said the houses were attached after "obtaining legal sanction from the competent authorities". While two houses are in the Parimpora police station area, the remaining three houses are in Panthachowk, Zakura and Nowhatta. The properties were linked to Case FIR No. 257/2020 at Parimpora police station (two houses), Case FIR No. 132/2021 at Panthachowk police station, Case FIR No. 35/2021 at Nowhatta police station and Case FIR No. 02/2022 at Zakura police station, said the statement.

The J&K Police warned that some more houses have been identified for alleged "wilful harbouring" of militants, and would face action. "Citizens are once again requested not to harbour or give shelter to terrorists, failing which they shall be liable to action under law including attachment proceedings," said the statement. "In case of any forced/coercive entry by terrorists into any house, the matter should be brought to the notice of police immediately," it said.

In March, the J&K Police had warned that properties of those

An instant decision: Entrance topper of NDA's 1st women's batch

SUSHANT NEPTA
CHANDIGARH, JUNE 21

"IT WAS instantaneous," says Shanan Dhaka, 19, on her decision to apply for the Army. The Haryana resident came first among women candidates — and tenth overall — in the entrance examination for the National Defence Academy (NDA), which will admit women cadets for the first time this year.

"I took inspiration to join the armed forces from my grandfather, Chanderbhan Dhaka, who was a Subedar, and my father, Vijay Kumar Dhaka, who retired as a Naib Subedar from the Army Service Corps," Dhaka told The Indian Express. "Growing up in cantonment areas, I saw the respect being accorded to Army officers. Plus the trust everybody has in Army personnel really motivated me to join the service. It's an opportunity to serve the nation with unparalleled pride and honour."

Dhaka, who studied in the Army Public Schools at Roorkee, Jaipur and Chandimandir (Panchkula), had enrolled for an undergraduate course at Lady Shri Ram College for Women in Delhi last year when she learnt of the opportunity at NDA. "I deecided to apply at once," she says. The course, the results for which were declared on June 14, will have 19 girl cadets — 10 for the Army, six for the Air Force and three for the Navy. The academy has said the three-year training will be conducted in a "gender neutral" manner.

Getting in, though, was not easy. As per government figures, of the 5,75,856 applicants for the entrance exam, 1,77,654 were women. The exam was held on November 14 last year and women were only allowed to sit for it after a Supreme Court direction to the Centre in September. Talking about her preparations for the exam, Dhaka, who currently lives in Punjab's Zirakpur, says she studied five hours a day for 40 days and made it a point to solve previous years' papers.

For the Services Selection Board, considered tough to crack, she was mentored by Colonel Ashokan, a veteran, for two weeks. Before the interview, she also got some tips from the principal of APS Chandimandir, Suman Singh, who told her to be herself. "Be honest and enjoy the process, I was told," says Dhaka.

The youngster, who often frequents her ancestral village of Sundana in Rohtak district, says her parents never tried to clip the wings of their three daughters. Dhaka's elder sister is in the military nursing service while her younger sibling is in Class 5.

The APS Chandimandir principal, a retired army officer, says they are proud of Dhaka's "extraordinary achievement". "She has always been a self-motivated and hard-working kid."

Dhaka also says she derives inspiration from the life of the late President APJ Abdul Kalam. "He started his career from scratch and scaled heights of success through his skill, determination, and honesty. Even though he became President of the country, he was always grounded."

Her father Vijay, who now works for a private security agency, says: "It is a moment of immense pride and honour for our family. She has made each one of us proud, especially her grandfather who started the tradition of serving the nation."

For those looking for a career in the Armed Forces, Dhaka had a message. "Don't aim to join the forces only for the charm of being an officer. Pursue this profession only if you are really passionate and ready to work hard."

Droupadi Murmu set to become first tribal woman President of India

"Smt. Droupadi Murmu Ji has devoted her life to serving society and empowering the poor, downtrodden as well as the marginalised. She has rich administrative experience and had an outstanding gubernatorial tenure. I am confident she will be a great President of our nation."

"Millions of people, especially those who have experienced poverty and faced hardships, derive great strength from the life of Smt. Droupadi Murmu Ji. Her understanding of policy matters and compassionate nature will greatly benefit our country," he said.

From Mayurbhanj, Murmu was a minister in Odisha when the BJP was in alliance with the BJD. Odisha Chief Minister and BJD chief Naveen Patnaik said the announcement of her candidature was a "proud moment for people" of the state.

"Congratulations Smt Droupadi Murmu on being announced as candidate of NDA for the country's highest office. I was delighted when Hon'ble PM Narendra Modi ji discussed this with me. It is indeed a proud moment for people of Odisha," he tweeted.

Earlier, announcing the decision, Nadda said the ruling party made efforts to evolve a consensus over the Presidential nominee. "But there was no consensus formed in the discussions. Today, the UPA has announced its nominee for the Presidential election. We have discussed it with our allies. Around 20 names were considered and detailed discussions were held on these names. After talking with our allies, we have decided to nominate a woman candidate from the East, and who is also from a tribal community," he said, adding that Murmu would be the first tribal President once she is elected to the post.

Nadda compared Murmu former President Dr Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan. "Like Dr

Radhakrishnan, her life also has been closely connected with education. She was a teacher by profession," he said.

Party sources said Murmu, who enjoys the confidence of the Prime Minister, was the first choice of the leadership. Incidentally, her name had done the rounds as a contender for the President's post in 2017 -- the BJP eventually nominated Ram Nath Kovind who is retiring next month after completing his term.

At least three senior BJP leaders called the move to nominate Murmu as "good and politically significant". A senior minister in the Modi government said, "There are many reasons for the party cadre to laud this decision. She is a woman, tribal, grounded and humble leader, hardcore BJP worker and the selection goes well with the BJP's core governance theme -- Sabka Saath Sabka Vikas, Sabka Vishwas, Sabka Prayas. Droupadi Murmu will bring her rich administrative experience, from the district level to state level, also to Rashtrapati Bhavan."

Jharkhand recalls stint: Down to earth and an accessible Governor

Pathalgadi movement and the attempted tweaking of the tenancy Acts had created distrust among tribals. We approached the Governor to hold talks with tribal leaders and take them into confidence for better communication with the government. Sense prevailed and she spoke with the government to do damage control."

According to Turkey, Murmu used to ask officials to "bring one topic to discuss" with her and "encouraged debate and discussions" on it.

Jharkhand's BJP media co-incharge Ashok Baraik, who frequently visited Raj Bhavan during the previous BJP government's tenure, said: "It was the first time that tribals could easily meet the Governor. She will definitely work to uplift the tribal community in the country."

Hailing from the Santhal community, Murmu entered Odisha politics by serving as councillor in the Rairangpur Nagar Panchayat after winning elections in 1997, and as president of the BJP's Scheduled Tribes Morcha in the state.

She was elected as an MLA from Rairangpur in 2000 and 2009. She managed to win in 2009 even as the BJP paled against the challenge put up by the by-then estranged BJD.

During the BJP-BJD coalition government that came to power in 2000, she held the Commerce and Transport, and, subsequently, the Fisheries and Animal Husbandry portfolios.

In 2015, she was sworn in as the Governor of Jharkhand and remained on the post until 2021.

In her personal life, however, Murmu has seen much tragedy, losing her husband Shyam Charan Murmu and two sons. She has a married daughter.

Murmu holds a BA degree and has served as a junior assistant in the irrigation and power department in the Odisha government. She has also served as a teacher in Rairangpur.

(WITH AGENCIES)

2 days ago, Shinde had spat with Raut and Aaditya on votes for Cong in MLC polls deciding factor (for the revolt)," the source said.

Shinde, the source said, had been unhappy with the way things had been going the past few months and the Chief Minister too had been alerted about it.

The Congress had fielded two candidates in the Legislative Council elections in spite of having numbers to ensure the victory of only one. The list released by the Congress had Handore's name as the first candidate and many felt that he would sail through while the second party candidate, Bhai Jagtap, would face a tough battle because he would need votes from the party's allies to win.

But Jagtap emerged victorious and Handore was defeated. While the BJP won five seats, the Sena and NCP won two seats each.

No rollback, conflict entrepreneurs behind protests, says NSA

"We thought these people who have some vested interest... Some people are making money through coaching centres, some want to discredit the government, some want the youth to go against the government... But we are a democracy. Once they transgress those red lines where the limits of their freedom start undermining the country's security and its law and order, action has to be taken and has been taken," Doval said.

On whether there should have been more consultations before the scheme was announced, Doval said: "Management of security is a very layered phenomenon. In some situations, there has to be complete insulation. People should know on the basis of need to know. If there are people who have nothing to contribute and are not accountable and you take them into confidence, probably, once it becomes public, our adversaries will take advantage of that. As

Eknath Shinde camps in Surat with over 30 MLAs including 3 ministers 106 while Others account for the remaining 29.

Given that 37 Sena MLAs did not attend the meeting that Uddhav had called, the coalition appeared to be in a precarious position. Under the anti-defection law, a two-thirds majority will be required to stake claim as a separate group. If Shinde retains 37 of the Sena's 55 MLAs, the way ahead for him will be clear.

In the Shinde camp are three ministers -- Shambhuraj Desai (MoS Home); Abdul Sattar (MoS Revenue); and Sandipan Bhumare (MoS EGS and Horticulture).

Sena MP Sanjay Raut blamed the BJP for the revolt in his party. "The BJP is carrying out Operation Lotus from Gujarat. The Sena members have been forcibly kept in a hotel. They were also attacked. It tantamounts to kidnapping. Many of them who wanted to return were held back by police. Some conveyed that their life was in danger," he claimed.

The BJP, on the other hand, was keeping its cards close to its chest, adopting a "wait and watch" mantra. Maharashtra BJP chief Chandrakant Patil said, "In politics, nothing can be ruled out. But we are not dislodging the government. The Sena is facing a revolt from its own members." The split in the Sena, he said, reflects the lack of trust that members have in the party's leadership.

BJP sources said two senior party leaders, Union Minister Bhupendra Yadav and party national general secretary C T Ravi, have been assigned the task of holding talks with Shinde and the rebel MLAs. BJP managers said, "The party would like to see how Thackeray handles the in-house crisis. We are not in a hurry to make any decision."

As the Sena swung into damage control, Shinde sent a clear message via a Twitter post: "We are Balasaheb's loyal Sainiks. Balasaheb taught us Hindutva. Our commitment to Balasaheb's Hindutva and teachings of Anand Dighe remains uncompromised. We have never cheated for power."

The Sena removed Shinde as its leader in the House and sent emissaries Milind Narvekar and Ravindra Phatak to Surat for talks with the rebels.

The revolt in the Sena had coalition partners NCP and Congress clearly worried. Although NCP chief Sharad Pawar said, "It is an internal matter of Shiv Sena," his party leader Chhagan Bhujbal said, "A storm has hit Maharashtra. Hopefully, it will recede." Congress state president Nana Patole said, "The BJP has always tried to destabilise the government. But we are strong."

In Surat, Shinde and the Sena rebels checked into a hotel. By 2 pm, Sanjay Kute, BJP MLA from Jalgaon in Maharashtra, was seen arriving at the hotel.

Uddhav's emissaries Narvekar and Phatak were made to wait outside the hotel for nearly 20 minutes before being allowed entry. They were in the hotel for nearly two hours, sources said. Of the 170 rooms in the hotel, 30 rooms on the second floor had been taken by the MLAs, sources said.

Sena MLA Nitin Deshmukh, who was in the hotel as part of the rebel group, took ill and had to be admitted to the New Civil Hospital in Surat. His wife Pranjali reported her husband as "missing" at the Civil Lines police station in Akola, Maharashtra.

Sena members and Deshmukh's friends Dilip Bavche and Mahadev Gavde came from Akola in the evening but were told Deshmukh was no longer in the hospital. Gavde told The Indian Express, "Police intentionally kept us waiting on the first floor. They told us that Deshmukh is in a meeting with Shinde and the doctors. After an hour and half, police told us that Deshmukh had left for the hotel."

Layers of security have been placed outside the hotel on the Surat-Dumas road. Police placed barricades 200 metres from the hotel and only guests who had checked in before the MLAs showed up were allowed inside after screening. Surat police are also checking vehicles going towards Dumas, a popular beachside destination for city residents.

Sena No. 2, BJP backer, Eknath Shinde felt sidelined by Thackeray family tough -- and being generous with economic largesse.

There have been murmurs in recent months about his "unhappiness" over the way the party was being run, and the treatment being meted out to old Sainiks like him. Over the past two years, the Sena's generational change in leadership has seen many senior leaders getting sidelined and the emergence of a new guard led by Aaditya Thackeray, the son of party president and Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray.

Leaders like Shinde see themselves stymied in the Sena, with very little scope for growth, unlike in the past when Bal Thackeray did not take a position in the government, leaving that for party leaders.

While he held two key portfolios, Shinde reportedly was also unhappy over not being given a free hand. All decisions of his departments were purportedly vetted by the Thackerays and their inner coterie. An official gave the example of the Urban Development Department. As its minister, Shinde was the chairperson of the Mumbai Metropolitan Region Development Authority, but its meetings were often attended by Aaditya in his capacity as Environment Minister.

There were other issues, officials said, like the security cover given to Shinde, compared to other top MVA leaders, and transfers of police officers in Thane district over which he felt sidelined.

Over the last two years, especially since the outbreak of Covid, Shinde's access to Matoshree had also got restricted, with an impression gaining ground that the latter were not seeking his counsel like they used to earlier.

A supporter of ties with the BJP, Shinde was earlier among the opponents of the unlikely coalition forged by the Sena in 2019 with the Congress and NCP to form the government in Maharashtra. Many within the MVA feared Shinde to be the weak link amidst their constantly fractious ties -- an impression strengthened by the fact that the BJP spared Shinde even as it went after other MVA leaders.

According to Sena sources, the final straw for Shinde might have been the Shiv Sena's decision to override his suggestion that the party contest the Thane Municipal Corporation polls alone. He was categorically told that the party would contest in alliance with the NCP and Congress, with Shinde reportedly taking affront at both the content and the manner of the communication.

After odd jobs at places such as a beer brewery and fishery, apart from his stint as an autorickshaw driver, Shinde first got into politics via his association with the Shiv Sena in the '80s.

He soon gained proximity to then Thane district Sena president Anand Dighe, who held complete command over the local party unit and had been instrumental in making it a force in the area. As Shinde modelled his appearance too after his mentor, Dighe rewarded his loyalty with helping him win a seat in the Thane Municipal Corporation in 1997.

Dighe was also there for Shinde when he lost his children to a drowning accident in 2000, which caused him to withdraw into a shell.

After Dighe's death in August 2001, Shinde filled the void left in the Thane unit. In 2004, he became an MLA, winning the Kopri-Pachpakhadi seat, and has represented the constituency four consecutive terms.

Like Dighe, Shinde is a man of few words, not known for oratorical flourishes. What he has is an agitational and belligerent style of functioning and, till now, deep loyalty to the Sena -- all qualities that helped his rise in the party.

Outside the party, Shinde left his first political footprint when Uddhav, who had fallen out with the BJP, made him the Leader of Opposition in the Maharashtra Assembly. Shinde was among the party leaders who helped patch up ties between the two parties. Shinde later became Minister for Public Works Department.

On another note, Shinde has built a public profile recently with a film on Dighe, which he is said to have helped produce. Shinde's photo has been a prominent part of the publicity material that has been appearing in Marathi newspapers and television for the past few months. The movie portrays Shinde as a courageous Young Turk, always in the forefront, relentlessly working for the common man.

far as consultation is concerned, India is a democracy. You find if there are 100 issues, there are 101 opinions. And they are freely expressed, from the street to the press."

"There is no question of any rollback (of the scheme). This is not a knee-jerk reaction. This has been discussed for decades... All had this consistent refrain: go for a younger army. But there was a problem. While everybody realised it was necessary, no one had the ability and the will to take the risk," said Doval.

Allaying fears of unemployment after four years in the Armed Forces, Doval said this was a misunderstanding. "We are talking about a young man who is 22 or 23 years old, has done four years of service, and is now in the market. This man has become disciplined, got the capability to work in a team, learnt skills, developed confidence, is trainable and has got an all-India perspective. He is much more equipped to face society. On top of it, he has been given a qualification equivalent to plus-two. Then he will have Rs 11 lakh with him, which he can use to study further," Doval said.

"By the time an Agniveer retires, India will be a $5 trillion economy. There will be many opportunities in the private sector. Industries will want to hire people who are disciplined and trainable. Their biggest asset will be their young age. Their future is totally secure," he said.

On the need for such a scheme, Doval said, "Security is a very dynamic concept. The whole world is going through great change. Increasingly, we are going towards contactless war. We must have a young, fit, agile and well-trained Army. It is a contradiction that a country that has the youngest population has the oldest Army."

Addressing other doubts, Doval said: "Agniveers will never constitute the whole Army. They are only there for four years. The rest of the Army will be made up of experienced people. The Agniveers who become regulars eventually will go through more intensive training. So the Indian Army will always have people who, though recruited as Agniveers, have been selected for their suitability, agility, motivation and aptitude. Selection is one part, but when you observe people over a long period of time, you realise who is an ideal soldier. So after four years, the people who will join the Army will be the crème de la crème."

Doval also said that the concept of regiments was not being tinkered with and regiments such as the artillery and armoured corps would remain. Calling "caste-based regiments" a "colonial legacy," Doval said there were very few left in the Army.

Brushing aside fears of Agniveers becoming mercenaries, Doval said: "This fear is totally invalid. I have been in the business of security for the last 55 years. If there is any guarantee in society to keep peace, stability and rule of law, it will be the civilian population of the country who have to become law abiding. And you will find the best of the law-abiding citizens in these youth who will have nationalist sentiments and protect national interest and create that environment. In the four years in the forces, not only their bodies will be trained, even their minds will be transformed. They will become an asset for our internal security," Doval said.

'Pawar warned Uddhav about growing anxiety within Sena, coalition' with the people concerned under him". "Even a few MLAs of MVA had told Pawar that the CM hadn't heard them and it was tough to speak to Uddhav. They felt isolated and unwanted in the government," said another source.

A Congress leader said the party's MLAs and Ministers had at least twice raised the issue with their high command in Delhi. "At times, our Cabinet Ministers required the CM's intervention on certain projects or policies. But getting an appointment from the CMO was next to impossible," the leader said.

Another aspect of Thackeray's leadership that "irked" the Congress was his failure to hold consultations, especially on important decisions.

The smaller parties and independents aligned with MVA also voiced similar concerns.

One MLA, whose party is supporting the MVA, said: "I had made 45 calls to the CMO. But there was no response."

According to the MLA, "this attitude" of taking the smaller parties and independents for granted led to anger and many distancing themselves from the Sena during the Council and Rajya Sabha polls.

When contacted, a Sena functionary said he was not aware of any such resentment among the MLAs. Thackeray was continuously holding meetings, and communicating with MLAs and Ministers frequently, he said.

"Despite Covid-19 and ill health, the CM was active all the time, meeting people via video conferencing," the functionary said.

J&K Police attach five properties in Srinagar for 'sheltering militants' who provide shelter to militants would be attached. "Process has been started for attachment of some immovable properties which have been used for purpose of terrorism as per Section 2 (g) and 25 of ULP Act," police had tweeted. "Don't give shelter or harbour terrorists/terror associates. Legal action will be supplemented by property attachment as per law".

Following criticism, the J&K Police had issued a clarification: "There has been misinformation, rumours floated by certain quarters regarding information provided by Srinagar police with respect to initiation of attachment of properties used for purpose of terrorism.. It is clarified that Srinagar police is well aware of the difference between wilful harbouring of terrorists and one done under duress".

While seeking to differentiate between "wilful harbouring" and "forced entry" of militants, police had put the onus on the house owners. "The onus always lies on the house owner/member to prove duress by informing the authorities well in time that there is/ was forceful entry of terrorists into his/ her house," police had said.

Thousands of EWS kids denied admission to schools

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

THE NATIONAL Commission for Protection of Child Rights (NCPDR) has written to Delhi chief secretary Naresh Kumar over children from the economically weaker section (EWS) category being denied admission in private schools over the last two years.

The commission said that prima facie, in the past two years, around 18,000 children were not provided admission in Delhi under the EWS category even after allotment by the Directorate of Education (DoE). It also asked the chief secretary to intimate it of the action taken, within seven days of the issuance of the letter.

"The commission is in receipt of various complaints regarding denial of admission to children belonging to EWS category by the private schools of Delhi even after getting selected in the lottery under section 12 (1) (c) of Right to Education (RTE) Act, 2009. In this regard, after taking cognizance of the complaints, dealing officer concerned from the DoE had been summoned virtually to seek clarification in the issue of delay of admission to children belonging to 'economically weaker section' by private schools," NCPDR chairperson Priyank Kanoongo wrote to the Delhi chief secretary Monday.

"During summon hearing, it has come to light that in the academic year 2021-2022 approximate seats allotted for admission of EWS category children in Delhi private schools were 40,000 wherein admission has been given to 28,000 children. Further, in the academic year 2022-2023 approximate seats allotted for admission of EWS category children in Delhi private schools were 33,000, wherein admission has been given to around 27,000 children," he wrote.

"In addition, only 33,000 seats have been allotted in the academic year 2022-23 in lieu of 40,000 seats of the academic year 2021-22; evidently, 7,000 seats are yet to be allotted for admission of EWS category children by the DoE in the current academic year. The number is substantially ghastrly," he wrote.

Kanoongo said that "free and compulsory education" is the "basic constitutional right of any child", guaranteed by the Indian Constitution.

High voltage campaign ends for Rajinder Nagar bypoll

ABHINAV RAJPUT
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

THE CAMPAIGN for the Rajinder Nagar bypoll ended at 6 pm Tuesday, with restrictions in place to ensure voters are not influenced afterward.

Fifteen teams from the police and central forces were stationed in the area to make sure no law and order issue arose, chief electoral officer Ranbir Singh said.

