This is a part of the overall data on tree transplantation submitted before the Delhi High Court in an affidavit by the forest department in May this year.

The forest department's estimate of the survival rate did not match the figure submitted by the Central Public Works Department (CPWD) to it. As per the affidavit, the CPWD estimated that 266 transplanted trees have survived.

A CPWD official told The Indian Express, "As per the last report submitted by us in May 2022, a total of 267 trees were surviving out of 402 trees transplanted – 102 out of 130 at the new Parliament building site and 165 out of 272 at NTPC Eco Park, Badarpur." A senior forest department official confirmed the transplantation sites.

Transplanted trees haven't fared

AS PER the Delhi government's Tree Transplantation Policy, notified in 2020, "The benchmark tree survival rate at end of one year of tree transplantation shall be 80% or as notified by the department, from time to time.

too well in the rest of the city either: Of about 16,461 trees transplanted in the past three years, only around 5,487 or 33.33% have survived so far, as per data. Overall, the survival rate that the forest department found was below the rate of about 41.17% estimated by user agencies that carried out transplantation for infrastructure projects in the city. As per data submitted by user agencies, 6,777 trees have survived so far. The department said in the affidavit that "reconciliation of data will take at least two months as there has been a difference in survival rate submitted by user agency and forest department".

On why the data differs, a senior official of the forest department said, "In some cases, transplantation sites may have changed. User agency takes records from the agency that carried out the transplantation, and transplantation agency gives them maintenance records for only one year. After that year, they might not have been maintained and trees may have died. Lack of maintenance after the first year, and possible change of site, are possible reasons for difference in data. Ecologist C R Babu said the survival rate of 33% was very low: "Survival of transplants depends on the type of species. Transplanted trees are also more susceptible to abiotic and biotic stress, they're more susceptible to termite infestation."

Navneet Srivastava, Deputy Conservator of Forests (West), said: "... Monitoring was difficult, but it has now been intensified with this report being the starting point. Transplantation has many phases, and the tree needs care to survive the shock ... "

BJP CHIEF FIRES FRESH SALVO Nadda hits out at CM Kejriwal: 'Do not deviate from excise policy scam'

ABHINAV RAJPUT NEW DELHI, AUGUST 29

BJP NATIONAL president J P Nadda Monday sought answers from Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal on the alleged excise policy 'scam', telling him not to "deviate" from the issue. "Kejriwal ji, corruption of such a massive scale has taken place in your government, Delhi has suffered huge financial loss. Instead of talking about nonsensical things... why don't you place all facts and figures before the media and the people of Delhi," said Nadda while speaking at a press conference during his two-day visit to Tripura. He added, "Kejriwal is yet to answer our questions on the excise policy. If you are honest, say this in court. At times, he savs we want to arrest him, then he says that we are troubling him. There was such a big scam and Delhi suffered a loss. We put out the numbers. Tu idhar udhar ki baat na kar tu ye bata karwan luta kaha (Don't deviate and come to the point)."

On August 19, the CBI conducted raids at various places,

Nadda was speaking in Tripura; BJP MLAs on a dharna at the Delhi Assembly. Abhinav Saha including Deputy Chief Minister Manish Sisodia's residence, in connection with the alleged excise scam. The AAP has denied the allegations.

"Every culprit cries foul when he is caught and says he is being framed. calls himself clean, innocent and honest. If you are so honest and if you have not committed any crime, why don't you go to the court and give your statement? Why is your minister in jail," Nadda said.

Kejriwal has not spoken a word on the excise policy scam, he said. "Sometimes, he (Kejriwal) says the Union government wants to put his leaders in jail, sometimes he says he and his government are being harassed, but he never talks about the massive corruption in the excise (policy)," he said.

"Why doesn't Kejriwal function as per Constitution? It is absolutely absurd to say everything works as per wishes of the BJP, this is highly irresponsible be-haviour by Kejriwal."

BJP alleges 'classroom scam'

Soon after Kejriwal placed the 'confidence motion' in the assembly to prove that all AAP MLAs are with him and BJP's 'operation lotus' had failed, BJP leaders called it a ploy to distract people's attention from "excise and education scams".

BJP spokesperson Gaurav Bhatia alleged that the city government had increased the budget for construction of classrooms in its existing schools, ignoring guidelines of Central Public Works Department. He cited a Central Vigilance Commission (CVC) report sent to the Delhi government's vigilance department in 2020 to allege that construction cost was increased by Rs 326 crore. "The AAP government promised to construct 500 new schools in Delhi. That never happened. They then said they'll build more classrooms in existing schools. The number of rooms was increased from 2,400 to 7,180. The construction cost was increased by up to 90 per cent," Bhatia alleged at a press conference.

BJP MLAs also started an overnight dharna at the Assembly premises demanding sacking of Sisodia and Satyendar Jain over alleged corruption.

The AAP hit back, with Kejriwal saying in the assembly: "When they couldn't find anything in the liquor policy, they are going after schools... They are saying the AAP government has constructed more classrooms and toilets... They are saying why did you construct a large number of toilets. Why shouldn't we; we want to provide better infrastructure and education facilities to our children, safe hygienic facilities to our girl children... FOLLOWING ALLEGATIONS of 'corruption' in construction of classrooms levelled by the BJP and L-G VK Saxena against the AAP-led Delhi government, Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal Monday said they are going after schools as they couldn't find anything against the liquor policy.

Tabling a confidence motion in the Delhi Assembly, he said: "For the last 10-15 days, we have been seeing nautankibaazi (drama)... AAP has eaten money in liquor policy... but they found nothing ... Now, they have received an order from above to not speak about the liquor policy anymore... They are now after our schools... asking why did you construct more classrooms and increase the number of toilets " The session saw BJP MLAs being marshalled out after they demanded a short discussion on the excise policy and school classrooms allegations. Kejriwal said: "This is an important day and we are going to table the confidence motion. But on such a day, the opposition did not want to be involved in a good discussion. They only want to do cheap politics and nautanki (drama)...' On the need for this motion.

Kejriwal said: "Through this, we want to show that every single AAP MLA and leader is kattar imandar (honest) and to show that their (BJP's) 'Operation Lotus' may have succeeded in other states but (not) in Delhi." Leader of opposition Ramvir

Singh Bidhuri said, "You have 62 MLAs out of 70 and what is the need for this motion... It is a publicity stunt to hide the truth." 'We wanted to discuss the excise policy and CVC's report on classrooms, but they don't want to discuss it ... Every time, we raise a matter, they marshal us all out...'

L-G flags dip in enrolment, attendance in govt schools

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, AUGUST 29

L-G VINAI Kumar Saxena has written to Chief Secretary Naresh Kumar asking him to examine why enrolment and attendance in Delhi government schools have been dipping over the past few years despite an increase in per student expenditure. "Despite substantial increase in investment in the Education Sector by the State government both in absolute terms and as part of the total budget, it is seen that during the same period, the enrolment in Delhi government schools declined from 15.42 lakh in 2014-15 to 15.19 lakh 2019-20," the letter, written on August 26, states. "The percentage of students attending classes in Delhi government schools has been declining and... was in the range of 55% and 61% between 2016-17 to 2019-20... Hon'ble Lt Governor has accordingly desired that the reasons for the above anomaly may be examined in larger pubinterest...," it added.

The Delhi government has set aside a fourth of its budget for education each year since coming to power and improving infrastructure and learning levels has been its flagship project for the past seven years.

A Delhi Police spokesperson said, "This is because of higher registration and sensitivity of police personnel in Delhi. We also make arrests in 80-90% of cases within the first week. The chargesheeting can sometimes be low because of pending court cases. Arrests are always made

Violent crimes – Murder, kidnapping

In 2021, Delhi recorded 11,793 cases of violent crimes and only half of the cases have been chargesheeted, data shows. Most cases are of kidnapping, rape, robbery, attempted murder, causing grievous hurt, etc.

Delhi has the highest number of murder cases (454) among the 19 metropolitan cities in the country. Most of the victims in such cases are aged 18-35. Police said many cases are of personal enmity and money disputes, which can't be averted. However, they said they have been able to chargesheet 95% of murder cases registered and arrest the accused in less than 48 hours.

Last year, over 5,888 persons

Yogi govt on party agenda, says BJP's new UP unit chief

LALMANI VERMA LUCKNOW, AUGUST 29

PLEDGING TO win all the 80 seats of UP in the 2024 Lok Sabha elections, the newly appointed state BJP chief Bhupendra Singh Chaudhary on Monday asserted that the Yogi Adityanath government was working on the agenda of the BJP and there was no "dispute over the coordination" between the government and the party.

Addressing party workers at the state BJP headquarters before taking charge, Chaudhary said that mediapersons ask him how he would maintain coordination between the government and organisation. "The government s working on our agenda. We have formed the government... Ending anarchy, hooliganism, and corruption are on our agenda, and the government is working on that only. Where is the dispute?" he said.

Stating that the party and the government would continue to work in tandem, Chaudhary, who is also a Cabinet minister in the state government, said: "Lassure you that I will work collectively with all. WHILE THE Congress has not seen a contest for the post of party president in the last two decades, all indications are that there could be one this time. Sources said Lok Sabha MP Shashi Tharoor is considering throwing his hat in the ring as he believes that it is time to put forward a fresh set of ideas and an alternate vision for the party, which is facing its worst electoral and organisational crisis ever.

Sources said Tharoor - a signatory to the letter that 23 senior leaders had written to Congress president Sonia Gandhi in August 2020 seeking changes in the party's functioning - has discussed the idea with some of his colleagues and well-wishers, but is yet to take a final call.

While Tharoor declined to comment, he signalled that he was testing the waters in an article he wrote for a Kerala daily after the Congress Working Committee (CWC) approved and announced the schedule for the election of party president on Sunday.

"Ideally it should have announced elections also for the dozen seats on the CWC itself which are supposed to be elected. A DAY after a purported video clip of former Supreme Court judge, Justice Indu Malhotra, emerged in which she is heard saying that Communist governments "have taken over" Hindu temples "because of the revenue", the CPM-led LDF government in Kerala said in the Assembly that it had released a total of Rs 229 crore in aid to the state's devaswom (temple) boards to tide over the Covid period.

Responding to a written question from four CPM legislators, Temple Affairs Minister K

Radhakrishnan said the state government had given Rs 165 crore to just the four major devaswom boards -- Travancore. Cochin. Malabar and Koodalmanikyam -- to tide over the crisis caused by the pandemic and floods of 2018.

Of this, the Minister said, the Travancore Devaswom Board. which runs the Sabarimala shrine among other temples, alone got aid of Rs 120 crore.

The purported clip shows Justice (retired) Malhotra speaking to people in front of the Sree Padmanabhaswamy temple in Thiruvananthapuram Sunday. She was in the city for a Government Medical College event.

"That is what happens with these Communist governments. They want to just take over because of the revenue. Their problem is the revenue. All over they have taken over, all over, only Hindu temples. So Justice Lalit and I said, no, we will not allow it," Justice (retired) Malhotra is heard

ESHAROY NEW DELHI, AUGUST 29

CRIME AGAINST women rose by 15.3 per cent in 2021 from the previous year, according to latest data released by the National Crime Records Bureau (NCRB), with 4,28,278 cases registered last year following 3,71,503 cases in 2020. The NCRB report also shows that the rate of total crime against women(number of incidents per 1 lakh population) increased from 56.5 in 2020 to 64.5 in 2021. A majority of these cases (31.8

per cent) fall in the category of Cruelty by husband or his relatives", followed by "Assault on women with intent to outrage her modesty" (20.8 per cent), kidnapping and abduction (17.6 per cent), and rape (7.4 per cent).

According to the report, the highest rate of crime against women in 2021 was registered in Assam (168.3), despite a marginal dip over the last three years. The state recorded over 29,000 such cases last year.