"This is the time when voters should be left free to decide as per their wishes, so section 144 would be in place in the area to restrict assembly of people in large groups, liquor shops would be closed, and uncertified advertisements would not be allowed," he said.

A total of 20 candidates had filed their nominations for the by-election, where polling will be held on June 23.

The BJP has fielded Rajesh Bhatia as its candidate, the AAP has given ticket to Durgesh Pathak, and Congress to Prem Lata.

The seat fell vacant after AAP's Raghav Chadha was nominated to the Rajya Sabha.

There have been several violations of the election procedure reported in the area, with 36,390 cases of defacement being recorded since May 25. There have been police complaints in 23 cases, including 12 against AAP and nine against BJP, said Singh.

A total of 280 licensed arms have been seized from the constituency and five illegal weapons have been seized, leading to five arrests and FIRs, he said.

Also, 4.5 lakh litres of liquor have been seized from the constituency since May 25 while drugs worth Rs 10 crore, including heroin, have been recovered across Delhi during this period, he added. Items worth Rs 30 lakh, which are suspected to be meant for distribution among voters, have also been seized, he said.

There has also been a challan on 166 vehicles for violating election laws such as placing posters beyond the mandated size.

This includes 110 against AAP, 43 against BJP and 13 against others, he said.

The result of the bypoll will be announced on June 26. Both parties had their top leaders on the ground in the past week.

From the BJP, Union ministers Ashwini Vaishnaw, Arjun Ram Meghwal, MPs Manoj Tiwari, Meenakshi Lekhi, Hans Raj Hans, Gautam Gambhir, Ravi Kishan and Delhi chief Adesh Gupta hit the streets for nukkad sabhas and road shows.

CM Arvind Kejriwal, AAP senior leaders and ministers including Manish Sisodia, Gopal Rai and Rajya Sabha MP Sanjay Singh have also been campaigning in different areas of the constituency relentlessly.

BJP candidate Rajesh Bhatia said, "I know local issues well, having been born and brought up in Rajinder Nagar, but the AAP candidate who earlier lost the election in Karawal Nagar is being forced on Rajinder Nagar. And by the time he (Pathak) even understands local issues, the two-and-a-half-year term will end."

AAP candidate Durgesh Pathak said residents of Rajinder Nagar want to vote for Kejriwal's candidate because his government has ensured a bright future for their children.

"Parents are very happy with the progress their children are making in studies. They say children have already started discussing entrepreneurship and employment with them. People are happy they no longer have to care about expensive schools with exorbitant fees," he said.

FIRST FLASHPOINT OVER ACB PROBE INTO CONSTRUCTION OF 7 HOSPITALS

Sisodia takes aim at new L-G: 'Trying to favour BJP by bulldozing the law'

GAYATHRI MANI
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

IN WHAT is the first major flashpoint between the Delhi government and the Lieutenant Governor, Deputy Chief Minister Manish Sisodia wrote to L-G VK Saxena saying his nod to the anti-corruption Branch (ACB) to probe corruption allegations against Public Works Department (PWD) officials for construction of seven temporary hospitals was not in accordance with the law.

Saxena recently gave ACB permission to investigate allegations of corruption against senior officials of the PWD based on a complaint by BJP MP Manoj Tiwari regarding the tender for the construction of hospitals in 2020.

In his letter, Sisodia asked the L-G to withdraw the permission and said his decision was incorrect, both in terms of law and effective governance. He said the L-G was trying to stop construction of hospitals, thereby inconveniencing people of Delhi.

The Delhi government's project to construct seven hospitals was announced to address the pandemic, and the complaint seeking an investigation into the project, alleging corruption, was filed by Tiwari last year. Sisodia alleged that BJP and its leaders have been making frivolous complaints against developmental works in healthcare and education due to repeated rejections they face from people of Delhi.

Sisodia has written a letter to the L-G asking to withdraw permissions given to the ACB

Calling the complaint bogus, Sisodia said that former L-G Anil Bajjal had perused the complaint and decided it was "frivolous".

"The complaint was filed by Tiwari last year and the L-G has forwarded the year-old complaint to ACB and given permission to investigate the matter... The Aam Aadmi Party government is a kattar imandar (honest) government that has always stood against corruption. But intimidating engineers and PWD officials without following due procedure and informing the state government is unfair," said Sisodia.

Tiwari's contention is that while the hospitals started to be set up in 2020 itself, the clearance from the finance committee came only in 2021.

Sisodia, who holds the PWD portfolio in absence of Satyendar Jain, said, "Former L-G Anil Bajjal held that this complaint was politically motivated... He did not consider it worth a detailed investigation and now, the new Delhi L-G has reopened the complaint."

Sisodia said the L-G has violated the law by giving permission to the ACB. "We are not afraid of any investigation, but you have to follow legal procedure. Section 17 of the Prevention of Corruption Act says that no police officer, which in this case is the ACB, can conduct any inquiry or investigation into any offence alleged to have been committed by a public servant, which is an engineer involved in the present case, under this act where the alleged offence is related to any recommendation made or decision taken by such public servant in discharge of his functions or duties without the previous approval of state government. The act also says that four months' time will be provided to give approval in exceptional cases and three months' time in regular cases."

The Union government brought out a new SOP for investigation under the act on September 3, 2021, and the Delhi L-G has violated this SOP while approving the request for an investigation in the present case, Sisodia said.

Delhi is a Union Territory with a special character and the elected government has been vested with special powers. However, as per the Government of the National Capital Territory of Delhi Amendment Act passed last year, the L-G is the head of the government. The ACB, which was under the elected government till 2014, has been under the L-G since. The AAP government has had several run-ins with the L-G since 2015, this being the latest after Saxena took charge nearly a month ago.

"Why does the current L-G estimate that the decision made by the then L-G is incorrect and needs to be probed again? You are bulldozing the law only to favour the BJP," he said. "If you want to take action against corruption, ask the people for complaints and see the number of complaints against the MCD, Delhi Police and DDA. Their officials indulge in corruption and the people will tell you the same. You can ask them to send grievances against any department of the Delhi government and we assure you full cooperation."

Meanwhile, Tiwari slammed the Deputy CM and accused him of trying to hide corruption in the construction of seven hospitals, saying a city court had ordered a probe into it. Instead of clarifying the charges, Sisodia had written a letter to the L-G for withdrawing a probe by the ACB into the matter, while the probe has been ordered by a court, Tiwari said.

"Sisodia also said that he has filed defamation against me. However, he shied to say that the Supreme Court has stayed it. He could face contempt of court for his comments," Tiwari said.

DDA nod to e-waste park, NDRF HQ and AIIMS revamp

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

TO ENHANCE public health infrastructure in the national capital, the Delhi Development Authority (DDA) Tuesday cleared the decks for redevelopment of AIIMS, apart from setting up of an e-waste management park and establishment of the National Disaster Response Force headquarters.

Lieutenant Governor Vinai Kumar Saxena, who is also the DDA chairperson, cleared the proposals for redevelopment plan of 79.73 hectares comprising five land parcels for development of AIIMS as a world-class medical university and change of land use from recreational to public.

The plan envisages upgradation of the campus and its facilities to create a smart and sustainable campus that meets all requirements of healthcare, education and research.

For e-waste management, the DDA has given approval for a change of land use for up to 21-acre land from residential to utility for setting up e-waste management (eco-park) at Village Holambi Kalan, near Narela. The activities in the park will target small and medium-scale enterprises clusters involved in e-waste recycling. This will be the first of its kind in Delhi, said DDA.

The authority has also approved a change of land use of 0.6769 hectares of land at Vasant Vihar in the capital for the establishment of the headquarters for the NDRF.

Kejriwal calls for introduction of daily yoga sessions in Delhi govt schools

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

DELHI CHIEF Minister Arvind Kejriwal Tuesday called for the introduction of daily yoga classes in all government schools in the national capital. Celebrating International Yoga Day, Kejriwal performed yoga in one of the government's 'Dilli ki yogashala' centres along with his deputy Manish Sisodia.

"Yoga should not be practised for one day to celebrate the day, it should be made a part of daily life. Practising yoga and meditation helps to reduce stress and tension, and gives peace to your mind, body and soul. It should be practised from an early age. I ask our education minister, who is here today, to start daily yoga classes in schools," said Kejriwal.

Kejriwal said Delhi has become the country's best city to embrace yoga as, according to him, around 17,000 people practise it daily in the national capital.

"We started free yoga classes for Covid patients this year and around 4,600 people signed up for them during the third wave. I am not saying that yoga can cure Covid but research studies have shown that yoga helped patients in improving immune system and fighting the virus," he said.

Kejriwal said they have made all health services, from tests to doctor consultation to medical treatment to medicines, free. "Free mohalla clinics, dispensaries and health departments provide free treatment but I ask people why are we going to hospitals? We should not be dependent on medicines or tablets for every small thing. If we make yoga part of our life, it will keep us away from hospitals."

He appealed to the public to take a pledge to practise yoga and meditation daily. "Today, 17,000 people have included yoga in their routine and I want to take this number to lakhs. Stress will remain in our life but there is a solution to reduce it. People ask me reasons for providing yoga classes for free, but I say natural things that are part of life shouldn't be chargeable. So, when you are getting a free facility, take advantage of it and make your daily life stress free, energetic and healthy."

The 'Dilli ki yogashala' programme was announced by Kejriwal in December 2021 and free classes began in January this year with 400 instructors.

Under this scheme, people or RWAs can give a missed call to 9013585858 and get an instructor. The Delhi Pharmaceutical Sciences and Research University (DPSRU) provides yoga instructors for a group of a maximum of 25 people. While seeking an instructor, the group can select an open space or park near their house or colony.

Scent of change at Ghazipur flower market as Delhi govt plans modern facilities, cold storage, permanent shops

GAYATHRI MANI
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

GHAZIPUR FLOWER market is going to get a facelift as the Delhi government has planned to redevelop the traditional market into a 'modern bazaar' with state-of-the-art facilities, including multi-storied buildings, shops, offices and cold storage facilities.

The market, where a 3 kg IED was found earlier this year, is one of the biggest and most popular in the country and deals in a wide range of flowers, including imported ones from Europe and the South East Asia. These are then sold across the country.

According to officials, the Delhi Agricultural Marketing Board (DAMB), which will execute the project, has floated tenders to redevelop the market to commission agents and wholesale shops.

Under the revamp plan, the DAMB plans to bring in infrastructural facilities including proper roads, underground wiring, fire safety system, security, sewage lines, and cold storage for preserving flowers.

Officials say the 10-acre market currently has shops that operate in a shed/porta cabin or open area. "The government plans to demolish all sheds and

EXPLAINED
A fresh attempt

The redevelopment of the Ghazipur market is a long-pending project of the Delhi government. Last year, the government invited bids but due to the lack of a sewage treatment plant (STP), the project was not executed. However, officials said an STP has been constructed, now and hope there will be no hiccups this time.

The market is among the most popular for wholesale purchase of flowers construct a proposed reinforced concrete (RCC) framed building with a huge basement with four floors. The basement will be of RCC raft foundation supported on RCC columns," said an official.

The main multi-storied structure and parking areas will be developed for loading and unloading flowers. Internal roads will also be redeveloped with proper alignment, drainage system and electrification. Installation and commissioning of gen-sets, water supply and sanitation, sewerage, firefighting arrangements and other safety measures are on the cards. The market will also get a centralised RO plant. It currently has about 400 agents and wholesalers. Officials said well-established shops will be constructed for about 222 wholesalers and offices for 192 agents.

LED street lights and decorative lights will be installed for beautification. An entrance with proper security will also be constructed following the recent security scare, said an official.

The estimated cost of this project is Rs 197 crore. The tendering process will take about one-two months time, and once the contract is awarded and work starts on the ground, the market will be developed by 2024.

YouTuber, luxury car owner arrested for beating up JNU professor, say police

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

TWO MEN, including a 28-year-old YouTuber, have been arrested for allegedly abducting and robbing JNU assistant professor Sharad Baviskar in the early hours of June 18. Initial investigation has revealed the argument started between Baviskar and two accused after his car touched theirs, and they decided to recover money for the damage, police said.

Police said the accused have been identified as West Delhi resident Rajat Pal Singh and Gurgaon resident Aashish Shokin.

According to police, professor Baviskar had dropped his wife and daughter at his in-laws' house in Burari before returning to JNU campus in his car. Around 12.30 am, a car allegedly rammed into his vehicle from the left side near the Naraina flyover but he did not stop.

When he stopped at the traffic signal near Delhi Cantonment, a few men came and snatched his car keys. They allegedly forced him into an Audi vehicle and went through Moolchand, Greater Kailash and Ashram before arriving at an unknown location, where they switched cars, police said. They allegedly took the professor's credit and debit cards and withdrew Rs 28,500 and spent Rs 5,000 to refuel their vehicle, police said and added that later, they left professor Baviskar near a petrol pump with his own car.

An FIR has been filed under IPC sections 392 (robbery), 365 (kidnapping), 323 (voluntary

Prof Baviskar had alleged the accused also objected to his JNU affiliation and called him "anti national" harm without provocation), and 334 (voluntary harm on provocation.)

According to Ghanshyam Bansal, DCP (West), "The owner of the Audi, Rajat Pal Singh, and Aashish Shokin were arrested. The Audi and a Range Rover owned by Shokin have been recovered, along with the stolen money amounting to Rs 20,000."

Officials noted that Singh was a YouTube singer while Shokin dealt in the sale and purchase of luxury cars. They said that teams had been constituted and an investigation was in progress to arrest the remaining accused.

Professor Baviskar had alleged on social media that the accused also objected to his JNU affiliation and called him "anti national". JNU Teachers Association had released a statement in support of Professor Baviskar, saying that he was subject to verbal abuse, physical assault, threats and financial extortion. Baviskar is an assistant professor at JNU's Centre for French and Francophone studies.

Oxygen concentrators sold by Khan Chacha owner useless: Police

MAHENDER SINGH
MANRAL
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

BUSINESSMAN NAVNEET Kalra and four employees of international SIM company Matrix, including its CEO, earned a profit of Rs 40,000-Rs 42,000 each from oxygen concentrators sold to Covid patients, the Delhi Police has stated in a draft chargesheet in the alleged black-marketing case, expected to be filed in the Saket court. They have also alleged that concentrators were "of sub-standard quality and useless for Covid treatment".

Last year, police had recovered 524 concentrators from three restaurants owned by Kalra — Town Hall and Khan Chacha in Khan Market and Nege Ju in Lodhi Colony — as well as from Matrix's warehouse in Chhatarpur's Mandi Village.

Kalra and four employees of Matrix — Gaurav Khanna, CEO of Matrix Cellular; Gaurav Suri, business head; Satish Sethi, sales manager; and Vikrant Singh, sales manager — along with the manager of Khan Chacha restaurant Hitesh Kumar were arrested. Police had alleged these oxygen concentrators were sold at exorbitant prices during the pandemic. The men are out on bail while Matrix owner Gagan Deep Singh Duggal is absconding, police said.

On May 8 last year, the case was transferred to the inter-state cell of the Crime Branch.

"Gaurav Khanna told police during questioning that his company had sold each oxygen concentrator with a profit margin of Rs 40,000 to Rs 42,000... delivery of some oxygen concentrators were made from Khullar farmhouse in Sultanpur and Nege Ju restaurant," police stated in their draft chargesheet.

Police also found the MRP sticker of Rs 69,999, which they recovered from the office of Matrix at Khullar farmhouse.

"Police had also sought a report from the Shriram Institute for Industrial Research (SIIR) regarding evaluation of oxygen concentrators after sending samples to them; they were found to be sub-standard. Police also sought a report from a committee at AIIMS, the senior chief medical officer, EMR, Ministry of Health and Family Welfare. As per evaluation of samples at SIIR, 'average output in terms of oxygen purity is found to be 32.7% and 38.2%'... These show oxygen concentrators are of sub-standard quality and useless for Covid treatment. However, they sold it on the pretext that it can be used for Covid treatment," police stated.

Police alleged in their probe that as per Duggal's Registrar of Companies record, he has never had any business history of medical equipment/devices and he cashed in on the pandemic for pecuniary gain.

MAHARASHTRA: REVOLT IN SHIV SENA

Out of touch with MLAs, lacklustre in admin, how Uddhav lost the plot

ZEESHAN SHAIKH & YOGESH NAIK
MUMBAI, JUNE 21

ON JUNE 11, a day after the BJP managed to win three Rajya Sabha seats in Maharashtra in spite of inadequate numbers, NCP chief Sharad Pawar lauded the leadership of Devendra Fadnis, stating that the performance was largely due to the Leader of Opposition's ability to "win over people".

Many saw Pawar's statement as a swipe at Maharashtra Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray, who has over the past 30 months of his tenure come to be seen as aloof and unapproachable, to both his Maharashtra Vikas Aghadi allies as well as own party MLAs.

This aloofness coupled with Thackeray's propensity to communicate with his partymen and allies through a select coterie deemed to be part of his kitchen cabinet sowed the first seeds of discord in the party, which erupted on Tuesday morning into a full-scale rebellion. So blind was Thackeray to this that earlier this year he had entrusted Shinde himself to address these concerns of MLAs.

Thackeray took over as CM in 2019 without any experience in the administration or of contesting elections, having spent years in the shadow of his father Bal Thackeray.

The Covid pandemic and a spine surgery followed soon after, confining Thackeray to his home Matoshree. The recuperating CM could attend the Secretariat only after a five-month hiatus, lasting from November 2021 to April 2022. This left many Sena leaders frustrated over their inability to meet the CM, and over being forced to go through intermediaries such as Milind Narvekar or Anil Parab.

Apart from these trusted leaders, the new CM was also seen as excessively dependent on bureaucrats, particularly Chief Secretary Ajoy Mehta and his successor S J Kunte.

ditional chief secretary says officials too were left frustrated at times at the "lack of interest in administration". "The CM would discuss his hobby of photography and wildlife sighting. I had to plead with the CM's secretary to get files cleared."

Among those to publicly voice their resentment over Thackeray's lack of accessibility were Sena allies like the Bahujan Vikas Aghadi, helmed by Hitendra Thakur. In the recent Rajya Sabha polls as well as the MLC elections held on Monday, Thakur voted against the Sena candidates. Sources point out that while veteran NCP chief Sharad Pawar made it a point to personally call allies up, Thackeray left it to his aides to rally support, including Thakur's.

The Bahujan Vikas Aghadi leader told The Indian Express: "Not just us, many MLAs, including of the Shiv Sena, felt the CM had no time for us. Many are angry."

The rise of Uddhav's son Aaditya Thackeray also added to the insecurity of many senior and old-time Sainiks. Several have been sidelined to make way for members of the Yuva Sena, headed by Aaditya.

Thackeray's frequent espousal of Maharashtra and Marathi pride did help rally a section of the cadre, but it was not sufficient to make up for the MLAs' concerns, including on administrative neglect. Sena leaders compared this with the NCP's running of the party, with the Pawar-led party ensuring it called the shots in the Cabinet.

The NCP's dominance was also felt in the state budget, with nearly two dozen Sena MLAs earlier this year threatening to boycott the Budget Session of the Assembly alleging a rough deal in the allocation of development funds.

Thackeray also failed to gauge the uneasiness regarding the alliance with the Congress-NCP. Many felt the alliance was inimical to the Sena's own political growth, with the consequent moulding into a less-strident Hindutva seen as ceding space to the BJP. Aaditya especially was seen as keen on a more moderate identity for the Sena, by taking up "progressive" causes.

If Shinde was among those seen as in favour of an alliance with the BJP instead of with the Congress and NCP, another such leader was Nandgaon MLA Suhas Kande, who is now among the rebels in Surat. Worried about his survival, Kande had taken the surprise step of moving the Bombay High Court in September last year seeking the removal of senior NCP leader Chhagan Bhujbal as Nashik's guardian minister.

In 2019, Kande had defeated Chhagan's son Pankaj Bhujbal in Nandgaon, but he feared the seat could be given up by the Sena if the alliance with the Congress and NCP continued.

Interestingly, among the factors behind the Sena's loss in the Rajya Sabha poll was the disqualification of Kande's vote. Kande blamed the episode on a BJP conspiracy.

Sena MLA's wife files missing complaint, cops leave for Surat

Mumbai: Wife of Balapur MLA Nitin Deshmukh Tuesday filed a missing persons complaint with the Akola Police, which dispatched a police team on Tuesday evening for Surat to trace Deshmukh.

Deshmukh is reportedly among the group of MLAs who had gone to Surat on Monday along with Shinde. Deshmukh's wife approached the Civil Lines police station informing them her husband has gone "missing".

"Based on her complaint, we filed a missing case. During investigation, we learnt that he is in Surat. He suffered chest pain on Tuesday afternoon and was admitted to a civic hospital there. We have informed his wife and our police team has left from Akola for Surat by road to check on him. If he is fine and has no complaints, our team will return," said a police officer. ENS

MVA is stable, say allies, blame crisis on BJP's Op Lotus

VALLABH OZARKAR & YOGESH NAIK
MUMBAI, JUNE 21

THE STORM that has hit the Shiv Sena after the revolt by Eknath Shinde has caused consternation among allies Congress and NCP, who so far have claimed that the Maha Vikas Aghadi (MVA) government is stable and the three parties will stick together.

Sena MP Sanjay Raut told reporters Tuesday: "Uddhav's personal assistant and Sena secretary Milind Narvekar and (MLC) Ravindra Fatak went to meet Shinde. They met and discussed. Whatever he has said, they will convey it to CM Uddhav Thackeray. Shinde's proposal (of forming a government with BJP) came to fore suddenly this morning. Our talks are going on. We left the BJP for a reason, they did not keep their promise. Eknath Shinde is a witness to it."

Earlier in the day, Raut alleged that this is a "lotus operation" of the BJP and Sena MLAs have been lodged in a hotel in Surat amid security and their lives are in danger. "It is learnt that the MLAs who tried to leave the hotel were attacked. Some MLAs have conveyed to us that their lives are in danger but I want to say that Shiv Sena will come out of this. No matter what anyone says, the organisational structure is not affected. Many MLAs have contacted us."

"Eknath Shinde is our colleague. We have been working together for the last several years. If there are any issues or confusion in his mind, that can be sorted out after discussion. Therefore, we are appealing to them to come to Mumbai and discuss with us."

After Narvekar and Fatak met Shinde in Surat, Thackeray and Shinde spoke over the phone. Sources said Shinde insisted on allying with the BJP to form the government and said he would return to the Sena if the party is willing to follow the Hindutva ideology. NCP chief Sharad Pawar, meanwhile, termed the development as "internal matter" of Shiv Sena and expressed confidence in the leadership of Thackeray to find a solution to the political crisis. He said this is the third instance when someone has tried to destabilise the MVA government. "Looking at the situation, I think we will find out some solution," he said.

Amid rumours that some of its MLAs were also going to defect, the Congress held a meeting of its legislature party, attended by 42 of its 44 MLAs. AICC secretary in charge of Maharashtra H K Patil said they were firmly with the MVA government. On Wednesday, AICC observer Kamal Nath will arrive to address party MLAs.

Patil said, "We had a meeting of our MLAs... We are all united... Our CLP leader Balasaheb Thorat and PWD Minister Ashok Chavan met the CM. Our party will make efforts to ensure MVA comes out of this crisis. 'Operation Kamal' is not good and we condemn the BJP's role to topple with MVA."

Our support for Uddhav, Shinde must talk to him: Sena workers

VALLABH OZARKAR
MUMBAI, JUNE 21

ANGER, DISBELIEF and frustration were writ large on the faces of Shiv Sena workers in Mumbai following reports of senior Sena MLA Eknath Shinde rebelling and landing in Surat with over 30 party MLAs.

Many party workers, including senior leaders, gathered at Shiv Sena Bhavan and outside the Chief Minister's residence Varsha in a show of solidarity with party president and CM Uddhav Thackeray.

Most of the MLAs who visited Varsha for a meeting called by Thackeray refused to speak to the media. However, many workers deemed Shinde's move as an act of betrayal.

A women Shiv Sainik outside the Sena Bhavan broke down. "Whatever happens, all party workers are with Shiv Sena president Uddhav Thackeray and those who have betrayed him and the party will not be forgiven," she said.

Many of those present said that Sena will emerge triumphant from this crisis. They said instead of rebelling, Shinde should have spoken to the party chief and not left the party, which will ultimately help the Opposition.

Sena spokesperson Anand Dubey said, "The party workers feel that if Shinde had any issues, he should have communicated with party leaders... But he has gone to another state... This is disheartening for the cadre."

Crisis on the way: intel warned govt 2 months ago

SAGAR RAJPUT
MUMBAI, JUNE 21

THE FAILURE of the Shiv Sena to gauge the mood and disquiet prevailing among its legislators has raised questions on the hold of Shiv Sena chief Uddhav Thackeray on the party. The dissension shown by Sena MLAs has also raised question marks on the ability of the State Intelligence Department (SID), which is earmarked to keep a close eye on the political developments in Maharashtra, failed to foresee the impending crisis.

Sources in the Maharashtra Police claimed that the SID had informed the government that eight to 10 of its MLAs, including Sena's Eknath Shinde, were in touch with Opposition leaders.

According to sources, the intelligence officials had given confidential information to the government around two months ago but no action was taken on it.

The SID, which monitors possible developments in the state, provides advance notice on political developments and movements, crimes as well as anti-social, terrorist and Maoist activities.

A senior IPS officer said, "The information on political developments is often given verbally to the government."

"In such a situation, with help from the SID, some preemptive steps should have been taken. The question, however, is whether the inputs had been provided to the government," said an official.

Many times, the state police even gets intelligence inputs from police officers appointed as special security guards of politicians, said sources.

Several MVA members unhappy... BJP will need 35 MLAs to form govt: MoS

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
GANDHINAGAR, JUNE 21

UNION MINISTER of State for Finance and Rajya Sabha MP from Maharashtra, Bhagwat Karad, told reporters in Gandhinagar Tuesday that several MLAs in the Maha Vikas Aghadi (MVA) coalition government "were unhappy", and that the BJP would need 35 MLAs if wanted to form the government.

As he spoke, some 30 MLAs of the Shiv Sena under the leadership of minister Eknath Shinde were in a Surat hotel, revolting against the Uddhav Thackeray government in Maharashtra. He was addressing the media at the BJP headquarters here after participating in a state event on International Day of Yoga.

Asked if the BJP will be able to form government in Maharashtra, Karad said, "I do not know if there are 30 MLAs, 35 MLAs or 20. But one thing is that we need 35 MLAs (to form the government) or anybody who wants to form government will require two-third majority."

Claiming that it was "understood" after the Maharashtra Legislative Council results on Monday that "many MLAs are discontent", Karad said, "Many

Shiv Sena leader Milind Narvekar and BJP MLA Sanjay Kute separately visited the hotel on Tuesday. PTI

MLAs are unhappy with Maha Vikas Aghadi. And therefore, whether it is elections of legislative council or Rajya Sabha, they have cross-voted in favour of BJP."

"I come from Maharashtra. There are public works that have not been done in the past two-and-a-half-years... I think things are being messed up with some discontent MLAs since politics was on with three different kind of ideologies of Congress, NCP and Shiv Sena. Immediately I cannot say much about (BJP forming) government," Karad added.

On the allegation purportedly by Shiv Sena leader Sanjay Raut that Gujarat police had abducted their MLAs, Karad said, "There is no question of Gujarat police going there. What Sanjay Raut says should not be trusted."

Given that the Sena MLAs chose Surat as sanctuary, speculation was rife Gujarat BJP Chief

CR Paatil might have had a role to play. However, Paatil denied it saying he had not been to Surat "at all since Monday". Paatil was scheduled to participate in Yoga Day event in Raisan Tuesday. However, as per a party release issued Monday, Paatil's plan changed since he had to attend a programme in Surat. On Tuesday, Paatil held a meeting with CM Bhupendra Patel in Gandhinagar.

A BJP leader from Gujarat told The Indian Express the "operation" was a secret even for BJP leaders. "The BJP is lending support to leaders who have aspirations. It is a beneficial proposal for the party to regain power in Maharashtra just in time to prepare for 2024... The party is now envisioning itself close to 20 years from now. All this is ground work to strengthen the party across the country."

Wary of 2019 failure, BJP to tread with caution

SHUBHANGI KHAPRE
MUMBAI, JUNE 21

WITH SHIV Sena being hit by a revolt, it former ally BJP is exploring all options to return to power in Maharashtra. While the BJP reckons that a verticle split in the Sena could work to its advantage, its leaders, who are closely watching the crisis unfold have, however, decided to tread cautiously as they are wary of a repeat of the party's failed attempt to form government in 2019.

"We have in place a plan A and a plan B," said a BJP leader. "As per our first plan, if Sena were to split vertically, BJP will stand a good chance to align with the rebel group and form government. The catch here is that Sena rebel leader Eknath Shinde will have to retain two-third majority on his side. Alternatively, we plan to use the divide in Sena to benefit in the Assembly and Lok Sabha polls."

Party leaders said after the Monsoon Session of state legislature begins on July 18, the BJP will move a no-confidence motion against the MVA government. "The floor test will expose the MVA numbers," said a leader.

Shinde is likely to retain at least 37 of the 55 Sena MLAs, said sources. "If Shinde succeeds, it will open the doors for merger with the BJP," a source said.

The BJP, with 106 MLAs, is the single largest party and has the support of 27 additional MLAs, including from smaller parties and Independents. Thus, the BJP with 133 MLAs and the 37 rebel Sena MLAs will increase its strength to 170, sources added. The required half-way mark is 145.

On November 23, 2019, Devendra Fadnis was sworn in as CM and NCP's Ajit Pawar as the deputy CM. The government lasted for around 80 hours, making way for Sena chief Uddhav Thackeray as the CM.

State BJP chief Chandrakant Patil said, "In 2019, Sena and BJP had fought elections as allies. But Uddhav Thackeray betrayed the BJP to join hands with Congress and NCP. The decision was not acceptable to a majority of its members. But Thackeray kept reassuring them the coalition was temporary, aimed to teach BJP a lesson, and that later he will join hands with the BJP."

"Now, majority of Sena members reckon that they require the BJP's support to keep their constituencies intact. They cannot have any alliance with Congress and NCP in the next elections."

In Rampur, BJP & SP gear up for Lok Sabha bypoll in Azam Khan's shadow

AMIL BHATNAGAR
RAMPUR, JUNE 21

IN A narrow lane adjacent to a flyover in Uttar Pradesh's Rampur city, Akram waited on his scooter as a Samajwadi Party (SP) procession passed by. A Jeep laden with posters of veteran SP leader Azam Khan and his close associate Asim Raja went around colonies urging people to vote for the party in large numbers on Thursday during a Lok Sabha bypoll that became necessary after Azam, out on bail, vacated the seat to retain his Assembly seat.

Though it is 64-year-old Raja who is the candidate, Azam

Khan's presence in the election in his stronghold remains crucial. "The political DNA of this city is Azam Khan," Akram said as the jeep turned a corner. "Many of the roads, gates, and universities have been built by him. In the truest sense, he brought development to people. We did have BJP and Congress before, but we did not see the kind of work they had the opportunity to do. Azam Khan is a people's leader and one can always approach him for help."

Raja is a relatively lesser-known figure. An Azam aide, this will be his first-ever election, having earlier handled local Nagar Palika departments. Raja has been with the party for decades but, for people, it is his association with the SP veteran that is of most significance. BJP candidate Ghanshyam Lodhi was also once close to Azam and was elected to the state legislative council in 2016 on an SP ticket. Campaigning for the bypoll concluded on Tuesday, with Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath, who is seen by many BJP supporters as the key to the ruling party's chances, addressing two rallies. Adityanath lashed out at Khan, without naming him. "Because of his kaarnama (acts), he had to constantly stay in jail. If his actions were right, why did he have to stay in jail? And when he was elected to the Vidhan Sabha, he left the people who elected him to the Lok Sabha. He should not appeal for votes," said the UP CM.

Adityanath said his government had used "Rampur ka chaku (knife)" to protect the area's dignity and would not let the area become a "den of anarchy".

But despite the multiple cases in connection with which he spent over two years in prison, the SP's leader's popularity remains undiminished. "Azam Khan carries a certain reputation in the city. The cases against him show that the government is afraid of him. They know the kind of influence he has in the region. But people here are aware of Khan's importance. Asim Raja may not be known to people but Azam Khan's faith in him will be enough to convince people," said Intiaz Khan, a shopkeeper.

Not only Raja, but rival BJP candidate Ghanshyam Lodhi has also been in Azam's shadow. In SP circles, there is a famous story of how, in 2016, the veteran SP leader flew to the constituency in a helicopter with Lodhi's MLC ticket as the nomination period was about to end. To many people, the BJP candidate also draws his identity from Azam and will not be able to breach the SP leader's bastion.

BJP supporters in the area claimed that Ghanshyam was not a visible face. Adityanath was the key to the BJP's chances of winning the constituency, they added. "The fact remains that no one knows Ghanshyam in the area," said Jwala Nagar resident Ashok, who is a professional DJ. "He has been in different parties as well. But he is a credible face. We are all grateful to 'Baba ji' (Yogi) for his bulldozer against criminals. The SP is known for its hooliganism and things have been in check because of law and order."

Rampur has a predominantly Muslim population with nearly eight lakh voters from the community. The Congress has represented the constituency the most, with Zulfikar Ali Khan getting elected MP five times. In the by-polls, Congress has not fielded any candidate and its Rampur Assembly poll candidate Kazim Ali Khan who lost to Azam earlier this year has extended support to Lodhi.

Yashwant Sinha is Opp's President candidate

SOURAV ROY BARMAN
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

FORMER UNION Minister Yashwant Sinha, who quit the ruling BJP in 2018 alleging that democracy was in danger under the Modi Government, was on Tuesday "unanimously" chosen by the Opposition as its candidate for the upcoming Presidential election.

In a joint statement, the Opposition denounced the BJP, which appears to have the required numbers to win the race, for not making any "serious effort" to build consensus around a candidate for the country's highest Constitutional office.

The Opposition's decision to field a common candidate was decided on June 15, in a meeting convened by TMC chief and West Bengal CM Mamata Banerjee. But the move faced obstacles over the past week with the first three choices, NCP's Sharad Pawar, NC's Farooq Abdullah and former West Bengal Governor Gopalkrishna Gandhi, declining to contest.

Sinha's name was floated by the TMC and finalised in a meeting presided over by Pawar before the final round of discussions were held at the Parliament House Annex. A committee has been formed to steer Sinha's campaign.

Sinha had joined the TMC last year, and was appointed as its

vice-president. Tuesday's announcement was made after he resigned from the party in line with demands from the Congress and the Left that the Presidential candidate should step down from any party post to be a more acceptable face. Sinha said the "time has come when for a larger national cause I must step aside from the party to work for greater opposition unity".

"We assure the people of India that the unity of opposition parties which has been forged by the Presidential election in a spirit of equality, common commitment and consensus building through dialogue, will be better consolidated in the months ahead," the Opposition said.

Pawar told reporters that several other leaders, including Delhi CM Arvind Kejriwal (AAP) and Telangana CM K Chandrababhan Nara (TRS), who stayed away from the Opposition meetings on June 15 and Tuesday, have extended their support to Sinha. The Opposition will also reach out to other parties like BSP and YSRCP, he said. Tuesday's meeting was attended by Leader of Opposition in Rajya Sabha Mallikarjun Kharge and MPs Jai Ram Ramesh and Randeep Surjewala (Congress), TMC national general secretary Abhishek Banerjee, CPI(M) and CPI general secretaries Sitaram Yechury and DR Raja, CPI(M)'s Dipankar Bhattacharya, and NK Premachandran of RSP.

RJD MP Manoj Jha, Intiaz Jaleel of AIMIM, DMK's Tiruchi Siva, NC MP Hasnain Masoodi and SP's Ramgopal Yadav were also in attendance. Incidentally, the AIMIM was not invited to the June 15 meeting.

Kharge told reporters that the Government was "not serious" about forging a consensus. "They will say Rajnath Singh made calls to me, Pawar saheb, just making a telephone call does not amount to a serious effort. They did not even share any names. Just for the sake of contacting all parties, they made some calls. There was nothing concrete," he said.

The joint statement also accused the Government of misusing the ED, CBI, ECI and the offices of Governors "as weapons against Opposition parties and state governments run by them".

"Ideally, a consensus candidate of the Government and the Opposition should be elected to the highest office of the republic. We regret the fact that the Modi Government made no serious effort in this direction," it said.

AGNIPATH SCHEME

Service chiefs meet PM; IAF's notification for recruitment out

KRISHNA KAUSHIK
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

AMID THE ongoing protests over the Agnipath short-term recruitment scheme for the armed forces, the chiefs of the three services met Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Tuesday.

All the three services are set to begin the recruitment process this week. While the Army issued a notification for compulsory online registration of all Agnipath job aspirants on Monday, the IAF did so today. The Navy is set to issue its notification in a day or two.

Seeking to address misgivings about the scheme, senior officers of the three services held a press conference for the second time in three days on Tuesday. "Agnipath balances three things: a youthful profile of the armed forces, technically savvy and adaptable people will join the forces, and it will make the individual future-ready," said Lt Gen Anil Puri, Additional Secretary, Department of Military Affairs.

Puri said several deliberations were held before the scheme was announced. There were about 150 meetings, adding up to 500 hours of discussions, among the services, he said. Similarly, he said, there were 60 meetings within the Ministry of Defence, in which the policy was discussed for about 150 hours. And there were 44 meetings, adding up to about 100 hours, with other arms of the government, he said.

"All stakeholders were involved" and the timing of the launch was chosen to ensure that it could be implemented without any "major upheaval", he said. "If it was up to us, we would have done it in 1990," he said. "The last two years, we got an opportunity, we stopped the recruitment process," he added.

Since 1989, several committees have been set up for defence reforms, including the Arun Singh Committee-Task Force on Management of Defence (1989), Kargil Review Committee (2000), Group of Ministers-Reforming the National Security System (2001), Sixth Pay Commission (2006) and Shekatkar Committee of Experts (2016), he said. The new recruitment policy is part of a series of important reforms in the services, based on the reports of these committees, he said.

Puri said the intention was to create a more youthful military, and was not about "rightsizing" or "downscaling". He said it should be seen as the latest step after higher defence reforms, including creation of the Integrated Defence Staff (IDS); integration among the services; creation of leaner and cohesive forces; lateral entry into other organisations; and creation of the post of the Chief of Defence Staff. Puri reiterated that all applicants for Agnipath would have to give an undertaking that they were not part of any violence. "There is no place for arson and violence in the armed forces," he said.

Lt Gen C Bansi Ponappa, Adjutant General, said the Army will try to make its recruitment broad-based and get more aspirants from places that were not catchment areas earlier.

Since the scheme was announced last week, Army Chief General Manoj Pandey, Army Chief Admiral R Hari Kumar and Air Force Chief Air Chief Marshal V R Chaudhari have held two meetings with Defence Minister Rajnath Singh.

Under the new policy, 46,000 Agniveers will be recruited for the three services this year, and between 50,000 to 60,000 annually thereafter. The Agniveers will leave their respective services after a four-year period. Of them, 25 per cent will be recruited again for a 15-year period, and they will get pension and lifelong healthcare benefits. FULL REPORT

Row over Prophet remarks hit India's reputation: NSA Doval

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

THE CONTROVERSY around the remarks made by the BJP's Nupur Sharma and Naveen Jindal on Prophet Mohammed has damaged India's reputation internationally as they have projected the country in a manner that is far from the truth, National Security Advisor (NSA) Ajit Doval said Tuesday.

"It has (damaged India's reputation), in the sense that India has been projected or some disinformation has been spread against India which is far from the reality. Probably there is a need for us to engage them and talk to them and convince them. And you will find that wherever we have gone, wherever we have engaged with the concerned people, both outside and inside, we have been able to convince them. When people get emotionally aroused, their behaviour is a little disproportionate," Doval said in an interview to ANI when asked whether the protests around the Prophet controversy had damaged India's reputation.

Doval also termed the recent bombing of a Sikh shrine in Afghanistan as unfortunate and said India was committed to extending all help to minorities in that country.

"We have given visas to a large number of Sikhs and as flights become available, some of them will be coming back. We will look at the cases of Sikhs very very sympathetically. It was a very unfortunate incident," Doval said.

On the continuing killing of civilians in J&K, Doval said the government was dealing with it. "Post 2019, the mood of the people has changed. They are not in favour of Pakistan and terrorism anymore. Where is Hurriyat today? Where are all the bandhs? There are a few individuals who are misled and are getting into this. We are doing our best to persuade them. Their families are making efforts. Some tanzems (terror groups) are creating problems. We are fighting them with total resolve. We don't deal with terrorism. We have to deal with the terrorist. We are very hopeful that in another few months we will be able to bring the situation under control," he said.

Behind Sangli suicide of 9: 'Harassed repeatedly, publicly by lenders'

SUSHANT KULKARNI
MHAISAL (SANGLI), JUNE 21

THERE'S A bunch of policemen. And then there are those two kittens Ranu and Manya.

This is all that's left at the locked house of the "caring" and "animal-loving" family of the local veterinarian Dr Manik Vanmore.

On Monday afternoon, the families of Manik (49) and his brother Popat (52) — nine members in all — were found dead in their two houses at Mhaisal village in Maharashtra's Sangli district in a case of suspected suicide by consuming poison.

The reason? Harassment by money lenders "repeatedly and publicly", "mentally and physically", according to police, citing two suicide notes. Fifteen persons from the area, who allegedly lent money to the brothers, have been arrested and the police are on the lookout for 10 more suspects.

A day later, the entire village is still in shock.

The bodies of Manik, his wife Rekha (45), their children Anita (28) and Aditya (15), Manik's mother Akkatai (72) and Popat's son Shubham (28) were found at the veterinarian's house. About a kilometre away, the bodies of Popat, who was an arts teacher at the local school, his wife Sangeeta (48) and daughter Archana (30) were found at their house.

"I literally grew up in their home," said Ashwini Sawant, a close family friend, before breaking down. "All of them were very caring and considered me as one of them. From all the special dishes cooked at their home to all the major events, I have been there. Less than a week ago, I came to their house for a paani-puri party. They were a happy family and loved animals. But I also know that over the past few years, they have been under stress because of debt. But we had never imagined this."

According to a police officer, "the suicide notes suggests that the family wanted to raise a manufacturing unit for steel items and had borrowed money". "The family had borrowed money from a large number of people, even the compounder working at the veterinary clinic," the officer said.

The police are also probing suggestions that the families were lured into an investment scheme of sorts and lost their money. "Manik uncle used to tell me that they had invested in some scheme and were waiting for high returns, which would pay off the debts and leave them with a large sum. On one of two occasions, they had asked me not to come to their house as lenders had come," Sawant said, adding that the Vanmores moved to their own homes from their ancestral house six-seven years ago.

"We are probing all possible angles in this case," said Sangli SP Dikshit Gedam.

"Just one day before, (Manik's son) Aditya had come to my house and we chatted as usual. He was good at studies and college activities. We had recently celebrated a friend's birthday. Nothing seemed off about him or anyone else in their family," said Sujal Chaudhary, neighbour and Aditya's classmate.

Sudhakar Gaikwad, who owns a grocery store in the neighbourhood, said: "The day before the incident came to light, Dr Manik's son came to the shop and took a jar of yoghurt saying his father would pay me later. In the evening, his elder sister came and paid the money saying there were no unpaid dues now."

According to Ajay Sindkar, Police Inspector, the Vanmore brothers and other family members had borrowed money on interest from moneylenders. "Although they were paying the interest regularly, the lenders and other accused were repeatedly and publicly harassing them, mentally and physically. The victims ended their lives after the harassment became unbearable," Sindkar said.

"We have sent out teams to Sangli, Kolhapur, Solapur and Kamataka to trace and arrest 12 more accused," he said.