The other top states in this category include Odisha, Haryana, Telangana and Rajasthan. Rajasthan, like Assam, showed a marginal decrease in the actual number of cases while the three other states (Odisha, Haryana and Telangana) marked an increase. The report places UP on top

(56,083) in terms of actual number of cases registered in 2021, although the rate of total crime against women is lesser at 50.5. The other states that recorded the highest number of crimes against women include Rajasthan, Maharashtra, West Bengal and Odisha. Nagaland stood out with the lowest number of crimes against women registered in the past three years -43 in 2019, 39 in 2020 and 54 in 2021. EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHLAUGUST 29

THE SUPREME Court on Monday issued notice to the Uttar Pradesh government on a plea filed by journalist Siddigue Kappan seeking bail in a case in which he was arrested by the state police and charged under the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act, 1967.

A bench of Chief Justice of India U U Lalit and Justice S Ravindra Bhat said it was fixing the matter for final disposal on September 9 and asked the state to file its reply by September 5.

Kappan and three others, including the driver of the vehicle in which they were travelling, were arrested in Mathura on October 5, 2020, while they were on their way to Hathras, where a Dalit woman had died after she was allegedly gangraped. They were booked under UAPA and on charges of sedition.

While Kappan said he was going to Hathras to report on the incident the LIP Police had alleged links with the Popular Front of India (PFI) and claimed the group wanted to create unrest in the area.

Appearing for Kappan, Senior Advocate Kapil Sibal said he has been in jail since October 6, 2000. "The allegation is that the PFI put Rs 45,000 in my (Kappan's) account for terrorist activities. That's the heart of the allegation. There is no evidence, but only allegation," he said.

The senior counsel said Kappan had nothing to do with the outfit and that he had gone to Hathras to report on the incident. Sibal said that Kappan "was at one time working with a paper, Thejas Daily - which had association with PFI" but was not with it anymore. "And PFI is not a terrorist organisation. It is not even a

Ganesh Chaturthi celebrations at Idgah: Karnataka Waqf moves SC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, AUGUST 29

THE SUPREME Court will hear on Tuesday a plea by the Karnataka Waqf Board challenging a High Court order allowing Ganesh Chaturthi celebrations at the Idgah maidan in Bengaluru.

Waqf counsel and senior advocate Kapil Sibal sought an urgent hearing into the matter, informing a bench headed by Chief Justice of India U U Lalit that "unnecessary tensions will be created" if the matter is not taken up immediately. The land, Sibal said, has been in use by Muslims for decades.

The Waqf plea came days after a division bench of the Karnataka HC allowed the state government to approve applications seeking use of the Idgah maidan in Chamarajpet locality to hold cultural and religious celebrations, including Ganesh Chaturthi, for a limited period from August 31.

The HC division bench order, issued last Friday, came just a day after a single-judge bench had said the land could be used only as a playground, for celebrating Independence and Republic Day, and as a prayer ground by Muslism twice a year on Eid.

THE MADRAS High Court on Monday granted bail to five officials of a residential school in Tamil Nadu's Kallakurichi who were arrested in connection with the death of a Class 12 girl student, three days after it observed that "it was a clear case of suicide and not rape-murder". The news of the death of the 17-year-old student on July 13 had triggered violence, including stone-pelting at the school

NSE money laundering case: Ramkrishna's bail plea rejected

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, AUGUST 29

A DELHI court on Monday dismissed the bail plea of Chitra Ramkrishna, former CEO and MD of the National Stock Exchange (NSE), who was arrested in a money laundering case in connection with the co-location scam that also involved tapping the phones of NSE employees Special Judge Sunena Sharma denied bail to Ramkrishna, noting that she was the major role player in the entire conspiracy. ...material on record is sufficient to prima-facie show that the applicant was the major role player in the entire conspiracy as well as in projection of proceeds of crime as untainted money," the bail order read.

Referring to the report of a three-member team of doctors from JIPMER in Puducherry that went through the post-mortem reports, Justice G K Ilanthiraiyan said, "According to the postmortem reports, there is not a shred of evidence that the deceased was raped or murdered."

The court said it had ordered experts to study both the postmortem reports as parents of the victim were not satisfied with the two postmortems, and that the conclusions of both autopsies were found to be true by the experts' team. "... it is confirmed that there is no evidence to attract the offence under rape and murder," the court said, while granting bail to five school officials, including teachers and administrators.

The court stated that it is an unfortunate and sorry state of affairs that teachers face threats from students and their parents. "It is very unfortunate that the petitioners were arrested and are under imprisonment for advising the students to study well. Even as per the suicide note, there is no evidence to show that the petitioners instigated the deceased...asking students to solve derivations or equations is part and parcel of the teaching and it would not amount to abetting suicide." the court said.

"It is very clear that the deceased felt difficulties in solving equations of the chemistry subject," the court said.

To add more seats, NEET-PG counselling delayed further

ANONNA DUTT NEW DELHI, AUGUST 29

THE COUNSELLING for NEET-PG 2022, which was scheduled to begin September 1 onwards, has been further delayed in order to add more seats. The examination for the current session of postgraduation medical courses was held on May 21, with the results being announced within 10 days.

"National Medical Commission (NMC) is in the process of issuing new LoPs for the current academic year and the same will be concluded till September 15. Hence, in order to include more seats in the counselling for the benefit of the candidates, it has been decided by the Competent Authority to re-schedule the NEET-PG Counselling, 2022," said a notice from the Medical Counselling Committee, which conducts the counselling.

LoPs are letters of permission issued by the apex medical education regulator NMC to colleges for adding new PG seats. The notice added: "The tentative schedule of NEET-PG Counselling, 2022, is being rescheduled."

The PG students have been waiting since June 1, with them not being able to take up jobs because of the uncertainty of coun-

Ironically, the delay comes even as demands by a section of the students to delay the examination were not accepted, with health ministry officials stating that this was an attempt to ensure that the schedule for the tests and counselling that was disturbed due to the pandemic may be normalised.

The NEET-PG examinations usually take place in January, with results coming in, counselling process completed, and students joining centres by May. The examination for 2021 was postponed several times due to the pandemic and finally took place in September. The counselling process was further delayed because a series of litigations related to the newly announced quota for the economically weaker sections (EWS). This was the reason MBBS students were seeking a delay in the next round of tests as many appear for it multiple times. Meanwhile, resident doctors from medical college hospitals had taken to streets in December protesting the repeated delays in counselling leading to these hospitals running with only two-

THE RAILWAYS Ministry has topped the list of government departments that did not adhere to Central Vigilance Commission's (CVC) advice against corrupt officials and concluded cases as per its own disciplinary procedures, according to the CVC's latest annual report.

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

NEW DELHI, AUGUST 29

The annual report for 2021, released on Monday, found 55 such instances across government departments, 11 of them in Railways. Besides Railways, Small case of her daughter.

Industries Development Bank of India (SIDBI), Bank of India and Delhi Jal Board have four cases each, and Mahanadi Coalfields Limited shielded its employees in three such cases, CVC reported.

Two such cases were from Indian Overseas Bank, Bank of Maharashtra, Madras Fertilizers Limited, Indira Gandhi National Open University, and North Delhi Municipal Corporation (which is now part of the unified Municipal Corporation of Delhi), the report stated.

Sub-Inspector Anoop Kumar is the investigating officer (IO) of the rape case filed by the woman's 18-year-old daughter. Police said the woman alleged that Kumar called her to his residence to discuss the rape

"After a preliminary inquiry, we registered a case against S-I Anoop Kumar on charges of rape and arrested him," said Superintendent of Police (Kannauj) Kunwar Anupam Singh, adding that as IO, Kumar had recently filed a closure report in the rape case filed by the woman's daughter.

According to police, around five months ago, the woman's daughter had got a rape case registered against her neighbour. The FIR was lodged on the court's directive.

BASTI DALIT BOY MURDER CASE Three family members of girl arrested in UP

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE LUCKNOW, AUGUST

BASTI POLICE on Monday arrested two brothers and a cousin of an 18year-old Muslim girl for the murder of a Dalit youth who was allegedly in a relationship with her.

The girl had died on Friday night. Police exhumed her body on Sunday after they recovered the body of the 19-year-old Dalit youth, who used to live in the same village and had gone missing Friday night. Police suspected that the two deaths were the fallout of "honour" killing.

The arrests were made after police got the Dalit youth's autopsy report, which confirmed that he died of strangulation.

"The postmortem report of the 19-year-old Dalit youth stated that he died of throttling... No other injury mark except the strangulation mark was found on the youth's body," Inspector General (Basti Range) Ram Krishna Bhardwaj said.

"The cause of the girl's death could not be ascertained. There was no injury mark on her body. Her viscera has been preserved and will be sent to a laboratory," Bhardwaj added.

Police suspect that the girl died from consuming a poisonous substance. "This will be corroborated after receiving the viscera report," said a police officer. Police had booked the accused on charges of murder and destruction of evidence.

Jio's 'standalone' 5G architecture, and how it will work

SOUMYARENDRA BARIK & PRANAV MUKUL NEW DELHI, AUGUST 29

INDIA'S LARGEST telecom company Reliance Jio on Monday announced the launch of its 5G services in Delhi, Mumbai, Kolkata, and Chennai by Diwali, with an aim to expand and cover the entire country by December 2023.

The company said it would use a "standalone" 5G architecture against the "non-standalone" approach that other operators are betting on. The disagreement between service providers on the network modes they are taking to roll out the next generation of mobile telephony also spotlights questions over the readiness of Indian consumers to move to 5G

What are these two different modes of 5G networks?

5G networks are deployed mainly on two modes: standalone and non-standalone. Each architecture has its advantages and disadvantages, and the path chosen by operators reflects their view of the market for the new technology and, consequently, their rollout strategy.

In the standalone mode, which Jio has chosen, the 5G network operates with dedicated equipment and runs parallel to the existing 4G network. In the non-standalone mode, the 5G network is supported by the 4G core infrastructure.

Given that non-standalone networks are built on existing infrastructure, the initial cost and time taken to roll out services is significantly less than standalone networks. Jio has committed an investment of Rs 2 lakh crore for its standalone 5G network.

What are the key differences between the two kinds of 5G networks?

The standalone mode provides access to full 5G capabilities and new network functionalities such as slicing, which allows greater flexibility to operators to efficiently use their spectrum holdings.

Non-standalone networks are generally considered to be a stepping stone - and the global experience suggests operators that have launched non-standalone 5G networks eventually transition to standalone networks. The non-standalone mode, however, lets operators maximise the utilisation of their existing network infrastructure with relatively lower investment.

The biggest difference between the two architectures is in the aspect of their compatibility with existing device ecosystems. Most smartphones today have the capability to connect to non-standalone 5G networks - which are essentially 5G airwaves transmitted through 4G networks – and will require software updates by their original equipment manufacturers (OEMs) to be able to connect to standalone networks.

How is the 5G smartphone ecosystem in India shaped?

The share of 5G smartphones in India has been rising steadily over the last two years. According to data sourced from analytics firm Counterpoint Research, 5G-enabled smartphones are expected to go from 3 per cent of overall smartphone shipments in India currently to 35 per cent by the end of this year. As of now, smartphones in the mid-tier segment – costing between Rs 20,000 and Rs 30,000 – have the highest share of 5G smartphones at 39 per cent, followed by the budget segment where 34 per cent of all smartphones are 5G-enabled.

Until June 2022, Samsung had the biggest share of 5G smartphones sold in the country with a market share of 24 per cent, followed by Vivo (13 per cent) and OnePlus (13 per cent). Reliance Jio also said on Monday that it was working with Google, which makes the Android operating system, to launch a budget 5G phone. "We are working with Google to develop ultra-affordable 5G smartphones for India," Reliance Industries Chairman Mukesh Ambani said.

Broadly, how will 5G benefit consumers?