All the arrested so far are Mhaisal residents: Nandkumar Pawar (52), Rajendra Banne (50), Anil Banne (35), Khanderao Shinde (37), Dr Tatyasaheb Chougule (50), Shailesh Dhmal (56), Prakash Pawar (45), Sanjay Bagadi (51), Anil Borade (48), Pandurang Ghorpade (56), Shivaji Kore (65), Rekha Chougule (45), Vijay Sutar (55), Ganesh Banne (45) and Shubhadra Kamble (46).

The police have also invoked the SC/ST (Prevention of Atrocities) Act and Maharashtra Money Lending Regulation Act against the accused.

But all that is of little consolation for Poonam Chaudhary, the next-door neighbour of Manik and his family. "They loved their cats. Since the death, we have tried to give them food but they are not eating."

Top Biocon Biologics exec among five arrested in bribe case

DEEPTIMAN TIWARY
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

THE CBI Tuesday arrested five persons, including Biocon Biologics Associate Vice-President L Praveen Kumar, in connection with the bribery case in which S Eswara Reddy, the Joint Drug Controller (JDC) with Central Drugs Standard Control Organization (CDSCO), was caught allegedly accepting Rs 4 lakh in cash on Monday.

Apart from Kumar and Reddy, others arrested include Dinesh Dua, Director of Synergy Network India Pvt Ltd; Guljit Sethi alias Guljit Chaudhary, Director of Bioinnovat Research Services Private Limited, Delhi; and CDSCO Assistant Drug Inspector Animesh Kumar.

All the accused were remanded in one-day CBI custody. According to the CBI FIR, Reddy had three files of Biocon Biologics pending with him for clearance and bribes had been allegedly negotiated for clearing all of them. Biocon, a company founded by industrialist Kiran Mazumdar Shaw, has denied the CBI allegations.

The CBI has alleged that Sethi's company Bioinnovate used to handle regulatory affairs of Biocon along with several pharma firms and regularly paid bribes to get regulatory nods. Bioinnovate had business relations with Dua's company, Synergy Network, and Dua had been asked by Sethi to allegedly bribe Reddy to waive Phase III trials of Biocon's Insulin Aspart Injection.

"Sethi... has conspired with Shri L. Praveen Kumar, Associate Vice President and Head -- National Regulatory Affairs and other senior executives of Biocon Biologics to pay bribe of Rs 9 lakh to Dr S Eswara Reddy for favourably processing the three files and also... recommending the file of 'Insulin Aspart Injection' to the Subject Expert Committee meeting," the CBI FIR said.

Mazumdar-Shaw said: "We deny the bribery allegations. All our product approvals are legitimate and backed by science and clinical data. Our bAspart is approved in Europe and many other countries. The regulatory process in India is online and all meeting minutes are in public domain."

'Every inch under water': Flood submerges south Assam town

TORA AGARWALA
GUWAHATI, JUNE 21

IT WAS a sleepless night followed by a morning of frantic calls. As the Barak river threatened to enter the first floor of her apartment in Cachar district's Silchar town, a nine-month pregnant Udesha Debroy and her mother were rescued by an NDRF team on Tuesday afternoon.

"It has been traumatic to say the least. We thought that being on the first floor made us safe," said Nirupam Dutta, Debroy's husband. "But when water reached our staircase, we knew this was no ordinary flood."

In the last 24 hours, all of Silchar — southern Assam's biggest town and the gateway to the three Barak valley districts — has been submerged in water unlike "ever before in its history".

"It stopped raining last evening, but literally every inch of the town is under water — not a single establishment or home is safe," said resident Pranabanda Das, a journalist with a local Bengali daily.

On Tuesday, as floods continued to ravage Assam, seven more people died, taking the death toll this year to 88.

55 lakh people have been affected in 32 of the 36 districts of the state so far. Over two lakh people are in relief shelters. Experts said the geographical spread of the current wave of floods was unprecedented — several areas where flooding isn't usually very acute lay submerged. Silchar is one such place. While the city is plagued by intermittent flash floods owing to its bowl-shaped topography cut by the Barak river, it has rarely ever seen flooding of this year's magnitude.

Joydeep Biswas, a resident, called the prevailing situation "horrific". "I remember big floods in the 1980s but this year's is by far the fiercest. No electricity, no water — our stocks of everything essential are depleting," he said. Another resident, Kunal Banik, who lives close to the Barak river, woke up Tuesday morning to find the ground floor of his house entirely submerged. "We began shifting all our furniture to the first floor — there is head-high water on the floor and I am among the town's lucky 20 per cent because I have a higher floor to go to."

Residents said the water came "suddenly" Monday afternoon. Like in other parts of Assam, incessant rains had inundated Silchar too, but the situation took a critical turn in the last 24 hours.

The culprit is a breach at the Bethukandi embankment along the Barak river. The breach sent waters of the river rushing in and submerging the town overnight.

On Tuesday, as the situation turned grim, the Centre dispatched four teams of NDRF by air from Bhubaneswar to aid rescue operations. "Our top priorities at this hour are rescuing marooned people and providing relief materials to the affected," said Parimal Suklabaidya, Dholai legislator and also the Minister for Transport, Fisheries and Excise.

However, the scale of the problem is such that rescue and relief has become a challenge. "The town is inundated and there are too many stranded people... we are focusing on evacuation, and then (providing) relief with the boats on hand that have been pooled from the paramilitary forces," said Cachar Deputy Commissioner Keerthi Jalli.

Other disaster management officials said that the lack of boats was a major problem and that the administration had to resort to "country boats". Strong currents, however, were pushing away these boats, making rescue even more challenging.

In most parts of the town, there has been no electricity, drinking water or mobile network. Locals allege the embankment was broken in May during the first spell of rains. "The river entered the town and then most of the water had accumulated in a natural reservoir near the embankment. Even after the river level had gone down, the reservoir's sluice gates were not opened," said Das, adding that the local residents dug up a pathway so the water had a way to escape. "Now it is the same way through which the water is coming back in."

PM to attend BRICS virtual summit in China on June 23, 24

SHUBHAJIT ROY
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

INDIA ON Tuesday announced that Prime Minister Narendra Modi will attend the annual summit of the five-nation grouping BRICS on June 23 and 24 following an invitation by Chinese President Xi Jinping. Russian President Vladimir Putin will also attend the summit.

This announcement came from the Ministry of External Affairs, after New Delhi decided to go for a virtual summit, and not an in-person summit in China.

The decision was taken in view of the strained ties between India and China over the two-year-long border stand-off in eastern Ladakh.

China is hosting the virtual summit in its capacity as its chair of BRICS this year. Brazil's Jair Bolsonaro and South African President Cyril Ramaphosa are likely to attend the virtual summit. "At the invitation of President

Will take part in dialogue on global development

Xi Jinping, Prime Minister Narendra Modi will be attending the 14th BRICS Summit hosted by China in virtual format on June 23 and 24. This includes a high-level dialogue on global development with guest countries on June 24," the MEA said in a statement.

It said the BRICS has become a platform for discussing and deliberating on issues of common concern for all developing countries, adding the grouping has regularly called for reform of the multilateral system to make it more representative and inclusive.

Before the summit, Modi will participate, by way of a recorded keynote speech, in the opening ceremony of the BRICS Business Forum on Wednesday. Earlier in the year, China had reached out to India to revive bilateral dialogue.

HC gives interim bail to student held for tweet against Pawar

Thane court reserves order on actor bail

OMKAR GOKHALE
MUMBAI, JUNE 21

THE BOMBAY High Court Tuesday granted interim bail in two FIRs to 22-year-old Nashik resident Nikhil Bhamre, who was arrested for posting derogatory comments allegedly aimed at Nationalist Congress Party (NCP) chief Sharad Pawar on social media. The court granted him interim relief in FIRs registered at Naupada police station, Thane and cyber police station, Pune.

The High Court also restrained the police from arresting Bhamre in connection with two other FIRs, filed at Goregaon and Bhoiwada, till further hearing in his plea after three weeks.

Six FIRs have been registered against Bhamre. He has been granted bail in two FIRs.

"A student who has been in jail for over a month cannot be countenanced. Some element of public interest is involved," said a division bench led by Justice Nitin Jamdar and Justice N R Borkar. The state government submitted that it has not challenged the bail order of a trial court.

The student, while not naming Pawar, had tweeted in Marathi: "Time has come for Baramati's Gandhi... to create Nathuram Godse of Baramati." Baramati town in Pune district is Pawar's home turf.

Meanwhile, a Thane court Tuesday reserved its order on a bail plea by Marathi actor Ketaki Chitale, who was arrested over her social media post referring to physical ailments the 81-year-old NCP chief suffers from. The order will likely come on Wednesday.

At centre of ED's probe into National Herald case, a Rs 90-crore loan claim

Cong's Singhvi says agency 'dragging' Rahul questioning

DEEPTIMAN TIWARY
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

AS ENFORCEMENT Directorate questioned Congress MP Rahul Gandhi for the fifth day on Tuesday in connection with the National Herald case, sources in the agency said the questioning was still continuing for several reasons, including Rahul's inability to answer how Congress gave a loan to Associate Journals Limited (AJL) and if there was any evidence of it.

The sources said while Congress has been claiming that AJL, publisher of the National Herald newspaper, was given a loan of over Rs 90 crore over a period of time and to offset it the AJL converted its debt into equity and sold it to Young Indian, owned by the Gandhis, no Congress leader questioned by the agency has so far been able to provide evidence.

The agency earlier questioned Congress leaders Mallikarjun Kharge and Pawan Bansal in connection with the case.

"We have been asking all Congress leaders to give us the cheque numbers through which these payments were made or bank statements that show these payments. However, no one, including Rahul, seems to be aware of anything. No one is even saying that there was any cash payment. In the books of AJL, it is not clearly spelt out and is mentioned only as a general entry," an ED official said.

AICC spokesperson Abhishek Manu Singhvi criticised the ED for dragging Rahul's questioning for days. "Firstly, selective oral unofficial leaks should never be resorted to by an agency to spread misinformation. Secondly, it is absurd to suggest that till the investigator gets the answer he wants to hear he will continue interrogations. Thirdly, this case cannot raise more than a finite five to seven questions. And if each question is asked in five different ways, even then the interrogation cannot last more than one day."

Notably, there are questions around the loan given by the All India Congress Committee (AICC) to AJL as a political party is not allowed to give loans under the Representation of the People Act.

This issue had also been deliberated upon during investigations by the Income Tax department. The I-T Department had in its report called payments claimed by the Congress as "alleged loan" as there was no evidence of any payment.

It said it had issued notices to AICC "to obtain evidence relating to time, mode, manner of advancing loans and nature of fund out of which these loans were advanced... However, no clarification or evidence was submitted to prove that the alleged loan of Rs 90.21 crore was actually advanced by the AICC to the AJL."

ED sources said the contention of the Congress that the agency had filed a money laundering case without any predicate offence was misplaced. Officials said when the court had already taken cognizance of the offence and the Gandhis were out on bail in the matter, the need for another agency to register an FIR was not required.

"Delhi Metropolitan Magistrate's Court has already taken cognizance of the offences under Sections 403, 406, 420, 120B of the Indian Penal Code and issued summons to Sonia Gandhi, Rahul Gandhi and others, who are currently on bail," a senior ED official said.

Bank manager in J&K said non-locals won't be coerced to resume duty in Valley, sacked

ARUN SHARMA
JAMMU, JUNE 21

THE MANAGEMENT of the Jammu and Kashmir Grameen Bank on Monday terminated the services of one of its branch heads on charges of provoking non-local employees against resuming their duties in the Valley.

Identified as Satvinder Singh, Manager at the bank's Chatha branch in Jammu, the terminated official also happened to be the general secretary of the J&K Grameen Bank Officers' Association, a registered body with the Regional Rural Banks both at the Centre and in J&K. The decision to terminate him, according to official sources, was taken by the bank's Board of Directors.

According to the show-cause notice issued to him, he had shared on a WhatsApp group a June 14 letter with comments that "non-local employees shall not be coerced to join duties in the absence of security measures in Kashmir".

The management's action led to protests by the bank staff, affecting normal functioning at all its 215 branches across the Union Territory on Tuesday. Holding a demonstration outside the bank's head office in Jammu, one of the association's leaders said that their agitation will continue until the termination order is revoked. The Central Unions of the RRBs,

Bank employees protest the manager's firing. Express too, have extended their support to the agitation and will hold a meeting on June 23 to decide on their future course of action.

Following the killing of an Ellaquai Dehati Bank manager, Vijay Kumar, in Kulgam on June 2, more than 100 non-local employees posted in 94 branches of the J&K Grameen Bank in Kashmir came to Jammu.

Describing Satvinder's action as having the potential to encourage employees to rebel against the management and the government of India, the bank management on June 16 evening issued him show-cause notice, asking him to reply within two days as to why the "penalty of removal of service" shall not be imposed on him.

Satvinder, when contacted, said he had approached the management to give him 15 days to reply to the notice.

Can trust Indian judiciary for its absolute independence, says CJI

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

INDIAN JUDICIARY is recognised for giving paramount importance to the rule of law, said Chief Justice of India N V Ramana on Tuesday, as he emphasised that one can trust it "for its absolute independence and its inherent constitutional strength to treat all parties equally and equitably".

Speaking at the annual meet of Indo-German Chamber of Commerce on the theme 'Arbitration In A Globalised World - The Indian Experience' in Dortmund, Germany, the CJI said, "The constitutional courts of India — the High Courts and Supreme Court — have the power to judicially review every act of the government. They can strike down any law that is not in tune with the Constitutional principles. They can also set aside the arbitrary measures of the executive." "Indian judiciary eternally guards the constitutional rights in the world's largest democracy," he added.

The CJI also sought to allay apprehensions over interference of domestic courts in the arbitration process and explained how Indian courts are "pro-arbitration".

"In recent years, there has been some apprehension in the minds of parties about increasing interference of domestic courts in the arbitration process. Let me assure you, Indian courts are known for their pro-arbitration stance. Courts in India assist and support arbitration and leave the substantive part of adjudication to the Arbitral Tribunal itself," he said.

The CJI stressed the need to develop more infrastructure for arbitration in developing countries.

Gold smuggling accused writes to PM, seeks CBI probe into Kerala govt role

SHAJU PHILIP
THIRUVANANTHAPURAM,
JUNE 21

GOLD SMUGGLING case accused Swapna Suresh on Tuesday wrote to Prime Minister Narendra Modi, seeking a CBI probe into "the involvement of Kerala government" in the scandal.

The case, which pertains to smuggling of gold through a diplomatic cargo to UAE Consulate here, had emerged in 2020. Last month, the issue resurfaced after Suresh, a former consulate employee, alleged that Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan, his family members and others were involved in the scandal. Her fresh allegation that Vijayan had taken a bag of currency to the UAE in 2016 had sparked Opposition protests in Kerala.

In her letter to the Prime Minister, Suresh, who is now employed as Director (Women Empowerment & CSR) with Palakkad-based NGO Highrange Rural Development Society (HRDS India), said the state government was involved in the case and used her as a scapegoat for its benefit.

"I would like to bring forth to your kind notice that the person who actually committed this heinous smuggling is in fact an IAS officer Shivashankar (principal secretary of the Chief Minister of Kerala). Due to the higher rank of the officials, few employees like me had to withstand the worst of this scam. I was simply obeying the orders of my line managers and doing this through the UAE consulate diplomatic channel and had no say in the matters," she said.

She alleged that the CM's family members were also directly involved in the scam.

Row over death of kidney transplant patient in hospital

SHAJU PHILIP
THIRUVANANTHAPURAM,
JUNE 21

THE DEATH of a patient, a day after he underwent kidney transplant surgery Sunday evening at a government medical college hospital here, has sparked a blame-game after the government suspended two department heads at the hospital.

While a preliminary probe revealed that the surgery on G Suresh Kumar, 62, was delayed by four hours, the hospital alleged that the box containing the harvested organ was "snatched" away by a couple of ambulance drivers at the hospital, leading to confusion and mess-up.

One of the two ambulance drivers, however, told reporters that he rushed the organ container to the operation theatre as there was no doctor around to receive it at the hospital but found the door closed.

According to the protocol, only doctors are supposed to handle harvested organs.

The organ, in this case, was harvested from a brain-dead donor in Kochi, and brought to the Kerala Government Medical College in Thiruvananthapuram

CHHATTISGARH: NEWBORN DIES

No ambulance: Tribal woman waited for hours after delivery

GARGI VERMA
RAIPUR, JUNE 21

REFERRED TO the district hospital in Chhattisgarh's Sukma, a tribal woman allegedly was left stranded by an ambulance driver on Monday night, within hours after she delivered a boy who died while being taken to another hospital.

The woman, Gangi, sat with her dead newborn and husband Karma for hours, waiting for an ambulance to take them back to their village, Kankerlanka, over 50km from Sukma. Gangi went into labour on Monday evening. "We took her to the sub-health centre in Kankerlanka where she gave birth to a boy," Karma recounted. When doctors found out that the newborn was not breathing properly, a referral was made to Dornapal health centre, 18 km from the village. At Dornapal, the couple were referred again to Sukma hospital, 35 km away.

According to the couple, however, their child died in the ambulance before they could reach Sukma. "After the child died, the ambulance driver turned around and dropped us back at the Dornapal health centre around 9pm," Karma said. While the couple was told another ambulance would come to take them back to the village, none came until past midnight. A local journalist, Raja Rathore, drove them down to their village past midnight. The Health Department officials have taken cognisance of the matter, while collector Vinit Nandanwar assured of an investigation.

Sunday evening, with police converting the 220-km route into a green corridor for smooth movement of the ambulance.

Following a high-level probe into Kumar's death on Monday, the health department suspended Urology Department head Dr Vasudevan Potty and Nephrology head Dr Jacob George.

The suspension was criticised by the Kerala Government Medical College Teachers Association, which said the action would demoralise the doctors. Association spokesperson Dr S Binoy blamed the system for the incident, adding that the surgery was delayed as the patient had to be subjected to dialysis twice.

Health Minister Veena George on Tuesday said every life is important for the government, and it would take stern action against those responsible for the incident.

"I was told by the hospital authorities that when the ambulance carrying the harvested organ reached the hospital, two outsiders snatched the organ box before the doctors stepped out of the vehicle. This would also come under probe," she said.

NCERT's textbook 'rationalisation' exercise raises questions of political intent, is at odds with progressive thrust of NEP

AN INVESTIGATION BY this newspaper has revealed that the NCERT is set to effect sweeping changes in social science textbooks for Classes VI to XII. Described as a "rationalisation exercise", the project raises several questions and concerns. The premier education body's plans involve deleting content related, for one, to chapters in history that have acquired political overtones under the current ruling establishment — the Delhi Sultanate and the Mughal Empire. Another set of changes involve key fraught moments in the country's recent political history — the Emergency in 1975-77 and the communal violence in Gujarat 2002. The revisions will also impact how students learn about the inequities of the caste system and the impact of social and protest movements such as the Narmada Bachao Andolan. As disparate as they look, the proposed deletions and modifications appear to have a common theme — they seem motivated by the urge to protect the authority of the state from questions, arguments and criticism, and to project and promote the notion of a cohesive Hindu society.

In striking contrast with the wide-ranging deliberations undertaken by the NDA government ahead of the finalisation of the new National Education Policy, these textbook revisions are mired in opacity. The NCERT claims to have consulted social scientists not associated with it but the names of these "external experts" are not in the public domain. As this paper's investigation reveals, tables detailing the deletions were circulated — internally. The stated rationale for the exercise is to reduce the curriculum load to help students make a "speedy recovery" in learning after the disruptions brought about by the Covid pandemic. But as a number of experts have underlined, helping children to get back on their feet will require classroom-level interventions, such as empowering teachers. In any case, pandemic-related exigencies do not require making permanent deletions and attenuating the content of textbooks. The nature and content of the proposed changes and deletions run counter to the social scientist's mandate of encouraging critical thinking by presenting a complex understanding of social and political processes, with all their diversities, cleavages and inequities. A historian's task is to depict a nuanced view of the past — the history textbook changes proposed by the NCERT invite questions about political partisanship and pressure on the institution, given that "distortion" and "misrepresentation" of India's past is a common and insistent refrain of the ruling BJP.

The revision exercise will be followed by drafting of the National Curriculum Framework — one of the requirements of the NEP. In contrast to the lack of transparency in the NCERT-driven project, much of the NCF procedures are in the public domain. But it seems to be taking a partisan route, at odds with the NEP's scrupulous ideological agnosticism. As this paper's investigation has also revealed, 24 members of the NCF with RSS links, some of them serving functionaries, figure in at least 17 of the 25 national focus groups working on curriculum changes. This, along with the erasures proposed by the NCERT, does not augur well for the progressive thrust of the NEP.

NOTE TO STATES

They must bring on their books all off-budget borrowings, take measures to reduce debt to more manageable levels

OVER THE PAST few years, much of the discussion on public finances in India has revolved around the fiscal stress at the level of the central government. However, state government finances have also been under pressure. Their space to manoeuvre has been restricted by slowing revenues, a rising share of committed expenditure and higher outgoes on subsidies. Unless the GST Council decides otherwise, they will witness a further fall in revenues once the compensation period draws to a close. A recent study by economists at the Reserve Bank of India notes that 10 states — namely, Punjab, Rajasthan, Kerala, West Bengal, Bihar, Andhra Pradesh, Jharkhand, Madhya Pradesh, Uttar Pradesh and Haryana — have the highest debt burden. Of these, the five most fiscally stressed are Bihar, Kerala, Punjab, Rajasthan and West Bengal. All these states have a debt to GSDP ratio in excess of 30 per cent.

A high debt level translates to higher interest payments. According to the report, the share of interest payments in revenue receipts exceeds 20 per cent for most of these states. Coupled with allocations for pension and administrative payments, the share of committed expenditure for these states is at least 30 per cent of revenue expenditure. With such a large share of their expenditure firmly earmarked, it restricts the fiscal space to spend on more productive avenues. States have also ramped up spending on subsidies. While a distinction needs to be made between merit and non-merit subsidies, politically motivated decisions such as providing free electricity or waiving of outstanding utility bills, profligate from a fiscal view, will aggravate the stress, and distort the functioning of the market. The failure to turn around the financial position of power distribution companies and opting out of the new pension scheme — Rajasthan and Chhattisgarh have recently done so — will only exacerbate the situation.

Over the past few years, some states have also been pushing part of their borrowings off budget, circumventing their ceilings. While there is little clarity on the extent of these obligations, the central government has now taken cognisance of this. It has recently asked states to bring on their books all off-budget borrowing undertaken over the past two years. This will bring about much needed transparency in state finances, revealing their true level of indebtedness. Alongside, states also need to take measures to shore up their revenues, reduce non-merit subsidies, and bring down their debt to more manageable levels.

RESCUING WORDS

The good people at the Australian National Dictionary Centre are attempting to right a historical wrong. It won't be easy

ATEAM OF experts at the Australian National Dictionary Centre in Canberra has been hard at work, poring over a database of words and phrases that have special significance for the country's history, as they update their national dictionary. Phrases such as "loose unit" and "mad as a cut snake" are being bandied around and those like "story custodian" or "battler" are being rescued.

The attempt at decolonising language is part of an ongoing process of reclamation and repatriation of languages the world over. There is a unique ownership of English in countries such as India, Pakistan, or those in the Caribbean islands and the New World, that has resulted in a wealth of original literature acknowledged by international literary prizes. The lack of esteem once associated with pidgins — patois that developed out of interactions between colonisers and indigenous communities — is now on the wane.

At the heart of this process is an essential recognition of the fact that in its role as the stepping stone to identity and culture, language is the canvas for power play. It is language that acts as a currency of power — remoulding, reinforcing, subverting or invisibilising dialects till they moulder beyond recognition. While early policies in Australia had dealt a death knell to many indigenous languages, linguistic biases often work insidiously, shaping tongues covertly over generations till they become a socialised phenomenon. In recognising and rescuing those communal experiences lost to time and policies, the good people at the Australian National Dictionary Centre are attempting to right a historical wrong. That may be hard yakka, hard work, but that's defo garly — definitely awesome!

What MPC says, what RBI does

Communication gap between the two potentially erodes credibility of inflation targeting framework

RAJESWARI SENGUPTA

COMMUNICATION IS A critical element of monetary policy. In the current inflation targeting (IT) regime, the resolution adopted by the Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) and published on the RBI's website on the day of the monetary policy meeting is an important channel of communication with the public. Yet there seems to be a gap between what the MPC says and what the RBI does.

Under the IT regime, the most important role in communication belongs to the MPC, consisting of three external members, three RBI representatives, and chaired by the governor. By law, this is the highest monetary policy-making body in the land, tasked with deciding monetary policy changes at regular intervals. These changes are then communicated through formal statements, with the discussions underlying these decisions also being published, so that the public can understand why the MPC decided the way that they did.

During the first few years of IT from 2016 to 2018, the process worked quite well. On the days of policy announcements, the governor and his deputies would participate in a press conference to answer questions from the media. But otherwise the focus was squarely on the MPC, especially its statement, from which the public used to glean important information about the monetary policy strategy — that is, why the repo rate was or was not changed.

From 2019 onwards, however, things began to change. The RBI began to release a separate governor's statement on the day of the monetary policy meeting, presenting an inflation outlook and even explaining the decision taken by the MPC. The rationale for this statement was unclear: At best, it has overlapped with the MPC statement; at times, it has seemed somewhat different, making it difficult for the public to understand what the policy strategy really was.

Consider the MPC statement following the June 8 Monetary Policy Review. The MPC highlighted inflation concerns, and voted in favour of raising the policy repo rate. On the same day, a governor's statement issued by the RBI mentioned that the central bank will also remain focussed on orderly completion of the government's borrowing programme.

The issuance of two such different statements can lead to confusion, especially as lowering inflation and lowering government bond yields are contradictory policy objectives.

This is an example of how, over the past few years, a communication gap seems to have opened up between what the MPC has been saying and what the RBI has been doing, thereby potentially eroding credibility of the IT framework. This communication gap will need to be closed in order for the RBI to become successful in bringing inflation back to its 4 per cent target level.

Why is communication so critical? There are many reasons. But let's focus on just one, namely the ability of the central bank to influence inflation expectations. If the public believes the central bank is committed to keeping inflation under control, then it will act accordingly. Firms will moderate their price increases, fearing that large price rises will make them uncompetitive. Meanwhile, workers will accept moderate wage increases, while investors will accept low interest rates on their bond purchases. With everyone acting in this way, it will be easier for the central bank to ensure that inflation indeed remains low.

Why is communication so critical? There are many reasons. But let's focus on just one, namely the ability of the central bank to influence inflation expectations. If the public believes the central bank is committed to keeping inflation under control, then it will act accordingly. Firms will moderate their price increases, fearing that large price rises will make them uncompetitive. Meanwhile, workers will accept moderate wage increases, while investors will accept low interest rates on their bond purchases. With everyone acting in this way, it will be easier for the central bank to ensure that inflation indeed remains low.

Of course, spikes in commodity prices will inevitably cause inflation to surge from time to time. But if inflation expectations are well anchored, then it becomes relatively easy for the central bank to ensure that inflation returns to the target level before too long.

The most important task of the MPC, enshrined in the RBI Act (Amended), 2016 that introduced IT, is to decide the repo rate, since this has long been the lynchpin of India's monetary policy framework. Ever since the early 2000s, policy had aimed to keep overnight money market rates in a corridor, with the lower bound established by the reverse repo rate and the upper bound by the repo rate. Since the width of this corridor was fixed, once the repo rate was decided, the reverse repo rate was automatically determined, and market overnight rates adjusted accordingly.

But during the Covid-19 pandemic, the RBI constantly adjusted the reverse repo rate even as the MPC kept the repo rate unchanged, meaning that the fixed width of the corridor was lost, and the MPC lost any role in determining interest rates. Accordingly, the remit of the MPC and indeed the credibility of the entire IT edifice was called into question.

In addition, the RBI introduced a number of new policy instruments, again outside the remit of the MPC. During the pandemic, it brought in the GSAP programme through which it pre-committed to buying a certain amount of dated government bonds in order to control their yields. It then introduced variable reverse repo auctions, and more recently, replaced the reverse repo rate with the long-dormant standing deposit facility rate, the rationale for which was not explained in the MPC statement. Unlike developed country central banks like the Bank of England for example, all unconventional monetary policy announcements were kept outside the MPC statement thereby raising questions about the role of the committee in deciding monetary policy actions at a crucial time like the pandemic.

Lastly, the RBI has been intervening in the foreign exchange market to manage the rupee. Forex interventions by definition influence the domestic monetary base and inflation. Yet the MPC in its monetary policy statements does not discuss either the exchange rate dynamics or the forex interventions. Just as it does not discuss the RBI's interventions in the bond market to lower the yields.

The net result of all these actions is a potential loss of both clarity and credibility. There appears to be a growing rift between what the MPC says and what the RBI does. And with the proliferation of policy instruments, it is no longer clear to the public how the policy stance should be measured — or what the monetary policy framework is.

In its latest two statements, the MPC indicated that policy would now be focusing on bringing India's inflation rate under control. If the RBI is going to be successful in this endeavour, the first step must be to close the communication gap, by reintroducing a simple and clear policy framework and restoring the central role of the MPC.

IN THE UPROAR over Agnipath, one matter has received little attention: The way the scheme has been linked to educational programmes. These programmes have not been spelt out. They are being defined on the go, as part of an unfolding package to assuage public anxieties. This is the time to voice some concerns.

The need for such educational support cannot be questioned. Disbanded Agniveers will require training for whatever work they take up subsequently. The point at issue is the nature of the training, and how it meshes with the education system generally. Leadership, discipline, team spirit, etc., while worthy traits of character that the forces might inculcate, do not constitute concrete skills or qualifications. For that, we must resort to the broader, and sadly messier, general education system.

Two major plans have been mooted. First, those joining after Class X can proceed to a Class XII certificate through the National Institute of Open Schooling. It is unclear whether this will happen during their tour of duty or afterwards. Realistically, it can only be the latter. The idea is unexceptionable, even if relatively few 21-year-olds will enrol for a certificate that their peers obtained at 18.

The question relates to the content of the programme. This will apparently consist of "customised courses that are not only current but very relevant to their area of service". Does it mean the "area of service", namely military service, that they have left behind? It seems superfluous to repeat or extend that training, which would hardly help them in future civilian life. If, on the contrary, it means the services the Agniveers will now take up, those will surely be too varied for "customised courses". The most beneficial plan would be to focus on mainstream general education. These are precisely what the Agniveers will have missed out on: They can now make good that deficit.

SHORTCHANGING THE AGNIVEER

Educational provisions for disbanded soldiers risk becoming a handout

What might trouble us is the imprecise and clichéd phrasing, suggesting the matter has not been thought through. It raises the disquieting possibility that in practice, this certificate might be seen by both recipients and authorities as a handout. This seems a very real danger with the other proposal, of a special three-year degree programme mooted by the University Grants Commission jointly with the Indira Gandhi National Open University. Here, 50 per cent of the credits will derive from the "skill training received by [Agniveers] during their tenure in the defence establishments". The earlier objections apply more strongly here. How, within the civilian education system, would they enhance those skills to degree level? Or would the six-month in-service training be mechanically converted to credits for the notionally separate three-year course? And again, where would such skills be applied in civilian life?

The proposal follows some disquieting trends already present in our academic system. It also sets a precedent for more ad hoc measures, perhaps with less momentous cause. The new National Education Policy prescribes an open-ended four-year undergraduate programme. The relevant section of the policy document is a cascade of high-sounding clichés defying any thrust towards a focused and integrated curriculum. The first three years' courses are scattered and diffuse. After three years, the student can exit with a Bachelor's degree; after four, with a "multidisciplinary" Bachelor's degree, or one "with research". This implies a dilution of standards. Multidisciplinary research in any true sense is an especially rigorous exercise: A mishmash of courses in separate subjects over a single year cannot equip a student for it. Nor can a year's undergraduate project work prepare her for intensive research within a single discipline.

Even this model, it seems, will be diluted further for the Agniveers' supposed benefit. Reserving 50 per cent credits for "skill training" as above, the other 50 per cent will be divided among "a wide variety of subjects" covering humanities and professional fields including astrology but not, amazingly, the basic sciences or technology. The only degrees mentioned in the press release are B.A. (various streams) and B.Com.

If this is the best we can offer our Agniveers by way of higher education, we will be short-changing them. Perhaps that is the idea, to turn the degree into an undemanding formality, a kind of sop for disbanding them. That would be a poor tribute to their abilities and poor provision for their future. Our youth, both Agniveers and the rest, deserve better.

JUNE 22, 1982, FORTY YEARS AGO

PRESIDENTIAL POLLS

THE CONGRESS-I IS believed to have decided to field the Home Minister, Zail Singh, for the presidency against the combined opposition nominee, Hiren Mukerjee, a veteran parliamentarian and scholar. Though an hour-long meeting of the central parliamentary board of the Congress-I unanimously approved the choice of Zail Singh, it was decided that the formal announcement to this effect would be made by the Prime Minister, Indira Gandhi. Most members at the CFB-I meeting rejected the opposition suggestion for a consensus candidate. Mukherjee's name was approved by the representatives of ten opposition parties after two separate meetings.

THE ISRAELI INVASION

ISRAELI TANK GUNS, heavy artillery and naval gunboats unleashed a non-stop bombardment of suspected Palestinian positions and mainly Lebanese residential areas in encircled West Beirut in apparent retaliation for the ambush of an Israeli patrol. The Palestinian Liberation Organisation said that "a heavy artillery bombardment supported by naval gunfire" continued through the night and the morning, causing "many Palestinian casualties".

CORRUPTION IN DHULIA

A DISTRICT COLLECTOR who unearthed large-scale corruption in a Maharashtra employment scheme and started taking action against the culprits, has been summarily transferred to an obscure place. Arun Bhatia, the young collector of Dhulia district, who detected 42 cases of irregularities in the multi-crore Employment Guarantee Scheme (EGS), was two days ago ordered to quit his post by the Chief Secretary, PG Gavai, according to Mantralaya sources. Under EGS, jobs are given to rural landless and small farmers. Unlike other government schemes, there are no middlemen or contractors here.

A four-year test for Agnipath

The first four years of the scheme should be devoted to assessing the new system's impact on the military's operational capability. The ethos and effectiveness of the military should not be diluted

D S HOODA

THE AGNIPATH SCHEME is passing through its first fiery test. Potential recruits for the Indian military are burning trains and buses, and it is tragic to see that the debate on the new scheme has passed on from television channels to a contest on the streets. With the three services announcing the recruitment schedule beginning this month, it is hoped that the angst among the youth is soon dissipated. However, considering the controversy surrounding the scheme, there is undoubtedly a requirement to conduct a reasoned analysis of this initiative.

Let me start by saying there is little doubt that the military requires restructuring, particularly the 1.2 million-strong army. A leaner military would lead to manpower cost savings that could be utilised for modernisation and technology adoption. The Agnipath scheme is designed to reduce salary and pension expenditure, although the government is reluctant to admit that this is the primary factor behind its decision.

There are two competing narratives about Agnipath. The first terms the scheme as "transformative" and "a new idea of a new era" that would have a "positive impact on the human resources management of the armed forces". The second narrative, voiced mainly by military veterans, warns that the scheme will erode the ethos of the military and blunt its winning edge. Both narratives take an extreme position, and as usual, the truth lies somewhere in between.

The advantages of the Agnipath scheme have been brought out in the briefing held on June 14. It would lead to a more youthful and technically-adept military force. By picking only 25 per cent of Agniveers for permanent absorption, the military will get the best people to form the core of the junior leadership. After serving for four years, the Agniveers will go into civil society "where they can contribute immensely towards the nation-building process".

There are also challenges. What is the ideal mix of Agniveers and permanent soldiers in an army that faces both external and internal threats daily? What would be the motivation level of Agniveers, a majority of whom know that they will be out of the military after four years? Is a six-month training period sufficient for soldiers, many of whom would be straight away pitched into life-and-death situations along the borders or in counter-terrorism operations? Would the military's attractiveness as a career reduce, leading to a dilution in the quality of recruits?

While the military leadership says that it is cognisant of these challenges, it is not entirely sure how these issues will play out in the future. The Agnipath scheme is a complete change in the human resource management process, and its implications cannot be accurately forecast. Perhaps some of us are overstating the challenges but caution is required when the stakes are measured in terms of the quality of the military efficiency. It is therefore suggested that the scheme be put through a testbed before its final adoption.

The first four years of the Agnipath scheme should be devoted to assessing the new system's impact on the military's operational capability. Our primary concern should be that the ethos and effectiveness of the military are not diluted. Everything else is secondary.

A four-year period involving approximately 1,80,000 Agniveers may appear to be a somewhat excessive exercise, but anything less may not yield the correct results. We must go through one complete life cycle of Agniveers to fully understand how they will fit into different roles, from combat to logistics to technical services. Each of these roles requires different skills and adaptation to different conditions. The four-year period would also enable an accurate assessment of how successfully the retiring Agniveers can transition to a satisfactory second career.

After four years, the military should conduct a comprehensive review of the Agnipath system and present its findings to the government. As stated earlier, the focus should be on assessing if there has been any dilution in operational effectiveness. Thereafter, the government should be open to changes, including major modifications to the system, where required. If all works well, the scheme can be genuinely termed transformational.

How responsible should the government be towards the welfare of retiring Agniveers? There is an argument that the sole focus of militaries is to win battles. If short-term soldiers are required for that, so be it. Recruits join on a voluntary basis and are aware of the terms of service, and the military is not an organisation meant to prepare people for future jobs.

This view could have some merit but it misses the larger relationship between a soldier and the state. There is a mutual obligation between the soldier and the nation that is often referred to as the "military covenant". A soldier prioritises the nation's needs above his own, including putting himself in harm's way in the pursuit of his duties. In return, the nation promises him dignity, respect, and terms of service that will provide him and his family with appropriate compensation for his sacrifices. This should be the guiding principle even for soldiers who leave service, and the nation must respond to their needs.

How responsible should the government be towards the welfare of retiring Agniveers? There is an argument that the sole focus of militaries is to win battles. If short-term soldiers are required for that, so be it. Recruits join on a voluntary basis and are aware of the terms of service, and the military is not an organisation meant to prepare people for future jobs. This view could have some merit but it misses the larger relationship between a soldier and the state. There is a mutual obligation between the soldier and the nation that is often referred to as the 'military covenant'.

The Agnipath scheme has the approval of the government and the three service chiefs. The anger on the streets has forced the government to make some accommodative changes and announce measures for post-retirement employment of the Agniveers. However, it is also clear that the scheme will be implemented.

The onus to make the scheme a success lies primarily on the shoulders of the younger military leaders who command units and sub-units. They must strive to ensure that military professionalism remains at the highest level. At the same time, the political leadership must also understand that there is a uniqueness to those who serve in the military.

A US Army Research Institute for Behavioral and Social Sciences report says, "When the chips are down, there is no rational calculation in the world capable of causing an individual to lay down his life. On both the individual and collective levels, war is, therefore, primarily an affair of the heart. It is dominated by such irrational factors as resolution and courage, honour and duty and loyalty and sacrifice of self." That spirit must not be lost.

Our entwined values & interests

Australia has a vision for an open, inclusive and resilient Indo-Pacific region — it is a vision shared by partners like India

RICHARD MARLES

IT IS NO accident that my first two bilateral visits as Deputy Prime Minister and Defence Minister of Australia are to Japan and India.

The case for Australia making India a priority is unassailable: Australia must strengthen its understanding of and engagement with the world's soon-to-be most populous nation and a deeply consequential power.

Our world — and our region — faces the most serious strategic confluence of events since the end of the Second World War: Intensifying strategic and geo-economic competition, the return of war to Europe, growing climate risks, and enduring pandemic impacts, all of which are driving inflation and supply chain shocks. Countries which share common values and interests must work together with resolve to shape our economic and strategic environment so that it continues to support our collective security and prosperity.

My visit this week to New Delhi and Goa is based on that conviction, and the commitment by the new Australian government to place India at the heart of Australia's approach to the Indo-Pacific and beyond. India's economy, manufacturing capabilities and talent ensure it will play a key role in securing supply chains and restarting post-pandemic growth. Its military has the capacity and capability to respond to natural disasters, help stabilise an uncertain region and contribute to an effective balance of power. And its technological and scientific capabilities are gateways to a cleaner and more sustainable world. Most of all, India's people have the optimism, the commitment to democracy, the drive and the goodwill to make our region safer, freer and better.

Australia shares that ambition. Ours is a Comprehensive Strategic Partnership full of practical, tangible actions that strengthen ties and benefit the region. We are among a very small group of countries to hold annual leaders' summits and biennial 2+2 talks involving foreign and defence ministers. Today, our defence forces are undertaking more complex activities together, such as in Exercise Malabar with the US and Japan. Last year, Indian military officials observed our Exercise Talisman Sabre, and I have renewed the invitation for India's forces to participate fully in future iterations of this exercise. We coordinate closely on maritime domain awareness. This year we have deployed P-8 surveillance aircraft to each other's territories for joint patrols. Yesterday, I had the opportunity to see these capabilities in action, flying alongside dedicated Indian P-8 personnel.

Australia has also committed to a package of partnership initiatives in our update to the India Economic Strategy. The update includes a five-year action plan for the Australian Government to achieve the long-term ambitions set out in the landmark 2018 India Economic Strategy to 2035. It also includes new bilateral cooperation that spans the full breadth of the relationship. These include opening a Consulate-General in Bengaluru in 2023 to tap into India's technology and start-up hub, and a joint Australia-India Centre of Excellence for Critical and Emerging Technology Policy, also in Bengaluru. In Australia, we will open an Australia-based Centre for India-Australia Relations to propel and strengthen our community, institutional and business ties — including through a suite of new Maitri (mateship) scholarships, fellowships, and partnerships.

India and Australia have great potential to cooperate on climate and sustainability. As we do on ethical critical mineral and resource production, cutting-edge renewable technology research and development, skills and education, waste and the circular economy, business, investment, and advanced manufacturing. Our government is focused on making Australia a renewable energy superpower, and we want to see India emerge as a clean technology manufacturing powerhouse.

As our bilateral relationship deepens, we must begin to work more together with others in the region. We see enormous potential in the Indian and Pacific oceans, where we each have vital interests in combating climate change, illegal fishing and people smuggling and responding to humanitarian crises and natural disasters. India and Australia have shown that when we work in partnership, as in the wake of Tonga's devastating underwater earthquake, we are greater than the sum of our parts. Right across the Bay of Bengal, we are responding to the needs of our partners, including through connectivity, trade and energy, and maritime partnerships in the East Indian Ocean.

Australia and India take our commitments to our regional partners seriously. India has assisted Sri Lanka through its current economic crisis. Australia is doing the same, contributing approximately Rs 270 crore (AUD 50 million) in Official Development Assistance to support health services, and economic recovery.

As I have discussed with many of my new counterparts, Australia has a vision for an open, inclusive and resilient Indo-Pacific region. It is a vision for a region that is more integrated rather than divided, where trade and investment flow freely based on agreed rules and treaty commitments, where disputes are resolved through dialogue in accordance with international law, and where a strategic culture that respects the rights of all states, big and small, prevails. It is a vision that we share with partners like ASEAN, and partners like India.

Australia's vision for the region's peace and stability is for these principles, not against any one power. But it is not just words. It is backed by investment, authentic partnership and action. Whether through joint activities with like-minded countries, or our support of regional and multilateral architecture, Australia is ensuring the region has options and balance.

Australia's interests don't just align with India's, they are inextricably entwined. Expect this relationship to grow and prosper, our cooperation to deepen. This might be my first visit as Deputy Prime Minister and Minister for Defence, but it will certainly not be my last.