5G could have benefits for consumers owing to the superior Internet speed and low latency it promises over 4G. Peak Internet speeds on 5G could touch 10 Gbps, compared to the 100 Mbps peak of 4G. Latency in 4G is between 10-100 millisecond (ms); on 5G it is expected to be under 1 ms. Latency is the time it takes for a device to send packets of data and to get a response. The shorter the latency, the quicker the response.

A May 2019 report by Ericsson, a key player in the 5G equipment market, said that contrary to the common belief that 5G may not deliver any near-term benefits to consumers, they expected 5G to offer a step change in network performance, relief from urban network congestion, and more home broadband choices as near-term benefits.

The report pointed out that there was some scepticism about the actual benefits for consumers when 4G came in 2010. But today, a number of online activities that are possible on 4G would have been near impossible on 3G speeds — from streaming ultra high definition content to making video calls, which became especially popular during the Covid-19 pandemic.

"Consumers expect to be able to stream videos seamlessly wherever they are, regardless of how many others are trying to do the same. Upgrading to 5G could bring rapid relief to consumers suffering from capacity constraints in their networks," Ericsson's report said.

Does the nature of the 5G network determine use cases?

For most industrial use cases such as manufacturing, Internet of Things, and artificial intelligence, the speeds and latency levels offered by 5G telephony are the key selling propositions. These low latencies and high Internet speeds can only be made available through the standalone architecture.

Also, given the high investments that would have typically gone into standalone modes, operators would look at designing high-margin offerings for business customers on these networks. Comparatively, the early rollout timelines and low infrastructure costs would make non-standalone networks more attractive for smartphone users.

"It (non-standalone) is the most widely available ecosystem in the world, and as you know telecom is a game of ecosystems. In the US and South Korea, where both SA and NSA have been launched, the traffic on SA is less than 10 per cent of the total 5G traffic," Gopal Vittal, Managing Director & Chief Executive Officer, Bharti Airtel, said earlier this month at the company's quarterly earnings call.

UNITED NATIONS HIGH SEAS TREATY

Stalled ocean treaty aims to protect and manage the high seas – parts of the ocean beyond national jurisdictions

Unrestricted fishing and trawling oceans Getty Images

RISHIKA SINGH NEW DELHI, AUGUST 29

NEGOTIATIONS INVOLVING 168 countries, including the European Union, to agree on a UN treaty for protecting oceans failed on Saturday. When the latest round of talks began two weeks ago in New York, it was hoped that an agreement would be reached for conserving marine life on the "high seas", which lie outside the exclusive jurisdiction of individual countries.

The proposed treaty

Also referred to sometimes as the "Paris Agreement for the Ocean", the treaty to deal with Biodiversity Beyond National Jurisdiction has been under discussion for several years.

The proposed treaty concerns the ocean existing beyond the Exclusive Economic Zones which extend from the coastlines of nations up to around 200 nautical miles or 370 km into the sea. Waters beyond that establishing marine protected areas to put limits on certain activities, environmental impact assessments or clearances for sustainability of works, financial support to countries, and sharing of scientific knowledge. The International Union for Conservation of Nature(IUCN) has said binding agreements are needed for this treaty to be effective.

Rules for the oceans now

Some treaties, along with the UNCLOS, regulate the conduct of actors on the high seas. The UNCLOS led to the establishment of territorial sea boundaries 22 km offshore, deciding the region up to which countries could claim full sovereign territorial rights, as well as the 200 nautical miles EEZ limit. It also created the International Seabed Authority and other conflict-resolution mechanisms.

But a treaty dedicated to protecting ocean health does not exist as of now. Every country has the right to access the open seas, resulting in large-scale drilling and trawling operations.

Destination Moon, and beyond

NASA aborted the first flight of its giant Moon rocket on Monday, postponing the launch of an exciting new age of space exploration that aims to return humans to the lunar surface

AMITABH SINHA NEW DELHI, AUGUST 29

THE LAUNCH of a keenly awaited space mission that is being seen as the start of a new age in space exploration had to be put off on Monday evening after engineers were unable to resolve a problem involving inadequate flow of liquid hydrogen to one of the rocket's four engines. NASA's Artemis 1 mission is aimed at exploring the Moon with the specific objective of getting human beings back on the lunar surface and possibly beyond - to Mars and elsewhere.

NASA did not say when it would attempt to launch the mission again. There are at least two windows of opportunity in the next one week, and more after a few weeks. But it will all depend on how soon the problem is fixed.

Back to the Moon

It has been 50 years since the six Apollo human moon landings between 1969 and 1972. There has been huge progress in space exploration since then. Spacecraft have now gone beyond the solar system, exploratory missions have probed Mars, Jupiter and Saturn, more than 500 astronauts have travelled to space and back, and permanent space laboratories like the International Space Station (ISS) have been set up. However, the promise of transporting human beings to new worlds, the possibility of landing, and living, on other planets, or travelling deep into space, probably even encountering aliens, has remained stagnant since the last of the 12 astronauts to set foot on the Moon returned in 1972. This is why Artemis 1 is being seen as ushering in a new space age. It is the first in a series of ambitious missions that are planned to take human beings back to the Moon, explore possibilities of extended stay there, and investigate the potential to use it as a launch pad for deep space explorations. On the face of it, Artemis 1 has extremely humble mission objectives. It is technically only a lunar Orbiter mission. It is not carrying any astronauts. It does not even have a lander or rover component. The mission's spacecraft called Orion, will get into a lunar orbit that would be about 97 km from the Moon's surface at its closest. But unlike most other Orbiter missions, Orion has a return-to-Earth target after it has orbited the Moon for about a month.

Perils of not finalising a deal

Ocean warming remains a major threat. "The effects of ocean warming include sea level rise due to thermal expansion, coral bleaching, accelerated melting of Earth's major ice sheets, intensified hurricanes, and changes in ocean health and biochemistry," NASA says on its website. Excessive fishing has increased manifold over the years, and a third of species such as sharks and rays are at the risk of extinction, according to the World Wildlife Fund. Despite acknowledging these threats,

The aborted launch

The excitement around the mission will, however, have to be held back for the time being. There was a two-hour window on Monday to launch the mission, between 8.33 am and 10:33 am Eastern Daylight Time (about 6 pm to 8 pm in India). The launch was called off shortly after 8.33 am (6 pm India time) since the engineers who had been working on the problem for over two hours had been unable to resolve the issue.

The problem had been detected a few hours ahead of the launch. The flow of liquid hydrogen to one of the four engines of the rocket was not found to be optimal, which could have resulted in over-heating.

"We don't launch until it's right," NASA Administrator Bill Nelson said on NASA TV after the launch was aborted.

"It's just illustrative that this is a very complicated machine... They're going to work it. They're going to get to the bottom of it... We'll get it fixed and then we'll fly," he said.

Why California's decision to phase out petroleum-powered vehicles matters

ANIL SASI NEW DELHI, AUGUST 29

CALIFORNIA HAS approved a ban on the sale of new petroleum-powered vehicles by 2035, a landmark policy intervention that could have an impact across several American states, as well as in countries outside of the United States.

The California Air Resources Board on August 25 issued the new rules that were first announced by California Governor Gavin Newsom in 2020. Moving ahead in a phased manner, the new rules require 100% of all new cars sold in the state to be free of carbon emissions by 2035.

"This is a historic moment for California, for our partner states, and for the world as we set forth this path toward a zero-emission future," said Liane Randolph, chair of the California Air Resources Board that voted on the plan on Thursday.

The new rules

The rules will kick in with a 35% limit on new passenger vehicle sales to be "zero emission" (or Battery Electric Vehicles) by 2026, which then goes up to 68% by 2030, and 100% by 2035. The 35% target set for 2026 is up from over 16% of new car sales being "zero-emission" in 2022, and earlier ones of 12.5% in 2021 and 7.8% in 2020.

Why this matters

California, besides being the biggest US state, is one of the largest markets for car sales in the world. So. California's position on new car sales is extremely important given the state's status as a torch bearer for clean air regulations. So far, 14 other US states have adopted California's zero-emission vehicle programme for passenger vehicles, which was launched in the early 1990s.

The state is prepared to make the necessary investments to spur the shift to EVs, including $10 billion in vehicle incentives. charging infrastructure, and public outreach over the next six years. Also, it is paying lowincome residents up to $9,500 to trade an internal combustion engine-powered car for an EV, as well as $7,000 for any resident who wants to buy or lease an electric car.

Challenges ahead

One potential obstacle has been the rising cost of most EVs in the market. Experts, however, predict that prices will come down as more models are available to customers.

There are also concerns about whether the state can scale up the charging infrastructure to power the EV transition.

California's rules are seen as taking off from the Joe Biden administration's Inflation Reduction Act climate provisions. especially new tax credits that are aimed at incentivising EV sales and the domestic supply chain.

The EV roadmap in India

India has a target of making at least 65% of all new vehicle sales to be electric by 2030. Progress has been patchy though, with 6.38 lakh EVs registered in India since 2012 – less than 1% of the total vehicle count. What is encouraging though, is that over 15 states have issued or adopted EV policies so far.

A CEO-led panel of more than 25 companies, including automakers Mahindra & Mahindra and Volvo, oil major Shell, and clean mobility startups, however, maintain that India should set firm targets and frame policies to support the transition to EVs, according to the World Business Council for Sustainable Development. California's move could catalyse this push.

US Fed signals more rate hikes ahead. As global macroeconomic environment becomes more uncertain, RBI must tread carefully

VER THE PAST few weeks, considering the trends in inflation, the view that the US Federal Reserve would ease the pace of policy tightening had begun to gain traction. Some market participants and analysts had begun to expect rate hikes of a smaller magnitude going forward. But on Friday, seeking to put an end to the uncertainty surrounding the trajectory of monetary policy, Federal Reserve chairman Jerome Powell sent an unambiguous message. Speaking at the Jackson Hole economic conference, he said that this was "not a place to stop or pause" even after hiking the rates by 2.25 percentage points, and that the Fed would "use our tools forcefully" to tackle inflation. The implications of this policy stance were clearly laid out - policy tightening will "bring some pain to households and businesses". These, Powell said, are the "unfortunate costs of reducing inflation". The communication from the Fed chair was clear.

Following Powell's hawkish comments, US stock markets tumbled as investors adjusted to the new reality. Asian markets mirrored the fall on Monday - from Nikkei to Hang Seng and Kospi, all ended the day in red. The BSE Sensex also exhibited weakness, ending the day down 1.5 per cent. But alongside, the dollar index, which tracks the strength of the currency against a basket of six currencies, rose above 109 - its highest level in around 20 years - putting pressure on other currencies. On Monday, the Indian rupee fell to an all-time low during early trading. But the US Fed isn't alone in its approach. With inflation surging, central banks across much of the developed world are expected to follow suit. The European Central Bank is widely expected to raise rates by 50 basis points in its next meeting, while the Bank of England is also expected to tighten further as inflation is likely to remain well above its comfort zone.

The tightening of financial conditions across the world will affect capital flows to emerging economies. Coupled with slowing global demand, which will impact exports, this will only deepen India's external and internal challenges. A weaker currency will also increase risks from higher imported inflation. For an inflation targeting central bank, this will further narrow the room for manoeuvre - retail inflation, while edging lower, falling to 6.71 per cent in July, down from 7.01 per cent the month before, continues to remain above the upper limit of RBI's inflation targeting framework. While in its most recent update the RBI had projected inflation to dip sharply in the second half of this year, trending to 5 per cent in the first quarter of the next financial year, considering the considerable economic uncertainty, the central bank must tread cautiously as it navigates this uncertain period.