Story of Narendra and Abbas

PM Modi's reference in his blog to a Muslim in distress was not incidental

WHY DID PRIME Minister Narendra Modi, out of the blue, mention Abbas Ramsada, who lived for a while in the Modi household as a child because his father, Miyanbhai, passed away prematurely and the family was finding it tough to ensure that Abbas could continue school education? The question is important because Modi does not habitually refer to personal interactions with Muslims. His last public encounter with a Muslim that made it to the headlines was in 2011 and does not evoke pleasant memories.

Back then, he refused a skull cap offered by a Muslim cleric. His action during the Sadbhavana campaign announcing his arrival as a prime ministerial contender was applauded by supporters and criticised by adversaries. It cemented his position as a polarising figure, which contributed immensely to his rise. After becoming PM, Modi has held occasional private but publicised meetings with Muslim representatives and sent chadars during festivities to a dargah or two. In September 2017, he accompanied then-Japanese premier Shinzo Abe to Ahmedabad's 16th-century Sidi Saiyyed mosque. It was Modi's first-ever public visit to the architectural marvel, evidence of the historical fruition of Gujarat's multiculturalism, and marked an important turn in his political career.

Is it sheer coincidence that the timing of the mosque visit with Abe — a few months prior to the Gujarat assembly election — is somewhat similar to his revelation about Abbas, also before polls are due in the state?

Since he was Gujarat's chief minister, Modi has positioned himself as a firm believer in the "sabka doctrine", the principle formulated by Lal Krishna Advani — "development of all, appeasement of none." The PM's reference to Abbas was made on his blog, a platform which played a crucial role in creating the Modi cult. Because other digital and social media platforms are available to him, Modi rarely blogs now — the last time was in October 2021, to mark India's Covid-19 vaccinations touching the 100 crore mark. This latest blog, titled "Mother" (Ma and Mata in Hindi and Gujarati, respectively) marked a personal watershed in Modi's and his mother's life — she is entering the 100th year of her life. The over 4,000-word blog was mainly devoted to sketching her life, mentioning hardships, her resoluteness in the face of adversity and her spirit to battle it out to provide for her children. His mother is presented as extending complete support for his choices in life and his image as a selfless leader was fortified through these references.

No action of Modi is without a purpose. A direct reference to Abbas, as evidence of his family's affinity towards a young Muslim boy battling through a difficult phase in life, would have appeared incongruous. The character was thereby introduced in the blog to substantiate Hiraben's portrayal as a person who "would find happiness in other people's joys." No direct suggestion is required — the blog mentions several of his mother's attributes that Modi picked up, for readers to draw the inference that he too draws delight and a sense of fulfilment from the happiness and well-being of people. Modi's father too is depicted as a caring elder who brought home his friend's son and provided warmth and support when the latter was vulnerable. Hiraben is also said to have prepared the boy's favourite dishes during Eid, thus highlighting her (and the family's) respect for others' faith.

Each of these details seeks to establish that Modi's upbringing was not in an Islamophobic family. Instead, taking care of a Muslim in distress was part of his familial values. It is a different matter that the episode with Abbas took place in 1973, by which time Modi had left home and become part of the RSS. Modi would probably have had no, or very little, interaction with Abbas because he was a classmate of his younger brother, Pankaj. This is not mentioned and it is suggested that Hiraben showering love and care "like she did for all of us siblings", was endorsed by Modi.

The existence of Abbas and his association with the Modi family has been in the public domain since early 2014 when Sudesh Verma, a journalist turned BJP leader, wrote a biography lavishing praise on Modi and mentioned this episode. Yet, in the past eight years, Modi has not spoken or written about this. Few will fail to note that this mention has been made against the backdrop of the controversy arising out of suspended BJP spokesperson Nupur Sharma's comment on the Prophet.

It is natural to ask if Abbas has been introduced into the public discourse to project Modi as having grown up with inclusive values. If this is the case, then who is the effort directed at? Enraged Islamic nations and their regimes, or motor-mouths within the BJP?

But will this exercise help the BJP or Modi to fulfil either objective? No global leader, certainly not from the nations that hauled up New Delhi for Sharma's and her colleague's comments, will alter or form their views about Modi based on well-choreographed repetitions of a tale from the past. Likewise, it is difficult to imagine the BJP rank and file abandoning overnight the vocabulary of hate and prejudice that they have been trained to use over the past eight years.

Instances of senior BJP leaders using objectionable language are well known and available aplenty in the public domain. The Abbas tale may have "trended" and created a splash for the man, now in Australia, and also added to the ongoing project to publicise Modi's "softer side". But beyond that, it will do precious little.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

NON-ALIGNMENT

THIS REFERS TO the editorial, 'What Works Best' (IE, June 21). New Delhi seems to be reaping the benefits of walking the middle ground at a time when taking sides as the aftermath of the Ukrainian crisis is the norm. The successful import of discounted thermal coal and consignments of urea from Russia and America respectively proves just how effective the policy of non-alignment has been in the Russia-Ukraine War. Without being cowed down by the threats emanating from the US, wanting India to take a stand in the matter, New Delhi has steadfastly held on. After all, the question is not to please a certain camp, but to put self-interest ahead of all other considerations.

Vijai Pant, Hempur

THIS REFERS TO the editorial, 'What works best' (IE, June 21). The US is using all the tricks in its book to dissuade India from engaging in trade with Russia, but so far, the country has cocked a snook. That said, faultiness in the EU block has started surfacing as the sanction on energy imports from Russia is not sustainable, at least in this decade. It may be workable in the short term, but in the long run, it will only result in a battered economy. The Russia-Ukraine war shall drag on for years. Even if India and China join the league of countries who have teamed up against Russia, it shall not deter Russia from staying steadfast in its crusade. By staying our ground, we have ultimately saved our own interests.

TROUBLED WATERS

THIS REFERS TO the editorial, 'A jolt in Paris' (IE, June 21). Political instability in Europe and West Asia seems to be gaining ground. From geopolitics to realpolitik, political stability has been a reliable buttress. France has been at the receiving end of a lot of disturbances. Political weakness is the last thing that it would want to face. The changes that Macron brought in favour of France are waning from public memory and his standing is marred by headwinds. Whether his ship sails through the turbulent waters lies in the arena of conjecture.

Abhishek Kumar Anshu, Patna

JOB CREATION

THIS REFERS TO the article, 'On jobs, the big picture' (IE, 21 June). One has to agree with the author that the creation of jobs in the near future will be a Herculean task, despite the government's assurances to the contrary, because of the state of the economy. The only way in which the government can tackle the unemployment problem is by launching a MGNREGA-like scheme for the urban sector.

Study flags emergence of drug-resistant typhoid strains

ANURADHA MASCARENHAS
PUNE, JUNE 21

THE EFFECTIVENESS of antibiotics for typhoid fever is threatened by the emergence of resistant strains, according to a large genome sequencing study of the bacteria Salmonella Typhi published in The Lancet Microbe.

Typhoid fever causes 11 million infections and more than 100,000 deaths per year. South Asia accounts for 70% of the global disease burden.

Since 2000, multi-drug-resistant (MDR) S Typhi has declined steadily in Bangladesh and India, remained low in Nepal, and increased slightly in Pakistan. However, these are being replaced by strains resistant to other antibiotics, according to the study conducted by researchers from Stanford University, Christian Medical College Vellore and other institutions. The genome analysis also reveals that resistant strains – almost all originating in South Asia – have spread to other countries 197 times since 1990.

The study sequenced 3,489 S Typhi isolates from 2014-19 from people in Bangladesh, India, Nepal, and Pakistan, and 4,169 samples isolated from over 70 countries during 1905-2018. Strains were classified as MDR if they had genes giving resistance to antibiotics ampicillin, chloramphenicol, and trimethoprim/sulfamethoxazole.

"In recent years, we have seen increasingly resistant strains that are threatening to leave us without effective antibiotics against this bacterium. We are already seeing strains for which there is only a single oral antibiotic remaining, termed XDR typhoid. Strains resistant to the antibiotic (azithromycin) have been seen in India, Bangladesh, Nepal and Pakistan... Evidence to date suggests that much of the drug-resistance in typhoid has evolved within India, so we certainly need to be concerned about the appearance of drug resistance in the country," lead author Dr Jason Andrews of Stanford University told The Indian Express.

India's Health Ministry is considering introducing new typhoid conjugate vaccines into the national immunisation program. Two WHO-prequalified vaccines have been developed in India (by Bharat Biotech and Biological E). Study author Prof Jacob John of CMC Vellore said surveillance at 18 Indian sites during 2016-20 found typhoid was as common as it was two decades ago, especially in urban areas. "Complications and deaths are not common... However if transmission still prevails and resistance develops to commonly used antibiotics, then it is likely that there will be an upsurge in severe disease," Prof John told The Indian Express.

SUMMER SOLSTICE

June 21 is the longest day of the year in the northern hemisphere. Why do day and night durations vary?

Getty Images

TUESDAY, JUNE 21, was summer solstice, the day with the longest sunlight hours in the northern hemisphere. On December 21 every year, this hemisphere has winter solstice, when the night is the longest.

The reason why day and night hours are different from one day to the next lies in the Earth's tilt – or the 23.5° angle between its axis of rotation and its orbital plane. Day occurs on the side of the Earth facing the Sun, and changes to night as the Earth spins.

On the Equator, day and night are equal. As one moves farther and farther away, the difference between the lengths of day and night grows. That makes the variation most extreme at the poles: During summer in the northern hemisphere, the entire polar region receives 24 hours of daylight for months; during winter, the region is in total darkness for months.

The Earth's tilt also defined certain lines of latitude, based on which we have summer and winter solstices. At latitudes of 23.5° are the Tropics of Cancer and Capricorn, respectively north and south of the Equator. At 66.5°N is the Arctic Circle, and at 66.5°S the Antarctic Circle. On the day the Sun is directly overhead on the Tropic of Cancer, it is summer solstice in the northern hemisphere. When this happens on the Tropic of Capricorn, it is winter solstice.

On the Equator, the sun is directly overhead on two days. These are the spring equinox in March and the autumn equinox in August. Across Earth, day and night are of equal length on these two dates.

SIMPLY PUT QUESTION & ANSWER

The point of interest rate hike

Interest rate hikes by central banks, such as RBI, will not bring down food or fuel prices. But they will suppress credit-led demand, and in turn inflation. The goal is to keep inflation expectations anchored.

UDIT MISRA
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

LAST WEEK, the US central bank, often called the Fed, announced that it would raise interest rates by 75 basis points (or 0.75 percentage points). The Fed is doing this to bring down inflation to its target rate of 2%. At present, inflation in the US is closer to 9%. Most observers have noted that every time the Fed has tried to reduce inflation even by as little as 2 or 3 percentage points, it has led to a recession. In other words, if the Fed remains steadfast in its resolve to bring down inflation to 2%, the US will go into a recession.

A similar trend is unfolding across the world including India, where the RBI has been raising interest rates in a bid to contain inflation. In India, instead of a recession, the damage may be limited to a reduction in GDP growth.

What is inflation? How does it affect you?

Inflation is the rate at which prices rise. A 2% inflation implies the general price level in April this year was 2% more than what it was in April last year. A "rising" inflation rate implies that the rate (at which the prices rise) itself is increasing. Take India, for example, where the inflation rate steadily went up from close to 4% in September last year to almost 8% in April this year.

Why is inflation bad?

Apart from making things costly, it essentially erodes the basis on which one makes economic decisions. Should one buy a car today or six months later? Should one lend money? Should one hold back on repaying old loans? Will one's income be enough to pay the bills in six months' time? What wage increment should one ask for? Should one invest in starting a new business? And so on.

And what is recession?

The technical definition of a recession requires an economy to contract for two consecutive quarters; a quarter is a period of three months.

What is causing inflation?

Both the Fed and the RBI have stated that the current inflationary spike is due to supply constraints – in particular, due to rising costs of food and fuel.

For instance, during the June monetary policy review, while sharply revising the inflation forecast for the current financial year to 6.7% from an April prediction of just 4.5%, RBI Governor Shaktikanta Das said: "75 per cent of the increase in our inflation projection, compared to what we had made in April, is attributed to food inflation... primarily the food inflation spike is linked to external factors, namely, the war in Europe."

US Fed Chair Jerome Powell, too, gave the same reason.

But how will raising the interest rate reduce food or fuel prices?

It won't, and the central bankers know they cannot bring down food and fuel prices by forcing banks to charge a higher interest rate from people wanting to buy a new car or opening a new shop or even taking an education or home loan.

When a journalist bluntly asked him whether the US Fed was "trying to induce a recession" to bring down inflation, Powell admitted his helplessness in bringing down inflation because of "factors that are not under our control".

The RBI too expressed the same helplessness. In its June Bulletin, it states: "There is no doubt that the first impact of a food and fuel price shock to inflation lies outside the realm and remit of the RBI – especially with food and fuel prices constituting 60 per cent of the CPI and the food shock emanating from external sources, in this case, the war in Europe."

Then why are central banks raising interest rates?

The answer lies in what are called "inflation expectations". Simply put, inflation expectations refer to people's (or households') expectations of what the inflation rate will be in the future. And they matter because these expectations are what determine people's economic behaviour.

For instance, what would you do if you expected that the car you want to buy today will cost almost 20% more next year? Especially so, when you expect your income to go up by just 10% in the meantime? Chances are you will buy the car today when inflation has not yet eroded your purchasing power.

Similarly, if you expect the general price level to rise by 10% over the coming year, you might ask your boss for a raise of 15%. That's because a 10% raise will, in your view, barely cover you for the higher prices that you will have to pay. To get a "real" increment of 5%, you need a nominal increment of 15%.

Alternatively, imagine a scenario when you think prices will actually go down in the coming year (this phenomenon is called deflation). In such a case, you might postpone buying that car; hoping to buy it for less next year.

The net effect of these individual decisions to advance or postpone purchases or ask for higher wages etc. determine the course of a country's economy.

The crucial point here is to understand that people's expectations of inflation often determine what the future inflation will be. For example, if people expect higher inflation and advance their purchases, there will suddenly be a spike in demand, far in excess of the supply, thus causing higher inflation.

As such, policymakers try to gauge what is happening to inflation expectations. Gauging these is neither easy nor straightforward, and central banks conduct surveys to assess what is happening to inflation expectations.

So, how does raising the interest rate contain inflation expectations?

Inflation expectations tend to be "backward looking".

"(Households) tend to look at recent food and fuel prices which are salient items in the average consumption basket and they form their opinion about what inflation would be in the future, say three months or a year from now. If households believe that inflation will go up and stay up, they are in effect saying that it is better to prepare for that difficult situation," the RBI's June Bulletin says.

When a central bank raises the interest rate, while it may not be able to increase the supply of food and fuel, it does dampen the demand for these goods. For instance, dismayed by higher interest rates, many may postpone buying a new car, thus reducing the demand for fuel.

By disincentivising borrowing (because it is now costlier) a central bank reduces borrowing-led demand. This does two things. One, it reduces inflation by bringing down demand, and two, it gives time for the supply to catch up with the demand.

In short, ensuring inflation expectations stay "anchored" is the essential goal for monetary policy. Reducing inflation is a way to achieve that goal and raising interest rates is a way to achieve lower inflation.

But as central banks try to achieve this goal, expect more interest rate hikes in the coming months, which, in turn, will dampen economic activity all around.

EVERYDAY ECONOMICS

India's emerging twin deficit concerns

UDIT MISRA
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

IN ITS latest 'Monthly Economic Review', the Ministry of Finance has painted an overall optimistic picture of the state of the domestic economy. "The World is looking at a distinct possibility of widespread stagflation. India, however, is at low risk of stagflation, owing to its prudent stabilization policies," it states.

The economic growth outlook is likely to be affected by several factors owing to the trade disruptions, export bans and the resulting surge in global commodity prices – all of which will continue to stoke inflation – as long as the Russia-Ukraine conflict persists and global supply chains remain unrepaired. "However, the momentum of economic activities sustained in the first two months of the current financial year augurs well for India continuing to be the quickest growing economy among major countries in 2022-23," states the Finance Ministry report.

But, given the uncertainties, the report highlights two key areas of concern for the Indian economy: the fiscal deficit and the current account deficit (or CAD).

Fiscal deficit

The report states that "as government revenues take a hit following cuts in excise duties on diesel and petrol, an upside risk to the budgeted level of gross fiscal deficit has emerged".

The fiscal deficit is essentially the amount of money that the government has to borrow in any year to fill the gap between its expenditures and revenues. Higher levels of fiscal deficit typically imply the government eats into the pool of investible funds in the market which could have been used by the private sector for its own investment needs. At a time when the government is trying its best to kick-start and sustain a private sector investment cycle, borrowing more than what it budgeted will be counter-productive.

The report underscores the need to trim revenue expenditure (or the money government spends just to meet its daily needs). "Rationalizing non-capex expenditure has thus become critical, not only for protecting growth supportive capex but also for avoiding fiscal slippages," it states.

"Capex" or capital expenditure essentially refers to money spent towards creating productive assets such as roads, buildings, ports etc. Capex has a much bigger multiplier effect on the overall GDP growth than revenue expenditure.

Current account deficit

The current account essentially refers to two sub-parts:

■ Import and export of goods – this is the "trade account".

■ Import and export of services – this is called the "invisibles account".

If a country imports more goods (everything from cars to phones to machinery to food grains etc) than it exports, it is said to have a trade account deficit. A deficit implies that more money is going out of the country than coming in via the trade of physical goods. Similarly, the same country could be earning a surplus on the invisibles account – that is, it could be exporting more services than importing.

If, however, the net effect of a trade account and the invisibles account is a deficit, then it is called a current account deficit or CAD. A widening CAD tends to weaken the domestic currency because a CAD implies more dollars (or foreign currencies) are being demanded than rupees.

The Finance Ministry's worry is that costlier imports such as crude oil and other commodities will not only widen the CAD but also put downward pressure on the rupee. A weaker rupee will, in turn, make future imports costlier. There is one more reason why the rupee may weaken. If, in response to higher interest rates in the western economies especially the US, foreign portfolio investors (FPI) continue to pull out money from the Indian markets, that too will hurt the rupee and further increase CAD.

Why Israel is headed to its 5th election in 3 years, and what now

RAGHU MALHOTRA
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

ISRAEL'S FRAGILE and short-lived coalition government announced on Monday that it would submit a bill next week to dissolve Parliament, setting the stage for a fifth election in three years, and the possible return to power of the country's longest-serving Prime Minister, Benjamin Netanyahu.

Israel's four previous elections between 2019 and 2021 were basically plebiscites on whether Netanyahu could rule while facing trial on serious corruption charges. Netanyahu, who was indicted in November 2019, has denied the allegations.

Once the bill is passed, Prime Minister Naftali Bennett, leader of the right-wing political alliance Yamina, will step down, and Foreign Minister Yair Lapid, leader of the liberal centrist Yesh Atid party, will become interim PM until a new government is formed, according to the ruling coalition's power-sharing agreement. Elections will take place in the fall, according to commentators.

The ideologically divided coalition – the most diverse in Israel's history – lost its thin majority in April following a defection by a lawmaker of Bennett's Yamina. The government faced its biggest setback on June 6, after the opposition, along with rebel coalition members, helped defeat a bill intended to renew legal protections for Israeli settlers in the occupied West Bank.

Electoral process

Israel does not have a written constitution, and according to its Basic Laws, elections to Parliament are held every four years, unless the Knesset decides by an ordinary majority to dissolve and trigger early elections.

Unlike in India, Israeli voters vote for parties, not specific candidates. All Israeli citizens aged 18 and older are eligible to vote. Palestinians living on Israeli occupied territory cannot vote.

There are 120 seats in the Knesset, and to form the government, a party needs at least 61. However, no party has ever won a majority on its own, and ruling alliances comprising 8-12 parties have been the norm. These parties represent interests of specific groups, and the constituents of a coalition may hold positions that are contradictory or competing.

After the members of the Knesset have been elected, Israel's President chooses the candidate that he believes has the best chance of forming a coalition. The candidate, often the leader of the largest party, is given 28 days, with a possible extension of a fortnight, to form the government.

2 years, 4 elections

After winning his fourth term in 2015, Netanyahu of the right-wing Likud Party was able to put together a ruling coalition at the eleventh hour. But he was forced to dissolve Parliament and hold snap elections in April 2019, following the resignation of his Defence Minister Avigdor Lieberman, leader of the right-wing secular nationalist Yisrael Beiteinu party.

Netanyahu, however, was unable to secure the seats to form a government, and another election followed in September 2019. But again, neither Netanyahu nor his rival Benny Gantz of the Blue and White party were able to form the government.

In the Israeli system, the only way to break a deadlock is to keep holding elections until someone gets a majority, so a third election was held in March 2020 – which again, was inconclusive.

In April 2020, Netanyahu was able to form an "emergency" coalition government with his principal rival Gantz. This tenuous alliance would only last seven months; in December, the fragmented ruling coalition was unable to pass the budget in the Knesset, triggering a fourth election in March 2021.

A new coalition

Netanyahu, who remained caretaker Prime Minister throughout this period, finally lost power after 12 years in June 2021, as the Knesset approved Bennett as the new Prime Minister. Lapid was to replace him in two years, based on the coalition agreement.

The eight-party coalition included both left-wing and right-wing parties, and both secular and religious groups. For the first time, an Arab party, the United Arab List or Ra'am, entered government. These parties had very little in common; what united them essentially was the desire to remove Netanyahu from power. From almost day 1, critics and commentators predicted this impulse would not be enough to hold the extraordinarily broad alliance together.

What happens now

As Israel waits for elections – likely at the end of October because of legal constraints and holiday delays – Netanyahu has called the developments "great news for millions of Israeli citizens", and vowed to return to office as Prime Minister.

According to recent opinion polls, Netanyahu's Likud will very likely be the largest in the next Knesset. What remains uncertain – as the recent elections have shown – is whether he will be able to put together a ruling coalition. As a report in The New York Times pointed out, some parties will likely want to ally with Likud only if Netanyahu resigns as party leader. The former Prime Minister has rejected the charges of fraud, bribery and breach of trust, for which he is currently on trial, as a "witch hunt".

SECTOR WATCH NON-BANK PREPAID WALLETS

RBI puts a stop to credit lines on prepaid instruments

PRANAV MUKUL
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

THE RESERVE Bank of India (RBI) has issued a notification disallowing non-bank prepaid wallets and prepaid cards from loading credit lines into these platforms. This comes in the backdrop of a boom in credit instruments such as fintech-driven credit cards and buy-now-pay-later wallets.

What has RBI said in its notification?

The banking regulator has clarified that its master directions on prepaid payment instruments (PPIs) does not permit loading of PPIs from credit lines — a practice being undertaken by several fintech credit card companies. These companies typically tie up with banks or NBFCs and offer credit lines into their prepaid wallets. "Such practice, if followed, should be stopped immediately. Any non-compliance in this regard may attract penal action under provisions contained in the Payment and Settlement Systems Act, 2007," it noted.

Why has RBI issued this notification?

With credit products infiltrating the market, there is a renewed push by the regulator to clampdown on such products in the interest of consumer safety. While some

Date extended for provisions on card issuance

Mumbai: The RBI on Tuesday extended the timeline for implementation of certain provisions of the master directions issued on issuance of debit cards and credit cards by three months from July 1, 2022 to October 1, 2022.

The RBI had earlier said issuers will have to seek OTP-based consent from the cardholder for activating a credit card, if the same has not been activated by the customer for over 30 days from the date of issuance. ENS fintechs tie up with banks such as SBM Bank, RBL Bank, Federal Bank, etc to offer these products, some tie up with NBFCs. In some cases, credit lines are also extended by the fintech's NBFC partners.

EXPLAINED

What are PPIs?

The RBI defines PPIs as payment instruments, which facilitate buying of goods and services, including transfer of funds, financial services, and remittances against the value stored within or on the instrument.

DEPENDS ON BANKS' DEAL WITH RUSSIAN LENDERS & REINSURANCE

'Pool' to cover fertiliser cargo likely to be extended to crude

GEORGE MATHEW
MUMBAI, JUNE 21

AFTER CREATING a Rs 500-crore 'pool' to provide insurance cover for shipments meant for importing fertilisers from Russia, Belarus and Ukraine by the general insurance industry in India, there are indications that the 'pool' is likely to be extended to cover shipments of cheaper Russian oil.

The 'pool', which was initiated at the instance of the Ministry of Finance, is already in place after receiving due approvals from the insurance regulator. The pool can only cover the cargo of the shipment and not the hull. Any claim within Rs 500 crore per shipment of fertiliser from these three countries can be paid directly from the new 'pool' without any reinsurance support.

India's oil imports from Russia have gone up steeply as the latter is offering oil at a discount of 25-30 per cent. Russia has overtaken Saudi Arabia to become India's second largest oil supplier after Iraq in May this year.

However, the extension of insurance cover to oil is likely to happen after Indian banks work out an arrangement with Russian lenders which are not impacted by Western sanctions and insurers tackle the reinsurance support, according to sources. The European Union had said its sixth sanctions package prohibits EU operators from insuring and financing seaborne transport of Russian oil to third countries after a wind-down period of six months. Although the Russian insurers provide coverage to oil shipment, the reinsurers, mostly from Europe and the US, are unlikely to provide coverage for the sellers due to the EU ban.

If the fertiliser pool is extended to oil, the size of the pool is likely to be expanded.

The insurance sector had earlier formed two pools, Terrorism Pool and Nuclear Pool. The 'pool' for fertilisers will also be administered by state-owned GIC Re and will be participated by all the general insurers without any support from reinsurance companies while providing cover to imports from Russia, Belarus and Ukraine.

The pool was created after hectic parleys among the Ministries of Fertilizers and Chemicals, Agriculture, Finance; the General Insurance Council, the official representative body of all domestic general insurers; and reinsurers on providing insurance cover to the cheaper fertiliser shipment from these three countries. Any delay in taking a decision would have adversely affected the nation's food security in a couple of months.

After Russia had invaded Ukraine and sanctions were imposed by the US and Europe, Indian general insurers and reinsurer GIC Re had cancelled all marine covers which were issued for the import and export business from Russia, Belarus and Ukraine that go through Black Sea and Sea of Azov. The war between Russia and Ukraine has already impacted India's fertiliser supplies in a big way. India, which is the world's largest urea importer, also imports phosphatic and potassic fertilisers.

During April-October 2020, the EPFO had settled 149.31 lakh settlement and advance claims amounting to Rs 55,900.88 crore, of which 47.58 lakh were Covid advance claims worth Rs 12,220.26 crore. During the lockdown period of March 25, 2020-May 31, 2020, the EPFO had settled 31.01 claims against 51.54 claims settled in 2021-22 (till March 22), 57.55 claims in 2020-21 and 51.44 claims in 2019-20.

AANCHAL MAGAZINE
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

A REVIEW of a series of exemptions and inverted duty structure as recommended by the Group of Ministers (GoM) on rate rationalisation are likely to be taken up for discussion in the upcoming Goods and Services Tax (GST) Council meeting. The interim report by the ministerial panel has suggested removal of exemptions including hospital rooms with rent above Rs 5,000 a day, services provided by regulators, such as SEBI, RBI, IRDA, and business class travels from airports in north-east, sources said.

A review of hotel tariffs is also expected to be a part of the recommendations, with lower-tariff hotels also likely to be brought under the GST ambit. The panel is also likely to have suggested a review of the unbranded food items, which at present do not attract GST.

The next GST Council meeting is slated to be held at Chandigarh on June 28-29. In its meeting held last week, the GoM, headed by Karnataka Chief Minister Basavaraj S Bommai, had converged upon the preparation of an interim report and seeking an extension of its tenure.

The GoM, in its interim report to the GST Council, is also learnt to have suggested an increase in the GST rate on electronics-waste

'THE SUGGESTIONS'

The interim report by the ministerial panel has suggested removal of exemptions including hospital rooms with rent above Rs 5,000 a day, services provided by regulators, such as SEBI, RBI, IRDA, and business class travels from airports in north-east, sources said.

to be raised to 18 per cent from 5 per cent along with an increase in the rate on exploration activities of goods related to petroleum and coal bed methane from 5 per cent. A recommendation has been made to remove exemption on rent of hospital rooms with rent over Rs 5,000 as against complete exemption at present.

Business class travel from airports in the north-eastern states could also end soon if the recommendation of the GoM gets accepted in the Council. This compares with a levy of 12 per cent GST on business travel by air in the rest of the country. The panel has also looked at the possibility of withdrawing exemption on services provided by Food Safety and Standards Authority of India (FSSAI) to food business operators as against 18 per cent levy on services at present.

MFs can resume investments in global stocks: Sebi

ENSECONOMICBUREAU
MUMBAI, JUNE 21

THE SECURITIES and Exchange Board of India (Sebi) has permitted mutual funds to invest in foreign stocks within the aggregate mandated limit of $7 billion for the industry.

The investment approval has come in the wake of a major correction in global markets that brought down the valuation of international stocks and redemption from the schemes. In January, Sebi had asked mutual fund houses to stop taking fresh subscriptions in schemes investing in overseas stocks. The directive to stop subscription was mainly on account of the mutual fund industry crossing the mandated limit of $7 billion for overseas investments.

The Association of Mutual Funds in India (AMFI) has clarified that mutual fund schemes may resume subscriptions and make investments in overseas funds and securities up to the headroom available without breaching the overseas investment limits utilised by MFs and AMCs as of February 1, 2022 at the mutual fund level. "Further, total utilisation of the overseas investment limit by each AMC or mutual fund should remain capped at the amount as on February 1, 2022 to ensure compliance with the SEBI directive," AMFI said. ## DAY TODAY

BY PETER VIDAL

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr 20)
The day's influences advise you to get professional matters in order and tread carefully around all emotional issues. The week's picture, on the other hand, urges you not to get bogged down in detail, but to go for all adventurous and far-sighted options.

LIBRA (Sep 24 - Oct 23)
Give and take is the order of the day, but it is also important to be in control at home. Mid-morning alignments are romantic, but also somewhat muddled, suggesting that expert assistance is vital. Perhaps you should admit that, for once, you haven't got everything taped.

TAURUS (Apr 21 - May 21)
You can indulge yourself, and recognise that a little extravagance could go a long way towards putting you in a better frame of mind. It is possible to spend your way to happiness, and even perhaps to solve problems by throwing money at them.

SCORPIO (Oct 24 - Nov 23)
If you are wondering just when life is going to get back to normal, the answer should be now. In fact, the vast majority of people born under your sign may be able to sit back and rest on their laurels. What's more, the emotional tide is about to turn in your favour.

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
It will take a great deal of effort to reach your goals, as I am sure you know. Close partners should be extremely helpful, and very probably ready to lend a helping hand, just as long as you ask. Also, take an overdue decision: you seem to have put off the big moment for far too long.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 24 - Dec 23)
A word of advice for the whole week: fretting and fuming will do no good. You have to acknowledge that you are rushing ahead of other people, and they must realistically be given sufficient time to catch up. You could do with time to pause for breath.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
You still seem to be taking three steps backwards for every one forwards, and quite possibly one step sideways as well. The planets are sending you a message that you should give up one or two responsibilities and put a goal in cold storage, perhaps until next year.

CAPRICORN (Dec 23 - Jan 20)
It's fine to be secretive and secluded, but you must maintain a continual check on your motives. By all means go behind people's backs if you have everyone's best interests at heart. But be warned that if they find out what you're doing by accident, then they may not be best pleased.

LEO (July 24 - Aug 23)
If you wish to be spontaneous, take a leaf out of children's plans and activities. In spite of the fact that the day's lunar alignments are somewhat sober, you should find a way to loosen up and let your hair down. The chances of romance are high, but it may be a place which attracts your fancy rather than a person.

AQUARIUS (Jan 21 - Feb 19)
Your stars are looking fabulous from the social point of view. However, while casual friendships appear particularly well-ascpected, intimate and passionate links may seem stuck on the launching-pad. The person who can help, could be the last one you think of.

PISCES (Feb 20 - Mar 20)
Once again social organisation is on the cards. By this I mean that you will, even against your better judgment, be assuming responsibility for other people. Take care that you have sufficient time, for you don't want to be caught short, just when you're about to succeed.

VIRGO (Aug 24 - Sep 23)
You may be slightly accident prone, yet as usual you are determined to get the job done properly. At work, your main problem may be anger or irritation over past slights or hurts. The emotional temperature has dipped, perhaps to your great relief.

BRIEFLY

SL edge Australia in last-ball thriller

Colombo: Sri Lanka beat Australia by four runs in a tense ODI that went down to the final ball on Tuesday to take an unassailable 3-1 lead in the five-match series. Put into bat, Sri Lanka's Charith Asalanka (110) and Dhananjaya de Silva (60) stitched together a 101-run partnership to give the hosts a respectable total of 258. For Australia, David Warner looked well set to score his 19th ODI hundred before he fell agonisingly short, getting stumped on 99. Needing 19 off the final over, number 10 batsman Matthew Kuhnemann smashed three boundaries before Dasun Shanaka kept his nerve on the final ball to have him caught in the covers and see Sri Lanka over the line.

Indian IMs Srihari, Nitin among leaders

Chennai: Little-known Indian players L R Srihari, S Nitin and Srijit Paul hogged the limelight with wins to be among the leaders with four points after four rounds in the 13th Chennai Open International Grandmaster chess tournament 2022 here on Tuesday. International Masters Srihari, Nitin and Srijit Paul defeated Arjun Tiwari (India), Luong Phuong Hanh and Nguyen Thanh Thuy Tien, both of Vietnam, respectively in round four to join top-seed Boris Savchenko and Belarus' Kirill Stupak on four points.

On the final day of individual events on Monday, Sudhir claimed a bronze medal in men's up to 88kg with a best lift of 214kg in the second round.

Milak smashes own world record

Budapest: Hungarian Kristof Milak smashed his own world record to win the 200m butterfly, powering to the gold medal in a time of 1:50.34 at the World Championships in Budapest on Tuesday. ## Mumbai's shot at redemption

Domestic giants have underachieved recently, but with Muzumdar & Shaw, they seem to have turned the corner

ABHISHEK PUROHIT
BENGALURU, JUNE 21

During their lowest point of a nightmare Ranji Trophy 2018-19 season, Mumbai were walloped by Vidarbha by an innings and 146 runs in Nagpur. It prompted a senior Vidarbha player to remark that the then Mumbai team did not resemble a Mumbai team at all. It was the season they'd laid out a green pitch for Gujarat at Wankhede Stadium and had themselves surrendered in a nine-wicket thrashing. In the previous season, Karnataka had outclassed them by an innings in the quarter-finals. In 2019-20, Railways handed them a 10-wicket humbling at Wankhede.

To appreciate what this young Mumbai side under coach Amol Muzumdar and captain Prithvi Shaw has done in 2021-22 – albeit in a much shortened season – it is worth revisiting what Mumbai endured in the three seasons following the departure of coach Chandrakant Pandit. The opening combination would be a revolving door; the middle order, irrespective of the stature and reputation of its inhabitants, could become a collective walking wicket, and the bowling couldn't even come close to covering up for the batting collapses. Selectors, coaches, players – there was chop-and-change all around. Constant failure and uncertainty have never made for a happy dressing room.

Yes, Mumbai did win the Vijay Hazare Trophy twice in that period, but as their former coach Vinayak Samant would say, nobody really cares in the Mumbai cricket fraternity if they win white-ball tournaments. For ages, there has been just one target – win the Ranji Trophy; nothing else counts.

Amid accusations that players were mostly interested in white-ball cricket – and the rewards from the Indian Premier Leaguemake it a big temptation – former players would keep lamenting that the v alue of the Mumbai cap had gone down drastically.

Mumbai skipper Prithvi Shaw can take the game away from the opposition, but has lasted a mere 38.5 deliveries per innings this season.

"When I took up this job, all that the entire association (the MCA) asked about was getting back in red-ball cricket," Muzumdar said on the eve of the Ranji final against Madhya Pradesh.

"That was our main focus. Coming so far, we've tried to achieve that. Credit to the boys, they're on track. Red-ball cricket was a concern for everyone from Mumbai. Looking at the last few years, even you guys [reporters] must have thought so.

"But the guys have done splendidly well. The focus was on how to get Gen-Next hooked on to deliver in the Ranji Trophy. With this kind of performance, we're pushing towards it. I am certain these guys will serve Mumbai for a long time."

Young and talented

For the first time in several years, there is an excitement about the Mumbai top six – Shaw, Yashasvi Jaiswal, Armaan Jaffer, Suved Parkar, Sarfaraz Khan and Hardik Tamore – that has replaced the despondence of recent seasons. All of them are in their early to mid-20s, and have already shown the potential to develop into a formidable batting line-up in years to come.

As some of them batted in the National Cricket Academy nets at Chinnaswamy Stadium on Tuesday morning, they might as well have been sweating it out together for their schools or on the maidans of their home metropolis. With all those countless matches going on at the same time at Azad Maidan, they have grown used to reacting to those cries of 'watch it' at the very last moment to flying red cherries. The maidans, on their part, have continued their tradition of churning out first-class batsmen, which is what Mumbai teams have been known for over the decades.

The leader of the pack, though, hasn't set the stage alight yet. Shaw averages just 33 for the season; he has three fifties but no centuries. As he joked during the pre-match press conference, "No one even congratulated me after scoring the fifties."

Shaw can take the game away from the opposition if he lasts a couple of sessions, but has lasted a mere 38.5 deliveries per innings this season. Captaincy has not changed the way he bats. It shouldn't make him go into a shell, but with a game that already has defensive loopholes, he's attacked one too many too early.

Madhya Pradesh seamers Kuldeep Sen, Puneet Datey, Gaurav Yadav and Anubhav Agarwal are collectively sharper than their Mumbai counterparts, of whom only Tuskar Deshpande has some pace. Sen, in fact, has played only two games this season but was impressive during the IPL. He is understood to be coming back from an injury, but if he plays, he could cause some early trouble for Mumbai.

This is where the final is a golden opportunity for Shaw to demonstrate that his unquestionable talent can be tempered with the discipline that a big occasion demands. Discipline is something he hasn't come to be known for off the field as well.

Muzumdar did give him credit for being "made for captaincy" but ultimately, as much as it is about tactics and man-management, leadership is also about setting a personal example to be followed.

Leading Mumbai to their 42nd Ranji title at age 22 may not become the personal turning point for Shaw, but will certainly be remembered for long, if it happens.

Aiming high

As it will be for coach Muzumdar. Into the preceding white-ball season, there were some apprehensions whether the driven, sharp-talking domestic great would be the right fit for a side of talented, free-spirited youngsters. But as he'd set out to do when he took up his first major assignment as head coach, Muzumdar has put some order into the red-ball unit.

"Kaahi tari motha karen re, tu bagh [you see, we'll do something major]," he'd told this correspondent after he accepted this coaching job. It has obviously helped that he has the stature, as the second-highest run-getter in Ranji Trophy history, to command respect from his players. And he has never been one to lack for effort. Sarfaraz had told this paper after the Ranji group stage that Muzumdar reminded him of his father, the way he made him work hard during training. All the training will boil down to the five days of the final. As Muzumdar said, another set of five days could arrive in these players' lives again, but this particular set never will. So they better make the most of them.

Djokovic, Nadal top 2 seeds at Wimbledon

LONDON, JUNE 21

Wimbledon champion Novak Djokovic will head into next week's tournament as the men's top seed with Russian world number one Daniil Medvedev banned from taking part while Germany's second-ranked Alexander Zverev is out injured.

Organisers of the grasscourt Grand Slam have banned players from Russia and Belarus from playing at this year's Wimbledon following Moscow's invasion of Ukraine, which Russia calls a 'special operation'.

Zverev had surgery on torn ligaments in his right ankle this month after he was forced to retire from his French Open semi-final against Rafael Nadal.

Djokovic, who was unable to defend his 2021 Australian Open title and the 2,000 ranking points he earned due to his non-vaccinated status against Covid-19, recently lost his world number one spot to Medvedev.

The Serbian, who has won the last three editions of the grasscourt major, will slip further down the rankings after Wimbledon as he will lose another 2,000 points with the ATP and WTA stripping the tournament of points.

The absence of Medvedev and Zverev means Nadal, who is halfway through a possible calendar year Slam after winning the Australian and French Open titles, to be seeded second.

It also results in Djokovic and Nadal finding themselves in different halves of the draw and they cannot face each other until the men's final on July 10. The duo met in this year's Roland Garros quarter-final where the Spaniard triumphed.

Poland's world number one Iga Swiatek will be the women's top seed with Estonian Annett Kontaveit the number two.

Indians knocked out

India's singles players yet again failed to cross the qualifying hurdle at the Grand Slam stage as both Ramkumar Ramanathan and Yuki Bhambri exited the Wimbledon championships with first round defeats.

Bhambri lost to top seed from Spain Bernabe Zapata Miralles 5-7 1-6 while Ramkumar fell 5-7 4-6 to Czech Republic's Vit Kopriova on Monday night.

The 29-year-old Bhambri got off a flying start as he got an early break in the opening set and, at one point, was leading 5-3.

However, despite Bhambri being an advantageous position squandered two set points and it was Miralles who took the lead.

The second set, however, was a drab affair and Bhambri was eliminated from the grass court event.

Ramanathan took on the 19th seed Kopriova, and the script turned out to be something similar.

With both Bhambri and Ramanathan bowing out, Sania Mirza, who is in her last year on tour, remains the only Indian confirmed to play at SW19 this year.

ATP to trial off-court coaching

The ATP will trial off-court coaching in the second half of the year, with players set to receive instructions in qualifying and main draw matches in tournaments including the US Open and the ATP Finals, the governing body of men's tennis said on Tuesday.

The trial will permit an individual to coach a player both verbally and non-verbally from a designated seat provided that it does not interrupt play or hinder an opponent.

It commences from the week of July 11 and run through to the season-ending ATP Finals in Turin in November.

Koepka set to leap to LIV Golf Series

New Delhi: Brooks Koepka is expected to join the LIV Golf Series and participate in the first event in the United States on June 30, according to multiple reports.

Koepka and Abraham Ancer of Mexico are ranked Nos. 19 and 20 in the Official World Golf Rankings but reportedly will depart the PGA Tour for the LIV in the coming days.

The building current behind the start-up tour would include eight of the top 50 in the OWGR, including Koepka's nemesis Bryson DeChambeau (30th). Ancer withdrew from the U.S. Open last week citing illness.

As friction builds between players and PGA Tour commissioner Jay Monahan, 17 players have been suspended from playing in Tour events, including Phil Mickelson and Dustin Johnson. Presumably, Koepka, a four-time major winner, would be added to the banned list, as would Ancer, 31.

Spain's Jon Rahm, who said he was offered $400 million to join the LIV, and Ireland's Rory McIlroy have been vocal in their position against leaving the PGA Tour. REUTERS

FIFA-AFC team meets AIFF CoA, advisory panel disbanded

MIHIR VASAVDA
JUNE 21

A delegation of FIFA and Asian Football Confederation (AFC) rejected an advisory committee named by the Supreme Court-appointed Committee of Administrators (CoA), citing interference in working of the All India Football Federation (AIFF), after which the panel was disbanded.

The seven-member joint delegation met the three CoA members – former chief election commissioner SY Quraishi, retired Supreme Court judge AR Dave and former India captain Bhaskar Ganguly – on Tuesday, the first day of their visit.

It is learnt that senior AIFF officials objected to the appointment of the committee and the joint delegation agreed that it would interfere with the working of the federation, which would be in violation of FIFA statutes.

On Monday, a notification had been issued by the CoA, in which entrepreneur Ranjit Bajaj was named as the chairman of the 12-member advisory team that will 'assist' the Supreme Court-appointed CoA in running the federation. Bajaj will also be looking after the 'integrity matters' of the AIFF, it was announced.