Challenge for new CPM secretary in Kerala: To hone and amplify party's voice in its last citadel in the country

HE APPOINTMENT OF M V Govindan as secretary of the Kerala unit of the CPM comes at a crucial time for the party. Govindan, currently state local self-government and excise minister, replaces Kodiyeri Balakrishnan, a seasoned and controversial politician, who has been ailing for some time. The change of guard is significant - Kerala is the last citadel of the CPM, the only state in India where left ideology continues to have political salience and where it recently won an unprecedented second term in office and is transitioning from a cadre-based outfit to a mass party. This transition is taking place when the party leadership is seen to have become subervient to the office of the chief minister, which controls both the party apparatus and

Speaking truth to party

NEERIA CHOWDHURY

CONGRESS HAS SEEN the exit of many heavyweights over the decades - and survived. It lost the Socialists in 1948, with Acharya Narendra Deva, Jayaprakash Narayan, and Ram Manohar Lohia walking out to form the Socialist Party. It saw vertical splits in 1969 when Indira Gandhi got the better of the "Syndicate" and in 1978 when she worsted the old guard - but it remained the real Congress However, more recently, when Mamata Banerjee broke away to form the Trinamool Congress in 1998, Sharad Pawar his Nationalist Congress Party (NCP) in 1999, and Jaganmohan Reddy his YSR Congress in 2010 – replacing Congress in West Bengal, Maharashtra or Andhra Pradesh, respectively - the party was hugely weakened. In the last months, many more have left Congress for greener pastures to join the BJP - Himanta Biswa Sarma, Jyotiraditya Scindia, RPN Singh and Jitin Prasada, among others.

Since the resignation of leaders is not new to Congress, some hope the party will also weather Ghulam Nabi Azad's resignation. Though Azad may have had a 50-year innings, under the Indira Gandhi, Sanjay Gandhi, Rajiv Gandhi, PV Narasimha Rao and Manmohan Singh-Sonia Gandhi regimes, he was, after all, not a mass leader. And the party leadership may feel that his exit - and earlier, of those like Kapil Sibal - may ease the situation by weakening the dissidents in the party (G-23) who have been particularly critical of Rahul Gandhi's leadership.

But Azad's exit is different. For he has shown the mirror to the party, choosing his timing carefully to inflict the maximum possible damage to the Congress – before Rahul Gandhi's Bharat Jodo Yatra. His exit has pushed the party to, finally, announce the dates for the election of the new congress president.

It is also possible that Azad may not have quit the Congress if he had been brought into the Rajya Sabha again; surely there is nothing wrong with a politician aspiring to retain a seat in the Upper House. It's not as if he is going to get a Rajya Sabha berth on the other side. He is set to launch a new party and if it takes off though it is early days - he could come to be supported by Farooq Abdullah and the BJP, to The question that can no longer be wished away is this: Is Congress at the cusp of disintegrating as an entity? Today an Azad is set to form his regional party. Will Bhupinder Singh Hooda, who still has a mass following in Haryana, do likewise, nearer election time if he gets a sense that he is not going to get his way in the ticket distribution? What about Siddaramaiah in Karnataka, where elections are due in 2023? And what will Sachin Pilot do? If given the reins of power, he might have put up a fight to retrieve some of the lost ground.

lead a government. The journey is littered with imponderables, but he has chosen to walk that path.

A senior leader puts it out in the open: Under Rahul,

Congress is unable to win

Azad's exit is not just about a Rajya Sabha seat; it is also about the "izzat" that was not shown to him, when he, a member of the national political affairs committee was made a mere member of the state committee.

More than power and izzat, people are leaving the party because the Gandhis are no longer able to win elections, and as Azad has pointed out, the party has lost 39 out of 49 assembly elections in the last eight years. Though Rahul Gandhi has spoken forthrightly on issues - Rafale, demonetisation, inflation, joblessness, lockdown – the party has not been able to slow down the Modi juggernaut, though undoubtedly that is a Herculean task, given the control the BJP exercises on institutions. But the Congress attitude now seems to be, "Jisko jana hai jaye, rehna hai rahe" (Those who want to leave may leave, those who wish to remain may do so).

That Congress is dying is widely acknowl-edged. But this is the first time that a senior leader has spoken so openly – and brutally – about what partymen and women discuss privately – that Rahul is childish and immature but he is the one who wields real power. And the party is losing under his leadership. And Sonia is only a "nominal figurehead".

The question that can no longer be wished away is this: Is Congress at the cusp of disintegrating as an entity? Today an Azad is set to form his regional party. Will Bhupinder Singh Hooda, who still has a mass following in Haryana, do likewise, nearer election time if he gets a sense that he is not going to get his way in the ticket distribution? What about Siddaramaiah in Karnataka, where elections are due in 2023? And what will Sachin Pilot do? If given the reins of power, he might have put up a fight to retrieve some of the lost ground.

Rahul is a boon to Narendra Modi not only because he is no match for the PM as a communicator. He is Modi's biggest bet because more than anyone else, he epitomises entitlement today. And an aspirational India is moving in the opposite direction.

For the Grand Old Party not to have a fulltime president for three and a quarter years remember, it is not three and a quarter months - when the opponent is as formidable as Modi, should be unthinkable in a democracy. Whatever the reasons trotted out publicly for the delay in holding organisational elections, the truth is that the party has really been waiting for Rahul Gandhi to decide whether he wants to take over as Congress President again. Nothing illustrates entitlement more than this.

When Modi declared from the Red Fort this year that his party will flag two issues - corruption and dynastic rule – he put his finger on the people's pulse over the growing aversion to the right by birth.

If push comes to shove, there are regional parties which can survive without a member of the family to lead them. Not so the Congress. It will break up without the Gandhi family. And, as things stand today, it could disintegrate with the family at its helm – unless the family willingly relinquishes power to someone else.

Rahul Gandhi has also put forward a new political model - he takes all the decisions, but without taking responsibility for them. By all accounts, he is not going to contest for the party presidency. If Ashok Gehlot, Meira Kumar, Mallikarjun Kharge or Mukul Wasnik take over as Congress chief he or she will be filling in for the role that Sonia Gandhi has been playing as a "nominal figurehead".

That Sonia should strongly urge Gehlot to shift to Delhi and he should express reluctance also shows the extent to which the high command's writ runs today - further weakening the party.

Azad's going, then, is not the exit of yet another individual leader from Congress. It is symbolic of wider and worrying processes at work to move India towards one-party rule and the Grand Old Party, representing the only counter force nationally, is unwilling to take the steps it should. Unless there is a dramatic turnaround, Congress will be reduced to a mere symbol - and the owner of properties - and cease to be a party. I hope I am proved wrong.

INEQUALITY HURTS US ALL

Caste system comes in ways of holistic knowledge creation, acquisition

the state machinery. Govindan, 69, could rearrange the balance of power between the government and the party. His will also be the challenge of ensuring that the party's voice and influence, which has always been disproportionate to its numbers, can be salvaged in times when, except in Kerala, it is inexorably shrinking.

Govindan has been the quintessential party ideologue, involved in conducting party classes for cadres. However, excessive dependence on party literature can become a liability in an age of slick communication and the dwindling of jargon. The CPM in Kerala has been growing at a rapid pace, it has become a party of the establishment in the state. This, surely, would help it in meeting electoral challenges but it can also lead to organisational stasis and public alienation, as happened in West Bengal and Tripura, where the CPM went into a rapid decline after decades in office. The compulsions of a mass party are also very different from that of a cadre party, as it has to meet the demands of a varied and layered support base.

Though Kerala's success in building a welfare state has been the subject of much academic discussion and debate, the Left has been unsuccessful in projecting it as a governance model - in the manner of Gujarat under Narendra Modi, for instance, or Delhi under Arvind Keiriwal has been championed by their respective parties. With the Congress in decline, there is an opportunity now for Opposition-run states to play a larger role in the pushback to BJP dominance. For the Kerala CPM, the challenge lies in both government and ideology: Its government will have to further improve the delivery of public services and goods, and the organisation will need to re-articulate its larger political vision.

DEMOLITION DAY

As Supertech towers crashed down, a mass of private tragedies became a public spectacle consumed on a Sunday afternoon

N AUGUST 28, almost a year after the Supreme Court ordered the demolition of the Supertech twin towers in Noida, the two structures came crashing down in a controlled explosion. There to witness the "once-ina-lifetime event" were TV crews and cameras, breathlessly recounting the lawsuit that led to this day and describing the nuts and bolts of the demolition plan to bring down structures taller than the Qutub Minar. Aam spectators were there too, most having made the journey specially to watch the towers destroyed. In locations farther away, people watched live streams of a sight that, so far, they had only seen in big budget action movies.

No doubt there was something thrillingly cinematic about the demolition, as the towers came crashing down, Jenga-like, and sent a massive cloud of dust billowing out in every direction. And there was something of the movie hall audience in the crowd that had gathered to watch, which cheered and whooped. If there were questions - for example, about how the families that lost their homes felt about the televised demolition, or even if demolition was the only or best way out - they were swept away by the flood of tweets, posts and reels documenting the spectacle.

In a society where sight and sound is increasingly mediated through a 6-inch screen, there is something inevitable about the transformation of an experience - with all its joys and sorrows, and despite them - into spectacle. At the Supertech demolition site, it was easy to forget, perhaps, that the two towers were once the brick-and-mortar embodiment of many families' dreams. Framed by TV and smartphone cameras, this mass of private tragedies became a 12-second public spectacle, to be consumed on a Sunday afternoon ahead of a busy week.

SAMEENA DALWAI

THE BRAHMINS brought the dead body of a child from their community to Lord Ram's court. They wailed that there must be adharma happening somewhere in his kingdom. Perhaps a Shudra was doing tapasya. Why else would a Brahmin boy drop dead suddenly? They urged Lord Ram to uphold dharma. The king went looking and in a dense forest, found a boy chanting Sanskrit mantras. Ram asked him who he was and what he was doing. The boy answered, his name is Shambuka, he is a tribal and he was doing tapasya. Immediately afterwards, an arrow from Ram's bow pierced Shambuka's heart. As the tribal boy hit the ground, the Brahmin boy woke up.

This story in the Valmiki Ramayana comes true every few years, when a Shudra, Dalit or tribal student, who dares to seek education, pays with his life. The most recent was a nine-year-old boy from Rajasthan, Indra Meghwal, who allegedly drank water from a vessel reserved for his upper-caste teacher.

Education is not a naturally joyful process for many Dalit students. Several news reports detail their harassment and humiliation in schools all over India. They are often made to sit away from other children or queue up separately for midday meals. At times, they are beaten up by upper caste teachers and students. In several places, common water taps are not for them. Higher education too isn't immune to the oppressive conditions, that forced Dalit students caste is the division of labourers, not labour. The system dictates that a person born a tanner, for instance, cannot become a carpenter even though he likes working with wood — not leather. It makes reading the written word the preserve of certain groups, while obligating others to work with their hands.

As Ambedkar pointed out, like Senthil Kumar (2008) and Rohith Vemula (2016) and Payal Tadvi (2019) to take their lives.

In many places in the country, even today caste determines a person's occupation. Labour is an obligation, not a choice. As Ambedkar pointed out, caste is the division of labourers, not labour. The system dictates that a person born a tanner, for instance, cannot become a carpenter even though he likes working with wood – not leather. It makes reading the written word the preserve of certain groups while obligating others to work with their hands. This segregation stands in the way of creating holistic knowledge. For instance, skinning dead animals and making leather used to be - still is, in several parts of the country - the occupation of people from certain castes. Their work would acquaint such people with animal anatomy. But they weren't supposed to read and so there was no way medical science could make use of their expertise. In contrast, Brahmins would never touch a dead body. This hierarchy hindered the holistic acquisition of medicinal knowledge.

This system hasn't gone away completely today. It stunts knowledge creation and smothers imagination and innovation.

The hereditary occupations of the first three varnas in the caste system are worship, war or trade. But such people need food to eat, clothes to wear and chairs to sit on. Who makes all this? The concept of dharma, or caste obligations, asks lower castes to provide productive labour for the upper castes. In Why I am not a Hindu, social scientist Kancha Illaiah associates the karma theory with labour extraction. "If you should do your karma but not expect the fruit, what will happen to the fruit? Upper caste who are not doing labour, not producing the fruit, will appropriate it," he writes.

The monetary value of labour is determined by the position of the labourer on the caste rung – not the social need for labour. That's why most manual jobs - from domestic labour to garbage workers - yield abysmal wages. As providers of essential services, sanitation workers should be paid wages similar to doctors. But not only do we pay them less, we also make their work hazardous and ignore their deaths in manholes.

Stuck in the era of ascribed status and codes. our education system can hardly encourage critical thinking. Indian schooling focuses on rote learning and exam results. One-time examinations, rather than a range of assessments, are used to judge the abilities of students.

Caste discrimination makes our democracy fraught. As Ambedkar stated at the dawn of the Indian republic in 1948, "political democracy has been achieved by the freedom struggle and take over from the British, but social democracy is far away".

The return of nuclear weapons

After 1998, India premised its strategy on building 'credible minimum deterrence'. The time has come to reflect on what is 'credible' and redefine what 'minimum' might be

BY C. RAJA MOHAN

AN INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE to review the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty concluded at the United Nations in New York last week without a consensus document. Given the growing great power conflict today, that was not unexpected. Surprisingly, though, the NPT review elicited little interest in Delhi. India, one of the world's nuclear weapon powers, ought to be paying a lot more attention to the international nuclear discourse that is acquiring new dimensions and taking a fresh look at its own civilian and military nuclear programmes. There was a time when Delhi used to be hy-persensitive to what was said at NPT conferences. The parties to the NPT, which came into force in 1970, undertake a review of the treaty's implementation every five years. The Tenth Review Conference, scheduled for 2020, was delayed because of the Covid-19 pandemic.

In the immediate aftermath of the Cold War, the US attempt to roll back India's nuclear and missile programmes generated serious concerns in Delhi. India responded with a diplomatic strategy that sought to deflect external pressures. At the same time, Delhi also debated whether India should test nuclear weapons and declare itself a nuclear weapon power. After the nuclear tests in May 1998, India's focus shifted to managing the consequences of that decision - including global economic sanctions. The historic India-US civil nuclear initiative of July 2005 finally produced a framework that brought to an end Delhi's extended conflict with the NPT system.

At the heart of the deal was the separation of India's civil and military nuclear programmes. The consummation of the India-US nuclear deal a few years later gave Delhi the freedom to develop its nuclear arsenal and resume civilian nuclear cooperation with the rest of the world which was blocked since India's first nuclear test in May 1974. There was a fierce political debate - often slipping into the "headless chicken" mode - in Delhi on the terms of the nuclear engagement with the US. Many in Delhi argued that India was sacrificing the autonomy of its nuclear programme and its foreign policy.

A decade-and-a-half later, it is easy to ask what the political fuss was all about. India has not bought a single reactor from the US. Nor has it become a much feared "junior partner" to the US. India's independent foreign policy appears to be thriving. Ironically, as India's atomic isolation eased after 2008, India's nuclear debate lost much of its urgency.

C R Sasikumar

September 2021, China argued that the agreement violates the provisions of the NPT. Although the NPT permits non-nuclear states to develop nuclear naval propulsion, Beijing persisted with the campaign. In New York, this month Indonesia and Malaysia raised concerns about the implications of the AUKUS deal for the NPT.

Fifth, nuclear power is coming back into reckoning around the world amidst the growing challenge of climate change. The draft final statement noted that "nuclear technologies can contribute to addressing climate change, mitigating and adapting to its consequences, and monitoring its impact". Separately, a group of 12 countries led by the US, UK, Japan, and South Korea emphasised the importance of nuclear power in meeting the Sustainable Development Goals set by the UN.

What kind of implications does the unfolding global nuclear discourse present for India? A couple of them stand out.

One, India must find ways to end the current stasis in its civilian nuclear power generation, especially at a time when Delhi has outlined an ambitious programme to reduce the share of fossil fuels in its energy consumption. India, which commissioned Asia's first nuclear power station more than 50 years ago, is stuck today with a total generating capacity of barely 7,000 MW.

India's historic civil nuclear initiative was meant to open up international collaboration to boost the production of atomic electric power. But the enormous political and diplomatic energy that went into ending India's nuclear isolation was squandered by the disastrous 2010 Civil Nuclear Liability Act which has nal and external – to contribute to the programme. Revisiting that law is now an urgent imperative for any Indian strategy to rapidly raise the contribution of nuclear power to

In power, out of office

Pakistan government appears to be trying to corner Imran Khan by threatening disgualification from holding public office. This could backfire

SHARAT SABHARWAL

PAKISTAN IS on the edge again. Its economy is broken and Imran Khan is threatening to set the house on fire if the army leadership does not pave his way back to power. Three factors underlying its dysfunctional state have brought about this situation.

First, the Pakistani economy, prone to periodic crises because of its structural problems - notably the burdens imposed by its adversarial posture against India – has been hit hard by the pandemic and the Ukraine war. Inflation is high, the Pakistan rupee has nosedived, foreign exchange reserves are worth about six weeks' imports and nearly $40 billion borrowing is required to meet the external financing needs in the current financial year. The Shehbaz Sharif government has had to take unpopular steps to secure the much-needed revival of the IMF Extended Fund Facility (EFF). The disbursal of these funds has been suspended because the Imran Khan government did not fulfil the stipulated conditions. A nod from the IMF Executive Board is awaited later this month.

Chances are that Pakistan will scrape through again, with the Board giving its approval, thereby de-blocking funding from other sources as well – the anxieties of the international community over an economic meltdown in an already highly troubled state make this likely. There are also signs of another transactional equation between Pakistan and the US. They include General Qamar Bajwa's talks with the Deputy Secretary of State Wendy Sherman to seek help in expediting the IMF approval. It's also likely that Bajwa may have given assurances on Afghanistan – there are reports of Pakistan's help in Ayman al-Zawahiri's killing. The visit of the CENTCOM commander to Islamabad after an 18-month gap and the reported supply of military stores by Pakistan for Ukraine also signals the possibility of a Pak-US equation.

Second, gross interference of the military leadership in the country's political processes has led to a serious political crisis, which threatens the path to economic recovery. Army chief Bajwa got Nawaz Sharif ousted from power through a dubious accountability process in 2017, heavily aided Imran Khan's victory in the 2018 election and sustained him in power for close to four years. Finally, disenchanted with Imran, Bajwa got him voted out by getting the smaller parties supporting him – they are beholden to the army - to abandon the former PM, and brought in the Shehbaz Sharif coalition. Things have not panned out as expected by Bajwa or Shehbaz. Imran's popularity has grown and his party, the PTI, has won hands down in the by-elections in the Punjabi heartland in July. Khan's narrative -- he was ousted by the army at the behest of a foreign power(US) because of his independent foreign policy - and description of his opponents as a bunch of corrupt politicians seems to go down well with the middle classes and youth, among whom he already enjoyed considerable traction. The recent findings of illegal foreign funding of the PTI have not impacted his support base. Worse still for Bajwa, Imran is reported to enjoy support in sections of the army's rank and file and amongst some serving and retired generals. Shehbaz's PML(N) finds itself carrying the burden of unpopular economic decisions. Its charismatic vote-getter, Nawaz Sharif, continues to be in exile

Third, Pakistan's politics of revenge has added fuel to the political firestorm. Imran, when in office, hounded his opponents through accountability cases, most of which made no headway. The Shehbaz government seems intent on paying him back in his own coin by pursuing the foreign funding case. One of his senior aides was arrested recently for remarks, allegedly aimed at dividing the army, in a TV appearance – the TV channel concerned was taken off the air. A ban has been imposed on the live telecast of Imran's speeches. A case of terrorism has been registered against him for his remarks during a public address threatening senior police officers and a judge. Therefore, he could be arrested. He has responded by building a wall of his supporters around his residence on the outskirts of Islamabad.

Where do things go from here? The solution could lie in an election. However, the aspirations of the key actors are at odds with each other. Riding a wave of popularity, Imran Khan is demanding an immediate election, backed by the threat of mass agitation. It is not clear if General Bajwa harbours ambitions after completing his tenure in November. But if he does, he may have to manage his army family. He would like to ensure at the very least the appointment of a successor, who would protect him after retirement, even if Imran Khan returns to power. The PML(N) and its principal coalition partners wish to stay in power till the second half of 2023, when the election is normally due. The PML(N)'s hope would be to see the return of Nawaz Sharif and the hardship imposed by the government's tough economic measures ease substantially by then so that it is in a position to give some sops to people.

The strategy of the government, backed by Bajwa, appears to be to coerce Imran Khan to adopt a more reasonable posture with the threat of disqualification from holding public office -- much like Nawaz Sharif -- on the charges of foreign funding of his party and terrorism. But this could backfire, making him more popular. Much would also depend upon the stance of the next army chief who would be free of the burden of long years of incumbency. Notwithstanding the resentment of political players, including Imran Khan, against the army's interference in political affairs, the army continues to have a central place in their calculations. Greater political uncertainty and turmoil seem almost certain in Pakistan in the coming weeks and months. Pakistan has been here before but has carried on. The current crisis might also end sometime soon. However, Pakistan will continue to face such situations again and again till it resolves its dysfunctionality.

Russia may have put its nuclear sword away, but the impact of Moscow flashing it

The failure of the Tenth Review Conference, however, does reveal many of the new challenges facing the global nuclear order today and their implications for India.

First, is the deepening divide between the main sponsors of the NPT back in 1970 -America and Russia. Even at the height of the Cold War, there was always one major area of cooperation between the US and the Soviet Union -- strong support for the NPT. Most review conferences were jointly managed by close diplomatic coordination between Washington and Moscow.

More often than not, the nuclear problems

India's energy mix.

India must also recognise and adapt to the return of nuclear weapons as major instruments of great power military strategy. Delhi must ask itself if its nuclear weapons can deter China's expanding atomic arsenal. After 1998, India premised its strategy on building "credible minimum deterrence". The time has come to reflect on the "credible" side of that strategy and redefine what the 'minimum' might be.

Visible benefits, hidden costs

Freebies' distortionary effects on economy must also be accounted for

Shamika Ravi and Mudit Kapoor

A RECENT PIL against "irrational freebies" in the Supreme Court of India (SC) has reignited a national debate on political posturing to win elections by offering freebies and a responsible government. In light of this, the SC is considering setting up an expert panel to examine the issue of freebies announced by the political parties during elections. The debate has several layers that merit attention:

First, what constitutes freebies: Are free electricity, free water, free transport, free education, etc. freebies? Fredrich Hayek, a conservative thinker who, while being deeply suspicious of the power of the state, argued in The Road to Serfdom that the state must guarantee a basic social minimum "of food, shelter, and clothing, sufficient to preserve health and the capacity to work" to everyone. This argument has two critical aspects: One, it is an individual rights-based approach to welfare and development. Two, equally important from the perspective of debate on freebies, it limits the state's power to provide only a bare minimum to the individual needed to preserve their health and work capacity. The only technical issue (admittedly a challenging one) that needs to be determined is the minimum quantity of food, clothing, and shelter to be guaranteed to everyone, and perhaps to expand this list to include education, water, sanitation, and clean air, since Hayek made this argument in the 1940s.

In India, we have made significant strides in this direction through the right to food, education, and work. Perhaps one could argue that during the Covid-19 lockdown, the government's ability, capacity, commitment, and constitutional responsibility to deliver minimum food rations to the lowest strata of society prevented a mass-scale catastrophe. Similarly, the government's commitment and resolve to freely vaccinate more than a billion people with at least one dose in a short period averted a major health disaster. In both cases, the state had to step up because the survival of the individual was at stake.