While the committee will not be eligible for any remuneration, they will 'oversee the day-to-day matters of various departments of the AIFF and send regular reports to all the members of the CoA', according to a circular.

However, Bajaj's appointment as the chairman of the advisory panel to the CoA had ruffled many feathers within the old establishment of the AIFF. It is learnt that a section of the federation was unhappy with the idea of having an advisory committee in the first place, and Bajaj's selection as the chairman in particular.

Coincidentally, on the same day as the Bajaj-led committee was announced, Kushal Das, the AIFF general secretary, 'proceeded on leave on account of his health issues', according to the federation's statement. Last month, Bajaj accused Das of sexually harassing AIFF employees and indulging in corruption. Das has denied both charges.

The FIFA-AFC joint delegation is led by AFC general secretary Datuk Seri Windsor John. Is joined by three others from the confederation – deputy general secretary Vahid Kardany, head of South Asia unit

PTI adds: The first round of talks between the two sides has "gone off well" and the world body is unlikely to impose ban on the country, according to well-placed sources.

However, nothing is official as of now and a final picture on what FIFA may do or recommend could come only after the second round of talks that the visiting officials will have with the CoA members on Thursday, before they leave the country.

"It was a very good and constructive meeting. The meeting had gone off very well. Both sides were happy with the outcome of today's meeting," a top source involved in the whole process said on conditions of anonymity.

"The sense from today's meeting was that both FIFA and CoA are on same page on almost all the issues. We can say there is agreement on the core issues. I don't see FIFA imposing ban on India as of now."

The source said one of the main takeaways from Tuesday's meeting was that the AIFF elections should be held before the end of September.

Unfit Rani not part of women's World Cup squad

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

STRIKER AND former skipper Rani Rampal was on Tuesday axed from the 18-member Indian women's hockey team, to be led by goalkeeper Savita Punia, for next month's FIH World Cup. Rani, an inspirational skipper and forward who led the Indian women to the historic fourth-place finish at the 2020 Olympics, was picked for the recent FIH Pro League matches in Belgium and Netherlands after recovering from a hamstring injury, which had kept her out of action after the Tokyo Games.

Although part of the squad, Rani didn't feature in the first four games of the side's European leg of Pro League, raising doubts about her full fitness, which eventually cost her a place in the World Cup-bound squad.

Besides Rani's exclusion, there are no further surprises as India went or a tried and tested squad, which has been playing together for a long time. Apart from Rani, defenders Ishika Chaudhary and Akshata Abaso Dhekale, midfielder Baljeet Kaur and striker Sangita Kumari missed out from India's recent FIH Pro League squad as the team management reposed faith on the core group of players. The World Cup will be jointly co-hosted by the Netherlands and Spain from July 1 to 17. While Savita will continue to lead the side, Deep Grace Ekka remains her deputy.

The defence will be under watchful vigil of Deep Grace, who will also have support from Gurjit Kaur, Nikki Pradhan and Udita, while Nisha, Sushila Chanu Pukhrambam, Monika, Neha, Jyoti, Navjot Kaur, Sonika and Salima Tete will be in charge of the midfield. TEAM: (Goalkeepers): Savita (C), Bichu Devi Khariabam; (Defenders): Deep Grace Ekka (VC), Gurjit Kaur, Nikki Pradhan, Udita; (Midfielders): Nisha, Sushila Chanu Pukhrambam, Monika, Neha, Jyoti, Navjot Kaur, Sonika, Salima Tete; (Forwards): Vandana Kataria, Lalremsiami, Navneet Kaur, Sharmila Devi; Replacement players: Akshata Abaso Dhekale, Sangita Kumari.

India beat USA 4-2

Rotterdam: The Indian women's hockey team came from a goal down to beat USA 4-2 in its first match of the FIH Pro League double-header. Danielle Grega gave USA the lead in the 28th minute through a field effort before the Indians forced their way back into the match by scoring through Deep Grace Ekka (31st), Navneet Kaur (32nd) and Sonika (40th) to take a 3-1 lead. The Americans reduced the margin in the 45th minute through Natalie Konerth's penalty corner conversion before Vandana Kataria sealed the game in India's favour with a field goal.

After swimming, Rugby League decides to ban transgender players

Rugby Union, cycling, Australian Rules football have already clamped down on participation

IAN RANSOM AND JILL GRALOW
MELBOURNE/SYDNEY, JUNE 21

RUGBY LEAGUE banned transgender players from women's international competition on Tuesday until further notice, following global swimming's decision to restrict trans athletes' participation at the elite level. The International Rugby League (IRL) said it needed to further consult and balance transgender participation against "perceived risk" to other players.

"Until further research is completed to enable the IRL to implement a formal transgender inclusion policy, male-to-female (trans women) players are unable to play in sanctioned women's international rugby league matches," the IRL said in a statement.

The ban, which comes after FINA voted on Sunday to restrict transgender athletes in elite women's swimming, was condemned by transgender advocates and sportspeople. "It's disappointing. We're human beings the same as everyone else," transgender woman Caroline Layt, who played elite women's rugby league in Australia after transitioning, told Reuters. "It just tells trans kids and trans adults that you're not worthy. Don't even bother. Don't even bother showing up. What's the point?"

Other sports have policies restricting transgender athletes in top women's competition, including rugby union, cycling and Australian Rules football. The International Olympic Committee, however, said in November that no athlete should be excluded from competition on the grounds of a perceived unfair advantage, while leaving it up to sports federations to decide. The International Cycling Union said last week it had tightened its eligibility rules.

Other sports are reviewing their policies. World soccer governing body FIFA said it is in a consultation process over transgender participation while World Athletics boss Sebastian Coe praised FINA for its stance.

'Cruel decision'

A top medical official at FINA told Reuters on Monday he hoped other sports would follow the organisation's lead. "To my mind, FINA's approach to this was very enlightened, it was very balanced, it was informed," FINA's

The IRL stated that "perceived risk" to other players was one of the factors.

"Show me the evidence that trans women are taking everyone's scholarships, are dominating in every sport, are winning every title. I'm sorry, it's just not happening. So we need to start from inclusion, period."

MEGAN RAPINOE,
FIFA WOMEN'S WORLD CUP WINNER

"I totally disagree with Megan on this. Fairness must come above inclusion — especially after puberty — around 10-11 years old...before that let kids be kids and just have fun as long as it is safe. After puberty, biology must come first."

MARTINA NAVRATILOVA,
18-TIME (SINGLES) GRAND SLAM WINNER

Sports Medicine Committee vice chairman David Gerrard said.

However, US soccer player Megan Rapinoe, a two-time World Cup winner and an Olympic gold medalist, said the FINA decision was "disgusting" and "cruel".

"We're (framing) everything through 'God forbid a trans person be successful in sports'. Get a grip on reality and take a step back," she told Time magazine.

The IRL said it would work with the eight nations competing at the women's Rugby League World Cup hosted by England in November to obtain data to inform a transgender policy in 2023.

"The IRL will continue to work towards developing a set of criteria, based on best possible evidence, which fairly balance the individual's right to play with the safety of all participants," the organisation added.

Ian Roberts, the first elite rugby league player to come out as gay, said transgender athletes should be welcomed into the sport and likened concerns about their participation to the homophobia he experienced in the 1990s. "This is almost like the modern day equivalent," the 56-year-old told Reuters. "I would have hoped we would have matured as a community and as a society beyond that. Equal is equal."

The ban is unlikely to affect many international players in women's rugby league.

There are no transgender players competing at international level in the sport's heavyweight nations Australia and New Zealand. The governing body of Australia's domestic National Rugby League (NRL) competition declined to comment on the international ban and said it was still formulating its own transgender policy. REUTERS

Omitted from CWG squad, Tejaswin takes AFI to court

ANDREW AMSAN
NEW DELHI, JUNE 21

JUST DAYS after the Athletics Federation (AFI) of India left out Tejaswin Shankar from their 2022 Commonwealth Games squad, despite him being the only high jumper to achieve the qualifying standard of 2.27m, the athlete has knocked on the doors of the Delhi High Court by filing a writ petition.

The writ petition filed on Monday, which has been listed for hearing today, calls Tejaswin's exclusion "arbitrary" and also states that the 23-year-old is a medal contender at the CWG as "only two high jumpers (Hamish Kerr and Django Lovett) who will prospectively be competing at the CWG 2022 have a better jump than him this year."

Tejaswin, representing the Kansas State University, won the high jump NCAA championship last week with a best jump of 2.27m at Eugene, Oregon where the upcoming World Championships will be held.

"A potential medal contender for the CWG Games has been arbitrarily excluded, despite meeting the eligibility mark set by the AFI. The decision is further illegal as Tejaswin ought to have been granted the exemption he sought as an elite athlete — in parity with the 3 others (Seema Punia, Neeraj Chopra, Avinash Sable) athletes who were given exemption from the inter-state competition on similar grounds. The current national record holder is being arbitrarily excluded at the whims of AFI and this action is absolutely against national interest," advocate Malak Bhatt, who will be representing Tejaswin, told this paper.

In its 37-member squad for the Commonwealth Games, announced last week, the AFI had omitted notably Tejaswin Shankar and long jumper Jeswin Aldrin who has achieved the qualifying guidelines (8 metres) and has the second-best jump by an Indian this season.

Post the initial snub Tejaswin wrote to the federation seeking a trial in California where the India team is likely to hold a camp ahead of the World Championships in Oregon. The federation was quick to respond saying that selection "was final" and both Tejaswin and Jeswin would not be provided with a trial.

On the day of the squad announcement, the AFI president said Tejaswin had never sought an exemption for the Inter-State Meet unlike Neeraj Chopra, Avinash Sable and Seema Punia.

"It was clearly mentioned on the website this was the last event where one could try to register the qualification standard for the CWG and Worlds. Tejaswin did not want to be selected. Mr Shankar did not ask to be exempted from the Inter-State Championships.

Tejaswin Shankar is the only Indian to meet the AFI-set qualifying standard of 2.27 metres for the CWG.

He did not take permission from us before he competed in the USA," AFI president Adille Sumariwalla told reporters after announcing the team on Thursday.

But the petition states that Tejaswin approached the chief national coach Radhakrishnan Nair in February seeking exemption from the Interstate meet as it clashed with the NCAA championships in the US. "Mr Radhakrishnan had on 11.06.2022 intimated the Petitioner via WhatsApp that he would be considered by the Selection Committee based on his 2.27m jump at the NCAA Track and Field Outdoor Championship 2022, and repeatedly inquired about the status of the Petitioner's visa for the CWG 2022," the petition, a copy of which is in possession of The Indian Express, stated.

At the inter-state meet, the best jump was 2.24m recorded by Anil Kushare. AFI decided to send no entries for high jump at the Commonwealth Games.

"I am extremely hopeful that the federation gives me one opportunity. I have already achieved the mark but I am ready to jump in front of them. The reason I was able to achieve the qualification mark in the first place was that I took part against a top field here. Even though I was participating here in the US my heart was just thinking about the CWG qualification," Tejaswin had told this paper when the squad was announced.

The petition also mentions how multiple times Commonwealth Games medallist Seema Punia was included in the squad, subject to performance in trials, despite not achieving the qualifying mark yet.

"Punia was included in the squad despite not having met the qualification standard in any competition this season (she has a best this season of 55.97m as against the qualification standard of 58m). Despite this, Ms Punia has been allowed in the team provided she secures the qualification standard at California," the petition reads.

Sri Lanka's Parliament sessions curtailed as fuel shortages pinch

Sessions will be restricted to two days this week instead of four

PRESSTrust OF INDIA
COLOMBO, JUNE 21

SRI LANKA'S Parliament sessions will be restricted to two days this week instead of four days amid the current fuel supply crisis in the country, the leader of the House Dinesh Gunawardena said on Tuesday.

"In view of the current fuel supplies crisis we have decided to limit the parliamentary sessions for today and tomorrow," Gunawardena announced.

When Parliament met this morning, the main Opposition Samagi Jana Balawegaya party and the Marxist National People's Power party said they were boycotting the sessions to protest the government's inaction to tackle the current crisis.

"We see no plan on the part of the government to solve the current economic and fuel shortages issue," Anura Kumara Dissanayake the NPP leader said.

He said the fuel queues have lengthened since the new prime minister Ranil Wickremesinghe was appointed in mid-May.

At the start of today's session

Speaker Mahinda Yapa Abeywardene said the main opposition's proposal on the 21st Amendment to the Constitution has been deemed to require a national referendum for most of its provisions which are inconsistent with the Constitution.

Sri Lankan Cabinet on Monday approved the 21st Amendment to the Constitution aimed at empowering Parliament over the executive president.

US and Australia announce $55mn additional support

PRESSTrust OF INDIA
COLOMBO, JUNE 21

The US and Australia on Tuesday announced additional funding of over $5 million and $50 million, respectively, to cash-starved Sri Lanka to address the immediate needs of people hardest hit by the economic crisis in the island nation.

This new grant funding through the US Agency for International Development builds on last week's announcement of $6 million in grants through US-AID and $120 million in new loans through the Development Finance Corporation to meet the needs of Sri Lankans. This humanitarian assistance, totalling $5.75 million, will provide cash assistance, short-term jobs, and agriculture supplies such as seeds directly to crisis-affected people, the US embassy in Sri Lanka said.

Visiting Australian Minister of Home Affairs Clare O'Neil met President Gotabaya and PM Ranil Wickremesinghe on Monday. "We will contribute 22 million dollars to World Food Programme for emergency food assistance. Australia will also provide 23 million dollars in development assistance to Lanka in 2022-23," a statement said.

Australia's foreign minister Penny Wong in Canberra said, "Australia has a close and long-standing relationship with Sri Lanka. Not only do we want to help the people, there are also deeper consequences for the region if this crisis continues."

Outgoing Israel govt allies vow to block Netanyahu's return

REUTERS
JERUSALEM, JUNE 21

TWO MEMBERS of Israel's outgoing coalition government vowed on Tuesday to prevent a comeback by ex-premier Benjamin Netanyahu, their fellow right winger, as the country braced for a fifth election in three years with polling predicting no clear winner.

Sapped by infighting that ended his razor-thin parliamentary majority, Prime Minister Naftali Bennett on Monday announced he would move to dissolve the Knesset, with Foreign Minister Yair Lapid assuming top office in a caretaker capacity.

A preliminary vote on that motion is set for Wednesday.

The prospect of an election as early as October - delighted Netanyahu, Israel's longest-serving leader who was toppled a year ago after Bennett mustered a rare coalition of hard-right, liberal and Arab politicians.

"Something great happened here," Netanyahu declared on Monday, saying that his conservative Likud party would lead

EXPLAINED What happens next

UPON PASSING preliminary reading, the dissolution bill must still get through a Parliamentary committee and then pass three more votes with an absolute majority of at least 61 of the Knesset's 120 lawmakers. If that happens, the Knesset will have to set an election for no later than five months from the day the bill is written into law.

Surveys have consistently given Likud 30 of parliament's 120 seats - which would make it the biggest party but would require Netanyahu to sign up like-minded allies. Two of those - Finance Minister Avigdor Lieberman and Justice Minister Gideon Saar - ruled out joining forces with Netanyahu, who is on trial on corruption charges he denies.

India, China buy discounted Russian oil, making up for Europe's cutbacks

THE NEW YORK TIMES
JUNE 21

A SURGE in demand from Asia for discounted Russian oil is making up for the sharply lower number of barrels being sold to Europe, dulling the effects of the West's efforts to punish Moscow over its invasion of Ukraine and keeping revenue flowing to the Kremlin.

Most of the additional oil has gone to two countries: China and India. China's imports of Russian oil rose 28 per cent in May from the previous month, hitting a record high and helping Russia overtake Saudi Arabia as China's largest supplier.

And most of the increase went to India, which has gone from taking in almost no Russian oil to bringing in more than 760,000 barrels a day, according to shipping data analyzed by Kpler, a market research firm. Although South Korea and Japan have cut back on Russian oil, those volumes are a fraction of what is being bought by China and India. "Asia has saved Russian crude production," said Viktor Katona, an analyst at Kpler. Although it remains to be seen how much Asia will continue buying the oil as Europe weans itself off Russian energy, the shift has allowed Moscow to maintain its production levels and defy analysts' expectations.

Russia vows to respond to Lithuania ban on goods transit

Moscow: Lithuania's decision to bar Moscow from shipping certain goods by rail to the Russian territory of Kaliningrad will result in a response that will have a "significant negative impact" on the Lithuanian people, a top Russian security official said Tuesday.

The ban on goods subject to European Union sanctions was announced by the Lithuanian authorities earlier this month and prompted a flurry of angry retorts from Moscow, with the Kremlin denouncing the move as unprecedented and unlawful.

Nikolai Patrushev, the powerful secretary of the Kremlin's Security Council, visited the Kaliningrad exclave on Tuesday and vowed during a national security meeting to take action over the ban. "Russia will definitely respond to such hostile actions," Patrushev was quoted by Russian news agencies as saying. AP

SILENCE OVER INDIANS' RETURN

First batch of 90 Pak students lands in China

K J M VARMA
BEIJING, JUNE 21

THE FIRST batch of Pakistani students, stuck back home for about two years due to China's strict visa restrictions aimed at containing the Covid-19 pandemic, has arrived in the Chinese city of Xian, even as Beijing is yet to announce plans to permit the return of Indian students despite repeated assurances.

A plane carrying 90 Pakistani students arrived in Xian on Monday, Pakistan's state-run news agency Associated Press of Pakistan (APP) reported. After undergoing a 14-day quarantine, they will go to their respective universities in different cities.

China, after representations, agreed to allow 250 Pakistani students to return. There are still 6,000 Pakistani students who intend to go back to China to pursue their studies, the report said.

According to estimates, about 28,000 Pakistani students study in China and most of them returned home at the height of the Covid outbreak in 2020.

China, however, is yet to announce its plans to allow Indian students' return. In April, after repeated representations from India, China agreed to permit the return of "some" stranded Indian students and asked the Indian Embassy to collect details of those seeking return. PTI

KARACHI, JUNE 21

IN A case of gross medical negligence, inexperienced staff of a rural health centre in Pakistan's Sindh province decapitated an unborn baby inside the mother's womb during delivery, leaving the 32-year-old Hindu woman in a life-threatening situation.

The tragedy prompted the Sindh government to form a medical inquiry board to probe the incident and trace the culprits.

"The Bheel Hindu woman, who belongs to a far-flung village in Tharparkar district, had first gone to a Rural Health Centre (RHC) in her area but with no female gynaecologist available, the inexperienced staff caused her immense trauma," said Professor Raheel Sikander, who heads the gynaecology unit of the Liaquat University of Medical and Health Sciences (LUMHS) in Jamshoro. He said the RHC staff cut off the newborn baby's head in the mother's womb and left it inside her in a botched-up surgery conducted on Sunday.

COUNTRY FIGHTS THREE CS: CLIMATE CHANGE, COSTS, CONFLICT

A Somali 11-year-old's mission to find food as climate change takes its toll

KATHARINE HOURELD
DOLLOW, JUNE 21

EACH MORNING in this Somali border town, 11-year-old Bashir Nur Salat plots his day's mission behind a crooked wire fence. Armed with only a friend's yellow school shirt, a borrowed book and toothy grin, he eyes his prize through the mesh: lunch.

Bashir lives where three crises converge - global warming, spiralling food prices and war. He, like millions of others in Somalia, are in the crosshairs of what some aid workers are calling the "The Three Cs": climate change, costs and conflict.

The worst drought in four decades in war-torn Somalia forced his family to leave their farm three months ago and to move about 100 kilometers north to the town of Dollow, on the border with Ethiopia.

Now, he leads a pack of younger children who gather when the Kabasa Primary School serves its students food. Through the school's wire fence, the children stare at students inside gulping warm porridge or plates of beans and corn served as part of a U.N.-supported program, one of the few regular sources of food in the town.

Many of the gang were among the latest influx of people into Dollow, too late to register for schooling. One by one, they slink through the broken gate and dart across the dusty schoolyard to grab a meal when the teachers aren't looking.

"When I don't get food, I'm so hungry: I lie down and I can't sleep," Bashir said quietly. He had eaten no dinner the night before nor breakfast that morning. His eight brothers and sisters at home were all hungry, he said.

The drought, which began last year, is predicted to worsen, exacerbated by climate change, many scientists and humanitarian organisations say. A third of livestock is already dead from thirst or hunger. Crops and fruit trees have withered.

At least 448 children have died since January while being treated for acute malnutrition, the United Nations said. The figures are likely a fraction of the true deaths since many will have been unable to reach help.

The United Nations warned this month that more than a third of Somalia's 16 million people need food aid to survive. Some areas could face famine this month. Aid in some places will run out in June.

Bashir's family had never before left their home in south-central Somalia, even when famine in 2011 claimed more than a quarter of a million lives, most of them children. Aid workers say deaths may approach those levels again in this drought.

"I've never seen a drought like this before," said Bashir's 30-year-old mother. She and her nine children now sleep on two mattresses in Dollow.

On a good day, Bashir's father may make $2 selling charcoal in a nearby town, but since May 2 he has managed to send only $10 because of lack of work. The family has not received any food aid, she said. "We've never seen a four-season drought before, and now we're likely to see a fifth" in October, said climatologist Chris Funk from the Climate Hazards Centre at the University of California, Santa Barbara.

At the school where Bashir hunts for food, 10-year-old Suleko Mohammed says she lost three siblings to measles in six weeks - two brothers, aged 2 and 3, and her older sister who used to help her with homework. They now lie under piles of rubble and thorn branches in a graveyard next to the playground. As she spoke between classes, mourners were digging another small grave. Down the road, market stalls displayed watermelons, mangoes, beans, and bags of flour and wheat - too costly for many.

The government has become alarmed by what it says is the slow aid response, with its special drought envoy Abdurahman Abdishakur Warsame saying countries need "to pay attention to this drought before it becomes a famine." REUTERS