The second layer of the argument concerns state's responsibility to finance freebies. After all, there is no free lunch. The PIL petitioners on "irrational freebies" have argued that during the elections, when politicians woo voters by offering freebies, they must also provide a comprehensive financing plan for the freebies to the voters and taxpayers. This line of argument is an important and responsible one but remains myopic as it misses a crucial point regarding the true costs of freebies. We have to make a distinction between accounting and economic costs. For example, consider the case of free electricity to a particular sector of the economy where the political party presents a credible and feasible financial plan from an accounting perspective. However, from an economic perspective, a subsidy to one sector of the economy creates distortions and an implicit tax on the other sectors. As a result, resources move from the non-subsidised sector to subsidised sectors. Individuals in the subsidised sectors benefit at the expense of individuals in the non-subsidised sector. The overall economic loss due to distortions could be higher than the benefits to the subsidised sector. Therefore, the real cost over and above freebies' accounting costs are economic distortions, leading to reduced growth and lower productivity.

Unfortunately, the distortionary costs of freebies, in terms of forgone opportunities, are challenging to quantify upfront but their effects are significant and will definitely be felt over time.

Take the case of Punjab. Till the early 2000s, Punjab's per capita GDP was one of the highest among the large states in India; it exceeded that of Himachal Pradesh, Haryana, Gujarat, Maharashtra, Karnataka, Tamil Nadu, and Kerala. Punjab heavily subsidised the agricultural sector -- besides severe ecological implications, the subsidy left little fiscal room to provide incentives to other sectors like industries and services. In contrast, neighbouring and other states mentioned above were not burdened so extensively by the agricultural subsidies and hence could incentivise high-growth and job-creating sectors like manufacturing and services. This triggered a major relocation of firms (and jobs) from Punjab to other states that offered a more conducive growth environment. Punjab saw rapid deindustrialisation as a consequence of its myopic and distortionary policies. Manufacturing clusters of Gurdaspur, Mandi, Jalandhar, Gobindgarh and Ludhiana struggled for years with a lack of growth and eventually reported rampant closures.

As a result, post-2001, Punjab's per capita GDP began to lag behind that of Himachal Pradesh, Harvana, Gujarat, Maharashtra, Karnataka, Tamil Nadu, and Kerala and the gap has widened over time. As a result of the distortions, the unemployment rate in Punjab was also higher than the national average. Punjab illustrates that while examining the issue of freebies, one has to look not only at the fiscal feasibility in the short run but also at the distortions created by these freebies, which will make them unsustainable over time.

In summary, one could argue that there are universal freebies that the state must guarantee. which include security, justice, and bare minimum amenities (for example, food, shelter, education, water, sanitation, and clean air) that preserve individuals' health and capacity to work. For every other freebie, whether in the form of subsidies or exemptions, in addition to the immediate financial burden, the state must consider the hidden distortionary effects of these freebies on the overall economy that would lower growth and productivity and jobs -- and hence reduce individual capacity.

House purchases are the largest single investment made by most Indian families. Any purposeful reform – a matter of urgency to address the buyer's vulnerabilities in the market – has to address the risks of stakeholders. The RERA Act presents the most promising possibility. It standardises contracts, reduces the information gaps between buyers and other stakeholders by making relevant information public and minimises the misuse of down payments by buyers.

As it rises politically, China needs to get off its lonewolf approach to diplomacy and display greater patience while dealing with its smaller neighbours. Iraq's Sadr quits politics; 5 die in protests

al-Sadr

AP&REUTERS BAGHDAD, AUGUST 29

AN INFLUENTIAL Shia cleric announced Monday he would resign from Iraqi politics, prompting hundreds of his angry followers to storm the government palace and sparking clashes with security forces in which at least five protesters were killed.

Protesters loyal to cleric Muqtada al-Sadr pulled down the cement barriers outside the government palace with ropes and breached the palace gates. Many rushed into the lavish salons and marbled halls of the palace, a key meeting place for Iraqi heads of state and foreign dignitaries.

"I hereby announce my final withdrawal," Sadr earlier said on Twitter, criticising fellow Shia political leaders for failing to heed his calls for reform. Iraq's military announced a nation-wide curfew and the caretaker premier suspended Cabinet sessions in response to the violence. Medical officials said at least 15 protesters were wounded by gunfire and a dozen more were injured by tear gas and physical altercations with riot police. Iraq's government has been deadlocked since al-Sadr's party won the largest share of seats in October parliamentary elections but not enough to secure a majority government. His refusal to negotiate with his Iran-backed Shia rivals and subsequent exit from the talks has catapulted the country into political uncer-

AIR FRANCE pilots are under scrutiny after a series of incidents that have raised concerns over safety protocols on flights operated by the French flagship carrier, prompting aviation investigators to reprimand the airline last week.

UAE LEADING EFFORT TO SQUEEZE MORE RAIN OUT OF THE CLOUDS Cloud wars: Mideast rivalries rise along a new front — rainfall

ALISSA J RUBIN ABU DHABI, AUGUST 29

IRANIAN OFFICIALS have worried for years that other nations have been depriving them of one of their vital water sources. But it was not an upstream dam that they were worrying about or an aquifer being bled dry.

In 2018, amid a searing drought and rising temperatures, some senior officials concluded that someone was stealing their water from the clouds. "Both Israel and another country are working to make Iranian clouds not rain," Brig Gen Gholam Reza Jalali, a senior official in the country's powerful Revolutionary Guard, said in a 2018 speech.

The unnamed country was the UAE, which had begun an ambitious cloud-seeding programme, injecting chemicals into clouds to try to force precipitation. Iran's suspicions are not surprising, given its tense relations with most Persian Gulf nations, but the real purpose of these efforts is not to steal water but simply to make it rain on parched lands.

As the Middle East and North Africa dry up, countries in the region have embarked on a race to develop the chemicals and techniques that they hope will enable them to squeeze rain drops out of clouds that would otherwise float fruitlessly overhead. With 12 of the 19 regional countries averaging less than 10 inches of rainfall a year, a decline of 20% over the past 30 years, their governments are desperate for any increment of fresh water, and cloud seeding is seen by many as a quick way to tackle the problem.

And as wealthy countries like the UAE pump hundreds of millions of dollars into the effort, other nations are joining the race, trying to ensure they do not miss out on their fair share of rainfall before others drain the heavens dry – despite serious questions about whether the technique generates enough rainfall to be worth the effort and expense.

Morocco and Ethiopia have cloud-seeding programmes, as does Iran. Saudi Arabia just started a large-scale program, and a half-dozen other Middle Eastern and North African countries are considering it.

dress the situation.

China has the most ambitious programme worldwide, with the aim of either stimulating rain or halting hail across half the country. It is trying to force clouds to rain over the Yangtze River, which is running dry in some spots.

While cloud seeding has been around for 75 years, experts say the science has yet to be proven. And they are especially dismissive of worries about one country draining clouds dry at the expense of others downwind.

The life span of a cloud, in particular the type of cumulus clouds most likely to produce rain, is rarely more than a couple of hours, atmospheric scientists say.

Occasionally, clouds can last longer but rarely long enough to reach another country, even in the Persian Gulf, where seven countries are jammed close together.

But several Middle Eastern countries have brushed aside the experts' doubts and are pushing ahead with plans to wring any moisture they can from otherwise stingy clouds. Today, the unquestioned regional leader is the UAE. As early as the 1990s, the country's ruling family recognised that maintaining a plentiful supply of water would be as important as the nation's huge oil and gas reserves in sustaining its status as the financial and business capital of the Persian Gulf. TUMBLES OVER 1,460 POINTS IN EARLY TRADE; CLOSES 821 POINTS DOWN Sensex sinks 1.46% as hawkish US Federal Reserve sparks global sell-off

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU MUMBAI, AUGUST 29

BENCHMARK INDICES shed nearly 1.5 per cent on Monday, mirroring global cues, as the hawkish commentary from the US Federal Reserve and other central bankers spooked investors.

Global stocks fell, treasury yields climbed and global currencies lost ground against the dollar on Monday as the import of Friday's speech by Fed chair Jerome Powell sunk in. Japan's Nikkei 225, South Korea's Kospi and Taiwan Weighted indices ended up to 2 per cent lower. European Central Bank board member Isabel Schnabel joined the chorus of hawkish central bankers over the weekend emphasising the need to combat inflation even at the risk of tipping economies into recession. The BSE Sensex fell 861 points or 1.46 per cent to end at 57,972, in the international crude oil prices also dampened equity market sentiment File while the Nifty closed 246 points or 1.4 per cent lower at 17,312. "The market has adjusted its rate expectations post the hawk-ish comments of the US Fed chair; it now expects US Fed Fund rate to climb to 4 per cent by early 2023 and stay there in H1CY23," said strategists at Kotak Institutional Equities. "The US Fed is signalling that it may be willing to induce a deeper slowdown in the US economy in order to bring down inflation under control

EXPLAINED Fear of stronger US rate hikes

US FEDERAL Reserve Chair Jerome Powell's comments during the Jackson Hole symposium fuelled expectations of more aggressive US rate hikes to fight runaway inflation, while investors were expecting a milder policy action post the softer July US inflation reading. This raised slowdown concerns and hit global markets.

while markets had assumed a shallow and short slowdown. In fact, equity markets had started factoring in rate cuts by the US Fed in O2CY23." the note said.

A sharp decline in global growth, quantitative tightening by central banks and increasing geopolitical tensions are the key risks to Indian equities, according to foreign brokerage BofA Securities. "We believe a mild recession in the US/muted global growth is now priced in. However, a sharp impact on global growth would lead to risk-off trade, impacting EMs. Similarly, while $3.1 trillion of quantitative tightening by central banks of major economies by December 2023 is now priced in, its potential acceleration is a risk," said Amish Shah, research analyst at BofA Securities. Market watchers are monitoring the pace at which central banks are tapering their balance sheets. The Fed is tapering its assets at a much less pace than planned. The plan was to reduce the balance sheet by $47 billion per month from June to August and $95 billion every month thereon. From June 1 to August 24, however, the balance sheet has shrunk by $63.6 billion. FE

ONE DISTRICT ONE PRODUCT 'Looking for duty-free access for ODOP goods in trade pacts'

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU NEW DELHI, AUGUST 29

COMMERCE AND Industry Minister Pivush Goval Monday said India is trying to get duty-free access for a broad range of products, which are identified under the One District One Product (ODOP) initiative, under trade agreements. He also called for the integration of the ODOP initiative with the Open Network for Digital Commerce (ONDC) platform. This will help expand the ODOP frontiers by "bringing buyers and sellers together on a democratic platform". Delivering a speech after launching the ODOP Gift Catalog and ODOP Storefront on the government e-marketplace (GeM) here, the minister said these products - including gold jewellery, handicrafts, handlooms and toys - present huge opportunities for exporters. Through the ODOP initiative, the government intends to convert each district into an export hub by identifying at least one product of that district that has huge export potential. FE revenue up, shrinks margin'

Mumbai: India Inc saw a 39 per cent jump in top lines during April-June quarter but their operating margins declined 213 basis points to 17.7 per cent due to input cost inflation, a report said on Monday. While companies passed on higher input costs in the form of commodity and energy cost, leading to revenue growth, the same led to margin compression, rating agency Icra said in a note based on the analysis of 620 listed companies, excluding financial sector entities.

Margin compression was attributed to the supply chain disruptions triggered by the war in Ukraine. The report expects margins to recover from the second half. The sample 620 companies reported an aggregate revenue growth of 39.1 per cent on-year in the June guarter. PTI

Borgohain clocks 10.25s, claims 100m national record

NIHAL KOSHIE AUGUST 29

ASSAM'S AMLAN Borgohain broke the national record in the men's 100 metres when he clocked 10.25 seconds at the Inter-railway athletics championships in Rae Bareli, Uttar Pradesh. The 24-year-old Amlan is now the country's fastest in both the sprint events.

Earlier this year at the Federation Cup, he had clocked 20.52s to set a new national record in the men's 200 metres.

The previous 100 metre record was held by Amiya Kumar Malick with a time of 10.26. Amlan's performance on Monday was a big improvement on his previous best time of 10.34 seconds.

Amlan's personal coach James Hillier puts down his improved timing to the work put in over the past three months to improve his running posture, and maintaining it when he gets tired.

"He ran very well in training two weeks ago. His posture looked the best I had ever seen. So last week I tested him over 100m through timing gates and he ran extremely well. So I knew the national record was under threat. But didn't want to say anything and jinx it," coach Hillier, who trains Amlan at the Odisha Reliance Foundation High Performance Centre in Bhubaneshwar, said

Amlan could run faster this year as his main targets are the National Games and the Open Nationals. "Also this part of the season is still early. I have not peaked him for this Railways Nationals so him running this fast is a bonus. I will be aiming to peak him at National Games and Open Nationals. Also wanted to improve his max speed and his 100m time this year. That will also improve

India vs Pakistan When India pick Jadeja and Pandya in their Playing XI, it's a virtual Playing 13

India-Pakistan Asia Cup game shows how the two all-rounders will be vital at the two World Cups they play in the next 10 months

WATCHING RAVINDRA Jadeja's shattered stumps in the last over of the chase against Pakistan, Hardik Pandya plunged into the turf, as though mourning a personal loss. A few seconds later, he scrambled back onto his feet and sprinted towards Jadeja, still cussing the stroke that failed him, and wrapped an arm of comfort around him and uttered something in his ears that immediately brought some joy on Jadeja's face. Perhaps, it was an assurance from Pandya that he would nail the chase, or maybe it was a joke.

Later, in a chat between the two, Pandya confessed that the only time he felt emotional during the innings was when Jadeja perished. Throughout the brief interaction, you could sense their comfort and camaraderie, like two friends conversing casually. You could sense that throughout their match-winning stand too. After almost every delivery, they would engage in a quick chat, a chuckle, or an exchange of notes, or an observation about a field change

When Pandya missed a wild slog early in his innings, Jadeja would gesture to him to calm down and walk across to mutter something in his ear. Every time one of them struck a boundary, the other would rush down the other end and pump their gloved fists. Their running between the wickets was akin to an Usain Bolt-Yohan Blake relay, smooth and supersonic, messages conveyed through nods and glances, as though they have a deep understanding of each other's thoughts and movements, as though they can think like each other. Perhaps, they could, even though they unite only for the national team.

Rarest of rare

The reality is above all such lazy assumptions. Together, they are the most precious cricketers in Indian cricket—even more so if Hardik could reclaim his Test-match bowling fitness. A left-arm spin bowling allrounder and a seam-bowling all-rounder of this mettle, both electrifying fielders to boot, are a luxury few teams could imagine. The distribution is inequit:

the next 10 months, India would vie for winning two World Cups, T20s this year in Australia and the 50-overs one at home next year. Both would figure preeminently. The signs are getting clearer. Jadeja could be the swing is fluent, the head is still, he generates considerable power and finds the perfect placement. Give him freedom and it may not be too long before he harnesses his underutilised white-ball batting potential.

Just as a destroyer than enforcer role could liberate Pandya's bowling. Pandya's bowling has, of late, downgraded to thirdfourth seamer status, able to block up an end and. when the ball swung and seamed, take useful wickets. Perhaps this was because his body could not endure the rigours of bowling at full pelt.

On Sunday he bowled like peak Pandya, a throwback to his 50-over debut in Dharamshala where he bowled with the fire and feistiness of a genuine pacer, when he purchased both bounce and zip, when he hurried batsmen. "He can bowl really quickly, we saw that today with those short balls. It was always about just understanding his game and he's doing that well now," Rohit Sharma would observe.

13-member squad

Against Pakistan, he was the quickest and sharpest of the four bowlers. He purchased more bounce than Avesh Khan and coaxed as much movement as Bhuvneshwar Kumar. Like Jadeja, he would be thrust into various duties with the bat-could be a pinch-hitter up the order, or a finisher down the order. It is often said that a quality all-rounder—one who can bat in the top six and and would also be selected separately as a front-line bowler-can make the 11-member team look like a 12-member one. Playing against India with a peak Jadeja and Pandya would be akin to combatting 13 players.

Besides, in common with many champion cricketers, their contributions defy raw numbers, defined instead by the classic unquantifiables of timing, showmanship, athleticism, calmness under pressure and an uncanny ability to pick up key wickets and wickets.

They can make things happen-produce a wicket from nowhere, manage boundaries from nowhere, effect a run-out or pluck a blinder. Nothing frazzles themthey could hit the winning runs in the last over; they could pick the vital wickets in the last over too. The selfassurance is mind-boggling. Just sample this remark from Pandya when asked about scoring six runs off the last three balls: "We only needed 7 off the last over but even if we needed 15, I'd have fancied myself I know the bowler is under more pressure than me in the 20th over.' That sums up the essence of his cricketing

The Athletics Federation of India will begin the process of ratifying the record once all the paper work, including photo finish details, are collected from the organisers. Amlan started off by being a footballer but his mother asked him to guit the sport because he was getting injured too often.

My mom asked me to either switch to a different sport or quit entirely. Playing football wasn't an option anymore. It was a tough decision to make," Amlan had told this paper last year. Looking back, the fastest man in India picked the right sport.

nurse in a government hospital. Pandva. with his brother Krunal. had to borrow kits from friends, surviving on instant noodles in his journey to cricketing stardom. Undoubtedly, the tough comeuppance years have instilled in them a knack of bouncing back from setbacks, multiple injuries, criticisms and ridicule, as well as perhaps the rawness that has marked their early years. The pair could debate over who among ception. Rather, the perceptions about them have not changed in lieu with their transformation, even though they have upgraded their game to such an elevated level that they could be bracketed among the best contemporary allrounders. But they are somehow seen through the same lens as they were seen in their younger days.

Pandya's tale is still about trapped potential, immensely talented but a reckless cricketer, a man who seemed to struggle with the South Africa and New Zealand have seambowling all-rounders, but no one that can bowl quality spin (that includes Mitchell Santner). West Indies have a bunch of pseudo-allrounders; Pakistan and Sri Lanka have neither entities of striking brilliance. Bangladesh have Shakib-al-Hasan but no seamer who could bat. Only England could boast of a better pair on paper—Ben Stokes and Moeen Ali.

Together, Jadeja and Pandya could be the catalyst of changing India's white-balls World title winning dreams into a reality. In

- HARDIK PANDYA In liberating roles

But as he has shown multiple times in IPL, especially in the 2020 edition, he could be a remarkable destroyer, capable of wondrous power-hitting down the ground. Jadeja looks unstoppable when he looks to hit straight, rather than swiping across the line, looking to muscle through the leg side, which brought his downfall against Pakistan. When flaying straight, he gets into tremendous positions, the bat-soul-undaunted and uninhibited. In a similar situation, Jadeja's response too would have been the same

You can't measure this sort of talent or plot it on a graph. But it is talent nonetheless, and one borne of personality as much as persistence, of temperament as much as technique. A combination of virtues that could decide tournaments.

SWING AND A MISS

Babar Azam waited for the swing and was met with the bounce

Usually known for bowling full-length deliveries, in order to maximise the ball swinging, Bhvaneshwar Kumar took a different approach against Babar Azam and got the in-form Pakistan captain with a bouncer. AP

SANDEEP DWIVEDI AUGUST 29

BHUVNESHWAR KUMAR bowls at 130 kph range. He generally bowls full, so that he can maximise the air-time and get more swing his primary art. He mostly sticks to a simple game plan - after several full-length away swingers, he bowls the in-cutter that's slightly short of length. It's the delivery that sneaks between the forward moving left stride that hasn't yet been planted and the tentative bat to hit the stumps. But on Sunday, India's new ball bowler struck the most-vital blow of the India-Pak Asia Cup with a very un-Bhuvi ball. He got Pakistan's in-form captain Babar Azam with a bouncer.

There's a reason banging the ball in his half of the pitch isn't a plan that Bhuvneshwar usually follows. Being from the Meerut gharana -Praveen Kumar being the famous ustaad of that cricketing hub - Bhuvi is programmed to bowl full and let the ball float around like a butterfly. He doesn't have the pace to surprise the batsmen or infuse dread in their minds. With Bhuvneshwar running in, batsmen don't fear getting hit.

So what worked for Bhuvi? Actually, it was still the Indian pacer's reputed swing that had a role to play in him getting the wicket of Babar with a short one. To understand this, see where

Statistics show that Babar gets out executing the pull quite often. It's a misleading statistic, it's not his weakness. It's just that he plays the stroke more often. It's an old cricketing truth - the short that gives you most runs is also the reason for your many dismissals

Babar is standing when facing India's very own Sultan of Swing. The Pakistan opener's back leg is on the crease and front one is a stride head. It's an old ploy batsmen use to cut the swing.

So when the batsman shifts down the pitch, the bowlers tend to pull back the length. This reduces two things - the ball's air-time and as a result the swing. MS Dhoni had a ploy to bring the batsmen back to the crease. He would stand up, just next to the stumps. This would force the batsmen to retreat back to the crease, since they knew that missing the ball would mean getting stumped.

The tactic had one disadvantage. Most swing bowlers - Praveen and Bhuvi - hate when the keeper stands up. This isn't just an ego thing since that is just a public admonition of lack of pace. No new ball bowler in the world likes this. A famous story goes that once when the captain Sunil Gavaskar found his young spearhead Kapil Dev not bowling at his full pace, he asked the wicketkeeper Syed Kirmani to stand up to the stumps. Kapil stopped in his tracks, got the message, sent Kirmani back and upped his pace.

Besides, there is another factor. Wicketkeeper not sticking to his usual place makes them conscious and this impacts their natural rhythm. At the back of the mind is the fact that an error in line would mean '4 byes'.

On Sunday, Dinesh Karthik didn't stand up since the team had a different bowling plan. Look at the field placement when Bhuvneshwar started the Indian innings. Square leg and third man were the only two fielders out of the 30-yard circle. Arshdeep Singh inside the circle at short fine leg.

Statistics show that Babar gets out executing the pull quite often. It's a misleading statistic, it's not his weakness. It's just that he plays the stroke more often. It's an old cricketing truth-the short that gives you most runs is also the reason for your many dismissals.

Babar is a safe player of the pull. He plays it down and in front of the square. The Indian bowling group would have discussed that a short ball to Babar with just one man on the leg side would force him to play the pull. He did.

The Pakistan captain did most things right he was in position and he was trying to keep the ball down. But a couple of things went against him - he was standing out of the crease and Bhuvi isn't an express pacer. Babar didn't get the space to manoeuvre the pull resulting in him mistiming the ball. Bhuvi's pace wasn't in the 140 kph range so the ball didn't fly over the fence. It landed in the hands of Arshdeep at short fine leg.

One other thing foxed Babar: the bounce. Watch his pull, again. It's a horizontal batshot, usually deployed to chest-high balls. But this rose higher, towards the shoulder, and kept climbing, and the way the bat came horizontally across the chest wasn't going to be ideal. Because he was standing outside the crease, he met the ball at its steepest climb up, making things more difficult for him. At the last instant, due to the extra bounce. Babar ends up at an awkward position, the bat-face tilting up towards the skies when he makes contact. Not surprising then, it popped straight up.

It was a game-changing dismissal everyday can't be Sunday. Babar is too fine a batsman to get out pulling a 130 kph bouncer with just one man guarding the square leg fence. And Bhuvi is too versatile to stick to the same plan. Babar vs Bhuvi Round Two will see the clever cricketer coming with fresh tactics.

US colleges, finishing school for elite athletes

NAMIT KUMAR

WHEN TEJASWIN Shankar's first American scholarship offer to play in the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) arrived, he was in disbelief. "I thought it was some sort of scam. Aapko koi leke bhi jaa raha hai, padha bhi raha hai, rakh bhi raha hai, aur sab kuchh free mein,' (Your travel, education and stay are all free). I thought it was a kidnapping racket," he told The Indian Express earlier this month.

Later, when he realised it was a system of over 500 schools, each specialising in a different sport, in the top collegiate competition in the world, he became an advocate of it.

"If it's free and we can use it, why are we relying on the government to spend crores of rupees on sports budgets? Trust your athletes to come back home and perform at a high level," he said. Tejaswin's conviction has paid off. The 23-year-old high jumper's bronze at the recent Commonwealth Games was one of a whopping 45 medals won by NCAA athletes worldwide in track and field alone. 21 of those were gold, and medallists came from Africa and the Caribbean, from UK and Australia

Today, American colleges are full of international student-athletes finding huge success. At the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships in Eugene this year, 15 champions came from countries outside the United States, including Tunisia, St Lucia, Morocco, and Zimbabwe

One of those 15 champions was Tejaswin. The high jumper is a six-time All-American athlete and set the Indian national record of 2.29m for Kansas State University in 2018. At the Hayward Field, he became just the second Indian to win two NCAA championships, alongside Somdev Devvarman.

Devvarman himself is one of just 13 players to have ever won consecutive Division 1 tennis titles at that level, the second of which saw him post a win-loss record record of 44-1. Less than a year later, he became the first Indian since Leander Paes to reach the final of an ATP event at the Chennai Open, where he had entered the main draw as a wildcard.

Devvarman is another advocate of young Indians taking the American scholarship route. The former Top 70 player told The Indian Express that there are things he learnt and unlearned – on and off the court – while going through the system, without which he was not likely to become the player that he became. Though his parameters of success weren't merely winning medals or trophies.

"I joined the University of Virginia back in 2004, which was a top division 1 programme under the NCAA. But I was not very confident that I would be able to go pro. What mattered to me was just having the freedom to play. To do what I knew best. And over there, with the structure and organisation they gave me, everything from strength coaches to taking care of my nutrition, I felt I got that freedom," he said.

On his way to the NCAA title in 2007. Devvarman defeated future two-time Grand Slam finalist Kevin Anderson in the semifinal. and then future top-10 player and US No.1 John Isner in the final. He believes that the exposure he gained, to train and compete with some of the world's best young players, was crucial to his development.

Breeding ground for medallists

Tejaswin and Devvarman are not the only high-profile athletes to go the NCAA way. In the late 1960s, triple jumper Mohinder Singh Gill went through the system before winning Commonwealth and Asian Games medals. Discus thrower Vikas Gowda was the 2004 NCAA champion, and 10 years later, won a Commonwealth Games gold in Glasgow.

But Devvarman believes more Indians eligible for scholarships should be taking advantage of the structure that the NCAA can provide. "For any athlete, the most difficult jump is going from a successful junior career to the pros. That period is usually when they are at university, between 18 and 22. Playing consistently and looking after your body at that time is so crucial," he said.

He stresses promising young Indians like Sumit Nagal and Karman Kaur Thandi, too could have benefitted from the support he had at that age. "They (Karman and Sumit) have struggled with injuries. I remember going through the same in that phase. But in Virginia, I had dedicated training rooms, I could get scans done, get the right rehabilitation process, the right advice, the right training regimen.

"Frankly, in India, this can be quite hard. The whole ecosystem does not exist, and if you want to create it, you have to pay exorbitant costs," the former tennis player said.

An athlete's career is short, he says, and in their developmental years, they are one illtimed injury away from failing to reach the heights they can. In those years, having a support system can be crucial.

He wishes more people knew about the choices they have.

For all the evident opportunities an NCAA scholarship may provide though, the lack of accessibility is a challenge.

There are various divisions in the system, and getting a top-level Division 1 scholarship involves cut-throat competition, not just on the field, but academically too. Most schools have qualifying criteria for their scholarships, which include competitive test scores as well as minimum cut-off scores at all levels of senior schooling. It requires a certain level of academic inclination and command over the English language which a national junior champion, who does not come from a privileged background, may not have.

There are financial constraints too. Schools at the top of the competitive curve are likely to give 100 percent scholarships only to a highlevel recruit, and it is even rarer for international students. So, if financial aid is the primary concern, a student-athlete may have to settle financially for a lesser school, which could be detrimental to their development.

Tejaswin's case also highlights an apprehension of Indian sports bodies. The Delhibased athlete was snubbed by the Athletics Federation of India for the Asian Championships back in 2019, failing to recognise his results in the US after he missed the Federation Cup. Ahead of the CWG this year, barring a last-minute court intervention, history was about to repeat itself. Devvarman puts these constraints into perspective before advising young athletes to pursue the same route as him. He maintained the focus in the NCAA is on developing well-rounded athletes, which has value beyond sport.

"It depends on what your priorities are. A lot of student-athletes I trained with realised they can't make it to the top, or don't want to. They went on to find success in other things in life, for which a great education opened doors for them. But if winning medals and competing at the top is the priority, and 100 percent scholarships are not on the table, these things must be kept in mind," he said.

Dedicated towards a safer & cleaner environment

Harbauer India is a one stop solution providing quality services to solve environmental issues. Working at the core of its relentless, passionate and purposeful pursuit for surpassing expectations in providing cleaner

environment, Harbauer India, contributing to the society's welfare and development by offering them the best of Limited, shared her thoughts with us.

Harbauer India works to find water treatment solutions with a focus on conserving the environment. Can you talk about what technological advancements and components are used by Harbauer in its products to help conserve the environment?

Harbauer believes in innovative solution in the water treatment segment with their, "dedicated towards a safer and cleaner environment". Most of our water treatment are based on "Zero Liquid Discharge" Technology, which means not one drop of water is wasted while treating the ground water loaded with impurities like iron, arsenic, fluoride, uranium etc in to safe drinking water; unlike other technologies which has a minimum reject water ranging from 30 to 60%. Our technology is adsorption based which means when the water passes through our filter media the chemical bonding of the compounds change and it becomes a new bonding hence it is also anti-leachment; in simpler terms it means that if the spent media if disposed as municipal waste, does not allow the impurities to go back in its natural form and further pollute the environment. Further as a part of our corporate strategy and our vision of cleaner and safer environment we have given our spent media as a raw material component to the clay brick kilns, the minerals the spent media makes the bricks more robust for constructions. Several researches have been done with our patented media "the Granular Ferric Hydroxide" for Arsenic Removal, at the Berlin University of Technology and in India at NEERI& IIT(Kharagpur), and unanimously they have concluded that it is so far the best media available for Arsenic Removal; it also has the maximum surface are for absorption which means that it can allow maximum amount of Arsenic Absorption; therefore; once the filter vessels are loaded with this material you need not change it frequently.

Harbauer India, which is a wholly-owned German Subsidiary of Harbauer GmbH, boasts 16 of research experience. Can you talk about the findings of the research?

Our researches are multi folds; on one side we focus on Zero Liquid Discharge systems to ensure minimum water wastage and on the other hand we make our water treatment models design friendly. In Germany, we pioneer in process water purification which means we take the water from a source; treat it and give it back to the environment by recharging the ground water or to an industry for manufacturing processes. There are still arears in Berlin where due to oil seepages during the World Wars, the ground water is contaminated with oil; we drill this water out, treat it and recharge the water table. The Granular Ferric Hydroxide, air purification through UV rays, compact-multi level water purification systems in the food industry; minimum space usage for purification and desalinization systems for the ship industry are some of the research experiences which are feathers in our cap.

So far you have worked with the governments of many Indian states — West Bengal, Karnataka, Uttar Pradesh, Gujarat, Bihar and Chattisgarh — Can you talk about the various projects that you worked on for each of them?

Our presence in India is since the year 2003, where the menace of Arsenic was creating a havoc in the Indo Gangetic Planes starting from Uttar Pradesh, Bihar, Chattisgarh, West Bengal and finally to Bangladesh. Since our inception we have done various projects in providing safer drinking water to the residents of these states in association with the Public Health Departments of these states; also we have we are the first to initiate fluoride removal systems in these areas. We also work in the segment of waste water and effluent removal systems.

In addition to the traditional water treatment system networks, Harbauer has also come up with innovative initiatives such as Water on Wheels, a Mobile Water Testing Laboratory and the Water ATM. Can you talk to us about each of those initiatives?

As a mid-sized company, Harbauer is always focused in doing something out of the box and this endeavour is backed by years of research on human behaviour and grassroot data of our rural lifestyles and habitats. In our studies during the late 2006-07 we found out that though there were a number of water treatment plants set up by the government, people were either not eager to collect water from these community level plants due to the poor hygiene or they did not understand the importance of drinking pure water, needless to say maintenance was a big issue. Therefore, we designed a flat pack modular, eco-friendly, child-friendly system which we named H2.0 - the Water ATM. It looked fascinating and was accepted wholesomely by our diverse rural communities. The inquisitiveness in the masses was extreme. Everyone wanted to walk past the machine just to discover how it function; never had they seen such a small community based water treatment system. Harbauer, bagged a total order of 200 plants all over North 24 Parganas, West Bengal, 15 plants in Bihar and started working in Government Schools. The motto of the government was to spread awareness programmes through these systems through health and hygiene messages and when the kids carry this purified water to their home parents would drink it as they would understand the importance of safe drinking water through a part of the educational reforms . The Water ATM's were later replicatedin the city of Kolkata, with a special focus on the Government Hospitals with a Pay-and-Use model to reduce wastage at a mere "Rs 2"/liter of pure, cold drinking water.

Harbauer prides in its Mobile Water Testing Labs, around 9 of which are operational in all of Bihar's 9 Divisional Zones and 6 MWTLs are catering to the water quality requirements of Gujarat. These vehicles move from source to source to collect water and they have the state-of-the-art water testing equipment installed which are capable of testing 13+ parameters of water quality.

theGovernment of Bihar.

We also designed and manufactured

the Water on Wheels – the Mobile Water

Treatment Plant which is set up on a Tata

- Xenon chassis and could be moved around where there would be public gatherings and the water could be collected from any source be it a pond or a river, and with a minimal pay and use to quench the thirst of millions gathered at a rally or a religious event. Around 16 such vehicles were manufactured, supplied and operated under the jurisdiction of

Recently Harbauer in association with the Government of Bihar and Siemens is installing around 10,000 IOT devices all over south of Bihar to understand the amount of functional/non-functional water treatment units, the liters of water treated and discharged per day, coverage of population and all this data can be accessed at one's palm top centrally. Sensors, flow meters are installed at different points of the discharge and purification nodes to also have a fair understanding of leakages and increasing the life of installed WTP's with preventive maintenance thus ensuring proper usage of development funds by the Governments

As a company that has over a decade of experience in the water treatment business, can you talk about the challenges you face in ensuring top-notch quality? Also, can you point out the inadequacies in the technologies used today that need re-looking and restructuring?

Having our roots in Europe and particularly in the technological hub of Germany, we have always believed at heart that the Field Operations Team of technicians, plumbers, fitters, play the most important role in the technological advancement of the society. We have always believed that Quality is not the subject of the corporate elite and it should flowdown to our Field Operations Team to the last node of plant operators, only then quality reflects in the products and services. Our experience proves that skills are not acquired by studying in Degree colleges, but is gained at the Diploma Colleges, Vocational Schools and the ITIs. We are one of the few corporates who take pride in hiring diploma engineers and promote them to Senior designations. Our educational institutions focus more on theoretical knowledge and hands-on training is a miss, it therefore, takes a long time in skilling these manpower to take up responsibilities. Our markets are price sensitive and in such price competitive markets, guality and long term goals sometimes take a back seat. We have our focus on grassroots innovations which help usdesign advanced products that are robust and long lasting while achieving our clients price targets and does not compromise on quality.
